In Chilton County the cotton farmers have realized approximately $300,000 from the program; to say nothing of a minimum increase in the price of their cotton of four cents per pound. Four cents per pound on more than 12,000 bales of cotton, too, amounts to a considerable figure.

When the country voted last year on the Bankhead Act, 90 per cent of the ballots were favorable. In this county the vote was 96 per cent for the act and only four per cent against it.

Clanton Wholesale Grocery Co. Entertains Employees And Friends With A Fish Fry

One of the most delightful events of last week occurred Thursday evening from 5 to 9 o'clock when R. W. Taylor, manager of the Clanton Wholesale Grocery Company, entertained his employees and a number of other friends with a fish fry at his camp on Coosa River.

As the guests arrived sandwiches and lemonade were served, and the climax of the evening was reached later when a large banquet table, piled high with deliciously fried fish and accessories, was placed at the disposal of those present.

The affair was informal throughout, and a pleasing spirit of friendliness was apparent with everyone present. A full moon, reflecting against the backwaters of Mitchell Dam, lent color and beauty to the happy gathering. Mr. W. M. Bean, speaking for the guests in a few well-chosen words, expressed the pleasure of those present to Mr. Taylor for a delightful evening of entertainment. Mr. Taylor in turn expressed his pleasure in having the opportunity of entertaining his friends and appreciation for the loyalty of his employees.

Those present from Clanton were: Hugh Jones, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Bean, Mr. and Mrs. John Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Mims, Mr. and Mrs. Grady Taylor and three sons, Morris, Melvin and Edward, W. A. Powell, Warren Wingard, Aubrey Taylor, Miss Mary Newell, Willie Mims, Vernie Teel, and Mrs. Bert Haggard of Calera; Jett and Leonard Wyatt, both of Bean & Taylor Grocery Co., Mr. and Mrs. Alonza Askins, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Billingsley, Eli and Adolphus Moatts, and J. D. Collins, Jr.

From Calera Cash Store: Mr. and Mrs. Russell Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Barnes and Kenyon Parker. Mr. Edwards is general manager of the northern division. From Buck Creek Cash Store: Mr. and Mrs. John Denham, Mr. and Mrs. Otho Garrett, Cameron Reid, Miss Julia McDaniel, Lester Lovelady.

From Underwood Cash Store: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Butler, Miss Jones and Tom Harper. From Columbiana: Mr. and Mrs. Mason Edwards, Carl Edwards and Miss Goodman. From Montevallo, J. A. Love, manager, C. Spivey and Tommy Patrick.

Mr. Taylor's colored employees, Deacon Bill Dickerson, S. A. Lester, Adel Dickerson, "Snow Ball" from Siluria, and Wallace Roberts, from Matt's Lunch Shoppe, were responsible for the well-cooked food.

UNION GROVE

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give me a small space in our paper this week to say a few words from this community, after hearing so much being said about our Mother's Day program, and what a fine program it was. We had a large crowd and plenty of dinner, and every body enjoyed the day.

Well, I want to say that on next Sunday is our regular preaching day by Rev. Carroll, but at 11 o'clock Bro. Honeycutt will preach at this church. We urge that all that can, come out to both services, at 11:00 a.m. and at 7:30 at night.

Our B. Y. P. U. is doing fine. We had a fine program last Sunday night, and we are going to have a social and an ice cream supper next Saturday night at G. L. Glasscock's. The cream will be sold for the benefit of the B. Y. P. U. Please come and help, for the money will be used for a good cause.

We are trying to train the young people of this community to where they will be in better shape for the leaders of tomorrow than those who are trained to fill the places of today.

Well, on the fourth Sunday in July our regular protracted meeting will start at Union Grove by the able help of Brother Carroll and Brother J. N. Green. We are looking for a fine meeting.

We are glad to say that Mrs. Bell Mims, who has been sick for two weeks, is better at this time.

Miss Inez Abernathy is in Gorgas Memorial Hospital in Birmingham, where she underwent a surgical operation last Sunday.

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

The writer has often said that killing a man does not make one a murderer. A man is a murderer before he kills. Stealing does not make a man a thief. A man is a thief before he steals. The test of your character is what you would do if nobody but God ever knew it. If you would kill a man if you could and not get caught then you are a murderer. Suppose you were in a room with one hundred thousand dollars near you and you could steal it and absolutely know that nobody on earth would ever catch you. Would you steal it? If you would then you are a thief. All the murderers are not in jail and all thieves are not behind prison bars. It is what I am that counts with God. Man is a sinner. When he becomes a Christian the Bible says he is a new creature. The literal rendering is he is a "new creation."

Recently a great lecturer on the platform at our college said, "A few years ago we begun to study Psychology but we have about decided that man has no mind to study." Then the speaker, who is a great scholar, said, "Man in his fallen state is incapable of thinking accurately." He was not talking about man's inability to work out a problem in mathematics or measure the distance between the stars. He was talking about man's inability to think out the proper philosophy of life. We read in God's word that man by wisdom knew not God. No man has in himself the power to think through life's problems. Jesus Christ, the Son of God, is necessary to our intellectual life. Will Rogers said that every man is ignorant about something. Man may work problems in Mathematics and make experiments in scientific laboratories and yet live in sin and intellectual darkness. What can mathematics and science do for me when I am in sorrow or when I come to the parting of the road and don't know which way to go? What I need is to have with me along life's way that wonderful one who said to His disciples, "Lo, I am with you always even unto the end of the age."

Stops ITCHING In Minutes

Folks who have used HYDROSAL for itching, burning outbreaks could hardly believe such quick relief was possible! Doctors have prescribed HYDROSAL for 23 years. Even in stubborn, torturing eczema, Athlete's Foot (or "Itchy Toes"), rashes and pimples, the burning and itching fade away the minute HYDROSAL touches the skin. HYDROSAL penetrates the skin and acts to check growth of the germ causing local disorder. Gives Nature real help to quick healing. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau. Money back if it does not satisfy you. At all druggists in two forms, liquid and ointment—30c and 60c sizes.

Lesson for May 26

THE LORD'S SUPPER

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 26:17-30; I Corinthians 11: 23-29.

GOLDEN TEXT—This do in remembrance of me.—I Corinthians 11:24.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Supper Jesus Gave His Friends.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Why We Have the Lord's Supper.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Observe the Lord's Supper?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Meaning of the Lord's Supper.

I. It Was Instituted by Christ (Matt. 26:7-30).

1. The time of (I Cor. 11:23). It was on the night of the betrayal of Jesus, just after the betrayer had been announced.

2. The circumstances of (Matt. 26: 26). It was in connection with the eating of the Passover. At the command of Jesus the disciples had made ready the Passover, and while they were eating he took bread and blessed it and gave to the disciples.

3. The elements used (v. 26). Bread, doubtless common bread of the Passover feast, and the cup which was the fruit of the vine.

II. The Significance of the Lord's Supper (I Cor. 11:24-26; cf. Matt 26: 26-28).

Jesus took natural and literal elements and made them to be symbols of his own body and blood. Just as our bread and drink are transformed into brain and brawn, becoming integral parts of our bodies, so by means of these symbols the communicant partakes of Christ. We are in him and he is in us.

1. It is a memorial of the Lord (Luke 22:19). When he left the world he left the bread and the cup by which the disciples would remember him. Every true disciple will gladly avail himself of the opportunity thus to remember his Lord.

2. To show the Lord's sacrificial death (v. 26). Jesus Christ did not die as a hero or as an example of unselfish devotion, but as a substitutionary ransom. On the cross he made expiation for sin.

3. It is a guarantee that our sins are forgiven (Rom. 4:25).

"It was the signet of the Son of God attached to redemption."

4. It symbolizes the believer's reception of Christ (I Cor. 10:16). The communicant thereby participates in the body and blood of Christ, becoming a member of his body.

5. It is a forward look to a completed redempton (I Cor. 11:26). When faith is exercised in Christ, redemption begins and its completion will take place at the coming of Jesus Christ (I Thess. 4:16, 17). The bread and the cup constitute the keepsake of the Lord until he returns. These elements possess not only a spiritual, but a tremendous psychological value, both as a memorial and as a prospect.

III. Qualifications for Participation in the Lord's Supper (I Cor. 11:27-29).

1. A proper apprehension of its meaning (v. 27). Eating and drinking unworthily primarily refers not to the demerit of the communicant, but the failure to grasp the meaning and importance of the ordinance. To engage thoughtlessly in this service is to do it unworthily. Only a regenerated person can discern the Lord's body. Faith in the integrity of Christ's person and work is essential. Anyone who does not believe in the absolute deity of Christ and his vicarious atonement is an unworthy communicant.

2. Church membership (I Cor. 11: 18-22). Christ's body is the Church, which is composed of regenerated men and women united to him as head and to each other as members of that body by the Holy Spirit.

3. Orderly walk. Conduct which disqualifies for participation in the Lord's supper is a. Immoral conduct (I Cor. 5:1-13). It is most perilous for one who is guilty of immorality to approach the Lord's table (I Cor. 11:30). Sickness and death are often visited upon such. This explains why some are mysteriously taken away in death.

b. Heresy (Tit. 3:16; I John 4:23). The one who does not believe in the deity and incarnation of Christ is a heretic. Such should be excluded from the Lord's table.

c. The one who stirs up party strife (Rom. 16:17). Those who cause divisions in the Church should also be excluded from the Lord's table.

Freedom and Triumph

To be gripped by an iron-handed necessity from without is slavery; to be borne along the path of duty by an inward force, which we would not resist if we could, is freedom, peace, triumph.

SEED THOUGHTS

GOODYEAR OFFERS MANY SAFETY INNER TUBES NOW

The last word in safety in event of a blowout while driving at high speed is now available to motorists in Chilton County, according to Dief's Service Station, local dealer for the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

The new development is a tube for automobile tires that eliminates the danger of serious accident following a blowout by changing the sudden blowout into a slow leak.

"It is a known fact that a blowout at 60 miles per hour is twice as dangerous as one at 40 miles per hour, and at 80 miles per hour is four times as dangerous," Mr. Diefenderfer explained. "With new cars having extremely high top speeds being placed on the market the need for such a tube is increasingly apparent.

"Goodyear engineers have been working on this 'safety insurance' problem for several years and the new Goodyear life guard tube is the result. It is in reality a 'double tube,' one inside the other, and joined together at the base. The two air chambers are connected only by a single small vent hole which allows the air to pass from the inner chamber to the outer chamber.

"The outer tube is similar in appearance and function to an ordinary tube and fits inside the casing," Mr. Diefenderfer continued. "The inside carcass is built up by two plies of fabric and when in service floats free without chafing. When a blowout occurs, air escapes from the outer chamber instantly but can escape from the inner carcass only through the single small vent hole, which allows it to seep out slowly.

"The tire then drops down slightly to ride on the inner carcass, allowing the driver to bring the car to a stop under perfect control. He can pull off to the side of the road without endangering himself, his car or the lives of other motorists.

"Police and fire department officials and heads of safety organizations who have seen the tube demonstrated are unanimous in the opinion it is one of the most important contributions to the safety of motoring that has been made in a decade," Mr. Diefenderfer concluded.

REV. R. F. YEARGAN

On May 8 at 4:15 a.m., the spirit of Rev. R. F. Yeargan winged its flight to that undiscovered country from whose borne no traveler returns.

Brother Yeargan, as he was familiarly known, was born March 13, 1885 in Clay County, Alabama. On November 28th, 1878 he was married to Miss Mary Elizabeth Williams. To this union were born 12 children, 11 of whom are still living; 6 boys and 5 girls. He was ordained to the ministry November 10, 1894, of Penton Circuit of Lafayette district of the North Alabama Conference, M. E. Church South. He was known is a local preacher until his death.

It has been the pleasure of the writer to have known Brother Yeargan for more than 20 years. I have always found him to be an upright, straightforward Christian gentleman.

He leaves to mourn his loss, besides a host of friends, the following children: C. P. Yeargan, Buffalo, Ala.; Mrs. Dora Partridge, Verbena Route 1; Ira B. Yeargan, Clanton Route 3; L. M. Yeargan, Oxford, Ala.; Mrs. Annie Bell Barber, Fayette, Ala.; Mrs. Mary Jane Vance, Toledo, Ohio; John D. Yeargan, Clanton Route 2; E. R. Yeargan, Oxford; Miss Lena Yeargan, Oxford; Mrs. Fannie Davis, Talladega; Alfred Yeargan, Talladega.

Also 28 grandchildren and 6 great grandchildren; his wife preceded him to the grave January 10, 1929.

May he rest in peace, and may heaven's richest blessings rest on the bereaved family, is the prayer of a friend.—Q. C. Meroney.

Thirty Million Miles of Ford Economy

MORE MILES. Faster miles. Greater economy . . . that is the story of the Ford V-8. There are conclusive figures from owners to show that it is the most economical Ford car ever built.

A particularly interesting and complete report of costs comes from a national fleet owner who has owned 854 Ford cars which have run more than thirty million miles in business use.

175 were Model T Fords which were run 5,017,075 miles. 599 were Model A Ford cars which were run 24,041,632 miles. 80 are Ford V-8 cars which have been run 2,982,886 miles.

This owner's cost records show that Ford V-8 cars cost 12% less to operate than the Model A Fords and 31% less than the Model T Fords. And they covered more miles per month! The monthly average for the Model T Fords was 1509 miles. . . . For the Model A Fords, 1866 miles. . . . And 2571 miles for the Ford V-8.

Each year the Ford car gives you more in value and performance and costs you less to operate.

Actual Figures Show The Ford V-8 is 12% More economical than the Model A. and 31% More economical than the famous Model T.

ANNUAL SINGING TO BE AT MARS HILL ON THE FOURTH SUNDAY

The annual singing will be held at Mars Hill on the fourth Sunday in May.

On Friday before the fourth Sunday we will meet to clean off the cemetery.—Loyd Edwards.

"No more tired, let-down feeling for me"

"I reasoned that my red blood corpuscle strength was low and I simply took a course of S.S.S. Tonic and built it back."

IT is all so simple and reasonable. If your physical let-down is caused by lowered red blood corpuscles—which is all too frequent—then S.S.S Tonic is waiting to help you... and will, unless you have a serious organic trouble that demands a physician or surgeon.

Remember, S.S.S is not just a so-called "tonic." It is a tonic specially designed to stimulate the gastric secretions, and also has the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying red corpuscles in the blood.

This two-fold purpose is important. Digestion is improved... food is better utilized... and thus you are enabled to better "carry on" without exhaustion—as you should naturally.

You may have the will-power to be "up and doing" but unless your blood is in top notch form you are not fully yourself and you may remark, "I wonder why I tire so easily."

Let S.S.S. help build back your blood tone... if your case is not exceptional, you should soon enjoy again the satisfaction of appetizing food... sound sleep ... steady nerves... a good complexion ... and renewed strength.

S.S.S. is sold by all drug stores in two sizes. The $2 economy size is twice as large as the $1.25 size and is sufficient for two weeks treatment. Begin on the uproad today. © S.S.S. Co.

HOMECOMING AT COOPER

There will be a homecoming day at Cooper (Chestnut Creek Church) on the first Sunday in June, and we especially desire all of our ex-members of this church who have moved away to be back with us on this day. If you have any relatives or friends who are away, please drop them a card and tell them that we want them with us and that you will bring their dinner, and I believe they will come.

Everybody invited to come and let's have a real home coming day, one that we can have pleasant memories for many years to come—J. L. Yates, publicity chairman.

4-H BOYS AND GIRLS GIVEN TRIPS TO CAMP

Auburn, Ala.—Alabama will be represented at the national 4-H club camp at Washington, June 13 to 19, by four 4-H club boys and girls who have been awarded free trips because of their outstanding achievements in club work.

Two boys and two girls will make the trip. As announced by T. A. Sims and Miss Elizabeth DeLony, directors of 4-H club work in the state. They are Virgil DeLony, Ozark Route 4, Dale County; Winfred Barton, Cordova Route 1, Walker County; Clora Ella Paulk, Ramer, Montgomery County; and Violet Whatley, Opelika Route 2, Lee County. Mr. Sims and Miss DeLony will accompany the group to Washington.

The Alabama boys and girls will join with two 4-H club boys and two 4-H club girls from each of the other states in the union in enjoying a week of camp life.

KUDZU SHOULD BE GRAZED CAREFULLY

Auburn, Ala.—Kudzu should not be grazed too closely or mowed too frequently, else the stand may be destroyed, says J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist.

"Allow kudzu to grow at least two full seasons before mowing and three seasons if the land is poor," he advises. "Not more than two mowings each season seems to be the safest on soils of only fair fertility."

Many farmers have found that kudzu furnishes valuable grazing, particularly during the periods of drouth, by shifting the livestock from the grass pasture to the kudzu for a part of each day.

4,000 DIRT FARMERS ENDORSE AAA PROGRAM

Auburn, Ala.—Four thousand farmers from 25 states, 250 being from Alabama, met in Washington the past week and passed a resolution urging the continuation of the agricultural adjustment act.

"Be it resolved by the delegates assembled," the resolution says, "that we respectfully request our congressmen and senators to give their unqualified support to the continuation of the agricultural adjustment act, including the processing tax and the amendments to the act now pending before congress, and

"Be it further resolved, that we endorse the legislation enacted by the national congress and the sympathetic administration thereof in restoring the agricultural credit of the nation."

FARMERS HARVEST OAT CROP

Indications are that Alabama farmers will this year harvest about 2,500,000 bushels of oats, nearly 500,000 bushels more than last year when 2,090,000 bushels were produced.

F. W. Gist, state and federal agricultural statistician, reports that on May 1 the oat crop was 80 per cent of normal, indicating a production of about 20 bushels per acre.

WORK BEGUN ON NEW PARKS

Montgomery, Ala. — Preliminary work by advance personnel was begun at three new state park locations on Thursday, May 16, according to the Alabama Commission of forestry. These projects are as follows:

Chewacla Park, near Auburn in Lee County, designated as Camp SP-12; Chattahoochee Park, near Crosby in Houston County, known as Camp SP-13; and Chickasaw Park, near Linden in Marengo County, camp SP-14; at which locations complete CCC units will be established about July 1 or soon thereafter.

The first steps to be taken by these advance parties include working up a base plan for the developments to be undertaken and the preparation of detailed designs for roads, trails, bridges and other improvements proposed to be built on the park areas. By obtaining prior approval from the Washington office, construction plans will be at a stage of development that will permit the work to be started immediately after establishment of the camps, thus avoiding delay and fully utilizing the services of the enrolled force.

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala.—Houston County sportsmen have created a new conservative association, set a membership goal of 700 and launched a program to bring the sportsmen and landowners of the county closer together.

Dr. J. A. Campbell of Dothan, where the meeting was held, was elected president of the organization, which, at the suggestion of Chief Game Warden W. G. Wharton, was officially named the Houston County Sportsmen's Association.

Other officers are Dr. S. O. Moseley, vice president, and Van Ritch, secretary-treasurer. A committee composed of W. C. Faulkner, Frank Wilkes, Warden N. F. Odom, Fire Chief Ziglar and Rufus Cherry was named to prepare a constitution and by laws.

A. B. Blount, Dr. A. R. Gissendanner and H. D. Coe were appointed to the membership committee and the association voted to hold a barbecue and fish fry as soon as this committee reports 100 members. Sixty were present at the initial meeting.

In addition to fostering better relations between farmers and sportsmen, the association's program calls for restocking of streams with fish and woods and fields with game. It is also hoped to establish a big game preserve in the county.

The organization of this association came shortly after the reorganization of the Blount County Sportsmen's Association. Ray McKee was elected president, R. F. Donehoo, vice president and J. P. Gardner, secretay-treasurer, all of Oneonta.

Commissioner I. T. Quinn met with the Blount County Association and helped it map a fish restocking program. A committee composed of J. H. Lowery, T. J. McPherson and R. C. Corr, was named to direct the planting program.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala.—The University of Alabama Crimson Tide won its second Southeastern Conference championship for the present year when it defeated Mississippi State's crack base team here last week. The victory gave the tiders a two to one break in their series with the Staters, and placed them well out in front of all other teams in the Southeastern Conference standing. Lefty Lee Rogers, stellar southpaw, who will report to the Boston Red Sox immediately after finishing his exams, was the star of the game, letting the visitors down with only three hits.

Advanced registration for the first term of summer school and the prospect of a considerable increase in the forthcoming session led by Dr. John R. McLure, director of the summer school, to offer additional courses in a number of subjects. At present the advance registration is 75 per cent ahead of what it was last year at this time.

The entire sophomore class of medical records with a clean medical record to date have been transferred to junior standing in approved four year medical colleges, it was announced by Dr. Stuart Graves, dean of the medical school. Thirteen transferred to Rush in Chicago, six to Washington University of St. Louis; three to Tulane, three to Duke, three to Jefferson College; three to New York University medical college, and one each to Harvard, Pennsylvania, medical college of Virginia, Emory, Temple and Arkansas.

A new ruling affecting all students who entered the University on or after September, 1934, was announced by the new general catalogue. According to the ruling, an undergraduate needs only a "D" (60-69) average to pass, but he must have an average of C (70-79) for the entire number of hours taken in order to graduate.

SERVICES AT CHURCH OF CHRIST

Lord's Day, 10 a.m. Bible study, classes for all ages. 11 a.m. Preaching and worship. 7:30 p.m. Preaching. Subject, "It takes many things to Save Us." God, Christ, Holy Spirit, faith, repentance, confession, baptism, godly living, keeping commandments, faithfulness until death. Come and worship with us.

CANE CREEK

Last Saturday and Sunday were our regular preaching days. The pastor, Rev. W. E. Robinson, delivered two wonderful sermons. We had a good Sunday school attendance and hope all will come back next Sunday.

The singing society met at this place Sunday afternoon and had a very good singing, which everyone present seemed to enjoy.

We were indeed glad to have Mrs. Robinson and all the other visitors with us Sunday, and invite them to come again.

We had a good B. Y. P. U. last Sunday night with a large attendance. Come right on, folks, let's make all these services worth while.

Remember, you are always welcome at Cane Creek. Sunday school at 10 and B. Y. P. U. at 7:30.

FRUIT GROWING IN CHILTON

In Alabama, and especially in Chilton County, we can raise almost anything in the line of fruits, such as berries, peaches, grapes, figs and others. True, our county goes in for this line of work in some degree, but our people are losing thousands of dollars every year by failing to grow more different crops.

I understand the growing of fruits generally, but am a specialist in grapes. I know what a rich harvest we might reap within four years time. I know where to ship to get top prices also.

If there are enough farmers in this county who would be interested in the growing of grapes for the market, so that we might ship in carload lots, as we now do in strawberries, I would be glad to meet with them and explain the proposition to them. An association might be formed for the purpose, and I believe—in fact, I know that in a period of four years the members of such an association would be reaping rich bounties from such a move.

While grapes take a little longer to begin bearing paying crops, yet after such time, the most of the work is over, then. Very little work is necessary to care for the vines, very little fertilizer is used, and the harvesting problem is nothing, as compared with strawberries. Furthermore there is always a ready market for grapes—if not for immediate consumption, then the winery and grape juice markets are always there to fall back on.

If you are interested, come to see me and let's talk the matter over.

The cotton growing industry seems to be failing, the strawberry market seems about absorbed, so why not try something else? Write me at any time, or come to see me at my shoe shop on Sixth Street, just south of the courthouse.—John Schmith.

County Officials Of State To Meet In Annual Conv

Montgomery, Ala.—About 600 county commissioners, tax assessors, tax collectors, county engineers, supervisors, circuit clerks and other officials will be here Thursday for the annual convention of the Assocition of County commissioners of Alabama.

This is expeted to be the largest meeting in the history of the organization and many important problems are to be discussed by the governing heads of Alabama's 67 counties, with main interest centering in the distribution of the $4,600,000,000 work relief fund granted the president.

Every county has some project it wishes to carry through with money from this fund and claims will be discussed and urged. Other matters listed for discussion are expected to bring controversy in the 48 hours the county executives are in session.

The convention opens formally at 1 p.m. Thursday to close at noon Saturday. The first business session will be held at 2:30 p.m. Thursday when committees will be organized and a general program of procedure mapped.

Thursday night will be open, with sessions resuming at 9 a.m. Friday and continuing throughout the day. A banquet is planned for 7:30 p.m. Friday, with Governor Graves as the principal speaker. Final business will be handled at the Saturday morning sessions.

In addition to Governor Graves the list of speakers includes Dr. L. N. Duncan, president of Auburn; Dr. J. N. Baker, state health officer; Gaston Scott, highway director; H. H. Houk, chief state highway engineer; Frederick I. Thompson, member of the Alabama public works board; Dr. J. A. Keller, state superintendent of education, and others.

PROVIDENCE

BEAT 13

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow us a small space to say a few words in regard to our homecoming day at this place. We are so glad to say that it was most assuredly a success throughout the day. The morning program was conducted by John T. Martin, pastor, of Brent; who opened the devotional work with a splendid talk and excellent prayer, after which welcome address was made by W. R. Houlditch, and then song led by Bill Cofer.

Prof. Howard Roper then came with a most excellent response, after which a beautiful quartet was rendered by our home boys and Miss Wilmer Adams of Selma.

At 11 o'clock we had a sermon by Rev. Barnes of Montgomery, state mission board, and then a cemetery service, and a decoration of graves. The noon hour was well on and the good eats were spread out before the people, and before we could get through, the singers had gathered in the house and began one of the best song services that Providence ever has witnessed.

The service was conducted by O. B. Martin, president, with the splendid cooperation of too many from different parts of the county and state to mention, but we do want space and time enough to give and congratulate a few of the most important factors of which were P. B. Shaw, George Roper, Hugh McDaniel, John Stamps, Henry Godfrey and Miss Poly Collins, all from the Birmingham District.

Luther Lyon, Misses Helen and Elvis Nolen, Freeman Moore, Jack Lee, and Prof. Woods, all of Shelby County, and comes our home boys, A. H. and E. L. Glasscock, Akins Collins, V. T. Mims, C. W. Scott, Sam Collins, and Loyd Edwards. All of the above named were directors. But I cannot leave out Mr. Bill Cofer and his little son, Kenneth. The part they played was just simply fine; also the Shaw girls quartette. All who missed hearing them missed a treat indeed.

I don't think that Providence has ever had such a gathering of people. They were scattered all the way from Montgomery to Birmingham and Selma. We cordially invite and earnestly solicit your coming again.—W. F. Thompson.

Chero Is Bottled On Newest Modern Machinery

This new and modern bottling equipment has just been installed at the plant of Chero Bottling Company, on Bell Street, in Montgomery. It has a capacity of 86,000 bottles per day. Mr. Herbert Moorer is President of the company. Products of this plant are sold and distributed in Chilton County by Mr. Horsley White, of Clanton.

Mr. Horsley White, distributor of the products of the Chero Bottling Company, of Montgomery, in the Chilton County territory, expresses a high degree of satisfaction over the reception given by the public to the new drink, "Chero", formerly Chero Cola, which was placed on sale throughout his territory during the past two weeks. He said he never dreamed that it would be received and acclaimed by everybody so quickly.

In preparing for the introduction of this new drink the Chero Bottling Company purchased and installed in their plant at 524 Bell Street Montgomery, one of the most modern and up-to-date bottling plants in the entire country. It is the last word in cleanliness, in efficiency of operation and perfect in its bottling and mixing efficency.

"In spite of all this preparation and our desire to get the drink on the market and have a supply on hand to meet all demands, we have been unable to do so," Mr. White said. "The new drink, Chero, is going over in a bigger way than anything I have ever seen. Of course, we knew we had a drink that would be popular, but we did not anticipate such a swamping demand.

"With Chero we have captured the fancy of the public," Mr. White said.

HORSLEY WHITE

"We are now going down the long summer stretch fully prepared to meet the demands that are ahead of us. We are delighted with the expressions of approval that have come to us from those who have tried Chero. We want others to have the pleasure of a really satisfying new beverage, and we want you to ask for Chero at your drink stand."

For several years Horsley White has been distributor in this territory for the popular Nehi drinks. These he will continue, as they are in future to be made in the same new plant which turns out the new Chero. It is one of the most popular drinks on the market, and has gained a wide popularity.

The Union - Banner is pleased to announce the consummation of an extensive advertising contract with Mr. White, in which he will keep before the people of his territory this summer the popular and pleasing points about the new drink, Chero. We insist on our readers giving his products a trial. We recommend Mr. White to the dealers in this territory, as we know he is a good man with a good drink, and we can guarantee that you will enjoy doing business with him, as well as enjoy his drinks.

If you happen to have a chance while in Montgomery, visit the new Chero Plant. It is on the right side of Bell Street as you enter the city. Stop in! ask for Mr. Moorer. Tell him you are one of Mr. White's friends and customers, and he will at once give you the keys to the capital city.

CLANTON METHODIST CHURCH INAUGURATES VESPER SERVICE

Beginning Sunday afternoon at 5:00 vesper services will be held at the Methodist church instead of the regular evening service. The public is cordially invited to attend. The choir will be composed of children from the beginning primary department.

Sunday morning at 11 the aged of the church and community will be honored in a special service. Dr. Middlebrook will speak on "The Beauty of Old Age." Mr. M. W. Thigpen is chairman of the transportation committee. If you have no way to ride to church communicate with Mr. Thigpen or the pastor and a way will be provided for you. At the vesper service the pastor will discuss the theme, "Life's Noon-Day Demons."

AUTO REGISTRATIONS UP

According to a report by R. L. Polk & Co., in the Automotive Daily News, auto registrations for the first three months of 1935 are far above those for the corresponding months of 1934. Following are the figures for the three low price cars:

Name of car	1935	1934	Pct. in.
Ford	206,249	100,834	104
Chevrolet	111,818	82,870	35
Plymouth	86,326	57,281	50

The above figures are for the nation. The following figures are registrations in Chilton County for the first three months of 1935 for Ford and Chevrolet. Plymouth figures were not available:

	Ford	Chevrolet
January	12	5
February	12	5
March	21	11

S. D. A. Services For This Week

The services which are being held at the seventh-day adventist church, will continue up to, and including Sunday night, May 26. The subjects for the remaining services will be of special interest and all are invited to attend. "Heaven's Looking Glass" is the subject for Thursday night, and the sermon on Friday night will connect with it very nicely, subject, "God's Banner." In these two sermons, the minister will show how we may bring our lives into conformity with the requirements of God and how we may show that we are loyal subjects of that kingdom for whose coming we pray.

On Saturday night, the sermon will be illustrated with fine slides, illustrating God's dealings with his people through the ages, and proving that obedience to God has always been the best policy.

Sunday night, the subject will be "Abraham's farm or Heavens real Estate." This is a very interesting and important sermon. Do not miss it. Will there be farms in heaven? Will we know each other there? Will we have bodies? What has Abraham to do with heaven? These and other questions will be answered at that time.

Project To Aid Distressed Farmers Instituted By Federal Authorities

The Chilton County farm debt committee has been appointed by Governor Graves, which consists of:

Mr. E. R. Piper, Thorsby, Ala.; Mr. C. D. Foshee, Clanton; Mr. D. I. Deramus, Verbena.

Farm debt adjustment work had its beginning in 1933 when Governor Morganthau of the farm credit administration wired the governors of the various states suggesting that they appoint state and county committees to give consideration to worthy farmers who had become excessively indebted and were not able to meet their interest payments, pay taxes, and meet their necessary living expenses.

The objective of the project is to secure in distressed farm debt cases as large a measure of social and economic justice as possible for both the farm debtor and his creditors. This objective does not infer the scaling down of any reasonable indebtedness, neither does it mean protecting any debtor who seeks to use the depression as an excuse for shap practice with his creditors. The need of voluntary farm-debt adjustment arises from the fact that no two farm-debt situations are alike.

It is a national necessity that these worthy farmers should be saved. Until recently, about the only settlement for cases of excessive debt—excessive in terms of ability to pay—was court action. This is the least desirable method of settlement if any other is possible as the court action is costly and uncertain. It is likely to result in dispossession of the farmer as an owner, and frequently eliminates the possibility of his remaining on the farm as a tenant. All of this is done without materially bettering the position of the creditor.

Even the first mortgage may lose, while second mortgage and other creditors may suffer complete loss. After the foreclosure the creditors who have taken possession of the farm find that they receive no more than the property can pay in terms of net income. In other words they disposed a worthy farmer and impaired their own position.

This is the objective of the voluntary farm-debt adjustment program as a phase of the president's national recovery program carried on as a state responsibility by the governors of 44 states through more than 2,600 county farm credit committees, with a personnel of more than 13,000 county committeemen. Such a program not only rehabilitates the individuals concerned, but is a marked factor in community building. The purchasing power of the debtor is restored and the creditor whose frozen assets have been made liquid is enabled to engage in other types of business activity which are likely to result in profit to him and benefit to his community.

How cases are gotten before the farm debt adjustment committees or where do we get our cases?

1. Loan correspondent or federal land bank.
2. Debtors.
3. Creditors.
4. County agricultural agents.
5. Rural rehabilitation supervisors.
6. Conciliation commissioners.
7. Common pleas judges.
8. Farm organizations.
9. Publicity.

Purpose and Functions of the County Farm Debt Committees

1. To give friendly, reliable information and counsel to both debtors and creditors. Too frequently a debtor broods over his difficulties instead of seeking effective relief.

2. To work out agreements enabling worthy farmers to remain on the farm, instead of losing hope and deeding the farm to the creditors. Creditors generally do not wish to take title to a debtor's property, although a few have used unfair coercion to get debtors to give up titles.

3. To aid in stopping unnecessary foreclosure, while recognizing that some foreclosures cannot be avoided in the best interests of ALL PARTIES.

4. To assist debtors and creditors to compose the debts in the form of a loan which the debtor has a reasonable chance of carrying.

5. To suggest an extension agreement which will, in a sense, "freeze" the debts, pending further settlement. Such an agreement may be the fairest solution of many distressed farmers' problems and may insure the most effective operation of the farm until such time as the future level of prices may be more definitely known.

6. To assist closed banks to make an equitable adjustment of farmers' debts for the best interest of banks depositors and indebted farmers.

7. To guide debtors and creditors in taking the best court procedure when legal action appears to be the best solution. Few people are well informed especially with regard to the provisions of the revised federal bankruptcy act which permits adjustments through the conciliation commissioners upon a more or less voluntary basis without resorting to the provisions of the Frazier-Lemke Act which renders him a "bankrupt."

8. To aid loan correspondents in obtaining permission from the debtor to make use of committee in composition of his debts.

9. To aid rural rehabilitation foreman to secure list of his cases before the committee.

The topic of the program last Sunday night was "Light." Different members of the program showed the importance of the "light" in the home, to old people, underprivileged children, schools and races. At the end of the program, everyone's tapers were lighted. All marched in the room singing "Follow the Gleam." Ruth Higgins, the president of the society, presented the sponsor, Miss Lillian McKee, a pot plant as a token of appreciation for her work in the society.

Saturday night members of the society enjoyed a delightful social at the Congregational parsonage. The guests were given either whole or half paper moons when they arrived. Later the two sides played "Jumping the Moon" and other Moon games. Sandwiches and lemonade were served as refreshments. The social ended by the members and guests singing "Bless Be the Tie."

Several of the teachers will leave this week. Miss Onita Klingelhoefer expects to go to New England by car and then back to her home in Beaver, Penn. Miss Ruth Ford will return to Dalton, Mass., and Miss Mabel Allen to Wilmore, Ky. Miss Lillian McKee will be in Montevallo studying most of the summer. Her home address is Lineville, Ala. Miss Elizabeth Glasson will leave a week from Thursday for her home in Wilmore, Ky. Mr. H. R. Maddox and Mr. Vinson Sutlive have their homes in Thorseby. Miss Lois Leech will be in Thorsby almsot a week after school closes. She plans to go to her home in Minneapolis, Minn.

Mrs. F. E. Jenkins and Miss Helen Jenkins expect to drive to New England and be there most of the summer.

Library open hours for the summer will be what the public has come to expect from former years, 8 to 11 a.m. and 3 to 6 p.m. on Tuesdays and Fridays. The librarian is planning to have a "rent shelf" of recent novels for which a charge will be made until enough has been paid to cover the cost of the book. Definite announcement of this arrangement will be made later.

WETUMPKA vs. CLANTON — SATURDAY, MAY 25, 3 P.M. HIGH SCHOOL PARK

CLANTON 17—WETUMPKA 4

Clanton took the Wetumpka team into camp last Wednesday afternoon, May 15, by the score of 17 to 4.

Debardelaben started on the mound for Wetumpka, and Clanton won the game in the first inning, when 11 men went to bat, and 5 runs were scored.

Golson pitched the first 6 innings for Clanton and had the game on ice when he was removed to allow Robinson and Watkins to finish the game as a work-out.

Of Wetumpka's 9 hits, 5 were singles, 2 doubles and 3 triples. Of Clanton's 19 safeties, there were 14 singles, 2 doubles and 3 triples.

The box score:

CLANTON 17—COCA-COLA 10

The Coca-Cola team, of Montgomery, furnished the opposition Saturday afternoon, and the locals evened the standing for the season with the team by winning the affair 17 to 10.

This was a free hitting contest; 3 of Coca-Cola's 10 safeties were doubles, and 2 of Clanton's 16 were doubles.

In the third inning the Clanton inner defense blew wide open again, committing 6 errors, allowing 5 runs to cross the plate. After this, however, they clamped down and played fairly good ball the rest of the way.

"Bull" Watkins was on the mound for Clanton, and pitched a winning brand of baseball in all except the 8th, when he was touched for 4 hits and as many runs. Golson pitched the last inning, setting the visitors down in 1-2-3 order, striking out the last man to finish the game.

The box score:

CLANTON 7—COLUMBIANA 14

The locals went to Columbiana last Thursday afternoon, and lost, 14 to 7, although out-hitting the Columbiana team to the tune of 14 to 10.

Robinson pitched a good game, but history repeated itself, the whole Clanton defense blew up completely. Three times this lad, Robinson, has started, and each time his mates have lost his game for him.

Robinson seems to be a good pitcher, and came to Clanton with a good record, but somehow or other, he is a hard luck starter, and through no fault of his own has lost consistently.

The game was a comedy of errors, throughout, and but for these, Clanton might have won in a walk.

The box score:

THE AMERICAN MOOD

The United States is more pacifist today than she has ever been in her history. The American Eagle in the old days used to be rather fond of screaming, but since the war its screams have had no belligerent note. the dominant feeling in the United States today is that she will be lucky, in the world as it is, if she can keep out of war, that war seems to be approaching in Europe and that it is posible also in the Far East. The rank and file of the American population is inclined to say: "We are not liable to be attacked in our own country; is it not the right policy for us to have a navy which will keep Europe off North and South America and will enable us to maintain a defensive line in the Pacific which will keep us free from the menace from Asia also?—Lord Lothian in International Affairs, London.

A man at Kuhlidge has played second fiddle so long that he doesn't believe that Eve was created after Adam was made—he thinks Eve was made first.—Atchison Globe.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

A prominent English student of international affairs, writing recently in a British magazine, expressed the opinion that Americans are less war minded and less prone to mix in world affairs than ever before. He added that before the World War many Americans were inclined to be jingoistic at times but they have gotten over this. The principal reason they want a big navy, in his opinion, is that they want to protect their own shores and to separate themselves from Europe and Asia, not to mix in the troubles of the latter two continents.

It is unfortunate that other Britishers and Continentals are not so well acquainted with American public sentiment. They would save themselves a lot of money they spend for propaganda to get Uncle Sam into world affairs and at the same time would spare us a great deal of annoyance. It is undoubtedly true that the great bulk of Americans do not want to mix into European affairs and that what they want is armament for defense and not for mixing into international quarrels. Their experiences with Europe during the past twenty years have not encouraged them to mix into world political movements.

Senator Hiram Johnson pretty well expressed the general public sentiment recently when the League of Nations issue was brought up by asking wrathfully: "Is this country again to be asked to go into the futile League—a mere instrument of certain foreign powers? Are we again to be propagandized into Eurone? We can best keep out of war by minding our own business."

In spite of the general public sentiment agreeing with Senator Johnson's last declaratory sentence, movements are still on foot to entangle us in European affairs. Surely some people never learn the lesson of the burned child who is supposed to dread the fire. International agreements of the United States with European nations have turned out to be one disappointment after another. It is not to be forgotten that some of these nations now owe us about ten billion dollars which they refuse to pay, though they have money to spend and lend elsewhere for future military ventures.

Perhaps our latest, certainly one of our most lamented agreements, with a foreign nation, was the one in which we recognized Soviet Russia on the double assumption that we would gain great trade with her and that she would cease propaganda efforts in the United States. Our trade with Russia has decreased since that time and communistic demonstrations and propaganda have increased. From our standpoint this agreement was one of the greatest diplomatic fizzles on record, although Moscow may rightfully regard it is a great victory.

Now we are told that we are to have trade agreements with foreign governments which will add greatly to our exports and incidentally to our imports. Certain statesmen favoring these agreements, some few of which have been completed, are reported in the press to have said: "We will buy more from other nations and they in turn will be good sports and buy from us." Such a statement is diplomatically so innocent that it sounds almost incredible. Nations sell wherever they can and buy where they can buy the cheapest. There is no sportsmanship in international trade. If France, and England, and Italy are such "good sports" perhaps they will prove it now by making arrangements to pay the debts to Uncle Sam on which they have welched. Nobody ever accused the Moscow masters of being "good sports" but if they want to acquire such reception now, why not get it by living up to some of the promises which M. Litvinov made at the time he was urging us to recognize his dictatorial government? If we have to depend on the "good sportsmanship" of Europe or even on its written signature to a contract to increase our exports then the Lord pity our exporters. Both Europe's sportsmanship and the value of its agreements were disproved a long time ago.

REPUBLICAN PRINCIPLE

The Republican party has been consistent in its advocacy of a protective tariff, as protection was one of its cardinal principles back in the days of John C. Fremont, according to Allen T. Treadway, congressman from Massachusetts, who has written an interesting history of the U. S. tariff for the March, April and May numbers of the National Republic. In the current issue Mr. Treadway says in part:

"The reduction of rates under the Act of 1857 was made when the country was at the height of a wave of prosperity and speculation, which culminated in the financial crisis of that year. To offset the consequent decline in customs receipts, the Morrill bill was passed by the House of Representatives in March, 1860, restoring the rates of the Walker tariff of 1846. The bill was held up in the Senate for approximately a year, and as finally enacted contained many higher rates and was avowedly protective. It was signed by President Buchanan only a few hours before he relinquished his office to Abraham Lincoln.

"When the Republican party, under President Lincoln, assumed control of the government in 1861 it found the nation's credit impaired and the treasury bankrupt. Moreover, the Southern states had begun to secede from the Union immediately after the election on February 4, 1861, Jefferson Davis had been named president of the Confederacy. It is significant that the Constitution which the seceding states adopted gave the Confederate congress the power to levy duties and imposts for revenue purposes only, it being specifically provided therein that no duties should be laid to promote or foster any branch of industry.

"The Republican party in nominating Lincoln had made protection one of its cardinal principles. Accordingly when it came to framing the Civil War tariffs congress had protection as well as increased revenue in mind. The first of the war tariffs was the Act of August 5, 1861, which imposed new and increased duties upon a large number of items, in addition to levying certain internal taxes. In December of the same year the duties on coffee, tea and sugar were increased. The most important of the other war tariffs were the Act of July 14, 1862, increasing tariff rates generally; the resolution of April 29, 1862, increasing duties by 50 per cent for a period of 60 days, and the Act of June 30, 1864, makng additional general increases.

"These tariff increases were all made in conjunction with the imposition of comprehensive and burdensome excise taxes upon many kinds of manufacturers and occupations, as well as a tax upon incomes. Under the various Civil War acts customs receipts rose from $39,000,000 in 1861 to $179,000,000 in 1866. Receipts from internal revenue taxes, which had not been imposed prior to the war, rose to $309,000,000 in 1866.

"The effect of the war tariffs upon the average rate on dutiable imports was to raise it from 19 per cent in 1861, the last year under the Act of 1857, to 7 per cent in 1865.

"With the close of the war it became the policy of Congress to reduce the volume of direct taxation and, so far as possible, limit governmental expenditures to the receipts from customs and the excise taxes on tobacco and spirits.

"On July 14, 1870, President Grant approved the general tariff act of that date, which reduced the duties on many articles and gave additional protection to others. Such reductions as were made applied almost exclusively to articles of distinctly 'revenue' character, such as tea, coffee, sugar, spices, and so on."

PROF. TUGWELL AND THE ARK

We have questioned the soundness of a lot of things advocated by Professor Rexford Guy Tugwell. We have doubted the unerring quality of his wisdom. But never before—no never—have we been bold enough to dispute his knowledge. Is he not a professor of economics, Under Secretary of Agriculture and a trusted adviser of President Roosevelt?

But now we are distinctly troubled and low in our minds. We have a haunting fear that the professor is not infallible even in his facts. Our disillusionment is a result of reading in the current Atlantic an address he delivered recently at Union College, Schenectady. In it, speaking of the support given Bryan in 1896 by farmers and currency reformers, Mr. Tugwell said:

"Wall Street and the gold standard—then hailed as the Ark of the Covenant, though long since stranded on the Mount Ararat of arid facts—went openly and joyously to war against the farmers and the monetary reformers."

In this (mis-named) sanctum of ours we find ourselves figuratively raising our hands at this point and exclaiming: Professor! Do please stop and tell us, before going on with your lecture, what the Ark of the Covenant had to do with Mount Ararat!

We have always believed—having attended Sunday school in our youth for a semester or two—that that stout old sea-going tub known as Noah's Ark really did come to rest on the mountain of Ararat. But the Ark of the Covenant, Professor, which you apparently name as a symbol for something sacred, was not a boat, you know, but a chest of acacia wood overlaid with gold, which contained the tables of the law. Also it was in the Tabernacle, and later in Solomon's Temple, and emphatically it was not the kind of ark you must be thinking about when you speak of the stranding on Mount Ararat.

We guess we're pretty ignorant, Professor, compared with you erudite fellows who have been called to Washington to save the country, but we respectfully submit we do know a little—just a little—about the Bible, and we don't like to see it garbled. And we can't help wondering, Professor, whether you've read the Pentateuch as carefully as you have read "Das Kapital" by the late Mr. Marx (and we don't mean St. Mark, supposed writer of the second Gospel!)

Did you know better, Professor? And did you just dash off that paragraph careless-like and not bother to correct it before it went into type, being assured that most of your fellow counrtymen are so dumb they didn't even know the difference between an arc light and an archangel?—Philadelphia Inq.

The only thing that the mechanical, scientific age has not been able to keep in step is the nut that holds the steering wheel.

The bar room is not exactly an appropriate place for men to discuss the extravagant habits of their wives, but a lot of them do.—Hopkins, Mo., Journal.

It is said that thousands of soldiers have gone through a war without knowing what it was really about. But that's nothing to be ashamed of as a lot of the generals and statesmen probably didn't know, either.

Heywood Broun is quited as stating in one of his syndicated articles: "I do not wish to seem hysterical radical yet it seems to me that the maples should burst into new growth along with Union Square." Heywood's comments always reminded us more of pussy willows than maples.

MAN IN THE MOON

IN FLANDERS FIELD

"There is a place where poppies blow,
In Flanders field."

I know every one of my readers has read the poem which begins with the above lines, commemorating the gallant doughboys who went to France and to other war-torn areas, and laid down their lives for their country.

Many years have passed since those fellows marched proudly away, never to return, while their mothers, wives and other dear ones watched them go, with tears. Those mothers would gladly have given their life-blood that their sons might be spared the danger and hardships that attend war, yet they would have scorned anyone who might have hinted that their sons not do their part. There were patriots, and not all of them wore khaki.

Now, after all these years, there comes a time when we must do these brave ones homage. It matters not if their cause was right or wrong—their flag called them, and they responded with their all.

Next Saturday is Poppy Day. That is the day when you may buy a poppy and wear it in memory of those men who sleep today "in Flanders field" that each of us may enjoy our liberty. But that is not all. Those poppies have been made by the hands of other "buddies" who wait for the end in the hospitals over the country, enduring a living death from the ravages of war. For the fellows "in Flanders field" the war is over — for those whose hands have fashioned these poppies the most bitter battle of all still rages. Maybe the boys in the hospitals envy those "in Flanders field."

The poppies will be on sale next Saturday morning. Will we wait to be ASKED to buy a poppy? Will we question where the money is going? The boys "in Flanders field" had no questions to ask when duty called. The money will go to help make life a little brighter for suffering veterans, if one must know. But, when you buy your poppy, do it with this thought:

"There is a place where poppies blow,
In Flanders field."

JACK'S RECORD

The past week was the worst one Jack has had so far this season. He got only one hit out of 15 times at the plate, although fielding faultlessly in the week's four games.

Current Week—4 games:

Season—24 games:

Batting—at bat, 101; hits, 34 (27 singles, 5 doubles, 2 home runs); percentage, .337.

THE POTATO PATCH

Ever since I have been knee high to a duck I have heard of the manner in which the two great parties regard the South, and Alabama. One editor said that the Republicans considered us a cockle-burr patch, not worth looking after, and the Democrats considered us a potato patch, with the potatoes already gathered.

Under the New Deal, we have many times had the fact pointed out to us that we were getting more recognition than at any other time in the nation's history, and it appears that this is just about right.

However, one of our good Democratic friends has just pointed out an item of interest to those who still might believe that the rewards go to the faithful.

Alabama has stood stunchly in line with the New Deal from the beginning, and her Democratic newspapers have "whooped it up" every time they had a chance, except in the TVA case, which did not line up so well with their own interests, and the interests of those with whom they were closely affiliated.

Meanwhile, Louisiana and Georgia have been very bad little boys of the New Deal family. They have not complied with New Deal requests, as Alabama; they have not kept their governors in Washington half the time, assuring the administration that they were in full accord, as Alabama has. In fact, the most of the time they have been in open revolt against the New Deal and the administration.

Now let's look further. In a recent federal relief grant, Georgia drew a little over half a million dollars more than Alabama, and Louisiana drew almost a half million more. The Democratic friend spoken of above couldn't undestand this. He didn't feel like kicking against his party leaders, but he didn't like it a bit.

Well, we just wonder if he never heard of the prodigal son. Maybe the head men are killing the fatted calf and sending the best part to the wayward ones to induce them to come home again. What do you think?

WANT A DIVORCE?

Not long ago I read an article in which was described the manner in which a woman might go about the matter of securing a divorce yet place the burden of making application for said divorce on hubby, dear. Here is how it goes:

Stay in bed until you have no time to get a good regular breakfast for hubby, so you will have to send him to work with a "thrown together" breakfast. If he comes home for his lunch, let it be a little cold, coffee and all. When he comes in at night pretend you are ill and that he will have to eat cold supper or go out to a cafe. Be sure to turn in early.

Always be too tired to go with him to a show, game or entertainment of any kind. Never sew a button on any of his clothes, if he loses one. If he comes in early, be sure to make him think you suspect he is trying to square himself for something he is trying to keep from you. Always nag at him if you catch him speaking to another woman. Keep after him all the time for something you know he can't afford to buy you. If he is a little late, jump him for a full explanation, and accuse him of everything you can think of. When you are around other people, pretend he is the light of your life, but when you are at home make hm feel as insignificant as possible. Keep a few secrets from him, and let him know you are keeping them. If he asks you any questions give him no answer, or if you answer, make it as short as possible.

These are only a few of the things you can do. Any woman who really wants a divorce can think up plenty of things just like this to try out on her own particular case. If your hubby is a particularly good natured and careful chap, he may not pay much attention to your attempts at first, but just keep trying. After a while he will give in, decide it is no use, and make application for a divorce. While he is getting his, you can get yours, too, and he will have to bear the reproach and the cost for both of you. It's simple, if you only try. And this system will never fail.

REPUBLICAN LEADERSHIP

Amid the confusion of thinking and feeling, the fear and discontent into which the depression years have plunged the people and which demagogues and shrewd advocates of revolutionary change are exploiting, the duty of Republican leadership is to stand up and stand fast for the restoration of American principles and ideals. It should fearlessly assert the validity of basic American political, economic and social ideas and traditions, under which the American people have achieved through the century and a half of the most widespread prosperity and progress of any nation in the world, past or present. It should challenge the New Dealers' distortions of the American story and the exaggeration of the excesses and evils incident to every society in the world, though ascribed by the propaganda of the New Deal to the American order it is trying to destroy.

In short, it should point the true objective of the nation, which is the defeat of subversive measures and the restoration of the American democratic faith, the liberty of the American freeman and his lawful activities, the richly productive forces of free American enterprise which alone can meet and master the vast problems of mass employment. It should assert the fundamental requirements of our social order and social progress thru the initiative, energy, thrift and integrity of our people, and the ability of American character and intelligence to deal wisely with the evils which have been demanstrated in our national experience, without the reckless destruction of American faith in freedom and self-government.

The ground of loyal America is sound and unshaken. It is in the hearts and minds of a great majority of our people, despite the howling of demagogues or the sophistries of half-baked theorists. That ground Republican leadership should take and there plant its banner, to which all loyal Americans, what ever their past political affiliations, may confidently repair.—Chicago Tribune.

It is stated that Milo Reno, the western farm leader, called the Secretary of Agriculture "Lord Corn Wallace" in a speech the other day. We don't think the play upon words is appropriate. Remember that Lord Cornwallis knew when it was time to quit.

It is flatly denied at Washington that Jimmy Roosevelt is to be one of the secretaries of the President. It is given out in the newspapers that he will run the President's farm. Which leads one to believe that he just went down to Washington to get all the dope on farming from Prof. Tugwell.

Even if Sir Malcolm Campbell fails to make 300 miles an hour, all is not lost. Hundreds of grocery truck drivers will keep on trying. —Saginaw Daily News.

INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT THE BIBLE

Here is one for those who like to read the Bible, and are always on the alert for something curious about it. This same article was published in The Union-Banner several years ago, but of late I have had many requests that we give it again, so here goes. You who want to keep it should cut it out. Originally this was clipped from The Birmingham News, and was contributed to that newspaper by Mr. John T. Bradford of Tuscaloosa, Ala.

"The word 'Bible' means sacred books, and is the word of God to man. God inspired men to write the Bible. The following are a few facts that perhaps are not known to some of us:

"A man who was condemned to life imprisonment relieved the tediousness of the hours by ascertaining the following interesting facts:

"The Bible contains 3,586,489 letters, 773,292 words, 31,173 verses, 1,189 chapters, and 66 books. The word 'and' occurs 46,277 times. The word 'lord' occurs 1,855 times. The word 'reverend' but once, and that is in the 9th verse of the 111th Psalm. The middle verse is the 8th verse of the 118th Psalm. The 31st verse of the 7th chapter of Ezra contains every letter of the alphabet except the letter 'j' The finest chapter to read is the 26th chapter of the Acts of the Apostles (Paul's defense before Agrippa). The 19th chapter of II Kings and the 37th chapter of Isaiah are alike. The longest verse is the 9th verse of the 8th chapter of Esther. The shortest verse is the 35th verse of the 11th chapter of St. John. The 8th, 15th, 21st and 31st verses of the 107th Psalm are alike. All the verses of the 136th Psalm end alike. There are no words or names of more than six syllables.

The shortest chapter is the 117th Psalm (containing 2 verses), and the longest chapter is the 119th Psalm (containing 176 verses.)

"A constable in Glosgow, Scotland, once found a soldier looking at a pack of cards in church, and took him before a magistrate, who told him that unless he could give good reason for playing with the cards during the service, he would be punished. The soldier replied: 'When I see the ace it reminds me that there is but one God; the deuce reminds me of the Father and Son; the trey reminds me of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost; the four reminds me of the four evangelists who preached—Matthew, Mark, Luke and John; the five reminds me of the five wise virgins—there were ten of them, but five of them forgot to trim their lamps, and were left out; the six reminds me that in six days God created heaven and earth; the seven reminds me that He rested on the seventh day, and hallowed it; the eight reminds me of the eight persons who were saved in Noah's ark — Noah and his wife, his three sons and their wives; the nine reminds me of the nine lepers that were cleansed by our Savior; the ten reminds me of the ten commandments God gave to Moses on a tablet of stone for the government of the people of Israel; the king reminds me of the wise King Solomon; the queen reminds me of the Queen of Sheba, who was as wise a woman as Solomon was a man—to test his wisdom, she took to him 50 boys and 50 girls, all dressed exactly alike, and asked him to point out which were boys and which girls. He had 100 basins of water brought, and told them all to wash—the girls washed to their elbows, and the boys only to their wrists; so he was able to distinguish them.

"The magistrate asked what the knave reminded him of, to which the soldier replied:

"'The knave reminds me of the constable who brought me before you'.

"The magistrate nodded and said: 'I know not if he is a knave, but I do believe he is the greatest fool I ever knew,' and gave the soldier his freedom again.

"The soldier then continued: 'When I count the spots in a pack of cards I find 365, the number of days in a year; when I count the number of cards in a pack I find 52, the number of weeks in a year; I find there are 12 picture cards in a pack, the number of months in a year; and on counting the tricks I find 13, the number of weeks in a quarter. So, you see, my pack of cards serves for my Bible, my almanac, and my prayer book'."

And now, if any of our readers doubt any of the figures given above, you are at liberty to count 'em yourself. If you do, and find them wrong, be sure to let us know.—Man in the Moon.

ALL IS NOT COMMERCIAL

Rev. Titus Lowe, a Methodist-Episcopal bishop, in an address in New York recently deplored, among other things, the fact that Babe Ruth drew more salary as a home run hitter than does the President of the United States as a statesman, and that Mae West supposedly gets more salary every time she blinks an eyelid in the movies than many preachers received as a year's salary for exhorting.

While, not entering into the athletic ability of Babe Ruth or the histrionic qualifications of Mae West as an actress, which are open to debate, it is barely possible that Rev. Titus was taking too commercial a view of the situation. Babe and Mae are entertainers in a purely commercial way and have been paid and are being paid in ratio to their ability to attract customers to the ball park or the movie theatre.

So far as the President of the United States and the ministers of the gospel are concerned, the situation is entirely different. A candidate for the Presidency seeks the office for the honor he may acquire and the service he may render to his countrymen. No salary which the American people could pay would remunerate a good President and nothing could settle the damage should we happen some time to have a bad one. The high office is one of honor and service. No attempt is made to pay the President in money what he is worth. The appropriations are made so that he may live in style befitting the office and, if he desires, perhaps save enough to maintain himself should he desire to retire.

The minister of the gospel also enters his profession not for riches but for service. He cannot be paid for the number of souls he saves just as Babe Ruth is for the number of balls he knocks out of the park. He works for the good of humanity. His services are often priceless. Most of us will agree that the majority of preachers are not paid as much as they should be. The churches have found it harder and harder to pay decent salaries since 1929. Perhaps, if the present campaign against private business continues the church funds will become even more limited in the future since their size depends on the prosperity of the community. Very likely in a socialist state which seems to be favored by some ministers there will be neither preachers' salaries nor churches.

CRITICISM FROM THE RANKS

One of the most interesting developments of the political situation today can be envisioned in the number of prominent Democrats who are criticizing the policies of our national administration. Indeed they seem to have grabbed the limelight from the Republicans who are perhaps content to permit the family quarrel to go ahead in its own way. One of the latest of those to raise his voice against New Deal policies is Bainbridge Colby, who was Secretary of State in the cabinet of Woodrow Wilson, speaking before a national group of newspapermen.

Charging that much of the legislation now proposed would reduce the American farmer to serfdom, cut down the citizen's rights of recourse to the courts, who will get interpretations from the bureaucrats, and that many proposed New Deal measures are "in flagrant violation of the Constitution," Mr. Colby said:

"The political party founded by Thomas Jefferson, and elected on a platform which proclaimed the liberties of which I speak, has converted the American republic into a socialist state and enveloped it in a mesh of tyrannous and bureaucratic rule which has no counterpart save among the people of Europe, now sunk under the autocratic sway of unresisted dictatorship."

"As a Democrat," he went on, "I would venture to remind the heady and nonchalant innovators of the moment, who are officiating as instruments of the Democratic party, and usurping its name, that the government of the United States was established to get rid of arbitrary, discretionary power.

"That we have economic problems in common with all the world cannot be denied. Their solution, however, is not beyond our ability or our resources. The fact that incapacity has failed should not discourage us. Incapacity is not the exclusive approach to our problems."

Sharply criticizing "the heady and nonchalant innovators" who have usurped the name of the Democratic party, Mr. Colby declared:

"The Democratic party cannot nor will it turn from legal regulation to executive regulation, from law to personal power, without rending itself in twain and divorcing from its ranks countless thousands who have a fixed attachment to its historic principles.

"Such Democrats do not intend to abandon the foundations of liberty and just government. Nor will they at the behest of anyone, or under the pressure of a needlessly, and I sometimes think a wantonly, prolonged depression renounce the birthright of democratic government and run back to the most discredited models of government known to history."

Miss Margaret Kendrick Complimented With Tea Shower

Miss Margaret Kendrick, a bride of late summer, was the recipient of a lovely tea shower given by Mrs. W. A. Willis on Tuesday afternoon, May 21, at her home on First Avenue.

The lower apartments of the Willis home were converted into one profusion of spring flowers. Bowls and standards of snapdragons, delphiniums, English daisies, gladioli, and gardenias were placed about the spacious living room.

The guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Grady Heflin and presented to the receiving line, which included Mrs. W. A. Willis, Miss Margaret Kendrick, Miss Eleanor Kendrick, of Luverne, sister of the bride-elect; Mrs. Pete B. Jarman, of Montgomery, a cousin; Miss Frances Gulledge, bride-elect of June, and her sister, Miss Cordelia Gulledge, also of Verbena.

Mrs. John Milton Hightower, of Sylacauga, escorted the guests from the receiving line to the bride's book where Miss Sara Colley presided. The bride's book was quite attractive with its streamers of write ribbon entwined with lily of the valley.

Mrs. John D. Mullins ushered the guests into the dining room which was quite elaborate in its decorations of green and white bridal tones. The dining table was overlaid with a cloth of Irish lace and was centered with a crystal bowl of gardenias. On either side burned tall white tapers in crystal holders and graceful swans tied with ribbon held green and white mints. A shower of white tulle and ribbon tied with orange blossoms and valley lilies extended from the beautiful crystal chandelier. Refreshments consisting of ice tea, sandwiches, cakes and mints were served to the guests by Mrs. T. H. Walker of Talladega, Mrs. James Wade, Mrs. J. T. Searcy, Mrs. Ruphus Brown, Miss Virginia Cook and Miss Alice Brooks.

From the dining room Mrs. J. P. Venable invited the guests into the gift room where the many useful and attractive gifts were displayed by Mrs. W. W. Fox, Mrs. Marion Foshee and Mrs. G. O. Foshee.

Music throughout the afternoon was furnished by Mrs. W. L. Longshore, violinist of Birmingham, Mrs. Lee Rice, of DeKalb, Ill, Mrs. L. C. Ross, Mrs. Percy Pitts, Mrs. W. E. Huddleston, Miss Helen Roberts and Miss Margaret Davis and Mrs. Bullock of Birmingham.

About two hundred guests called during the hours from three until six.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Atkinson were Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Atkinson and Miss Evelyn Atkinson of Gadsden and Miss Louise Pack of Marion.

Miss Mildred Johnson, Lincoln, was the house guest of Miss Sara Hollis the past week. Miss Hollis returned home with her Thursday for a visit.

Supt. and Mrs. Luther Little and Mrs. J. T. Searcy are on a two weeks' vacation. They will visit in Washington, D. C., and New York.

Little Miss Ina Saxon McCraney Has Birthday Party.

Little Miss Ina Saxon McCraney celebrated her fifth birthday Wednesday when her grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. N. S. Johnson, entertained with a party for little tots in the afternoon.

Drop the handkerchief and other interesting games were played. The main attractions were the solo dances by Misses Ann Callen and Jerry Alred and the duet dance by Misses Ina Saxon McCraney and Sue Ann Powers of Lay Dam.

The pretty birthday cake holding the five lighted candles was a delight for the thirty-five guests present.

Late in the afternoon ice cream and cake were served.

PLEASANT HILL

We are still going with our B. T. U. and Sunday school. We are glad to say that each Sunday it seems that our little crowd is increasing. Our pastor, Rev. W. E. Robinson, filled his regular appointment last week end, and delivered a wonderful message to the large crowd we had present at each service. We were very glad to have the many visitors with us and invite them back again. A large crowd of both old and young enjoyed a real good singing Sunday p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Cleckler.

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Cleckler and Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Martin and children and Rev. W. E. Robinson were the Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Twilley.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Davis had dinner Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Cleckler.

Miss Mattie Driver of Siluria was the week end guest of her mother, Mrs. Florence Driver.

HIGHLAND NEWS

Last Sunday afternoon was our regular singing afternoon. Our crowd was very small although we had a good singing. The opening song was led by the chairman, Mr. Coy Lockhart, after which directors were as follows:

Fonzie Coe, Sovereign Dickey, Miss Ruby Weldon, Miss Willie Merle Lockhart and Miss Gladys Wyatt. Pianist for the afternoon was Miss Dessie Wyatt. Closing prayer was led by Mr. M. D. Dickey.

Next Saturday and Sunday are our regular preaching days. We invite everyone to come out and worship with us.—Reporter.

Sunday night guests of Dr. and Mrs. N. S. Johnson were Dr. and Mrs. S. J. Ezell, Dr. Frank H. McElroy, of Troy, Prof. and Mrs. L. C. Warr, Miss Frances Gulledge, senior class adviser; the class officers, Phillip Nelson, president; Miss Dixie Johnson, vice-president; Miss Grace Plyler, secretary and treasurer and Morgan Reynolds.

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Burnette of Montevallo spent the past week end in Clanton.

Mr. and Mrs. George Polk and daughter, Corinne, and Miss Mary Robinson left Tuesday morning for Athens College to attend graduation exercises. Miss Alice Polk will receive her diploma in Speech.

All right, so you're not a prize fighter? But maybe you're fighting a Royalwood typewriter all day, or fighting to make folks buy Seal Silk hosiery, or maybe you're a bloated banker. So what? So here's a Cola drink that will give the old energy a pick-up, naturally—healthfully. A Cola drink that hasn't an artificial boost in a barrel. That won't affect heart, nerves, or fallen arches. Just healthfully refreshing. And the grandest tasting Cola drink of them all. Drink long and lusty—ten a day if you want to—and every time you do, you do yourself a favor. No kidding, if you want medical proof write your name on a sheet of paper carefully (on one side only) as a reminder to ask your doctor what he thinks of natural flavors, pure water, and granulated sugar as quick energy pick-up. Tell him CHERO doesn't contain anything to frazzle nerves—he will know what you mean.

ISABELLA DEMONSTRATION CLUB

Our home demonstration club met at the agricultural building Friday afternoon, May 17, with a very interesting group present. Miss Pardue gave a fine demonstration on clothing construction and dress design, fitting sleeves and simple changes in plain pattern care and use of machine and attachment.

Our next meeting will be at the agriculture building Tuesday afternoon, June 25. The demonstration will be on food preservation. All members are urged to be present.

CARROLL FAMILY REUNION

A happy band of relatives met at the home of Mrs. N. G. Carroll Sunday, May 19, although all the children were not present, we had a great time talking and laughing. The lunch hour caught two long tables out under the oak trees covered with white linen spreads with good things to eat. After lunch Rev. A. C. Nelson made an inspiring talk on the 23rd Psalm, "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want."

Those enjoying this day were: Mrs. D. A. Jacks, mother of Mrs. N. G. Carroll, Mrs. C. E. Waldrop, Talladega; Mr. and Mrs. Verine Brooks and children, Verbena; Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Messer and son, Verbena; Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Carroll and children, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Carroll and children, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Morris and children, Sylacauga; Mr. and Mrs. George Morris and son, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Messer three sons, Spigener; Mrs. A. C. Nelson, Mrs. George Kilgore, Clanton.

Everybody left with glad hearts and happy smiles, hoping to meet again soon.

ICE CREAM SUPPER

There will be an ice cream supper at the home of Mr. S. J. Twilley on next Saturday night, May 25. There will be plenty of good ice cream, pretty girl cake, ugly man cake, a guess cake and plenty of fun for the whole crowd. Everybody come and bring your nickles and dimes and help us finish paying for our piano, as the proceeds of this cream supper will go to the piano fund of Pleasant Hill church. Don't forget the date, May 25, beginning at 7 o'clock. Be on time.

Claud Calloway has returned from Miami where he spent the past winter at his old job telegraphing for the East Coast Railway.. He has resumed his position with Calloway Drug Company.

The Y. W. A. and Fidelis Sunday school class of the Clanton Baptist church held their meeting at the church last Tuesday evening at 6:30 o'clock. Miss Lucile Dickerson had charge of the program. Refreshments were served by Circle No. 2 to a large number of girls.

TROY GIRL STATE WINNER IN MEAT ESSAY CONTEST

Chicago, Ill.—Miss Annette Folmar, of Troy, Ala., has been awarded first place among all Alabama entrants in the twelfth annual meat story contest, according to the national livestock and meat board, its sponsor. A committee of prominent home economists meeting in Chicago has just announced that this honor went to Miss Folmar because of the outstanding merit of her essay, "The Relation of Meat to Health."

A total of 12,269 home economics students from 682 high schools of 48 statse participated in the contest. The national championship went to Miss Dorothy Lee Gillins of Ashmore, Illinois.

The committee of judges who made this year's contest awards was composed of Miss Frances Swain, director of household arts in the Chicago public schools, chairman; Miss Josephine Wylie, former associate editor of Better Homes and Gardens; Miss Evelyn G. Halliday, associate professor of home economics at the University of Chicago; and Miss Ruth Straight, president of of the Illinois Home Economis Association.

Contestants in this year's event had the choice of four subjects: "The Relation of Meat to Health," "Meat in the Diet of the Child," "Meat—the Favorite Food of Every Nation," and "Meat—Its Selection and Use."

English and art departments in many high schools cooperated effectively in the contest, according to the announcement. Many of the essays were attractively illustrated.

The board points out that interest in this contest is on the increase. The number of entries this year was 1,275 ahead of last year, and the number of schools represented was 116 greater. Teachers throughout the country assert that this contest is regarded as the climax of the year's home economic studies and praise it as of invaluable assistance to these future homemakers.

100 PER CENT INCREASE IN LIVING COSTS IS SEEN

New York.—A 100 per cent increase in the cost of living during the next few years was predicted today by Dr. Edwin Walter Kemmerer, professor of international finance at Princeton University.

"The prospects would seem to be strong . . . that as a result of the inflationary measures already adopted by the administration, coupled with the depreciation of gold itself which will naturally follow the return flow of gold, after the depression, to its customary monetary and trade channels, the cost of living in the United States will be at least double what it is today."

Dr. Kemmerer cited various inflationary measures adopted by the government among them he pointed out the Patman bonus bill, and said, "certainly, political conditions are such in our country that it makes control of inflation extremely uncertain."

He spoke before the international convention of the National Association of Purchasing Agents.

HUETT FAMILY REUNION

On last Sunday, May 19, the family of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Huett, of Enterprise community gathered at the old home place for a family reunion. The crowd began to gather about nine o'clock and soon all of the immediate family, with a few exceptions, were there. About ten-thirty, ice cream was served.

At noon a bountiful dinner was spread out under the shade of a large tree in the yard. This was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

In the afternoon, pictures were taken of the entire group, and Mr. and Mrs. Huett and some of their younger grandchildren.

Those enjoying the occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Huett, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Huett and children, Forrest, Marjorie, Delores, Estelle and Norma, of Coosada; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cagle and daughter, Ethel, of Mitchell Dam; Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Elland and children, Ruby, Oscar Jr., Hubert and Herbert, of Montgomery; Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Patterson and children, Arthur Jr., Clarice, Charles, Jimmie Mae and Dewey Ann, of Birmingham; Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Morris and children, Virgil, Mabel, Amos, and Harold; Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Huett and children, Dawson, Willis and Willie Mae; Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Billingsley and daughter, Edna, all of Enterprise community; Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Wyatt and daughter, Inez; Miss Essie Neeley and mother, and Mr. Marvin Huett, all of Clanton. Those absent were Miss Lorene Huett, Clanton; Mr. and Mrs. Grady Jones and little daughter, of Sylacauga; Mr. Judson Huett, of Biloxi, Mississippi; and Mr. Rudolph Elland of Montgomery.

Late in the afternoon everyone went home, hoping that all will be able to attend the reunion next year.

Dr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Johnson of Pensacola are spending a few days at their home in Clanton. They will leave in a short while for the Pacific Coast where Dr. Johnson will be stationed with the U. S. Navy.

IF YOU KNOW A COP WHO COMPLAINS
of Tired, Aching, Burning Feet

—tell him to shake Zeeta, the antiseptic deodorant powder into his shoes and rub it on his feet.

In 3 minutes his misery is over—excessive, offensive perspiration disappears, the burning sensation vanishes, cracked itching toes heal—he will shout for joy and bless you for telling him about Zeeta.

But be sure he asks for and gets Zeeta—there's nothing else that works so sure, so fast.

Doctors, chiropodists, athletic trainers recommend Zeeta for aching feet, water blisters, also for chafing and sunburn.

Your druggist or department store guarantees Zeeta to relieve you in 3 minutes or your money back.

SACRED HARP CONVENTION MET AT LIBERTY HILL

The convention was called to order at 9 o'clock by the chairman, Mr. M. C. Jackson, who directed one song, after which prayer was offered by Rev. Cox. The chairman appointed T. C. Jackson, W. L. Sanders and W. B. Cooper as committee for the day. The committee allowed each director fifteen minutes. Leaders in the morning were:

J. H. Willoughby, J. M. Williams, W. B. Cooper, W. M. Brown, A. A. Jackson, G. W. Akers, of Sylacauga; and T. C. Jackson of Sylacauga.

At eleven o'clock the regular memorial lessons were held in memory of our loved ones who had passed away since our convention had last met. On May the 5th, one of the members of this convention was called away, one who we all so dearly loved, Mrs. T. C. Jackson. A special lesson was prepared in her memory, directed by Mr. W. L. Sanders.

Memorial songs used in memory of Mrs. Flora Jackson, in the Chilton County Sacred Harp Convention on May 19th, 1935; first song, No. 253, "Long Sought Home." St. John 14th chapter, 2nd verse, "In my father's house are many mansions, if it were not so, I would have told you." Second song, No. 339, "When I am Gone." St. Luke 23rd chapter, 28th verse, "But Jesus turning unto them said, daughters of Jerusalem, weep not for me, but weep for yourselves, and for your children." Third song, No. 341, "The Lone Pilgrim," I Thessalonians, 4th chapter, 14th verse, "For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him."

The song "Angel Band" was sung in memory of Mrs. Rhoda Maddox and Mrs. Abbey Foshee. Song No. 387, "Penick", was sung in memory of Mrs. Mary Toylar. Song No. 288, White," was sung in memory of the author of the Sacred Harp song book.

One hour was given for lunch and the good people of Liberty Hill community spread a bountiful table for all.

The chairman called the house to order and sung one song. The leaders for the afternoon were Mr. M. J. Doisier of Elmore, Ellie Shirley, Ruth Henley, Pauline Lecroy, Thomas, Jr. Jackson, Flora Oaks, Mr. Bennett, W. L. Sanders and M. C. Jackson.

The convention extends many thanks to Liberty Hill church and community for the kindness shown to us, "May the Lord bless one and all."

The chairman sang the closing song, followed with prayer by Mr. Z. J. Jones.—Secretary, Myrtle Jackson.

WALNUT CREEK

Just a few lines to let you all hear from this community.

Everybody has plenty of work to do which happens often at this time of the year.

We have preaching at this place on the 2nd and 3rd Sundays of each month and C. E. at 7:00 o'clock every Sunday night.

Last Sunday we had a large number present and everybody enjoyed the sermon, which was preached by Rev. J. W. Enfinger, his text was, "What Can I Do To Be Saved?" We are proud to have a man like Rev. Enfinger with us to tell us the things we must do to be saved.

We invite everyone who does not go to Sunday school elsewhere. We will be glad to have you with us. You are welcome at this place at any time.—Bill Coggins.

Likes Alabama's Low Electric Rates

John C. Hamm, Demopolis, Gratified With Recent Reductions

"There is an old saying," declares Mr. John C. Hamm of Demopolis, Ala., "that 'the exception proves the rule'. During the past year or so the cost of all commodities which go into the usual family budget has been steadily rising, with one exception. That exception is the cost of your residential electric service. This service has been reduced from time to time and I now understand that a further reduction has gone into effect.

"Naturally, any reduction in the cost of living is very pleasing, and this new low rate will make it possible for your customers to make a still wider use of this reliable, economical service, that contributes so much to the comfort and convenience of the modern home. I certainly appreciate your efforts to render such service at such low cost."—Adv. Alabama Power Company.

PLEASANT GROVE
JEMISON

Sorry but we still have a few people around here who do not feel as well as they would like but there is still hopes of them feeling better.

Mrs. Erskin Martin spent Tuesday night with her home folks, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wright.

Miss Dulcie Champion visited her nephew Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dawson and mother, Mrs. Dovie Dawson, of Jemison. Carl is sick but we hope that he will soon be enjoying health again.

Misses Delia Champion and Edith Davenport visited Mrs. J. W. Woodley Thursday afternon.

Mrs. J. M. and Mrs. Sam Woodley were the guests of the Misses Champion Tuesday afternoon.

Master Alfred Champion, who has been spending a while with his uncle and family, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Champion, has gone home.

Mrs. Clyde Champion and Mrs. Bud Robinson were guests of the Misses Dulcie, Delia and Effie Champion, and aunt, Martha Wilson, Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. J. M. and Mrs. Sam Woodley visited their sister, Mrs. Burnie Killingsworth, Saturday night and Sunday.

Mrs. John Davenport and children spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Johnnie Trott.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Davenport and daughter, Olis, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Miskelley Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Wess Gletty and daughters, Misses Gail and Eileen, and son, Phillip, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Otha Maddox Sunday. They also called on the Misses Champion a while Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Spivey and son and daughter, Erschel and Lorene, went to Clanton Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Miskelley and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Miskelley and son, Leo, went to Clanton Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Marcus and little son, Aldene, were week end guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wright.

Mr. Leo Spivey was the guest of his uncle and family, Mr. and Mrs. George Spivey and Ershel and Lorene Sunday.

SHIP OF STATE IS HEADED FOR THE ROCKS SAYS WRITER

Editor Union-Banner:

Pardon me, but this ship of state is going on the rocks. Any fool can see there are rough seas ahead.

When you shift democracy to place autocracy in the guise of a commission agency subjecting my fellow-laborers to peonage or slavery under the red hand of bureaucracy linked up with much red-handed autocracy guising as democracy under the big boss with his captains, that is the federal government and its agents, these are the red hands that make the people for the government instead of the government for the people.

Well did old Forepaw say that the American people did enjoy being hoodooed the best of any people on earth. Ignorance of the hand that stole the so-called Democratic platform in 1928 and sits today at the wheel of this ship of state as political scientists call the brain trust, playing with a water lily that drifts about with the ripples and the shifting winds, and some rubber stamps that are pulled and wilted under the powerful pressure of these bureaus and lobsters, brain trusts, who are not statesmen, who have not the good of the commonwealth at heart, but whose great end, it seems, is to exploit labor with relief, leading this nation into bondage, has placed 22 million people in the bread lines, and God only knows how many parasites there are in agents and workers drawing on this already stranded government. "Where there is no vision the people perish."

Uncle Sam is a prodigal son, "and when he had spent all there arose a mighty famine in the land and he began to be in want."

The entire farming program is being penalized under this set-up. There has never been a more damnable set-up than the New Deal, set up to break the backbone of this country and subject the laboring classes to peonage and slavery.

The forgotten man, the taxpayer, is liable to be heard from some time soon.—Respectfully. E. H. Littlejohn.

A. A. JACKSON DISCUSSES BONUS AND OTHER NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you please give me space in your good paper for a few words to your Man in the Moon and to some of the critics of the Patman greenback bonus bill?

Mr. Man in the Moon, you say there is no burden to the little job of explaining how to take six billion dollars and pay a thirty billion dollar debt; and that we will pay the thirty billions our government owes or the American taxpayers will; and that after ages of people in this country have come and gone, all paying a little of it, it will eventually be paid.

That would be just about like taking six ears of corn and giving thirty horses an ear each.

You seem to think I can change my spots much faster than a chameleon. My contention is that it was the other fellow who changed. When I found out that the great friend of the forgotten man had in his New Deal the old Hoover deck of cards, and that every card in the new deal deck was marked in favor of big business and big finance, I just stopped whooping myself hoarse.

Your argument reminds me of Hugh Johnson, who is whooping himself hoarse trying to make congress and the senate believe it would be better for the poor class of people to raise money by taxation, instead of printing two billoin dollars of greenback money to pay off our soldiers; and that if the government printed the money, it would be worthless; and that there would follow a demand to print five billions, and again ten billions.

Such arguments remind me of the person who, it is said, was born in the middle of the week and was looking both ways for Sunday. It caused him to be both cockeyed and crosseyed.

We are told that the people of the United States owe 272 billions of dollars, and there is only six billions to pay with. Why not let our money press run a while and give a larger supply of money so some of these debts can be paid. Or else junk our money printing press and turn the whole dad-gummed business over to those cockeyed and crosseyed writers who can take six billion dollars and pay a 302 billion dollar debt.

What This Business Means To Alabama

The Southern Bell Company spent more than $29,000,000 during the five years of the depression to operate, maintain and improve Alabama's telephone service. This was an important contribution to the advancement of the State during a time when work was vitally needed and industrial activity was at a low level.

During 1934, which was far from a good year, the telephone company's operating expenses in Alabama amounted to nearly $4,000,000 and approximately $1,500,000 was spent for additions to and improvements of plant.

To build, operate and maintain this extensive plant requires the services of more than 1,500 skilled workers. Their annual pay roll is approximately $1,700,000, most of which is spent in the State for food, clothing, housing, and other needs.

Many of these telephone men and women are home-owners, and all of them are tax-payers. They and their families compose a large group of more than 6,000 people, who are dependent upon the telephone business in Alabama for their livelihood.

The steady and constant flow of millions of dollars from the telephone industry in the form of wages, taxes, purchases of raw materials and other expenses, is regarded as an important factor in the economic progress and welfare of the State.

But of even greater importance to the business and social welfare of Alabama, is the telephone company's responsibility for furnishing the adequate, dependable and high type of telephone service to which you are accustomed. Yet the price you pay for this all-important service is only a few cents a day. A price so low, in fact, as to earn only three and seven-tenths per cent on the investment in the plant used to furnish service.

THREE FINED IN MAYOR'S COURT MONDAY MORNING

Three offenders against the law were brought to account for their misconduct in the city court of Mayor C. Fenn Jones Monday morning.

One man was fined $50 and cost for driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

In the third case, a boy charged with being drunk, the defendant was placed on probation pending good behavior.

East View News

The Sunday school was well attended here last Sunday. There were four new members added to the Sunday school roll. We were glad to have them unite with us and invite others who are not attending church elsewhere to worship with us each Sunday at 10 a.m.

The revival meeting will run here beginning the second Sunday in July and run the following week. Let us begin to pray now for a great revival. It will be announced later who will help the pastor in the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Cary Morrison of Birmingham spent the week end here visiting relatives.

Rev. A. C. Nelson and family motored to Mt. Springs Sunday, where he conducted religious strvices. In the afternoon he drove to the home of Mrs. Tobe Carroll, where they were having a family reunion and delivered a sermon in the shade of a large and beautiful oak tree that stands in the yard.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Coggins visited Mr. and Mrs. Otis Coggins Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Prickett visited Mrs. Sallie Strength Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lubbie Moatts of Mt. Springs community spent Saturday night with Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Nelson.

Mrs. Emily Nelson, who has been sickin bed for a few days, is up and about again.

Let's see how many we can get to come to Sunday school next Sunday. We are having a good school but we need more workers in the vineyard and there are many who need the help that the Sunday school offers.

Are you doing like the five foolish virgins—letting your light go out just carelessly slumbering along and and failing to let your light shine when Jesus said, "Deny yourself. Take up the cross and follow me?" By all means come to Sunday school next Sunday.

TWO DIE IN TORNADO AT MIDLAND CITY ON MONDAY

Tornadoes struck in two widely separated sections of south Alabama on Monday, killing two persons and injuring nine others, two probably fatally.

At Midland City, 14 miles northeast of Dothan, Mr. and Mrs. Hewey Conrey, young farm couple, died when their home was picked up, carried 150 yards, and dashed against a barn by a freakish wind that struck about noon. Their five-year-old son was critically injured.

Three hours earlier a tornado descended upon the outskirts of the farming community of McCullough, fifteen miles north of Atmore, in Escambia County. E. D. Donaldson, 24, sustained a broken back. Alces Plant suffered a badly lacerated leg. Six others were hurt less seriously.

Mazar's, "The Friendly Store," Announces Remodeling Sale Begins Saturday this Week

Preparatory to beginning an extensive program of remodeling and rearranging the interior of their store, Mazar's this week announce a drastic reduction in prices on all articles of merchandise, in order to move a lot of stocks out of the way.

Mr. I. S. Levine, manager of the store, makes the following impressive statement about his plans and the purposes of the sale:

"This is nothing short of an honest and determined effort to reduce our stock of merchandise in order to give us more room to carry out the plans of remodeling and rearranging the interior of our store. We call to the attention of our customers the drastic reductions we have made in prices. This is not a sale where we have brought in a lot of extra merchandise to put on sale. Our purpose is to get rid of much that we have already. It is in our way. We must move it, and we have chosen to offer it to our customers at prices that will make you able to take it away from here.

"Our entire stock of regular high-grade merchandise goes in this event. We are not adding to it with second rate merchandise just to raise cash. We mean what we say. When we say no fooling, we mean just that. This is a bona fide remodeling sale. We must clear the decks and clear them fast. In order to do this, we realize our prices must be attractive, and they are."

There is a full page advertisement in this paper telling about Mazar's remodeling sale. Read it, and we have no doubt you will be convinced of the wonderful buying opportunity that is yours, beginning next Saturday.

ALL NRA CODES WIPED OUT

CODE MAKING POWERS VOID SAYS U. S. SUPREME COURT

National Recovery Act Killed Monday By Unanimous Opinion of Court of Last Resort

Washington, May 27. — The New Deal went down to defeat on a test of the NRA before the Supreme Court today when the tribunal ruled unanimously that the code-making authority was an improper delegation of power and all but barred Federal legislation on wages and hours of labor.

Unconstitution Act

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes read the opinion. Justices Harlan F. Stone and Benjamin N. Cardozo concurred in its results in a separate opinion. Briefly, the court ruled that:

Congress had exceeded its authority when it delegated to the executive branch of the government power to promulgate codes of fair competition having the force of law because it did not set up standards to guide the executive, and for several other reasons.

Donald Richberg, chief of the National Recovery Administration, who was present in the courtroom, was much shaken.

He refused to comment.

Lawyers close to the Administration were of the initial opinion that the decision doomed the NRA to extinction.

The direct result of the decision was to reverse the convictions of the defendants in the Schechter live poultry case on 18 counts involving wage and hour provisions of the live poultry code and unfair trade practices, including the sale of diseased fowl.

Head bowed, he brushed past questioners who asked for a statement..

"I'll have to read the decision carefully first," he said.

The court held that Section 3 of the NRA which gives the president power to promulgate codes of fair competition for industry was an unconstitutional delegation of legislative power by congress to the chief executive.

The decision served to set aside the convition and sentences imposed on two corporations and four brothers engaged in the poultry slaughtering business in Brooklyn, Joseph Martin and Aaron Schechter, on charges of failing to observe the code provisions against unfair trade practices.

In this regard, Hughes noted that "fair competition" could not be regarded as "antethetical to "unfair" competition and opened up an entirely new field.

Hughes' tone changed, however, as he noted that there was a distinction between the code power delegation of the NRA and the delegation in the oil cases.

He said, however, that there was no specific definition of "fair competition" in the law.

No Definition

The opinion continued that there was in the NRA a procedure set up quite different from the Federal Trade Commission set-up which passed on "unfair" trade practices.

He then went into a thorough study of the poultry code, including fair practices and wage and hour provisions.

The opinion then referred to the recent oil cases where the delegation of power was held invalid as being too broad.

Hughes discarded the theory that the codes were voluntary and stated that they were in fact codes of law.

Hughes noted that the government claimed that the court should look at the law in the light of economic conditions.

This, Hughes said, did not create a liberty for the government to transcent constitutional restrictions.

As the court made clear its ruling on that phase of NRA, a newspaperman passed a note to Donald Richberg, NRA chairman, asking if the ruling left the way open for a new recovery law.

Attorney-General Homer S. Cummings was eating a ham sandwich on rye bread when word was passed to him of the court's ruling on NRA code-making powers.

Cummings continued to chew the sandwich without a change of expression on hearing the news. He indicated he would have no comment until he received the full text of the decision.

After definitely stating the ruling on the code provisions of the law, Chief Justice Hughes went into a lengthy discussion of the question of interstate commerce which dealt chiefly with explaining how the court some years ago come to rule that the chicken business in New York was interstate commerce.

ELECTION TEST IN CIRCUIT COURT BEGINS FRIDAY

Three Republicans Will Try to Overthrow Democratic Majority

Friday of this week in the Circuit Court of Chilton County the legal machinery will be set in motion to determine three contests over the results of the general election of last November. Friday will see the start of the contest in the courts. There is no telling when or where the end will be. Election contests have a way of stretching out over a long time and developing into a great many intricate details of law and debate.

The contests which are slated for determination in this instance are W. G. Culp, Republican, against Tom McKee, Democrat, for the place of Tax Collector; Akins I. Collins, Republican, against Arthur D. Martin, Democrat, for Tax Assessor; H. A. Harris, Republican, against J. C. Pattillo, Democrat, for Clerk of the Circuit Court.

The date of Friday, May 31, has been set by Circuit Judge, Arthur Glover, for the hearing of pleadings in the three contests. According to arguments which grew out of the recent election, it is understood that the chief contention of the legal battle will center around the absentee ballots, concerning which all sorts of charges of illegality and discrepancy have been made.

The count of the absentee ballot box gave McKee 340 votes and Culp 78; Martin 351 and Collins 66; Pattillo 351 and Harris 60. The official count of all votes cast in the election gave McKee a majority of 54, Martin 91 and Pattillo 195.

Attorneys Reynolds & Reynolds, J. B. Atkinson, Grover Walker and John Foshee will represent McKee, Martin and Pattillo; attorneys for the contestants are Oliver D. Street, Percy Pitts and J. Osmond Middleton.

MODERN BEAUTY SHOPPE BUSY; WILL GIVE 100th WAVE GRATIS

What is perhaps the most unusual record of any beauty shoppe in this entire section is being proudly borne by The Modern Beauty Shoppe of Clanton.

This popular and modern shop carried an advertisement in the Union-Banner last week, listing among other items, the new Shirley Temple waves for children, and Mrs. W. C. Robinson, owner of the shop, stated that she is more than pleased with the response to that particular advertisement.

Early Saturday morning, the Modern Beauty Shoppe had among its first customers, a grandmother, her daughter and her granddaughter, all who were anxious to be given a permanent wave. At one and the same time, three generations of the same family were leaving the shop proudly displaying their waves. The granddaughter was six years old.

Another record chalked up in favor of this shop is the fact that Mr. Grady Mills, one of the licensed operators there, gave his 80th permanent wave Tuesday afternoon of this week since their opening on April 11th.

Mrs. Robinson asked the Banner to inform their patrons that the 100th wave given by them will be given free. So, judge the time and the distance for that 100th permanent wave.

COL. ALF M. TUNSTALL DIED AT HIS HOME IN GREENSBORO

Col. Alfred M. Tunstall, 71-year-old member of the Alabama House of Representatitves from Hale County, died at his home in Greensboro Tuesday night.

An illness of two weeks proved fatal to the veteran of 39 years service in the State Legislature. He had represented his home county, Hale, nine terms in the House of Representatives, during two of which he was Speaker, and served one term as a member of the State Senate.

Col. Tunstall was recognized throughout his long career as one of the most fearless and powerful leaders of Alabama's law making body.

Work Started On New Theatre Bldg

Excavation has been made and laying the foundation was begun this week on the construction of a new motion picture house by Mr. C. W. Wade.

The location of the new structure is on the highway between Dixie Cafe and Jesse Teel's Shoe Shop.

According to announcement previously made, this is designed to be one of the most modern and up-to-date motion picture show places in the state.

TWO IN MAYOR'S COURT

Two cases were on the docket for disposal Monday morning in the court of Mayor C. Fenn Jones. One was for a charge of public drunkenness, and one for violating the prohibition law. Defendants in each case were assessed a fine and costs, which were paid.

Joining in the world-wide recognition of the first birthday of the Dionne quintuplets, Wingard Brothers will devote window space to a pictorial display of the famous babies, the farm house in which they were born, the small Dafoe hospital in which they are being reared, and other illustrations showing the part played by up-to-date refrigeration in bringing the quintuplets to maturity, it was announced today by Mr. J. C. King, sales manager of the local company which acts as distributor of Electrolux refrigerators.

The window display was prepared by Servel, Inc., which company helped to serve the quintuplets through an Electrolux refrigerator rushed to their home soon after they were born.

"Our company extends its hearty congratulations to all those whose interest and generosity helped to save the world's most famous babies, and wishes for the quintuplets themselves a long life," said Mr. King.

"Modern refrigeration, through the enterprise of the Electrolux company in contributing one of its kerosene-operated refrigerators to the Dionne farmhouse shortly after the birth of the quintuplets startled the world, merits recognition.

"The history of the progress of the quintuplets during their first year is bound up with scientific care including the use of Electrolux which arrived at a time when uncertain whether they would survive in the early days of their career. When the guardians built the Dafoe hospital in which the children are now being cared for, another Electrolux was installed and is still being used in the hospital."

Work Started On CCC Camp Here

Preparations Made For Coming of Full Quota In A Few Days

A detachment of about twenty-five enlisted men under direction of two army officers arrived in Clanton on Monday from Bessemer, and occupied the Joe Mullins property in West Clanton, where they have already begun the establishment of a Civilian Conservation Camp.

The men on the ground at present are the vanguard of a much larger number who will arrive in a few days, and begin operations in earnest. When the camp gets under way, there will be about 200 enlisted men, with half a dozen officers and directors.

The ground is being cleared off and made ready for occupancy of the permanent personnel. About a dozen tents have been erected. Plans are understood to include the erection of wooden barracks buildings to house the more than 200 men who will constitute the full force of CCC workers.

Mayor C. Fenn Jones directing the city employees were busy Tuesday laying water mains necessary to connect the camp on to the city water system.

County Agent J. W. Fant is jubilant over location of the camp here, as the men of the group will be engaged mainly in soil erosion projects in connection with present plans mapped out by the Extension Service, of which he is the head in Chilton County.

The location of the Clanton CCC camp is on the Joe Mullins property to the north of the Selma Highway, in the western part of the city.

DANCE RECITAL

Miss Elizabeth Carter will present her pupils in a dance recital Friday, May 31, at 8 p.m., at the high school auditorium, Clanton. The admission will be: Adults, 25c; children, 15c.

This recital is put on under the auspices of the Chilton County High School P.-T. A.

National Forest In West Chilton

Survey of the Area In Dallas, Bibb and Perry Counties

County Agent J. W. Fant informs The Union-Banner that there are this week government engineers engaged in surveying the forest lands in the west side of Beats Seven and Eight of this county, preparatory to establishing a national forest comprising this land as well as adjacent tracts in Bibb, Perry and Dallas Counties.

There is some fear, however, that the landowners in these sections may set their prices on the land so high that the authorities cannot afford to acquire it, inasmuch as there is a refinite, fixed price above which the Forestry Service cannot possibly go in the purchase of these lands. This hindrance, however, has arisen principally in Dallas County, where agents seem to have taken options on the land and want to command a profit by reselling to the government. The Forestry Department has threatened to pull out from the undertaking altogether unless better cooperation is given the authorities in acquiring the lands.

The department has experienced appraisers, who, when the land is submitted to them, make a sound and accurate appraisal, based on the amount of timber, soil and present revenue. These figures are said to be a little above the actual present value of the lands.

It is pointed out that should this forest be established, employment for many people in adjoining communities would bring a large payroll.

MISS DOROTHY SESSIONS HAS FINISHED SECRETARIAL COURSE

Miss Dorothy Sessions, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben J. Sessions, has finished a two-year secretarial course at Alabama College, Montevallo.

The course includes shorthand, typing, accounting and other secretarial instruction. She was given her diploma on Monday, May 27.

WILLIAM ALFONZA POOLE DIED

William Alfonza Poole, age 66, prominent Chilton County farmer, died Monday morning about 10:30 at his home at Poole's Cross Roads. Burial will be at Shiloh. Martin & Sons will have charge, and arrangements are being made pending communication with his daughter, Miss Vera Poole, who is visiting in Indianapolis.

Surviving Mr. Poole are his wife, Mrs. Allie Poole, four daughters, Mrs. Ida Culp, Mrs. Lona Scott, Mrs. Nell Scott, and Miss Vera Poole; two sisters, Mrs. Lula Burnett and Mrs. Ida Fiquette of Clanton; two brothers, Walter, of Clanton, and John of Shiloh; one half-brother, Albert Wilson, of Clanton, Route 3.

AUBURN VISITORS HERE

P. O. Davis and Prof. Draughn, of Auburn, were visitors in Clanton for a short while Tuesday. They were passing through and stopped to say howdy to some friends.

WILL EXPLAIN HOUSING PLANS

Meeting Set For Tuesday, June 4th at the Wadesonian Theatre

Mr. Eric Hart, chairman for Chilton County of the Federal Housing Administration together with Miss Ruth Pardue, in conjunction with Mr. Heery, farm representative of the administration, after considerable planning, announce that Tuesday, June 4th, has been set as the day for the meeting here to explain the purposes and workings of the housing program.

The hour of the meeting has been set at 10 o'clock, and the Wadesonian Theatre has been procured as a place in which to hold the meeting. A film presentation will be given, showing the various stages of renovation and alteration of a farm building.

There will be speaking by Mr. W. B. Nolen, associate director of Alabama for the federal housing administration. Mr. Nolen will explain fully all the workings of the administration as applies to farmers in particular, as this meeting is intended principally as a farm Building Day Program.

The national housing act offers to farmers and property owners of all kinds opportunity to make repairs and improvements by means of credit extended to financial institutions, approved by means of credit extended to financial institutions, approved by the FHA Loans may be as much as $2,000, payable in equal installments over a period of five years, interest not to exceed a maximum prescribed by the government.

Farm homes and other property has been steadily depreciating in value for the last four years, says Mr. Heery, due to the fact that only a few owners have been in a position to make repairs and improvements.

All property owners are urged to be present at this meeting. Remember the date, Tuesday, June 4th, and the hour is 10 o'clock in the morning, at the Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton.

DO NOT TURN AROUND ON THE RAILROAD TRACKS

Chief of Police John Browder, renews his warning to automobile drivers about turning around on the railroad crossing at Second Avenue.

MILDRED YVONNE CROWSON

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Crowson of Lay Dam road are the proud parents of a new baby girl. It arrived Saturday night about midnight and weighed 8½ pounds. They will call her Mildred Yvonne. But Mr. Crowson assured us that the name did not in any way indicate quintuplets, although the name is borrowed from one of the famous Dionne five.

SCREEN IS NOT PROPER PLACE FOR ADVERTISING

New York. — The Motion Picture Producers of America today completed its annual meeting, which had been adjourned from an earlier session on March 25.

Among various matters discussed at the session was the subject of advertising on the screen. In this connection, Will H. Hays, president of the Association, made the following statement:

"Much concern is felt over the reports that various projects are now under way, aimed at injecting advertising films into entertainment programs, and the association will conduct a study of the matter. A report and recommendations will be presented to the board at a later date.

"The motion picture theatre is and should be reserved exclusively for entertainment. The motion picture theatre screen is not a proper medium for advertising, whether this be by direct presentation of outright advertising films, or by some indirect effort to present advertising films under the guise of entertainment."

LARGER CANNING PROGRAM MADE

Miss Nellie Fuller, Auburn Graduate, to Supervise Entire County

The Chilton County Canning Project under the relief Administration this year is mapped out to be much larger than last year. The total canned products last year was 40,000 quarts. It will likely be twice that much this season.

The work this season will be under direction of a county supervisor, Miss Nellie Fuller, a graduate in home economics at Auburn. In addition to the county supervisor there will be a supervisor at each of the nine established centers, with one other supervisor to assist and direct the scattered families not in touch with any designated center.

The nine centers will be located as follows: Riderville, Potts Place, Jemison, Mars Hill, Mineral Springs, Cooper, Mt. Creek, Thorsby and Clanton.

The request has been made for ten white collar persons to assist with the program. The other families in the county are so scattered that home canning is advised. It will not be possible for a supervisor, without transportation, to assist more than 50 families. It is planned to divide the work as follows:

One supervisor for Jemison and Mars Hill, the two centers serving 35 families.

One supervisor for Mineral Springs center serving 22 families and fifty families for home canning.

One supervisor for center at Cooper serving twelve persons and 38 families to be given service in the homes.

One supervisor for center at Thorsby serving 14 persons, 16 homes in Macedonia community, and 18 in Lomax community.

One supervisor for 49 families on Maplesville Route 2 and Fletcher community.

One supervisor for Mt. Creek center serving 20 families and 18 homes near Verbena.

One negro supervisor for center at Riderville, 11 negroes, Potts center, 10 negro families, and 10 negro families on rural routes.

Supervisor for Clanton center serving 50 persons.

Supervisor for 20 isolated families scattered over county.

One supervisor for 15 families near Maplesville and 10 near Pletcher. This supervisor will also assit other supervisors who have some isolated families.

The canning program this year will not be a mere matter of how many cans can be filled, but will be directed and carried out with a purpose of educational value. Time will be taken to give instruction of future and permanent value to those engaged in the projects.

IN JACKSONVILLE, FLA., TO STUDY BEAUTY CULTURE WORK

Miss Elizabeth Eubanks left last Sunday afternoon for Jacksonville, Fla., where she is entering Florida College of Beauty Science, to take a course of several weeks. Miss Eubanks is a recent graduate of Chilton County High School.

After taking this course, Miss Eubanks will return to Clanton and resume her connection with Lue-Beth's Beauty Shop, which she and Miss Esther Lue McDowell have been operating for the past several weeks. Miss Eubanks will be prepared to give her friends the very best there is in modern beauty culture, as she will study and master the latest methods and applications connected with the work.

Lue-Beth's Beauty Shop, located on First Avenue and Second Street, will continue to be operated by Miss McDowell while Miss Eubanks is away.

Health Officers "Shooting" Folks

The staff of the Chilton County Health Unit have been busy during recent weeks carrying out the program of inoculation for prevention of typhoid and diphtheria. More than 200 "shots" were given at the office last Saturday.

Dr. Nickson announced a new clinic beginning at Verbena Wednesday of this week. He will be there each Wednesday for four weeks. Also the clinic at Coopers will start Wednesday. The time at Verbena will be 1:30 p.m. and at Cooper at 3 p.m.

The work at Mt. Creek and a group of homes on Verbena Route 2 has been finished. Maplesville will finish Friday of this week. There are two more engagements at the cotton mill. The clinic at Floyd church will be completed next week.

Each Saturday the clinic is held at the halth office in the Potts Building next to the courthouse.

Misses Ethel Cagle and Dot Manning have returned from Washington, D.C., where they spent a week visiting.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala.—Numbers of candidates for degrees conferred at the University of Alabama on Tuesday, May 28, were the following:

Masters of arts, 4; bachelors of arts, 29; bachelors of science in chemistry, metallurgy and ceramics, 3; bachelors of science in commerce and business administration, 8; bachelors of arts in education, 7; bachelors of science in education, 6; bachelors of science in home economics education, 3; bachelors of science in physical education, 6; bachelor of science in chemical engineering, 1; bachelor of science in electrical engineering, 2; bachelors of laws, 11, including Raymond Mims, Clanton; bachelors of science in medicine, 3, including James Lamar Callaway, Clanton; certificates in library science, 2.

A strong champion of academic freedom appeared in the person of Dr. Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the Interior, when he delivered one of the principal addresses of the 104th commencement exercises last Monday evening at the University of Alabama. The present attack on freedom of thought and of research in our universities, said Dr. Ickes, represents an attempt to force upon America a dictatorship of the right or of the left.

There always have been, he stated, and probably always will be a small group of men, lustful for power and ruthless in the means which they adopt to acquire it, who would tear up every charter of liberty that ever has been written in order to agrandize themselves.

"In the final analysis," said Dr. Ickes, demonstrating the importance of academic freedom, "our colleges and universities are the citadels, not only of our liberties, but of civilization itself. During the dark ages when men hermetically sealed the doors of their minds against new ideas, the only faint gleam of the light that was life was kept burning in those cloistered retreats where the scholar bent over his illuminated vellum in his intent search for the truth that comes only through knowledge. Thanks to him, the faint flicker that became a flaming torch during the days of the renaissance has grown, in these modern times, into a giant beacon of glorious incandescence whose beneficent light is shed over all the world. It is inconceivable that any group of men should undertake to dim that light.

Dr. James I. Vance, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Nashville Tenn., in the baccalaureate sermon on Sunday, pointed to the need for "a red-blooded race, people who can make an age and create a country, people who can conquer unemployment and help themselves. Charging that we are getting too paternalistic in the matter of government, Dr. Vance urged the American people to earn a living instead of waiting for the federal government to put them on a relief roll. What has become of Anglo-Saxon spine, of American self-respect, he asked?

Dr. George H. Denny made an urgent plea for financial relief, in his annual report to the Board of Trustees, made Monday afternoon. He stated that the university cannot go on as it has been going on during the depression years.

The trust funds, he pointed out, are derived from student fees and are held to the credit of the several laboratories, libraries, and other agencies to which they belong pending their periodic expenditure year by year. Formerly they were illogically carried in the maintenance and operation fund of the University, but now they have been placed in the fund where they obviously belong.

Dr. Denny summarized the year past as one during which there was little to record outside of the ordinary routine of events. "Such a year," he said, "is always welcomed. It means that the ends for which an institution is established and maintained are being measurably achieved."

Among other outstanding commencement events were the Phi Beta Kappa and Beta Gamma Sigma annual luncheons and initiations held Monday at noon. Dr. Edwin Mims, professor of English, at the University of Vanderbilt, was the principal speaker at the Phi Beta Kappa luncheon. At the same time the firty-five year class of 1890 held a luncheon reunion at the Peacock Tavern.

A special meeting of the Alumni Association was held Monday afternoon for the purpose of reasserting in no uncertain terms their confidence and loyalty in the University and in Dr. Denny, who had done so much to mould it into the great institution which it is today.

Also on the program were the senior alumni banquet at 6 p.m., and the final ball at 9:30 in the evening.

Tuesday's program included the annual senior women's luncheon at 12:30 in the Alabama Union, and the reception given President and Mrs. Denny in honor of graduating seniors and their relatives. Dr. Denny conferred degrees in the closing exercises at 5 p.m., in the stadium.

Stops ITCHING In Minutes

Folks who have used HYDROSAL for itching, burning outbreaks could hardly believe such quick relief was possible! Doctors have prescribed HYDROSAL for 23 years. Even in stubborn, torturing eczema, Athlete's Foot (or "Itchy Toes"), rashes and pimples, the burning and itching fade away the minute HYDROSAL touches the skin. HYDROSAL penetrates the skin and acts to check growth of the germ causing local disorder. Gives Nature real help to quick healing. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau. Money back if it does not satisfy you. At all druggists in two forms, liquid and ointment—30c and 60c sizes.

HOMECOMING AT COOPER

There will be a homecoming day at Cooper (Chestnut Creek Church) on the first Sunday in June, and we especially desire all of our ex-members of this church who have moved away to be back with us on this day. If you have any relatives or friends who are away, please drop them a card and tell them that we want them with us and that you will bring their dinner, and I believe they will come.

Everybody invited to come and let's have a real home coming day, one that we can have pleasant memories for many years to come.—J. L. Yates, publicity chairman.

J. P. Jones from Sylacauga spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Jones, in Clanton.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

"What do you think of Mr. Blank?" I asked a friend recently. "I do not wish to say because the Bible says 'judge not that ye be not judged'," was the friend's reply. This friend misunderstood the Scripture. Jesus said that we may know a tree by the fruit in bears. In other words, He told us to judge the tree by the type fruit it brings forth. When Jesus said, "Judge not that you be not judged,' He meant that we are not to usurp the place of God in passing sentence upon the individual. As long as we are intelligent beings we are bound to know that if a man steals he is a thief and if he kills he is a murderer. The Bible is a most reasonable book when we understand it.

"Do you believe in capital punishment?" somebody asks. Certainly I do. Government was established by God. The right to take life was given by God. When an individual kills a man he is a murderer. When a man is tried in the courts and is convicted and sent to the electric chair or gallows by orderly governmental processes he is sent there by the authority of God. God gives life and God takes it. Human government was established by Almighty God. If a man commits murder and is executed legally, then this government is functioning in line with the will of God. Human life is entirely too cheap in America.

Crime is no remedy for crime and lawlessness is not a corrective for lawlessness. There is nothing worse than mob rule. It is the rule of the animal impulse. The courts do not always function justly, and some people come clear when they should be convicted, but it is better to have this condition than it is for men to take the law into their own hands. This nation needs a new respect for law. We need to begin in our homes and teach this respect for law to our children and the same instructions should be carried through our schools and colleges. A mob lynching a man in a forest is certainly living up to the modern self-expression theory of education but it is the sort of self-expression which wrecks nations.

SHOCK CHANGES SEX OF WOMAN

Tientsin, May 25.—Yao Chinping, a 20-year-old Chinese "girl" of Tientsin, has become a man.

The change of sex is attributed by popular report to a shock during a thunderstorm, but whatever the cause of it doctors are agreed that Yao is now masculine.

"He" has cancelled "his" engagement to an officer in the Chinese army.—Atlanta Sunday American.

Mr. Alex Hayes has returned from a house party at Mentone, Ala. The party was given by the Pi K. A. fraternity from the University of Alabama.

LOMAX POSTMASTER SAYS CHAIN LETTERS VIOLATE POSTAL LAWS

Editor Union-Banner:

I wish to inform the patrons of Chilton county post offices that it is a violation of the postal laws and regulations to send chain letters thru the mails. This is not a new law but has been the law for several years past.

Canadians Rubbing Dust From Eyes After Probe

Millions Lost by Politically Operated Power System. Taxpayers Must Make Up Huge Losses

Ontario's politically operated power system, held up for years as a model of government ownership, now faces a grave crisis. Instead of a successful venture, the New York Sun reports that the tax free Ontario system has added hundreds of millions to Ontario's public debt. This deficit must be paid by Ontario taxpayers. Here is the story:

"The cause of public ownership of electrical utilities in the United States receives a genuine setback as the American public begins to understand what is happening to the blue-ribbon baby of public ownership, the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario. That is the largest municipal supply system in the world, often held up as an example of what governmental operation can accomplish in the utility field. But its record indisputably shows that political management and an unsound economic basis can get the strongest of such institutions into trouble.

"Theoretically the corporation exists for much the same purpose as that proposed for various 'yardstick' enterprises in the United States—that of furnishing electrical current at low rates to consumers through public management and control. Actually it has added hundreds of millions of dollars to the public debt of Ontario which, on a per capita basis, scarcely can be said to compare favorably with that of New York or Quebec (or Alabama) where private management is the rule.

"The commission has found itself with an unmarketable surplus on hand and has been compelled to face heavy annual deficits.

"Rather than risk unpopularity by raising rates the commission began to dig into its reserves. But this did not affect the mounting annual deficits.

"Meanwhile communities in Ontario using municipal power on which no tax is paid have found their burdens of debt steadily growing heavier. These would gladly use tax money from electrical services if they only could devise some means of collecting it.

"As one way to help the commission out of its difficulties the Hepburn government — declaring that Hydro has been a 'political tool' which was 'nearly ruined by mismanagement and inefficiency'—has recorted to the drastic expedient of repudiating contracts negotiated by an agency of the government. Our own repudiation of the gold clause in Federal bonds estops us on this side of the border from raising any question as to the morality of this procedure."—Adv. Alabama Power Co.

Indianapolis, May 27.—The sharp-toned roar of powerful motor cars is heard again at the Indianapolis Speedway, where preperations are now in full swing for the annual racing classic May 30. The cream of America's race drivers are tuning up and testing their cars on the huge brick oval.

Tire engineers, working to make tires safer, are already in the pits—headed by J. E. Hale, development chief of the Firestone company. These engineers obtain facts that are of tremendous importance to motorists. For 36,000 traffic deaths last year and 7,700 wrecks due to blowouts, prove that greater tire safety is America's vital need.

As a modern automobile has become more powerful, tire engineers each year have made new improvements in tires, and many of these are based on facts obtained from the Indianapolis speedway. For instance, new rubber compounds and new methods of treating cords with rubber were developed to counteract heat. In fact the most effective means that is known today for preventing internal friction and heat—the patented gum-dipping process of dipping cord fabric in liquid rubber—proved its advantage at the Speedway.

Tire development engineers point out that speeds at the track have gone up each year, yet tire failures—bugaboo of the old days—have become almost a thing of the past. In fact the drivers seldom make even a precautionary change—though this can be done without loss of time while a car is being refueled.

For the last 15 years the victor has used Firestone tires. These gruelling tests provide Firestone tire engineers with facts not obtainable from any other source, and have contributed in a large measure to making Firestone tires stronger and more durable for the protection of the lives of millions who drive on America's boulevards and highways.

COUNTY OFFICIALS OF STATE FAVOR UNIFORM GAS TAXATION

Montgomery, May 27.—Members of the Association of Commissioners and Probate Judges, meeting at Montgomery last week, expressed interest in the uniform gasoline tax bills which are now on the House calendar for early passage.

Representative J. B. Reynolds, from Ozark, author of the legislation, explained to the county officials making inquiry that his plan does not propose to increase the present average gasoline tax rate, which, including the state and local taxes, is 7 cents per gallon, which is the same as the proposed uniform rate. He stated that the bill merely provides that the state shall collect all of the gasoline taxes for the state, counties and municipalities, and prohibits such county and city taxation. "Higher taxation than now exists will soon be in effect unless the legislation, including the constitutional amendment, is adopted and a check is put on the local taxation of gasoline," said the Dale county legislator.

Mr. Reynolds stated that the added cost, bringing the total to a uniform seven cents, is levied primarily for the towns and cities, and what is left after the municipalities are paid their portion of the funds derived from this source will be divided equally between the counties, which have already been provided for in the distribution of gasoline tax funds. He said that local taxation of motor fuel, if allowed to continue and spread, will soon bring about greater confusion than now exists.

UNION GROVE

Please spare us a small space from Union Grove once more.

Sunday was our regular preaching day, with Bro. Carroll on hand, but old Bro. Honeycutt preached at 11 o'clock to a large crowd and made a fine talk which was enoyed by all. Some of the oldest citizens of our county such as W. F. Conway, who was one of the founders of the Union Grove church, were present. We want to say that you still have a warm welcome here, and we had lots of visitors from other churches. You are always welcome, and we want you to come back again. We were also glad to have John Dorminey from Montgomery in our community again.

Some of our people from here went to Mars Hill to the singing in the afternoon Sunday and reported a fine time, and plenty of good singing.

We were called together at our B. Y. P. U. at 6:30 by a song by a string band by Miss Vivian Glass and her brother. The title of the song was, "We Will Take our Vacation in Heaven." The song was fine. So if you will come to our B. Y. P. U. you will enjoy the program.

We listened to Bro. Carroll deliver a fine message after our B. Y. P. U. and had with us three more ministers, Bro. Green, Bro. Northcutt and Bro. Thrash.

Our cream supper Saturday night was fine. We had plenty of cream and cake, lemonade and chocolate, and a cool north wind free.

NOTICE

The ladies of Mt. Carmel Baptist church announce a cream supper to be given at the home of Tom Sims, on Throsby-Maplesville Highway, on Saturday night, June 1st.

Everyone is cordially invited to be there and have a part in the good times and the good work.—M. W. Mims.

THERE'S WEALTH UNDER THAT THAR GROUND SAYS JEMISON CITIZEN

Jemison, Ala., May 27.

Editor Union-Banner:

There is no telling what we walk over that the natural eye cannot behold. There are hidden bounties in the earth as well as on top of the earth. The natural eye cannot behold these, but it is possible that the God who created these things has hid them on purpose for His people to stumble over and drill and dig holes under guess work.

Time is not far off until we will find that man has an electric eye that will behold where these bountiful veins are hidden underneath the surface of the earth. It can be told where to drill and make no mistake. Needles have been made and other means resorted to to find these hidden treasures and beauties, but none give perfect satisfaction. But we have found that the greatest power is in man—man did not make it—but God made this electric eye in man. Man must develop this power; when this is done he can locate oil veins and mineral veins as well as water veins.

Will it not be nice when we find out that we have an electric eye as well as a natural eye, to see the things that otherwise Almighty God has hidden from our view.—S. N. Waldrup, Jemison, Ala.

COME TO SUNDAY SCHOOL

The young men's Sunday school class of the Clanton Baptist Church wishes to urge that each and every member of the class be present next Sunday. We have some important business to attend to and we urgently request the presence of all members.

MINERAL SPRINGS

Our Sunday School and B. Y. P. U. are doing very well at the present time, although there are lots of folks who we need at Sunday school every Sunday that do not come. So come out and let's make our Sunday school one of the best.

Next Saturday night and Sunday are our regular preaching times, so we want to see a large crowd out to hear what good Bro. Robinson has to tell us, and let's not forget that next Sunday afternoon is our regular singing time, so all that are interested in singing and music come and be with us for you are always welcome at this place.

All who are interested in the cemetery and church ground at this place come Friday morning, May 31 for the purpose of cleaning it off.—A Reader.

Mr. Hal Broadhead of Montgomery is the guest of Mr. Alex Hayes this week.

MINERAL SPRINGS DEM. CLUB

The Mineral Springs home demonstration club met on Wednesday evening, May 22nd at the church. There were twelve members present. Two new members were enrolled, making a total of 32 members on roll. A very interesting demonstration was given on making button holes and pockets; also on fitting sleeves and simple changes in plain patterns by Miss Ruth Pardue.

We had some visitors with us. We are always glad to have visitors to attend our club.

Our next meeting will be June 26th at the home of Mr. Clifford Giles.—Secretary and Reporter.

OUR DAY OF WORSHIP

LESSON TEXT—Psalm 100; John 4:20-24; Colossians 3:15-17.

GOLDEN TEXT—God is a Spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth.—John 4:24.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Lord's Day.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Our Lord's Day.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Should We Do on Sunday?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What We Do When We Really Worship.

I. The Origin of the Sabbath (Gen. 2:2, 3).

When God had completed the heavens and the earth he desisted from creative action. Since his creative work was finished in six days, he ceased from action on the seventh day, which was, therefore, called the Sabbath or rest day. The Sabbath was not a Mosaic but an Edenic institution. It is older by centuries than the Sabbath given to Israel at Sinai.

II. The Sabbath Given to Israel (Exod. 20:8-11).

It was made a peculiar sign of covenant relation between the chosen people and God (Deut. 5:11-15). It enjoins a twofold obligation:

1. Work through six days (v. 9). Work was God's primary thought for man (Gen. 2:15). It expresses man's normal condition. The command to work six days is just as binding as the command to rest on the seventh day.

2. Rest on the seventh day (v. 10). There must be cessation from work on the Sabbath. Since God gave the example and then sanctified the day, it should be kept holy. It was not only to give relief to the body, but to be a time when man's thoughts would be turned to God. It was designed to keep fresh in man's mind the consciousness of God and his mercies. It was thus made for man's well-being (Mark 2:27).

III. The First Day of the Week (Acts 20:7).

The early Christians met on the first day of the week to break the bread of fellowship and to worship God. Paul used this assembly as an occasion to preach the gospel. Doubtless this became the day of rest and worship in honor of the Lord's resurrection.

IV. True Worship Taught (John 4:20-24).

1. True worship is not confined to a particular place (vv. 21, 22). The place is unimportant. The all-important thing is to have the right conception of God as revealed through the Jews. Since God is omnipresent, the true worshiper can hold intercourse with him anywhere and everywhere.

2. It must be spiritual (vv. 23, 24). God is Spirit. Therefore, only those who through regeneration have a spiritual nature can truly worship God.

V. A Psalm of Worship (Ps. 100).

1. Whom to worship (v. 1). Worship should be rendered to God, for he alone is worthy.

2. The spirit of worship (v. 2). Worship should be joyful. This joy should be manifest in the singing of praises to God.

3. Who should worship (v. 1). All the world should worship, not merely the Jews, but all nations. The peculiar mission of the Jews was to call all nations to the worship of the true God.

4. Reasons for worship (vv. 3-5). God should be worshiped because he is God. Being God, he is our Creator, Preserver, and Savior.

VI. The Soul Poise of the True Worshiper (Col. 3:15-17).

1. Peace rules the life (v. 15). The one joined to Christ by faith and resting in his finished work is at peace with God and should be at peace with all members of the body whose head is Christ.

2. Gives thanks to God (v. 15). In spite of all troubles which beset the Christian, they should all be drowned in his constant giving of thanks to God.

3. Christ's Word to dwell in the heart (v. 16). It is not enough to know the truth; the very words of Christ must be made real in experience. They must be made to dwell, that is, be at home in the heart.

4. The definite function of the Christian (v. 16). It is to teach and warn others. Christ's words dwelling in the believer will result in blessing to others. The Christian should always maintain a joyous attitude.

5. The supreme motive (v. 17). All that the Christian does and says should be for the glory of Christ. The enthronement of Christ as the Lord of life means that all the Christian's duties are performed with the consciousness of union with Christ. He knows that his life belongs to Christ, who died that he might live.

Be Cheerful

What do the flowers say, that nod at you from field and garden and lane? I think they say "Be cheerful; look as bright as you can. Leave off frowning, and cheer other people up; smiles cost nothing, but can often lift the shadows and bless the heart."

Friendship

Lest thou learn his ways, and get a snare to thy soul.—Prov. 22:24, 25

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Reeves were called to Prattville Monday on account of the serious illness of Mr. Reeves' father.

FLOYD NEWS

Our singing at Floyd last third Sunday evening was just fine. We had many good singers. We want to see them all come out next time. We want to have an all-day singing in the future.

Remember next Saturday night and Sunday are our regular preaching services. We welcome everybody to come. Sunday is our communion day.

Everybody come to Sunday school next Sunday. We hope everybody will get more interested in Sunday school.

There were a lot of happy children last Saturday as they reached home from Talladega School for the Deaf. Bessie Prickett, Maggie Prickett and Harl Smith were among the number. Mr. T. A. Prickett has been sending to the Talladega School for twenty-five years. All his children have graduated except Maggie, who has three more years to go. Bessie is planning to enter college.

Mr. McLean, a mechinic, is working in Clanton. He knows what is wrong with your car.

There will be regular services at Congregational church next Sunday with Sunday school at 10:45, worship services at 11 o'clock a.m., Christian Endeavor at 7 o'clock p.m. evening service at 7:45 p.m.

The Boy Scouts will meet on the lawn of the Congregational Parsonage Friday evening at 6:30. All scouts please be present.

The Ladies Guild social will be held at the home of Mrs. Charlie Howard on Thursday afternoon of this week.

The Congregational Ladies Aid social will be held Thursday of next week, June 6, with Mrs. A. N. Laurell, north of town. Ladies please bring your plate and cup.

A daily vacation school will begin in the Thorsby community Monday morning, June 3. The closing exercises will be held in the Baptist church beginning at 8 o'clock on Monday morning, June 3. The primary, Junior and intermediate groups will meet daily at the Baptist church. In the evening the young people, older young people, and two adult classes (men and women) will meet at the Congregational church. The first classes for these groups will begin at 7:30 Monday evening, June 3. Miss Ina Adams of Andalusia, Ala., will be the director of the school. Miss Adams is an experienced teacher in schools of this type. Teachers from the community who will teach in the school are: Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor of the Baptist church, Mrs. Akins Collins, Miss Marian Fairbank, Mr. Rascoe Maddox, Miss Louise Robinson, Miss Ruth Foss, Miss Martha Williams, Miss Sarah Green, Miss Ruth Primm, Miss Jane Billingsley, and Mrs. Herbert Reinhardt. Miss Adams will teach one of the children's groups in the morning and the young people's class in the evening. We hope that all of the churches of Thorsby will cooperate and make this the best community church school the town has ever had.

All teachers who will teach in the Vacation Church School are requested to meet at the Congregational church on Sunday afternoon at 5:00 o'clock. Plans for the school will be discussed.

Thorsby Institute News

Wednesday night was class night for the seniors. "Moon-Shy" was the name of the play and it was very well acted. After the play the class history was read by Grady Popwell, the class phophecy by Ruth Foss, class will by Lucille Each and class poem by Jane Billingsley.

Thursday morning the graduating exercises took place. Very interesting essays were read by Jane Billingsley and Ruth Foss. The glee club, under the direction of Miss Allen, music-teacher, sang "Hark, Hark the Lark," by Schubert and a girls trio, consisting of Verlon Goodgame, Inez Jackson and Mary Nelle Pate, sang "If With All Your Hearts" by Mendelssohn. Dean George Bellingrath, Ph.D. of Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., gave a splendid address. In his introductory remarks he mentioned the fact that three Thorsby Institute students are to graduate this year from Piedmont College. All of them have done very good work, Helen Diefenderfer, Katheryn Foss and Gerald Smith. He said that Miss Foss, who is to be music teacher at Thorsby Institute the coming year, gave a song recital Tuesday night at the college, which he considered one of the best recitals he had ever heard. Miss Foss will get her A. B. in music.

The members of the graduating class are Jane Billingsley, Mimie Brown, Kathleen Crawford, Lucille Each, Ruth Foss, Verlon Goodgame, Jack Higgins, Helen Kendrick, Kathleen Langston and Grady Popwell.

After the exercises there was an interesting exhibit in the dining hall of food cooked by dormitory girls; of work done in typing by commercial students; of drawing done by geometry students; and notebook work in Bible; and a copy of a newspaper gotten out by the sophomore English class.

A splendid dinner sponsored by the Ladies Guild was served on the grounds. After the dinner there was a ball game between the school and the alumni. The school won. The alumni held a business meeting in Room 2 at which Miss Willie Littlejohn was elected president, Mr. H. R. Maddox, vice president, Edith Foss, secretary and Helen Lowery treasurer. The alumni dues are only twenty-five cents a year and it is hoped that every one who has not paid will pay. If each one would pay one dollar to cover four years dues, that would help very much. Our alumni have been working towards enlarging the library room. The library is too cramped as it is. It is expected that the alumni will repeat their play which they gave in May. It was very amusing, as well as being a good, clean play.

Anyone wishing to take either piano or voice the coming year should see Mr. Maddox, and also Miss Katheryn Foss. It may be possible that she will give private lessons this summer and so the same ones taking this summer would be all the more ready to take up the work in music the coming year at the Institute. It is hoped that she will give a recital this summer at the Institute that her Thorsby friends may hear her sing and play.

As there are a number of people in Thorsby interested in good music it has been suggested that a club or organization might be formed, that they have programs which they will enjoy, and in which various ones may participate.

First Honor Roll—Jane Billingsley, Kathleen Crawford, Ruth Foss, Sarah Green, J. R. Lowery, Mary Louise Reinhardt, Margaret Ward, Edna Tracy, Lewis Wilson, Robert Weems.

ICKES — THE NEW HERO

House Democrats have just accorded Secretary Ickes a paean of praise for his labors and voted him a $10,000-a-year assistant. It was not so long ago that the House was anxious to "spank" Mr. Ickes. The members don't like him. He was "not courteous to congressmen." There was conflict over his policies and noisy objections to his methods.

But that was before Ickes was nominated to be one of the chief spenders of four billion dollars. Every congressman wants some of that magic money for his constituents. No wonder Congress now shines up to Ickes. —Philadelphia Inquirer.

The other night we listened to a speech by Governor Talmadge of Georgia coming over the air. The radio itself is a wonderful thing but we never expected to hear it ring with a pleasing in rich Southern accents denouncing the policies of a Democratic administration. What will they be doing next!

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

Some of the staunch defenders of the AAA processing taxes are seeking to excuse them on the theory that they are like the protective tariff. The fact that most of these theorists are against the tariff and denounce it as something unholy would seem somewhat inconsistent, under the circumstances, but still it is being done. They declare that, like the processing tax, the protective tariff curtails the supply and at the same time raises the cost to the consumer.

Anyone who will take the trouble to study the comparison himself for a moment will not have much trouble in seeing the unsoundness of it. The protective tariff is not designed to curtail the supply of a product, but only to cut down that part of the supply which comes to us from foreign lands where it has been made by poorly paid workers, and to protect American jobs and the American standard of living for our own people by increasing the American supply. The protective tariff encourages home industry. When foreign matches, for example, are kept out of the country, the tendency is not to curtail American production or the match supply as is the case of the AAA with farm products, but to make more matches at home, and at the same time more jobs for American workmen. The same is true of every other industry which is created in America by barring out a flood of cheaply made foreign goods. On the other hand the processing tax is raised directly to cut down American production. And its effect on foreign production is exactly the opposite of that of the protective tariff. By reducing crops at home it encourages production in foreign countries. In fact many foreign agriculturists have received so much encouragement that they are planning to raise enough to displace us in the foreign markets and send us supplies over our tariff wall, if the processing tax and other brakes on American production make it as possible as seems likely.

Nobody will doubt that the processing tax is a tax on the consumer. And he who has bought supplies at retail which are subject to the processing tax knows that so well it is not necessary to prove it to them. But there is and always has been a great deal of doubt as to how much, if any, the American protective tariff costs the American consumer through "taxation" if it is continued over a period of years. True, the tariff lessens the strain of foreign competition at home and the more competition there is among American industries the cheaper products will be to our American buyers. The only thing which can defeat this will be a setting aside of our anti-trust laws through some new fangled federal regulation which will permit the setting up of combinations to control prices and stifle competition.

The fact is that the elimination of tariff protection might cost the American consumer more, in many instances, in the long run. There are some American industries which would be entirely eliminated by foreign competition if there were no protective tariff. Once foreign producers had the field to themselves what would prevent their combining into cartels to gouge the American consumer? Gouging America is their favorite indoor and outdoor financial sport. We have no tariff on coffee yet we are at the mercy of foreign coffee growers. Lack of tariff doesn't cheapen the price of coffee to the American consumer. He pays just what the Brazilian government wants him to pay. Tariff plays no part in it. What has been done in the instance of coffee could be done with many commodities were it not for American competition made possible by the tariff.

The processing tax and the protective tariff are about as similar in theory, in practice and in result, as day and night. The man who cooked up that comparison ought to do well painting desert scenes in the middle of the Sahara.

ADVICE FROM FAR AND NEAR

We are getting all sorts of predictions as to when and how the Republican party will rejuvenate itself, when and if it does. Certainly if the party fails in this important task it will not be from lack of advice as to what should make up the declaration of principles. Some of the advice is pretty good and is coming from sources which are far apart geographically and politically. For example, Kenneth Clark recently in a copyrighted article in the Universal News Service mentioned a four point declaration of principles set out by the progressive Republican Senator, William E. Borah, of Idaho.

Senator Borah suggested first a foreign policy cutting us loose from all foreign political entanglements; elimination of monopoly, protection of our labor from cheap foreign competition, and last but not least important, the abandonment of the present economic scarcity policy embodied in the principles of the NRA and the AAA crop curtailment program.

Just about the same time Henry P. Fletcher of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Republican National Committee, declared that the Republican party is progressive because it is conservative and outlined, in an article written for the Associated Collegiate Press, four definite changes of government policy, which he evidently believes should be advocated by the Republican party. These changes are:

1. We must return to a stable currency. Without that there can be no security for any kind of investments.

2. We must bring our federal expenditures down to within a reasonable distance of our income and the people, through their legislative bodies, must keep control of the public purse strings. The billions of public debt and the interest charges thereon, now being piled up to pay for the socialistic experiments of the New Deal, will have to be paid by the rising generation out of the wages and incomes of tomorrow. The only alternative to this prospect is an orgy of inflation, which would wipe out the savings of every individual in this country.

3. We must stop using federal funds to set the government up in business in competition with private enterprise.

4. We must stop the definite movement toward state socialism, which has for its purpose, if not the ownership, at least the rigid governmental control and operation of agriculture, finance, business and industry.

Certainly in the advice of these two men, generally regarded as rather far apart politically, there as a great deal worthy of study by conservatives and progresses alike.

SAND ON THE TRACK?

One of the most interesting charges to be made by Washington statesmen recently is the one which alleges that Republican leaders there are seeking to embarass the administration by alliances with radicals. Those who make the charge are duly indignant. Evidently they lack either memory or a sense of humor. One only has to go back in memory to the Hoover administration to recall how wholeheartedly the Democrats co-operated with the President to put through his ideas. Never was there a complaint possible. Of course the Democrats didn't flirt with the radicals then. They avoided such folks as a European official shuns an American debt collector. If you believe this then you must be a firm believer in Santa Claus.

The bi-partisan support given the present administration as far outshines that accorded Mr. Hoover as a Hollywood day in June outshines a foggy November evening in London.

And charges of this kind are very unfair to the radicals too. There may be a few off the reservation but most of them are giving the New Deal unflagging support. Some nasty critics are unkind enough to say that if an automobile in Washington ran wildly into a crowd on Pennsylvania Avenue, three out four of those injured would be "liberals."

If any Republican is caught conspiring with radicals like Senator Long he ought of course to be spanked for following the example of many minority leaders back in the Hoover administration.

After all, the NRA and the AAA may have been having trouble but a great deal of criticism seems to be coming from such staunch Democrats as Senators Byrd, Glass, Adams and Bailey, Bainbridge Colby, Jim Reed, and so on. Certainly nobody would accuse these statesmen of combining with any "wild men." In fact, the newspapers the other day quoted a trusty lieutenant of Colonel Donald Richberg as stating that such stalwart administration men as Senator Joe Robinson and Senator Pat Harrison are not wholeheartedly for the NRA. Things are getting all scrambled up and we don't understand 'em.

DEFINITE ADMINISTRATION POLICIES NEEDED

A definite governmental policy toward business is the chief need if the recovery program, according to R. B. White, of New York, president of Western Union, who has been a visitor in Dallas. This is an argument that has been heard before, and it is an argument that has been used extensively by the old guard Republicans who would like to see the country go back to the policies of the Coolidge-Hoover era. Nevertheless, it is an argument that becomes increasingly sound as the months go by.

Roosevelt could afford to ignore the demands for definiteness of national policy during the early days of his administration and could afford to pursue a course of outright opportunism. When his astute lieutenant, Farley, replied to arguments for a definite policy by saying,"if you 'ave a better 'ole 'op to it," the country understood and laughed with him. But the nation cannot go on forever with policies that can be remade to meet tomorrow's contingencies.

The Roosevelt administration should not go on until next election pursuing such policies, and that is the thing probably that is worrying Mr. Roosevelt, who is reported recently to have lost some of his happy smile. The public is not interested greatly in the character of administration policy from a purely academic viewpoint but it is interested in the constantly rising public debt. There is an impressive portion of the public that still considers a debt as a thing to be paid out of hard earnings, despite the sizeable following of the congressmen who seem to think that obligations could and should be met by putting the printing presses in operation.

Mr. Roosevelt is going to have to nail down the planks in his platform before long or he is going to have difficulty standing on it. He probably will do so, as soon as congress adjourns.—Dallas News.

All holding company legislation must be strongly intrenched with provisions to safeguard the billions of life savings of the common people, who have invested their savings in the utility companies, whose securities are today declared by the laws of New York State to be legal investments for savings banks and life insurance companies.—Adirondack Herald.

JACK HAYES IS HURT

During the past week Jack was in only one game, in which he failed to hit in four trips up. This made his record for the season read as follows, in batting: At bat, 106; hits, 34 (27 singles, 5 doubles, 2 home runs); average, .321.

In that one game he handled 4 put-outs and 2 assists without error. This brings his season fielding record up to read as follows: Put-outs, 60; assists, 80; errors, 6; total chances, 146; average, .959; double plays, 14.

News has reached us that the reason he is not in the line-up is because of a split thumb, caused by a batted ball. He is expected to be back in the game within a few days.

F. D. R. IS RIGHT

I don't want any of my Democrat friends to drop dead when they read the above caption, but I really believe the president is right again. This is in regard to the bonus payment.

Don't misunderstand. I do not mean that I think he should not pay the bonus. I am not well enough acquainted with the facts in the bonus controversy to pass judgment on that question. In fact, if he has so much money to shower over the country to keep up ne'er-do-wells, CCC camps, and other projects of this kind, I think he might very well pay the bonus and be done with it. The administration has made it quite clear, from time to time, that their main object was to keep money going the rounds to bring prosperity back again, and I can think of no better way than to pay the bonus. I don't believe any of the money would be hoarded, at any rate. The fellows need it too bad.

However, the manner in which the recently introduced Patman bonus bill provided for payment is where the rub comes. This bill provides that the bonus be paid with two billion dollars of NEW MONEY. This money would not be backed by bonds, gold or any other solid backing, as are the notes in circulation today. It would be "printing press money," which, because of its lack of backing, would be lowered in value, taking our present supply of paper money down with it. Let's use an example:

The last time the United States pulled a trick like this was at the beginning of the Civil War. The national government needed $150,000,000. They had no gold against which to issue the money, and the credit of the nation was none too good with the banks. So, the money supply was inflated to the extent of $150,000,000. Before the treasury finished retiring those "printing press notes" the cost had risen to the huge sum of $600,000,000, which was "some money" in those days.

The Patman bill would inflate to the tune of two billion while our national money supply is about five billion, which would put about seven billion dollars out in paper money. The immediate reaction to this would be to make the seven billion dollars worth just what five billion is worth now. So, every one of these seven billion dollars would be worth only five-sevenths what a dollar is worth now. That would not be so bad, as there would be the other two billion to take up the slack with, if the lowering money price would stop at that point. But inflation has been tried time and again in several countries in ages past, and in every instance the percentage of drop in value of the money unit has been greater than the percentage of inflation. If that should happen, then we would all suffer, the veterans along with everyone else.

If the unit value should drop this time in the same ratio as it did the last time Uncle Sam tried it, the treasury would eventually pay eight billion dollars to retire those notes for two billion dollars with which to pay the bonus.

The president knows this, and fears what might happen if inflation should once get under way. Nobody can tell where it might stop, if ever. So he has told the congress to either issue bonds with which to pay the bonus, or leave off paying the bonus until 1945.

It is all too true that Mr. Roosevelt left the impression in the 1932 campaign that he would see the bonus paid. I have never read where he stated that he WOULD pay it, but it was generally understood, even in high circles, that he was making that promise.

I cannot blame the veterans for asking for the bonus inasmuch as almost everyone else is getting a slice of federal money. But if it is to be paid, I believe the president is right in demanding that it be paid with good, honest American dollars, rather than synthetic money. If it can be paid out of the recent appropriation of almost five billion dollars, that will be fine. But let's be honest with ourselves, whatever the cost. It will be the best for all in the long run.

ONE GOOD MOVE

I want to congratulate the Democrats for one move they have made. That is the recent establishment of the National Rural Electrification Authority. If the plans are carried out as they have been drawn, it will prove to be one of the best things they have done.

Full details of plans are not available yet, but on the whole, it will work something like this. For example we will take some community in Chilton county. People of that community make application to the state division of the REA for a line, furnishing a county map, with the location of the closest present line marked, as well as marking the proposed new line. The authority sends a representative to look over the job and make an estimate of the cost. This done, he can tell the would-be patrons of the line just what the service will cost them. If they want it then, the line will be built by the REA and power furnished by existing facilities, which in this case would be Alabama Power Company. If they feel that they can't pay the charge, then the deal is off, and no harm done.

The money for this work will come out of the recent $4,800,000,000 relief sum. The treasury will be reimbursed its expenditure over a period of years, at which time the lines will become public service units just like the public roads. Relief roll labor will be used to build them.

As soon as the Alabama division of the REA was opened, the office was literally swamped with applications. This office has given out word that the projects will be investigated and built in the order in which applications are received. The outlook at present is that investigation and actual construction will begin within a few weeks.

So, if this good work goes on, John Farmer will have the same benefits as his city brother ere long. And he deserves them, too.

SORE THUMBS

The Democratic party has a bunch of sore thumbs sticking out all around it. Some of them don't amount to much, and the party heads are not worrying much over them. But some are recognized as leaders of their faith and these party heads would like to have their backing, if it could be arranged conveniently.

One such is Senator Tydings, of Maryland. Mr Tydings is recognized as a Democrat of the old school—a man of stability, and sharp as they come. His severe criticism of his party's policies has aroused no little comment, and from time to time he is asked why he takes these pokes at his colleagues. So far he has never failed to answer their queries fully and reasonably.

Not long ago, just after he had denounced some move his party heads had made, and had stated that there was no Democratic party any longer, except in name, he was asked to explain the charge. He did it in a very few words. Said he: "I am a Democrat without a party," meaning that his party hod deserted its fundamental principles, but that he still clings to them and believes in them.

At another time, while speaking on the floor of the Senate chamber, he said: "I hear that the Republican party is considering rebuilding, and is casting about for planks for a new platform. I would suggest that they use the Democratic platform of 1932—it was good enough to be elected on, and the Lord knows we have never used it any. It could be dusted off and used again. And maybe they could put it into practice. I think it would be a good one to run the country by."

Still another time, in a speech, he said: "Somehow or other we Democrats always manage to make a colossal mess of things when we get to the trough. I have been asked why this is, and I think I know. We don't get to try our hand very often, and when we do the voters only allow us four years at a time. Just about the time we think we have everything on the hum, along comes an election and we're out. By the next time we get in we have forgotten all we had learned, and have to start all over again. It takes constant practice to make perfect, you know."

HOW RICH IS CHILTON COUNTY?

For the past several years, during political campaigns, I have heard the politicians rave about what a rich and prosperous region Chilton County is. A few days ago a friend gave me a little squib whuch tells just how rich Chilton is. Here goes:

"Chilton is an exceptionally rich little county. So rich, in fact, that every blade of grass has a greenback, every bird has a bill, the chimneys have their drafts, and the maids wash our front doors with gold dust. Every horse has a check, and every ditch has two banks. Even our streets are sometimes flushed, and the lawns get a rake-off. Every cloud has a silver lining, and every flower in the county has a scent. When you put a five-dollar bill in your pocket you double it, and when you take is out again, you find it in creases."

There may be other ways in which our fair county may show its possible wealth, but that is enough, don't you think?—Man in the Moon.

CHANCE FOR A THIRD PARTY

The United States is now at the political cross roads and never, in modern history, has the situation for an independent political movement been riper than it is today, on account of economic conditions, writes Frank P. Litschert in the current issue of the National Republic under the caption "On the Political Horizon."

Liberal or leftish leaders, as they are now beginning to be called, are never satisfied by small political concessions but are constantly demanding more, so that the tendency to the left becomes more rapid, once it has really set in, according to the writer, who continues:

"Hence the political newspaper talk we hear now about a third 'radical' party in 1936. There are of course a great many small unadvertised independent political movements in the United States, so many of them in fact that a few optimistic observers have thought they were harmless because they were so divergent. But the danger here is that these independent groups and blocs, all of which are traveling Moscow-wards, whether they know it or not, and most of them do, will unite under the strong and aggressive leader. Please remember that even the socialists joined with the third party movement in '24. But the danger is much greater now because conditions are more propitious for radicalism and the opportunities for doing mischief are much greater. And it is to be remembered that efforts have been under way for some time to unite various radical groups and these efforts may be much more rapid and successful should the right sort of 'popular' leader appear, one who can promise riches for everybody without regard to the individual effort one may put forth, or one who will promise everything for the voter and forget what he promises afterwards.

"A brief glance over the list of independent subversive organizations in the country which are now active and are possible factors in the forming of the new radical political organization, will surprise the reader who has not kept up with the procession. There has been added interest in the new independent movement of late however because of the reawakened activity of the so-called 'liberals,' inside Congress and out. Among the elements which have received publicity in the newspapers during the past few months and are therefore comparatively well known by the average student of political affairs are: first, perhaps, the active leadership of Senator Huey Long of Louisiana with his share-the-wealth movement, who seems to have eyes on the command of, first the Democratic party, and in failure there of a third party movement in 1936; the Upton Sinclair movement in California, Washington and Oregon, which nearly caused a political upset in 1934; the so-called 'progressive' movement of the young LaFollettes in Wisconsin and adjoining states, many of the leaders of which desire a new national political movement in 1936; the Townsend Old Age Pension movement which comes to us out of California but has spread into many states and has some political possibilities; the Non-Partisan movement in the Northwest, and the Governor Olson pro-communist Farm-Labor movement in Minnesota. These are only a few of the major independent political forces which are receiving notice from the newspaper writers at this time. In addition, it may be stated, there are many so-called liberal leaders of both of the old parties who seem to be making eyes at the liberals and who might be induced to join a third party movement if its principles suited them and they saw reasonable chances of success in 1936.

This, however, is not all the story. There are many other radical movements in the United States, widely diffused over the country. The memberships are comparatively small in number, individually, but in total many, and the leaders are fanatical in their varied radical programs, and their industry makes up for their lack of numbers."

During the first 124 years of this government it cost the nited States to run the government $24,521,845,000, including four wars. The amount authorized by Congress during the past two years totals $24,206,533,000.—H. L. Wait, Centralia, Kansas Journal.

A LOT OF MONEY

The sum of $4,800,000,00 appropriated recently by Congress to be expended for government proects to create employment and end the depression is so big it cannot be forgotten. It must be a factor in every prophesy as to whether we will be prosperous or despondent two years hence, and it must be considered in all prophecies of what may happen politically in the next few years. All good Americans hope that the big appropriation will revive prosperity. If it doesn't, then it will be just too bad for all of us.

Just how big this appropriation actually is staggers the imagination. For instance, the National Industrial Conference Board in a comparison made recently declared that the sum represents: first, about 17 per cent of all the wages and salaries earned in the United States; second, about 68 per cent of the value of all the products of all our 6,000,000 farms; third, about twice as much as all dividends paid; and fourth, about 94 per cent of all interest paid.

Last but not least, the Board estimates that the big sum would buy 7,360,000 automobiles at present f.o.b. factory prices, and it would take the industry two years and eight months to produce that many at the rate of the production held in 1934.

Well, at any rate, it is a lot of money. Of the part which goes out to a lot of the workers, we are willing to bet that the automobile industry will get its share, and the filling stations, too.

Yes, it is a lot of money for Congress to appropriate and for the administration to spend. Generosity on the part of Congress, you say—wait a minute! It isn't Congress's money or anybody's money yet. It is going to be borrowed. And when it is paid back Congress will not pay it, and neither will the administration. The people will foot the bill. We are trying to surfeit ourselves with our own generosity, so to speak. Perhaps it would be more accurate to say that Congress is taking the money from one of our pockets and putting it in another—or at least taking it out of one of our pockets and putting it some place.

PERHAPS LINCOLN WAS WRONG

In ancient Rome when a hero died the senate, or the government, made a demi-god of him and the people worshipped the new deity. The Russians have done this with Nicoli Lenin, and the Italians and Germans may follow their example with Mussolini and Hitler some day.

In Germany the substitution of a religion of the state for Christianity has been proposed if not ordered.

In Russia, Germany, Italy, the state is the new god, and the state is embodied in Stalin, Hitler, Mussolini. It may be best for those countries, we are not arguing that, it may be that democracy is doomed to failure in them, that they cannot have government by the people. In them, however better fed, clothed and housed the people may be, the rights, the individual liberties of men have gone.

It may be that in the United States the rights of the people should be blotted out and the state, that is the United States, the federal government, should be clothed with the powers of deity as far as possible, with the surrender of the people of their individual liberties included in the process. We shall not argue that the American people are fit to rule; that, they will have to determine tremselves.

All that we say is that in the United States the people are traveling in the direction of Russia, Germany, Italy, and they are traveling fast. When they deliver into the hand of one man, benevolent man that he may be, that he is, for disposal in one year four thousand eight hundred and eighty million dollars, ther are in a stride terrific in its velocity.

Perhaps they are right to do this. Perhaps Russia was right to do this. Perhaps Italy, Germany are wise and right. We point only to the swift surrender of individual liberties.

The individual liberties are inseparable from the rights of the individual citizen and the sometime "sovereign" and several forty-eight states.

It may be that even the canonized Lincoln was wrong, that liberty shall perish from the earth and that it should.

There is no such thing as individual liberty without individual risk. — Charleston News and Courier.

ON CRITICISM

"Feel free to criticize," was one of the statements of the Chief Executive in his radio talk not long ago. Evidently some people have been following this custom. The U. S. Chamber of Commerce at its meeting in Washington seems to have felt free to criticize, if we are to accept newspaper reports, and yet so far as can be learned there was no answering word of comfort from the White House. In his address to AAA southern farm delegates who came to Washington the middle of May the President is reported to have stated that high and mighty men had sought to mislead the country by lying about the AAA farm program. Criticism of the farm program evidently doesn't always go so good. It may be that some of these high and mighty men have prevaricated about the government's farm program. We are not sure that we are able to understand just what the program is and are therefore not qualified to pass on all statements about it. But nobody who drove through the Middle West in the hot summer of 1933 and smelled the burning pig meat will be hard to disabuse mentally of some of the AAA criticism anyhow.

Bill Allen White says the ideal newspaper is one "which tells the truth." Nerts, Bill. A newspaper that would tell the truth would be boycotted and run out of town so fast it would make a streamlined express look like a lunch stand.—Philadelphia Dispatch.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Without any change in revenue laws, the State Tax Commission has increased collections in a period of little more than four months by more than a million dollars over the corresponding period in 1934. For the period January 19, through May 25, 1935, total tax collections were $6,472,009.65, compared with $5,470,566,31, for the same period in 1934; or a net increase of $1,001,443.34.

This tremendous increase in the state's revenue, accomplished without raising the rate of taxation on a single item, is regarded as a striking tribute to the efficiency of the tax machinery of the Graves regime. Results have been achieved by increasing the field force of the state tax commission, and by plugging up every possible loop-hole of tax evasion. In his campaign speeches Governor Graves declared that it was possible to greatly increase the state's income under the existing revenue laws, through more efficient enforcement. The figures compiled as of May 25th furnish eloquent evidence that this has been done.

The biggest items of increase were: Corporation Franchise Tax, which showed a gain of $245,711.90; gasoline tax, $341,674.48; tobacco tax, $133,718, and income tax $195,501.01. Perhaps the most significant feature of the report is the increase in tobacco tax penalties, which jumped from $1,733.69 for the 1934 period to $25,445.64, showing how the state is breaking up cigarette bootlegging and tax dodging. Income tax collections showed the biggest per cent of increase of any major item of taxation, the figure for the four months period in 1934 being $241,611.99 and in 1935, $437,113.00, or nearly double.

REVIVAL MEETING TO BE HELD AT ROBINSON SPRINGS

I wish to announce that we, the people of Robinson Springs, are going to have a revival meeting starting Saturday before the third Sunday in July.

Our Sunday school is progressing fine and we invite each and everyone to come and be with us.

PLEASANT HILL

We are still going adong nicely with our Sunday shool and B. Y. P. U. We had a very good attndance last Sunday, however there were a few of our regulars absent, and we missed them so much. We are hoping to have a large rowd out next Sunday. Don't depend on your neighbor telling you about Sunday school, but come and see for yourself. Several new names were put on our roll book last Sunday. We hope that more will come out and take part in our church work.

Although the weather was somewhat chilly Saturday night, we had a splendid crowd out for our cream supper. We wish to thank each one who helped us to make it a grand success, and we are indeed glad to say that we went over the top with our second payment on our piano. We are trusting in the Lord to be successful with the rest of it. Don't forget our Sunday school every Sunday. Visitors are always welcome.

Bobby Powers, student at the military institute at Gulfport, Miss., underwent a serious operation for appendicitis about a week ago. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Powers, of Lay Dam have been with him for several days. He is reported better at this writing, and will be able to come home in a few days.

Mrs. S. E. Bruce is reported to be in a critical condition. She has been at South Highlands Infirmary in Birmingham for several days, and is said to be very ill.

Fant Says Plant Soy Bean Patch

There is still time to make arrangements for more feed. The stubble land could be planted in yellow corn for feeding chickens and livestock. By planting later than the white corn there will be little danger of mixing. You may plant soybeans or cowpeas for hay, and sorghum for hay or silage. More farmers could use silage to advantage.

Derris, a new kind of insect poison is giving good satisfaction in the county. This poison is controlling the bean beetle, Southern corn root worm that attacks watermelon plants, and in fact, all insects with chewing mouth parts. It also helps to control plant lice and other insects with sucking mouth parts.

Let's plant a small patch of soybeans for seed purposes. Seed may be produced, if you will take the trouble and save considerable outlay of money in the spring. One-half acre will usually produce all the seed one farmer will need.

Peanuts is another good feed and food crop too often neglected. On most of our thin land more feed can be produced with peanuts than any other crop.

Weeds grow fast in the home garden in June. Keep them down. Too often we get in the midst of working our field crops and forget our home garden. Keep on the job constantly killing insects.

Plant the following: beans (bush, pole), butter beans (bunch and pole), squash, cucumber, pepper, radish, turnips, in fact make another planting of all vegetables planted earlier.

Now is the time to do your planting for next winter's feeds. A little planning and planting now may keep some cow or mule from getting hungry before another crop is made, or at least, save you from having to buy feed. My observation has been that if a farmer buys feed to produce a crop, it takes all his cotton to pay the feed and fertilizer bills in the fall.

Let's make plans to grow all the feed we need and a little to sell. Some tenants will not make feed, but with the proper effort on the part of the landlord the farm will produce enough feed so that the farm as a whole will be self sustained.—J. W. Fant.

Miss Agnes Gerald of Thorsby is in Washington, D. C., where she has accepted a position in the Civil Service department of the government. She was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Gerald here for a few days before she left.

CLANTON 3—WETUMPKA 2

Clanton took another game from Wetumpka Saturday when Watkins and Weekly tied up in another pitchers battle. Wetumpka hit Watkins rather freely through the contest, but with his mates giving him good support in all but the sixth inning, he bore down to pull out of hole after hole, when men were on the bases.

In the 2nd, after Wadsworth had singled cleanly, the Clanton infield came through with a sparkling double killing, as Littleton took Skipper's attempted sacrafice which took the form of a short pop, and shot the ball to Littlejohn to double Wadsworth off first. The value of this play was apparent, as Jackson followed with a triple. Watkins struck out Weeks to quell the uprising.

Again in the 5th, with one away, Musick singled, but Baker came far over toward second to take Atkinson's labeled hit, force Musick, and threw to Littlejohn for another scintillating double play.

Watkins took the game in hand himself in the 9th, when the visitors opened with Jackson's double, Jackson taking third on Littleton's error. Weeks attempted to sacrifice, and missed the play. Tiffin and Littleton chased Jackson down between third and home, Weeks taking second in the meantime. Here Watkins bore down and struck out Pylant and Deason to end the fray.

In all Watkins struck out 13 batters, and gave up no bases on balls. Weekly allowed only 4 hits, but gave up two bases on balls, hit one batter, and his mates bobbled 5 times behind him, at very inopportune times. Weekly struck out six.

Church services were well attended here Sunday. We had two wonderful sermons delivered by our pastor, Rev. Maurice Hodgens.

It seems that the sick ones around here are not improving as we would have them to, but nevertheless not our will but God's be done.

Mr. Carl Dawson and family of Jemison spent last week among relatives and fiends in this community. Carl is doing some work for Childress Brothers.

Mrs. Dovie Dawson spent last week with her sisters, Misses Dulcie, Delia and Effie Champion.

Mrs. Mary Skinner, sister of Mrs. Elzie Carol, was burried here last Thursday. She died in the Baptist hospital in Selma. Brislin Bos. were in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Marcus and Mrs. Driscilla Wright spent last week end with relatives here. Mrs. Wright is spending a while with her son, Mr. J. A. Wright.

Mr. and Mrs Bill Davenpot were guests of his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Davenport Sunday

Mr. and Mrs T. P. Fanklin and Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Fanklin were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Spivey Sunday.

Mrs. Sewell spent last week with her home folks, Mr. and Mrs. Major Foshee and family.

Miss Willie C. Clements visited her cousin, Miss Laura Foshee Sunday.

Mrs. W. E. Miskelley's brother, Mr. Sidney Bellenger of Cleveland, Ala., is spending a while with her.

Mrs. Bettie Merchant has returned home from Ensley and Mrs. Martha Wilson is spending a while with her.

Mr. and Mrs Douglas Cox of Birmingham visited his aunt, Mrs. T. P. Franklin, Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Carl Dawson spent a few days with her sister, Mrs. Tom Childress, last week. She also visited Misses Champion and Mr. and Mrs Emmett Miskelley.

Mr. Carl Dawson spent Sunday night with his aunts, the Misses Champion.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davenport and children, Edith and James Frank, were guests of her sisters, the Champions Sunday.

We will work in the cemetery here next Friday a.m. Everybody that is interested come if you can.

Mr. Grover Price and sisters, and Miss Willie Littlejohn were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Miskelley Sunday afternoon.—Reporter.

All who are interested in the cemetery at this place please meet here early next Friday morning, May 31, for the purpose of cleaning up the cemetery. Please bring your tools.

The annual all day singing will be held at Pleasant Grove, four miles west of Jemison, on the second Sunday in June.

We have the promise of several good singers and some good quartets. Every one is cordially invited to attend.—W. E. Miskelley.

ADMISSION PRICE REDUCED

The admission price for baseball games for the remainder of this season has been reduced. The new schedule of prices is 15c for adults, and 10c for children (under 12 years of age).

Season tickets have been prepared, and are available to any who might want them. Anyone interested will see the manager, Marvin Marcus.

CLANTON 5 — COLUMBIANA 4

After losing two straight games to Columbiana, the locals went to the Shelby County capital Thursday afternoon and won, 5 to 4, in the first real good game the Clanton club has played this season.

Robinson and Faulkner tied up in an old time pitchers battle, and both were very stingy with their hits. Columbiana could gather only 5 safeties off Robinson's left-handed slants, while Clanton got to Faulkner for 8, including a home run.

For 5 innings it was a scoreless battle. In the 6th each team scored once. Littleton walked to start this frame and went to second on Baker's out. After Simm's went out Littlejohn singled and Littleton scored.

In their first half of this frame, Columbiana tied the count without the aid of a hit. Faulkner walked to start, and Bird put him on second with a sacrifice. West was cut, Littleton to Littlejohn, as Faulkner took third. Martin and Taylor were purposely passed, filling the bases. On the double steal, Faulkner was caught between third and home, but Littlejohn dropped Littleton's throw, and Faulkner scored.

In the 8th, Clanton scored 4 runs. Simms flied out. Littlejohn singled, but Tiffin forced him at second, Tiffin going safe at first. Blood singled, and Armstrong walked, filling the bags. At this point Faulkner uncorked a wild pitch, and Tiffin scored. Then Easterling lifted a speed ball over the left field wall for a home run, driving in Blood and Armstrong ahead of him.

In the 9th Martin started the frame by walking. Taylor was out, Baker to Littlejohn, Martin going to second. Minor was hit by a pitched ball. Crumpton, batting for Lyons, doubled, scoring Minor and Martin, and took third on the throw to the plate. Horn signed and Crumpton scored. Smith flied to Blood, and Faulkner grounded out to Littlejohn to end the game.

CLANTON 2—COLUMBIANA 7

Last Wednesday Clanton lost to the Columbiana club on the local field by the score of 7 to 2. Although Culver gave up 12 hits, the 8 errors committed by the Clanton club really lost the game.

Included in Columbiana's 12 hits were a home run and a double by Taylor, a triple by Minor, and two doubles by O. Martin.

Of Clanton's 7 blows, 2 were extra base affairs, doubles by Littleton, Blood and Culver.

CLANTON, ALABAMA

POOR O

ANTI-RABIES TREATMENTS HAVE INCREASED SINCE 1929

Montgomery, Ala., May 27—Pointing to an increase of more than 400 per cent in the number of anti-rabies treatments distributed since 1929, Dr. J. N. Baker, state health officer, declared that "the incidence of rabies is definitely on the increase in Alabama and at such a rate as to demand serious consideration at the hands of the legislature."

Files of the state laboratories showed that 1,525 treatments were distributed in 1929, compared with 5,514 during 1934, with present trends in the prevalence of the disease indicating an even greater increase this year. It was estimated that if the treatments distributed in 1934 had been purchased on the open market instead of having been manufactured by the state, the service would have cost $43,084.

"For the fiscal year 1933-34 after a special appropriation had been made by the legislature to care for this particular service, the amount actually spent was $20,000," Dr. Baker said. "This was due to the uncertainty of the amount that would be made available, thus causing a retrenchment in personnel and materials."

"In 1932 the number of heads examined increased by 400 over the previous year and treatments more than doubled. In 1934 the heads increased by 600 and treatments distributed amounted to 3,000 more than the preceding year. From present indications there will be more treatments given this year than last."

The increase for the state as a whole is indicated, the health officer said, in spite of the fact that in Birmingham, due to an anti-rabies ordinance which went into effect January 1 of this year, there has been a decrease of 80 per cent in total heads examined and 70 per cent in treatments issued.

"When the deaths from human rabies by years are compared with the total treatmentse distributed it will be seen that the mortality rate is exceedingly low among those exposed," Dr. Baker explained. "However, rabies is a disease for which, when once developed, there is absolutely no cure, the mortality being 100 per cent. For this reason the only protection for any human being when bitten or exposed to a mad dog is the administration of the vaccine. Undoubtedly some vaccine is given unnecessarily, but the horrible character of the disease when it appears and the certainty that death will ensue makes such a procedure imperative in most cases."

ALL DAY SINGING AT CORINTH

There will be an all day singing at Corinth, next Sunday week, June 9th.

All singers and lovers of music are cordially invited. Bring your new songbooks and come prepared to spend the day.

Mary Edith Jones spent the week end with relatives in Montgomery, and was accompanied home by her sister, Margaret Jones, who is a nurse in Hubbard Hospital.

THIRTY-SIXTH ANNUAL MAY SINGING AT PROVIDENCE

The fourth Sunday in May, 1900, the first annual May singing was held at New Salem down near the river. The thirty-sixth annual session of the same singing was held at Providence last Sunday. The last one of these singings to be held at Salem was on the fourth Sunday in May, 1921, and by the time for the event in 1922, the church building had been dismantled making way for the back-water from Mitchell Dam to be impounded a few months later.

Up until the singing was moved from Salem the late T. L. Robinson of Verbena was chairman. Since then Riley Robinson has acted in that capacity, and served as such last Sunday. In passing it might be appropriate to say that Riley Robinson is likely the oldest active singer in Chilton County. He was singing and teaching singing schools 60 years ago, and has contributed as much or more toward the advancement of sacred song as any living person in Chilton County. A close second to him would likely be Uncle Bob Grant of near Coopers, who was also present at the singing last Sunday.

Services were called to order at 10 o'clock by the chairman, who sung one song. After prayer by A. H. Glasscock, the chairman appointed a committee to arrange for the day, consisting of R. M. Robinson, G. C. Powell and A. H. Glasscock.

Before noon the following directors were put on the floor: J. W. Cleckler, S. V. Miller, A. H. Glasscock, A. M. Jones, G. C. Powell, C. H. Robinson, Audie Brown, O. L. Devaughn, O. C. Bennett, A. O. Boswell A. H. Jones. An intermission of one and one-half hours was given for dinner.

Directors after dinner were: J. R. Robinson, T. E. Wyatt, Ralph Grant, E. L. Glasscock, Jesse Jones, Emmett Wilson, Lee Grant, Orbie Devaughn, Chester Wyatt, J. E. Miner, M. L. Mims, J. W. Devaughn, L. B. Williams and Rev. M. Lockhart.

During the afternoon two quartetts were sung, one arranged by Ralph Grant and the other arranged by O. L. Devaughn. Little Miss Inez Wyatt sung a solo entitled "Keep on the Firing Line."

Pianists for the day were: C. H. Robinson, Ralph Grant, Miss Delene Robinson and Mrs. J. W. Cagle.

The closing song was sung by Rev. M. Lockhart, who pronounced the benediction, which brought to a close the 36th annual May singing. The 37th will be held on the fourth Sunday in May 1936.—R. Robinson, chairman; J. W. Cleckler, Secretary.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express to our friends, through your paper, our appreciation of the kindness shown us during the recent illness of my wife, Mrs. V. Wallace Foshee. We could not personate each individual for the kindness shown her, but we do want to thank each and everyone. We feel grateful to the hospital staff for the kindness shown her while there.

May God bless each and every one of you.—Mr. and Mrs. V. Wallace Foshee.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

17-YEAR LOCUST APPEARS

Auburn, Ala.—The song of the 17-year locust will drone through wooded areas in some parts of the south this summer; however, it is believed that very few, if any will appear in Alabama.

J. A. Hyslop of the United States Department of Agriculture reports Brood IX of the insect will this year turn up in its usual range—Southern West Virginia, Western Virginia, and extreme Northwestern North Carolina. It is also expected, in small numbers, in the rest of West Virginia, eastward into northern Virginia and Maryland.

Grubs which have been living under the ground since 1918 will crawl up into trees this year to shed their skins and emerge as winged insects. The insects do very little damage. They make their presence known by an ear-splitting and never-ceasing uproar.

SPRING POTATOES MAY BE PLANTED IN FALL

Auburn, Ala.—By properly storing their spring crop of Irish potatoes in a cool, moist place, Alabama farmers can use them in planting their fall crop, says L. M. Ware, head of the horticulture and forestry department here.

If the larger part of the spring crop is stored under fairly cool, dry conditions they will keep satisfactorily for eating purposes until November or December," he advses.

A discussion of planting fall potatoes is given in Alabama Leaflet No. 11, copy of which may be obtained from the county agent, J. W. Fant, or by writing the Alabama Experiment station at Auburn.

HAYNES NEWS

Sunday was regular preaching day at Big Springs church. Rev. G. G. Williams delivered two wonderful sermons to those present.

Mr. L. H. Wright of Sylacauga and Miss Lily Pearl Wright of Clanton were the Sunday guests of their sister, Mrs. H. T. Lee.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Wright and Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Lee were the dinner guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Wright.

Mr. Harvey Cox and Mr. Elmer Glenn were visiting in this community Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnie Green and family made a trip to near Clanton Sunday afternoon.

Miss Margaret Hill has returned home after a two weeks visit with her aunt, Mrs. J. M. Gaines.

Mr. Reedie Taylor of Lafayette was a visitor in Clanton a few days this week.

DERRIS HARMLESS TO PLANTS AND PERSONS

Auburn, Ala.—Without injury to the plants and without danger of poisoning the persons eating the vegetables Alabama farmers can control chewing insects, including bean and potato beetles and cabbage worms, by using a mixture of one pound Derris and 7 pounds of sulphur.

Prof. J. M. Robinson, head of the entomology department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, emphasizes also that the sulphur in the mixture repels the sucking insects and controls the red spider.

RENTAL CHECKS BEING SENT

Auburn, Ala.—Cotton rental checks amounting to over $4,000,000 will be paid Alabama farmers within the next few weeks.

This is announced by Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the state extension service, who reports that farmers in a few Alabama counties have already received their cotton checks for reducing their cotton acreage.

Farmers who signed reduction contracts in 1934 will be the first to receive checks and then the ones who signed new contracts this year will receive their checks.

The rental payment is made in two nstallments, one of whch is being made now, and the other to be made in the fall after compliance with the contracts has been approved. A total of over $10,000,000 will be paid to formers of this state in the two installments.

Game and Fish News

Montgomery, Ala., May 27.—Fishing tackle manufacturers, sporting goods companies, publishing houses and others have cooperated this year to make the prize list for Alabama's seventh deep sea fishing rodeo one of the most attractive the rodeo has offered. The rodeo will be held July 22, 23, and 24.

In addition to the regular prize list, which consists of handsome trophies, expensive rods and reels, and other fishing tackle items, 50 Mobile merchants are contributing to a huge "grab bag" from which prizes will be drawn at a fish fry on the night of the annual liar's contestt. The two lists together are expected to approximate $1,000 in value.

The regular prizes and trophies will be awarded at the close of the rodeo for the following fish caught during the contest: Largest tarpon, first tarpon, largest king mackerel, largest red fish or channel bass, largest cavalla, largest ling, largest black fish, largest dolphin, largest Spanish mackerel, largest bonita, largest blue fish, largest speckled trout and the largest flounder.

Not talking to you, eh? They won't get you on that flying trapeze? That's what you think! Doctor, Lawyer, Merchant, Chief—if life isn't a flying trapeze for most of us, what is it? (Editor's note: Is this guy trying to moralize?) Nope, just suggesting that when you want to smooth out little perplexing moments—when energy's low, nerve tension high—try CHERO, a grand and better Cola drink. Here's pick-up . . . swift . . . sure . . . safe. Because CHERO has nothing in it to artificially stimulate. Just pure, wholesome ingredients that wouldn't know a medical book if they saw it in the street. Drink as many bottles of CHERO as you please—ten a day—drink it any time day or night. For children? Well, a lot of mighty good authorities say the things it contains are just about tops for growing boys and girls.

GIFTS OF LAND FOR PARKS

Montgomery.—Gifts of land of suitable character are desired for state park purposes, states Colonel Page S. Bunker, state forester. In future allocation of CCC camps for work on state park areas, Alabama may stand to close several camps unless the state can submit for approval of the Washington officials locations appropriate for development as state parks. With fourteen projects already under way, the selection of new areas will be a greater problem, since proper distribution of the parks throughout the state as a whole is a major consideration.

The general localities under consideration for future developments include all counties except those comprised within the national forests and those which already have state parks located within twenty miles of their boundaries. However, since the majority of the present projects lie in the east and south portions of Alabama, the north and west localities probably must be given prior consideration for allocation of park camps.

The state is not in a position to buy land for park purposes and is therefore dependent upon donations of suitable areas, and its is urged that persons interested in receiving the benefits of recreational developments of this character confer together with view to making available to the Commission of Forestry tracts of not less than 500 acres having a definite scenic and recreational value, with varied topography and a stream of water flowing through the area. The most essential element of all, naturally, is that tree growth extend over practically the entire tract. Swamp or marsh lands are not acceptable.

All park areas must be accessible from some public road, and in cases where such roads do not already exist it is necessary that the county authorities give assurance that a high type of road will be constructed at an early date to connect the area with other roads and highways in the community.

Deeds for state parks must be without reservation except for a stipulation that the land be held and maintained for park or forest purposes. Titles must be clear. Communications regarding proposed gifts of land should be addressed to the state forester, Montgomery, Alabama.

June — Nature Month

June has been called the topmost month of the year. How appealing and beautiful is that verse of Lowell in the "Vision of Sir Launfal."

"And what is so rare as a day in June?
Then, if ever come perfect days;
Then heaven tries earth if it be in tune
And over it softly her warm ear lays."

May this month of beauty bring us closer to God as we see him revealed in Nature. What are some of the messages brought to us by nature?

Sunday, June 2—

9:45—Church school. Start the day right by coming to church.

11—Sermon: "The significance of the Season."

5—Music night. Special music program by out of town artists.

Sunday, June 9—

9:45—Church school. There are classes for all.

11—Sermon: "The Message of the Flowers."

Sunday, June 16—

9:45—Church school. Don't send the children. Come. Bring them.

11—Father's Day program.

Sunday, June 23—

9:45—Church school. Be in your class on time.

11—Sermon: "The Message of the Garden."

5—Vesper Service. Choir composed of Young Peoples Department. Sermon: "The Message of the Mountains."

Sunday, June 30—

9:45—Church school. Close the month with a perfect record.

11—Laymen's Day program. Laymen of the church will have charge.

5—Vesper Service. Choir composed of Men's Bible Class. Sermon: "The Whole Day Through."

Note.—Send your children to the Vacation Church School June 10 to 21. For all children from four to twelve. Daily from 8:30 to 11:30. No charge.

SUMMER SCHOOL BEGINS NEXT MONDAY AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

A six-week summer school will begin at the Chilton County High School next Monday morning at 8 o'clock.

Everybody interested is urged to be present at the opening. Classes will be arranged at that time on the basis of the number in attendance and it will be necessary for all to be present at the start in order to get proper assignments for work.

U. S. DISMISSES NRA CODE CASES

President Is Regarded As Opposed To Temporary Plans To Revive The NRA

Washington, June 1.—Apparently throwing off the last vestiges of restraint imposed by NRA's now dead wage-hour and fair trade practice provisions, President Roosevelt today dismissed 411 court cases involving violations of Blue Eagle rules.

This wholesale action, coupled with an announcement that other legal actions contemplated would not be initiated, followed close after the dropping of hints in high quarters that the President would propose no stop-gap NRA legislation. And if any permanent plan was ready for submission, congressional leaders, at least, lacked any inkling of it.

Roosevelt Leaves Washington

Mr. Roosevelt cruised on Chesapeake Bay aboard the yacht Sequoia tonight while the capital pondered without answer the course the administration will take. The most uniform speculation of observers was that further sounding of the nation's reaction to the overthrow of NRA wuold precede any definite action.

Labor and other cases that made history were formally thrown out by the White House announcement issued while Mr. Roosevelt sailed. This constituted his approval of a recommendation by Att'y Gen. Cummings.

Involved were nearly two score labor cases, including the Houde "majority rule" action, the Firestone and Goodrich labor election cases, and the weirton Steel and Greif Clothing Company cases involving company unions.

Others, both initiated by and against the government, concerned actions taken by the Alcohol Control and Petroleum Administrations, the National Steel Labor Relations Board, the AAA and Textile Labor Board.

The dismissals generally were interpreted in Washington as not only a final release on business formerly regulated by the NRA, but a conclusion that no hope remained for prosecuting such actions following the Supreme Court's sweeping decision.

June 8 Last Day To Sign Cotton

Farmers Make Application At Office In Hayes Building Here In Clanton

June 8th, 1935, has been set by the State Allotment Board as the last date on which applications for Allotments and Gin Certificates may be signed.

Any farmer who is growing cotton this year may make application in Clanton at the Hayes Building any day this week including Saturday.

Unless a farmer makes application, he will be required to pay tax on all of his crop.

Under an amendment to the Act up to 2 bales of the farms' cotton history, is exempt from taxes, but it will be necessary for every farmer operator to make application.

Owner - operators, cash tenants standing rent tenants, managing share tenants and share tenants or share croppers operating an entire farm should make application.

Tenants working on halves, unless they operate an entire farm, need not make application. The landlord should make the application and list all tenants, giving the number of acres planted in cotton by each this year.

Most of the farmers have signed these applications already, but there are a few in each Beat who have not signed. Please pass this information on to anyone whom you know has not made application for Gin Certificates.

Contract Let For Mullins Building

Two - Story Brick Structure Will Cost About Fifteen Thousand Dollars

Announcement was made Monday morning by Mr. J. Watts Moore that the contract has been let to W. C. Monroe, of Sylacauga, for construction of a new two-story brick business house on the W. I. Mullins corner at the intersection of Second Avenue and Seventh Street. The cost of the new building will be about $15,000.

Mr. Mulling stated that the main portion of the ground floor of the new building will be occupied by A & P Tea Company. A small space in the rear of the building on the ground floor will face the highway. This has not been rented yet. The second floor of the building has not been rented.

Work of construction will begin some time next week, Mr. Moore stated, and will be finished as quickly as possible.

CITY LIMITS EXTENSION GETS FINAL APPROVAL

The bill extending the corporate limits of Clanton has been passed by both houses of the Legislature, without opposotion. The Governor has signed the Bill, which action moves Clanton forward at one stroke of the pen from a town of 1,800 people to a city with a population of more than 3,000.

JONES-MARTIN ANNONCEMENT

The following announcement appeared in The Birmingham News last Sunday:

"Mrs. Clyde Jones, of Clanton, announces the engagement of her daughter, Clyde, to Leroy Martin, of Clanton and Birmingham, the wedding to be an event of June."

The bride-to-be is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Clyde Jones. She is a graduate of Chilton County High school and has completed a stenographic course under Mrs. Alexander here. For some time she has worked as stenographer for the relief office in Clanton.

Mr. Martin is the son of Mr. J. Mell Martin, and holds a position with the Northington Drug Co., in Birmingham.

Both these young people are well known in the county, and The Banner joins with their other many friends in wishing them much happiness and success.

Mrs. Bea Oliver and Miss Frances Gulledge of Verbena were the guests of Miss Bettie Mullins Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. U. Benziger and Carolyn of Atlanta will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Hollis at Mitchell Dam this week-end.

Clanton's Lost Opportunities In Airport Construction Program

(By Dr. V. J. GRAGG)

Our comunity center is a near failure so far. Just why, I will not attempt to say. Mr. Hawkins, the State Engineer of the Alabama Relief Association, in discussing it says, "You Chilton County folks need some turpentine rubbed on you."

He further said that we had enough money given us to finish the field, fence it, and put lights around it. Yet, he said, he was dumbfounded to find it in such condition that he would not dare to attempt to land on the field.

However, I had hoped above all to have a large building that could not only be used as a hangar for transient planes, but would be a county-wide meeting place for our farmers at their annual meetings; a county fair grounds to be used by them in the fall season; and a place for our younger set to have ball games, a golf course, and facilities for such other sports as the public might appreciate. But, the "biggest and best" thing to my mind was a county-wide meeting place where folks from the country and towns all over the county could meet and mingle and feel at home, knowing that the place was their very own; to share equally and alike from the poorest to the richest. I had hoped that there might be a swimming pool for the kiddies and others who liked it. And so far, as a flying field is concerned, I believe we are all beginning to realize that in any community of much size where there is not a landing place for planes it would be like having a railroad without trains stopping for passengers and freight.

In talking about these things, Mr. Hawkins frankly said "we can allocate funds to you, but we can't come up there and build these things for you. We have given you the money, but you won't use it." He stated that under the C. W. A. we were donated $23,472 of which we only used $12,146, letting the other go unused and allowing it to be withdrawn.

He also stated that we had been alloted $10,451 since the C. W. A. was withdrawn, of which he did not know how much had been used, but he further stated that all unused funds would be withdrawn in the next few days.

Now folks, when the tax-gatherers come around it will not do any good to say we did not get these things. They will "kindly and gently" let you help pay for what the other fellows over yonder got. And if you make any protest they will say "you should have gotten your share, it is your hard luck, you must pay just the same."

Are we going to sleep on, or "wake up" and try to get our share?

Sing 2nd Sundays At Court House

Jesse C. Jones Elected Chairman Of Permanent Organization

A group of interested people met in Clanton last Thursday night and arranged to hold an afternoon singing at the courthouse once a month. The second Sunday afternoon was settled upon.

Officers were elected, including a chairman and a couple of committees. Jesse C. Jones was elected chairman.

There have been lots of requests that some arrangement be made for a singing here at least once a month. Of course, there will be conflict with other singings, but that could not be possibly avoided. No society should feel that they are being discriminated against, as some date had to be set, and no matter what date, it would come on somebody's day.

All singers who are not engaged elsewhere are invited to attend this singing each second Sunday afternoon. The first one will be held next Sunday afternoon, beginning at 1:30, or as soon thereafter as possible. As the singers come in, they are urged to get seats at the right place in the class, so that the different parts will all be properly located. Those who do not sing will please occupy seats outside the class. If you do not sing, you may not feel embarassed if you are kindly asked to get up and give your seat to a singer. There will be somebody to look after the placing of the singers in their proper places.

The co-operation of both singers and listeners is urged, simply that the singing may be made as good as possible.

Everybody come along next Sunday afternoon, and let's get started off right from the beginning. Bring all the new books that you have.

Canning Program Begins Friday 7th

Will Operate At Nine Centers In Chilton County For Four Months

The canning program for relief and rural rehabilitation families will begin on Friday, June 7.

The following centers will be operated during the next four months:

Riderville—Monday and Tuesday.

Potts Place—Wednesday and Thursday.

Jemison—Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mars Hill—Thursday and Friday.

Mineral Springs—Monday and Tuesday.

Thorsby—Monday.

Cooper—Monday.

Mt. Creek—Monday and Tuesday.

Clanton—Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

In addition to the work done at the canning centers, a program of home canning will be carried on in the homes of persons who do not live near enough to attend any of the above named centers. The supervisors will go into the homes and teach proper methods of food preservation. Cans, equipment and supervision will be furnished by the Relief Administration.

A two day leadership school will be held at the Methodist Church in Clanton on Wednesday and Thursday for the supervisors of the canning program. Miss Nellie Fuller, County Canning Supervisor, will have charge of the meeting. She will be assisted by Miss Austin, Director of Relief, and Miss Pardue, Home Demonstration Agent.

THE SELMA HIGHWAY PAVING

The base material of crushed rock is being hauled from cars in Clanton railroad yards to the paving project under way on the Selma Highway west of Clanton.

It will not be many days until the job is completed, which will make the Selma Road paved from its junction with the Birmingham Highway from Clanton west for a distance of about five miles.

DOUBLE VOTE TO BE GIVEN BY THE LEADER IN CONTEST

—o—

Rivalry For Lead Is Keen For $100.00 Cash Award To Be Given Away; Double Votes Are For This Week Only On Dress Sales And Accounts

—o—

A special attraction in The Leader's plan to give away one hundred dollars in cash has been announced this week by Mr. M. Lande, proprietor. During this week, through Saturday only, The Leader will give double votes on all purchases of ready-made dresses at the special bargain prices as shown in their advertisement.

Double votes will also be given this week only, on accounts that are paid, Mr. Lande stated. These two offers are for this week only and end Saturday night.

Plan Is Explained

The plan through which The Leader will award the $100.00 in cash is simply this: with each purchase you make at this store you will receive vote coupons. These coupons are in votes for each twenty-five cent purchase. In other words, if you purchase 25 cents worth of goods, you receve one vote; a one dollar purchase receives four votes and so on down the line.

Any one person, church or organization in Chilton County may enter the contest. At the close of the contest, the person, church or organization having the largest number of votes will receive first prize which is $75.00. Second prize is $25.00.

The coupons have a place in which to write the name of the person or church, etc., to receive the votes. Anyone may deposit their votes to the credit of any church, organization, or help a friend win the prize.

Many churches and persons have entered the contest and individuals making purchases at The Leader are placing their votes in the box at the store to the credit of some church or organization. In the advertisement of The Leader this week appears a list of the churches, etc., in the contest who are holding a lead over others.

The Young Men's Sunday School Class of the Clanton Baptist church is planning a fish fry and outing next Thursday evening at the mouth of Yellow Leaf Creek, near Lay Dam.

About forty-five or fifty young men with H. A. Harris, teach of the class, will leave the church at 6:30 o'clock and will meet at the picnic grounds for several hours of fun and wholesome entertainment.

The purpose of the outing is to create a keener interest in the work of the Sunday school and discuss plans for an extensive membership drive during the coming weeks.

CONTEST DATE SET FOR JULY 8

Testimony Will Be Presented Concerning Result Of Last Election

The date of July 8th was set by Judge Glover in the Circuit Court of Chilton County last week as the time for beginning the taking of testimony in the election contest cases of Chilton County.

When the court opened hearing last week for pleadings in the case of W. G. Culp, Republican, against Tom McKee, Democrat, in the contest of Culp against McKee, for office of Tax Collector of Chilton County, the court indicated that it would sustain the contention of attorneys for McKee to dismiss the suit as to affidavit of contestant. But the court permitted counsel for contestant to amend the affidavit to statement of contestant.

When demurrers were submitted by counsel for McKee to the five grounds of contest, demurrers were sustained to three of the grounds. Whereupon counsel for the contestant were permitted to amend affidavits to the two grounds sustained by the court.

The court granted counsel the same consideration and application of ruling to apply to the cases of Akins Collins against A. D. Martin, for Tax Assessor, and H. A. Harris against J. C. Pattillo, for Circuit Clerk.

After clearing all preliminaries by hearing the various pleadings and demurrers, Judge Glover cleared the decks for further hearings, and set the date of Monday, July 8th, as the date upon which to begin hearing of testimony in the contest cases.

NEW LINE OF TIRES PUT IN AT WOCO SERVICE STATION

Mr. J. E. Easterling of Woco Service Station announces that he has added to his line the famous Bull Dog Tires, which is put out by the well known General Tire Company. Mr. Easterling stresses the fact that these are moderately priced tires, and their lasting qualities are exceptional.

The Woco Service Station now carries three lines of tires—the Yale, the General and the Bull Dog.

District Meeting Legion Auxiliary

In Session At Baptist Church In Clanton Wednesday Morning, June 5

Chilton County Unit No. 6, American Legion Auxiliary, entertained delegates from sixteen other Units of the Sixth Alabama Auxiliary District in a conference held at the Baptist church on Wednesday of this week. About seventy-five visiting Auxiliary members and leaders were in attendance.

The meeting assembled at 10 o'clock called to order by the district director, Mrs. H. E. Moodruff, of Opelika.

The program opening was preceded by advancement of the colors, followed by recitation of allegiance to the flag, repeated in unison. The audience sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

Invocation by Dr. S. J. Ezell was followed by a brief memorial service, and the preamble to the constitution repeated in concert.

Address of welcome to the visitors was extended by W. M. Wyatt; response by Mrs. Grace Jackson.

Following are the Conference Committees announced: Credentials, Mrs. W. A. Winston and Mrs. W. M. Wyatt; rules, Mrs. J. C. Johnson, chairman, Mrs. R. M. Howe, Mrs. J. H. Stewart; time and place, Mrs. W. M. Cannon, chairman, and all unit presidents; resolutions and courtesy, Mrs. Henry Neil Sargent, chairman, Mrs. F. L. Rauber, Mrs. Fulton Pace.

Introduction of officers, guests and gold star mothers was made by Mrs. Percy Pitts, department chairman of the Committee on education of World War Orphans.

The following Units were represented by delegates: Alexander City, Auburn, Clanton, Eclectic, Fairfax, Fort Deposit, Goodwater, Hursboro, Montgomery, Opelika, Phoenix City, Macon County, Union Springs, Wetumpka, Tallassee.

The program was concluded by a luncheon served by a Circle of the ladies of the Baptist church.

AIR COMMITTE IN CHILTON COUNTY

Work Jointly With National Body In Development Of Aviation

Senator Wm. G. McAdoo, President of the National Aeronautic Association, with headquarters in Washington, has apponted Dr. V. J. Gragg as chairman of a local committee of the Association for Chilton County.

In making the appointment Senator McAdoo states that a militant and aggressive program of public information and education will be inaugurated at once, the purpose of which is to insure that America will lead in the air.

The committee headed by Dr. Gragg will have an important part in carrying out this program. Associated with him in developing a local organization are Judge J. Lee Smith and Mayor C. Fenn Jones, and the following citizens: J. B. Atkinson, L. E. Diefenderfer, Leo Thompson, W. M. Wyatt, Dewey Rockett, H. F. Downs, C. D. Duke, J. Mel Martin, Luther Little, J. W. Fant, and Billy Smith.

"Acting for and with the National Aeronautic Association, we will endeavor to co-ordinate local educational efforts and to co-operate with all individuals and organizations who have an interest in this modern means of travel. At the same time we will serve as a clearing house for the Association and do our utmost to carry forward our part in this national movement.

"There is much to be done. Air records must be won and retained by America. Unfortunately, this country is now a poor second in the records which it holds. According to some authorities, this country ranks only third or fourth in military equipment. With hundreds of millions of dollars invested in commercial aviation, not more than two hundred thousand different individuals avail themselves annually of the facilities for travel in the air.'

Dr. Gragg will proceed at once to place his organization actively into the local application of the nation-wide purposes of the movement.

CANTOR COMES TO TOWN IN "KID MILLIONS"

Eddie Cantor in "Kid Millions," the wide-eyed comedian's new screen musical extravaganza for Samuel Goldwyn, is here for a two day run at the Wadesonian Theatre June 10 and 11, with Ann Sothern, Ethel Merman, Block and Sully and this season's collection of Goldwyn Girls aiding and abbetting the star in his frantic frollickings along the Nile in search of buried treasure.

Of the sixty prize beauties who comprise this year's crop of Goldwyn Girls who prance in and out of the picture in the lavish song and dance ensembles staged by Seymour Felix, thirty-one had never before appeared in a film. Among these was a girl who had been studying to be a school teacher; the daughter of Cantor's dentist; the mother of a nine year old son; a dietician; and the possessor of the most sought-after face for photographic modeling in New York. Walter Donaldson and Gus Kahn, Burton Lane and Herald Adamson contributed the song hits, which include "Okay Toots," "When My Ship Comes In," "An Ear Full of Music" and "Your Head On My Shoulder," while Irving Berlin's "Mandy" is revived in an old fashioned minstrel number done in a new fashioned way. Arthur Sheekman, Nat Perrin and Nunally Johnson wrote the story and dialogue. Roy Del Ruth directed the film which was released through United Artists.

Man Drowned In The Coosa River

Alvin Smith, of B'ham, Lost His Life While On Fishing Party

Alvin Lawson Smith, age 46 years, was drowned in the Coosa River below Mims's Ferry, near Lay Dam, last Thursday night. His body was recovered early Friday morning, and was brought to Clanton by Martin's ambulance. He was sent to Birmingham and buried in Forest Hill Cemetery Saturday.

Mr. Smith was a native of Chilton County, a son of Alex Smith and Nancy Blow. He has lived in Birmingham for several years, where he was employed as a boilermaker for the L. & N. Railroad Co.

According to reports of the drowning, which was acidental, it is said that Mr. Smith, a member of a party of six men, was on a fishing trip at the river. About one o'clock Thursday night the entire party of six embarked in a small boat and set out to fish a trot line.

The boat sank, according to the surviving members, all five of whom whom swam to the shore. It was swam to the shore. It was some time after they effected their own rescue that Smith was missed.

NEW SALEM

We are very proud of the number that attended Sunday school and preaching Sunday. What we want to do is keep the attendance up and growing.

We have decided to change the revival week from the first Sunday in August until the second week due to other churches wanting to use our pastor.

The singing in the afternoon was very good and we are very thankful for the number that was present. The pianist for the evening was Miss Edna Gore. Our chairman, Mr. J. E. Minor, sang a song and led in prayer. The directors were Mr. Bennett, Mr. Akins I. Collins, Mr. Melton, Mr. Eason Maddox, Mr. Howard Maddox, Mr. Morris Clackler, Mr. Dock Harris and Miss Laudelia Clackler.

Mr. J. E. Minor, chairman, sang a song and the group was dismissed by Rev. Carroll.

We wish to again thank Mr. Bennet for his splendid cooperation. Besides directing, he selected from the class a quartet which gave us two numbers.

COLLINS CHAPEL

Next Saturday morning, June 8th, has been set as the date for cleaning off the cemetery at Collins Chapel. All interested parties are urged to come and bring necessary tools.—Perry Gore.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express to our friends and relatives, through your paper, our appreciation of the kindness and sympathy shown us during the brief illness and death of our father, Mr. W. A. Poole.

We could not personate each individual for the kindness shown us, but we do want to thank each and everyone, especially Martin & Sons. May God be with each and every one of you.—The Family.

REFUGE NEWS

We are running late with this article, but here we come.

The annual singing held at this place the third Sunday in May was enjoyed by all who attended. Our pastor preached at 11 o'clock. His text was Rev. 2:4, "Nevertheless I have somewhat against you because you have left your first love." A bountiful dinner was spread at the noon hour.

Remember that the third Sunday and Saturday before are our regular meeting days. The pastor especially urges all the members to be present at all services, as well as any others whom it may concern.

The pastor tendered his resignation some weeks ago, to take effect the some weeks ago, to take effect the date brings to a close this associational year. This will also mark the end of four successive years of pastoral service of our pastor at his home church, where he had his first experience of church work.

We notice from the above resignation that there just remains three more regular meeting days for our present pastor. He especially urges co-operation on the part of all members throughout his remaining weeks and for all to just "keep on keeping on."

HOME COMING DAY AT SHADY GROVE, RANDOLPH

This is the last call for Home-Coming Day at Shady Grove, four miles north of Randolph, on the second Sunday in June.

All members, former members, former pastors, and friends are requested to take notice and be prepared to attend. But don't forget to bring the basket.—W. W. Dyer, Chairman.

Lesson for June 9

THE HOLY SPIRIT
(Pentecost Lesson)

LESSON TEXT—John 16:7-11; Romans 8:10-17, 26, 27.

GOLDEN TEXT—For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God.—Romans 8:14.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Keeps His Promise.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Coming of the Holy Spirit.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How the Holy Spirit Helps Us.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Work of the Holy Spirit.

I. The Holy Spirit Promised (Joel 2:28, 29).

The prophet foretold that in messianic times there would be a mighty effusion of the Holy Spirit.

1. He was to be poured out.

2. He was to be bestowed upon all flesh, irrespective of age, sex, or class.

3. This out-pouring was to issue in extraordinary activity and service.

4. This activity was to be accompanied by marvelous signs.

II. This Prophetic Promise Was Partially Fulfilled at Pentecost (Acts 2:1-21, 32, 33).

The unusual behavior of the disciples at Pentecost, with Peter's preaching which resulted in the conversion of thousands, evidenced the supernatural, but the cosmic signs which the prophet predicted to take place in heaven and earth were not in evidence. The real fulfillment of the prophet's prediction is in the future and will find fulfillment in connection with the regathering of Israel and the establishment of the Messianic Kingdom.

III. Some Names of the Holy Spirit.

1. Comforter (John 14:16, 17). "Comforter" means literally "one called to one's side as a part taker, an advocate, a helper and defender." He is called "another Comforter" as he was to take the place of Jesus.

2. The Witness (John 15:26). The Spirit peculiarly witnesses of Christ. He does not speak of himself, but takes the things of Christ and shows them unto us (John 16: 13).

3. The Spirit of Truth (John 16:13). The Holy Spirit guides into all truth. Those who are taught by him know the truth.

IV. Some Works of the Spirit.

1. He regenerates (John 3:3-8). The new birth is peculiarly the Spirit's work.

2. He teaches (John 14:26). The Holy Spirit was to take up the work of teaching the disciples.

3. Convicts the world of sin (John 16:8, 9). The Holy Spirit alone can show men the demerit of their lives and their shortcomings before God.

4. Convicts the world of righteousness (John 16:10). The resurrection and ascension of Christ prove that he is the Righteous One and that righteousness is only possible as he is accepted as Savior.

5. Convicts the world of judgment (John 16:11). Sin unatoned for shall be punished. The sinner who refuses the righteousness which God provided in Jesus Christ shall be judged.

6. Gives victory over the flesh (Rom. 8:2, 12, 13). By the energy of the Holy Spirit the carnal nature can be kept in subjection.

7. He leads the believer (Rom. 8:14). The Spirit-filled believer lives the life of the Son of God.

8. He gives assurance to the believer (Rom. 8:15-17). The Holy Spirit witnesses together with the human spirit to the reality of the new birth.

9. Enables the believer to pray according to the will of God (Rom. 8:26, 27). The Holy Spirit helps the believer's infirmities in prayer.

V. The Diversity of the Gifts of the Spirit (I Cor. 12:4-11).

In the Church there are to be found those possessing the gifts of wisdom, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment of spirits, divers kinds of tongues and their interpretation.

VI The Sealing of the Spirit (Eph. 1:13, 14).

Into the regenerated life comes the Holy Spirit at once. The indwelling of the Divine Spirit is God's seal of ownership. It is not only a seal of ownership, but of security. It is also the guarantee of the completion of the work of redemption.

VII. The Unity of the Spirit (Eph. 4:1-6).

VIII. The Sin of Grieving the Spirit (Eph. 4:30).

The Spirit may be grieved by failure to respond to his initiative, by yielding to the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye and the vainglory of life, by failure to render full and free obedience, as well as failure to surrender every faculty of the being to his control and direction.

Joy

Joy is the mainspring in the whole round of everlasting nature; joy moves the wheels of the great timepiece of the world; she it is that loosens flowers from their buds, suns from their firmaments, rolling spheres in distant space seen not by the glass of the astronomer.—Schiller.

Nobleness

Be noble, and the nobleness that lies in other men, sleeping but never dead, will rise in majesty to meet thine own. —James Russell Lowell.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Watts Moore left Monday for a visit in New Orleans, La.

ICE CREAM SUPPER

There will be an ice cream supper at Union Grove Saturday night, June 8th, for the benefit of the Union Grove base ball team. You are invited.

MONEY in your Kitchen

THERE'S money earned (by being saved) in your kitchen every day if there's a Superfex Oil Burning Refrigerator in the corner. Superfex saves your foods from spoiling during the hottest days . . . provides the means to convert "leftovers" into tasty meals . . . gives you ice cubes for cooling drinks . . . saves you thousands of steps rushing downstairs or outside for foods that should be within easy reach in your kitchen. The burners of Superfex burn only about two hours a day to give you perfect refrigeration for 24 hours. Housewives tell us their total cost of Superfex is about ten dollars a year, sometimes less . . . and the money saved by Superfex is several times that amount.

Let us tell you about the five Superfex models . . . there's one to suit the needs of every family. When you've seen the one you like, you will be surprised to learn how easy it is to have one for your home.

GROUP OF FARMERS ASSEMBLED AT WASHINGTON IN THE INTEREST OF THE AGRICULTURAL ADJUSTMENT ACT, ABOUT 4,000 STRONG, FROM ALL OVER THE COUNTRY

Excerpts from President Roosevelt's message to the farmers:

I am glad to welcome you to the National Capital. We can think of this occasion as a kind of surprise birthday party, for it was just two years and two days ago that the agricultural adjustment act became a law. And I well remember the fine group of representatives of farmers from every part of the Union who stood around me on that occasion when I signed the act.

In record time you and thousands of other farmers took hold and set up machinery to control your own liar way the high and mightly balanced farm production with demand. Those people did not understand and many of them do not understand today that, if the farm population of the United States suffers and loses it spurchasing power, the people in the cities, of necessity, suffer with them. One of the greatest lessons that the city dwellers have come to understand in this past two years is this: Empty pocketbooks on the farm don't turn factory wheels in the city.

Go back for a minute to the spring of 1933—when there was a huge carry-over of almost 13,000,000 bales, and a price, because of that carry-over, of 6 cents a pound. You know what 6-cent cotton means to the purchasing power of the cotton belt.

There was a huge carry-over of tobacco and the price of tobacco during the preceding six months was the lowest on record for many years.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

WAY TO CONTROL SCREW WORMS IS TOLD BY ENTOMOLOGIST

Auburn, Ala., June 1, 1935.—With the appearance of screw worms in a number of south Alabama counties, farmers are being told that benzol is the best material to use in killing the insects. Chloroform is also good.

If there is much discharge from the wound swab out with sterile absorbent cotton and thoroughly wash the discharge from the surrounding area with water, then inject benzol (90 per cent commercial) either by using a syringe or an oil can, being sure to fill all pockets and cavities. Allow the benzol to act 2 or 3 minutes and then repeat the injection. In some cases it may be necessary to split the skin in order to get at the maggots in deep pockets, but as little damage as possible should be done to the tissues. Chloroform can be used instead of benzol, but it is more expensive. After the maggots are killed and removed from the wound, apply pine tar oil to it around the affected area. Repeat this treatment every day for 3 days then continue the treatments at intervals of 3 or 4 days until you are sure all maggots are killed.

If pine tar oil is not available, use one part of pine tar and two quarts of crankcase oil or cottonseed oil. The pine tar is more irritating and will not repel flies as long as the pine tar oil. Dehorning paint, which can be ordered through your local veterinarian, is waterproof and is one of the best fly repellants.

WEAN PIGS WHEN THEY ARE ONLY EIGHT WEEKS OF AGE

Pigs should be weaned at 8 weeks of age, says F. W. Burns, extension live stock specialist, who reports that "if they have been properly developed they should weigh approximately 40 pounds at this age."

Mr. Burns also advises that "plenty of shade and an abundance of fresh, clean water are as important as feed for live stock during the hot summer months."

COTTON RENTAL CHECKS BEING ISSUED FASTER

First cotton reital checks are moving out much faster this year than they did in 1934, report AAA officials in Washington. Through May 20th 319,999 checks, representing payments totaling $10,925,495 had been prepared for mailing, compared with only 117,109 checks totaling $4,739,857 to the same date last year.

THE COTTON SITUATION AS SEEN BY MR. J. H. JACKSON

Clanton, Ala., Route 1, June 1.
Editor Union-Banner:

I am asking for space to publish what I consider a true status of the cotton production control act.

A and B have adjoining farms of 40 acres each, with 30 acres each in cultivation, and it is the same grade of land. During the five-year base period A did not plant much cotton and did not use much fertilizer. This base period allowed A only 8 acres to plant in cotton, with a yield of 150 pounds per acre, which gives A 1,200 pounds of lint cotton tax free at 12 cents per pound, bringing $144.

During the five-year base period B planted a large acreage in cotton and used more than twice as much fertilizer as did A, and this period gives B 16 acres to plant in cotton with a yield of 300 pounds per acre, which gives B 4,800 pounds of lint cotton tax free at 12 cents per pound, bringing him $576, which is just four times as much as A gets.

The above figures prove that B is the person who is responsible for the over-production of cotton, but now is getting four times as much for his crop as his neighbor is.

Let me ask our law-makers to look into this enormous and ungodly discrimination, which is more than fourfold in many cases.

Give us something like this: Take A's 8 acres and B's 16 acres; add them together, which will make 24 acres. Divide by two, and that will give A and B 12 acres each. Take A's 150 pounds of lint cotton and B's 300 pounds; add them together, which will be 450. Divide by two and that will give A and B 225 pounds per acre each or 2,600 pounds each for the total acreage. At 12 cents a pound this would give A and B $312 each, instead of giving A $144 and B $576.

I hope our congress will consider something like the above and amend our cotton control low so that A and B both will be recognized equal.

Yours for a square deal.

J. H. JACKSON.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

When the day of Pentecost came "They were all with one accord in one place." They were not only together as far as location was concerned, but they were together in spirit. That is what counts. One Communist may be in Russia and another in America, but they are together as far as their purpose is concerned. Their hearts beat in sympathy. That is not always true of the religious world.

The Christian world is divided into comparatively small groups, but that is not the problem that confronts Christianity in our modern age. These groups are divided. There are some who are Fundamentalists and some who are called Modernists. They cannot get together. They are too far apart. The Modernists say the Bible contains the word of God. The Fundamentalists say it is the word of God. The difference between these two groups is fundamental and they cannot unite in purpose unless convictions are sacrificed. Men may disagree about denaminational methods and work together, but when they disagree on fundamental principles, if they are sincere, they cannot work together. The Modernist and the Fundamentalist disagree on the fundamental principle. Both cannot be right.

If the Bible contains the word of God, then how are we going to agree what is and what is not God's word? I am an old time orthodox Christian. I believe that the salvation of a human soul depends upon the vicarious and substantial death of Jesus Christ on the Cross. I never saw a Modernist who believed that. Then in the name of common sense, how can a Modernist and I work together on a Christian program to bring men to God? We don't agree about what is necessary. The Modernist and I do not even talk the same language.

I am a narrow denominationalist. My evangelistic work has always been interdenominational. I am the founder and president of an interdenominational college. But all orthodox Christians in the evangelical churches agree on fundamentals. We believe that the "Gospel is the Power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." There have come into some of the pulpits of most of our denominations preachers who no longer believe in the old time religion and the old time gospel which our fathers believed and preached. If we orthodox people in the name of a false church loyalty support those preachers with our influence and money then we are as guilty as these modernist preachers are, and we are proving that we are more loyal to our own denominations than we are to the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

As far is I am concerned I will support with my money a preacher of a denomination to which I do not belong who preaches the real Gospel a thousand times more readily than I will a preacher who is a member of my own church who preaches a modernistic message. I personally had rather give my money to some tramp preacher who has no denominational affiliations but who preaches the blood of Christ and the full Gospel than to support some Doctor of Divinity who stands in a pulpit of my own church and little by little undermines the faith of the people. I am for my church and my preachers as long as they are for my Lord and the Gospel; but I am not for a preacher or a program that is not loyal to the Gospel. The church does not save people. Jesus saves. If the church is saved, Christ will have to save the church. Therefore, I am most loyal to my church when I refuse to give my support to any minister or any program which is disloyal to my Lord and to His atoning blood.

FARM DEBT ADJUSTMENT COMMITTEES ARE NAMED

Auburn, Ala., June 3.—To aid debt-burdened farmers in adjusting their debts to where they can pay them, local debt adjustment committees have been set up in every county in Alabama, reports J. Litt Edwards, chairman of the Alabama Farm Credits Council.

"The county committees are composed of three public-spirited citizens, serving without pay, who endeavor to bring about a voluntary and amicable composition of debts to the mutual benefits of both debtor and creditor," he said. "These committees consider and hold hearings on any individual farmer's debt problem at the request of either creditor or debtor.

Game and Fish News

Montgomery, Ala., June 1.—This is the season of the year, the State Department of Game and Fisheries cautions, when many people are poisoned by coming in contact with poison ivy, poison sumac and poison oak while on outdoor excursions.

The department is particularly anxious for fishermen, who frequent the banks of fresh streams, to keep this in mind and take precautions against these skin irritations.

As an aid to anglers, picknickers and others making outdoor trips this summer, it suggests that they equip themselves with lotions or other medicines which may be locally applied at the time of contact. Among those suggested are the Calamine, Saola and Poison Ivy Lotions, which may be obtained at any drug store.

These are recommended where the infection is slight and may be treated in its early stages. For the more serious cases a poison ivy serum is advisable and if given before the poison has an opportunity to spread, its healing powers usually are very effective.

In addition to these medical remedies, the department urges all outdoorsmen to remember:

"Berries red, have no dread! Berries white, poisonous sight! Leaves three, quickly flee!"

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Mullins and little daughter, Sue, and little son, Clifford, spent the week end as the guests of Dr. and Mrs. V. J. Gragg.

Pleased With Policy of Passing Rate Cuts to Customers

Mrs. C. G. Hume Tells Why Additional Reductions to Mean Greater Use of Electrical Appliances

Writing recently to Alabama Power Company, Mrs. C. G. Hume, prominent Montgomery homemaker said:

"From news items recently carried in our local papers, I understand that you have passed on to your residential customers another substantial rate reduction.

"I have been a user of electric service from your good Company over a long period and naturally I have watched with much interest your well established policy of passing on to your customers periodical rate reductions whenever conditions appear to make such action possible.

"Of course I am much pleased whenever I am able to get an already satisfactory and reasonably priced service at a lesser cost, hence this letter of appreciation.

"It has long been my thought that your rates were reasonable and fair and now with this additional reduction it seems to me that every housewife able to purchase the appliances would insist on having the comfort and convenience of an electrically equipped home.

"In closing permit me to commend you for your courteous, dependable low cost service." Adv. Alabama Power Co.

Stops ITCHING In Minutes

Folks who have used HYDROSAL for itching, burning outbreaks could hardly believe such quick relief was possible! Doctors have prescribed HYDROSAL for 23 years. Even in stubborn, torturing eczema, Athlete's Foot (or "Itchy Toes"), rashes and pimples, the burning and itching fade away the minute HYDROSAL touches the skin. HYDROSAL penetrates the skin and acts to check growth of the germ causing local disorder. Gives Nature real help to quick healing. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau. Money back if it does not satisfy you. At all druggists in two forms, liquid and ointment—30c and 60c sizes.

Coach-Building Keeps Them Busy

YOUTHFUL patients in the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children at St. Louis construct cardboard reproductions of the model Napoleonic coach that serves as the project for those enrolled in the master class of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild. The hospital is one of a number of children's and orthopaedic institutions throughout the country, including the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, that have been supplied with paper cut-outs of the coach by the Guild as a means of keeping the minds and hands of convalescent youngsters occupied.

HOW TO BUY A USED CAR

Without Taking Chances as to its Condition or Value

SOLD ONLY BY FORD DEALERS

UNLESS you are a trained mechanic you can scarcely know the acual condition of a used car before you buy it. But fortunately there is one sure way to get a used car that is in first rate condition—at a price that represents honest value.

Go to your nearest Ford dealer and select a R&G used car—any make or model. You can buy it with complete confidence—the R & G Seal is your protection. It means that the car has been thoroughly reconditioned by expert mechanics through the twenty operations listed at the right and it means a solid guarantee of quality, backed by the reputation of an authorized Ford dealer.

Now is the best time to buy a R&G used car from your Ford dealer. Late models of popular make cars have been turned in for the new Ford V-8 in large volume. This means you have a better selection at lower prices; for where volume is big, prices are naturally lower—values bigger.

Why take chances when buying a used car? Why risk unsatisfactory performance or costly misunderstandings as to service or guarantee? Play safe, buy a R&G used car from your Ford dealer and ride with satisfaction and economy. See the exceptional values your Ford dealer is offering today in R & G used cars and trucks. Easy terms can be arranged. Remember, only Ford dealers sell R & G used cars.

Note: Ford dealers are also offering a limited number of cars "as is." These are priced to make them real bargains.

ALL R & G USED CARS AND TRUCKS ARE PUT THROUGH THE FOLLOWING 20 RECONDITIONING OPERATIONS:

1. Clean and Wash Body-Chassis
2. Clean and Paint Motor
3. Recondition Motor where necessary

MELL MARTIN TO WASHINGTON

Mr. J. Mell Martin will leave here Friday of this week to attend a Shrine Ceremonial of Alcazar Temple, in Montgomery. From there he will proceed to Washington, D. C. to attend the Imperial Council of the Shrine, as a delegate from Alcazar. Other delegates who will go with him to the Imperial Council are Col. Bill Screws and Bob Janney, of Montgomery, and Henry O'Neal, of Andalusia.

FIRE HAZARD ABATING

Montgomery.—The danger of forest fires is much less over the greater part of the state since the advent of new green surface vegetation, states Col. Page S. Bunker, State Forester. This, however, does not mean that fires may not occur in particular localities where the new grass has not yet reached the stage where it comprises the major part of the ground growth. In such instances old grass and other dry forest litter may permit a fire to spread quite rapidly.

Where forest lands are fully stocked with trees there is not apt to be a great deal of grass, and thus a forest may protect itself to a considerable extent, according to Col. Bunker. Pine straw and fallen leaves tend to settle close to the ground in the course of time, and a forest well advanced in its growth obstructs the force of the wind. Under such circumstances, surface fires seldom reach any considerable height above the ground and also spread at a much slower rate. Since most forest fires have their origin in grass or surface litter, full stocking of southern forests thus not only brings a greater wealth of material but also reduces the cost of protection.

CARD OF THANKS

We thank every body for their help and sympathy during the illness and death of our dear sister, Mrs. Mary A. Skinner. We especially thank the people of Pleasant Grove community for helping us work out our crop.

May God's richest blessing abide with each and everyone.—Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Carroll.

Prof. Luther E. Little has moved into the new home recently vacated by Renfroe Jones, on Maplesville Road.

Hon. T. W. Bryan, Clanton, has as his guest this week his son, Mr. Eschol Bryan, Tampa, Fla.

Miss Amie Robinson of the Co-Ed Beauty Shop, Auburn, Alabama, spent the week end here with her sister, Mrs. Grady Bates.

Mrs. Emma Lawrence will return to her home here Friday after some time spent in Washington with her son, Mr. Russell Milstead.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans Parrish and daughter Hellen, and Mrs. J. E. Evans have returned from a recent trip to Birmingham.

BIG FOUR HARDWARE STORE IS JUST ABOUT COMPLETED

The work of remodeling the building of the Big Four Hardware Company is nearing completion. The new front is a most attractive design, with spacious plate glass windows for display purposes.

Rearranging the interior of the building is now in progress, and it will not be many days before the entire store will be completely renovated and ready for business with a vast stock of hardware and the best facilities for serving its customers.

WILL TEACH SINGING SCHOOL AT SYLACAUGA BEGINNING MONDAY

Prof. W. M. Devaughn will go over to Sylacauga this week end and begin teaching a singing school there Monday morning. The school will be in the Mignon auditorium, and classes will be taught twice daily, so as to accommodate those working on different shifts at the mills.

This is the third school Prof. Devaughn has taught at Sylacauga, and all of his schools there have been a great success. His friends here and at Sylacauga wish him the same this year. The school will run for 18 days.

FLOYD NEWS

Our preaching service at Floyd Saturday night was rained out. Sunday morning we had another good rain and after the rain a good many went to church. Brother Culpepper, our pastor, had a wonderful sermon. We wish that more could have been there and heard him. We hope and pray that the time will come that everyone will be glad to go out and worship our Saviour.

A good many from Floyd attended the singing at White City. I can't begin to tell how wonderful it was. Brother Culpepper led one song, No. 63, "Won't it be wonderful there, having no burdens to bear."

Mr. Ormond Litaker and daughter, Mary, of Rockford, spent a while last Sunday with Bessie Prickett, Mary's schoolmate.

Mr. Joel Prickett and wife and daughter, Helen, visited Mrs. S. P. Smith a few days recently.

Mrs. Ella Tatum, Zelmer, Cora Lee, Hollie Ruth, and Mrs. Johnnie Waites of Montgomery visited Mrs. T. A. Prickett.

HOW TO MAKE US HAPPY

The President professed that "Americans as a whole are feeling a lot better—a lot more cheerful—than for many, many years." But it is respectfully submitted that Americans, with still fewer exceptions, would feel better and more cheerful in even larger degree if this administration would cease its apparently inexhaustable economic experimentation in order to allow the business world to apply with confidence its own revival plans. If Mr. Roosevelt would only make this concession at this time, the way might be cleared for an advance that would be both genuine and permanent.—Providence Journal.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

A resolution has been introduced in the United States Senate looking toward Ameri- membership in the League of Nations with certain reservations which a great many experts on international affairs think are more ornamental than effective. The resolution will be permitted to rest quietly in the files of the committee for some time and for obvious reasons. Perhaps the most obvious reason is the upset which the internationalists received in the Senate when the compromise resolution to put the United States into the League Court failed to acquire the necessary two-thirds vote for ratification. Some of the internationalists set up the claim that the resolution was blocked by a minority vote, although the facts are that the senators opposed to the resolution represented half the states in the Union and every popular referendum held on the subject of international relations in the United States has gone squarely against the proponents of the League of Nations.. Those who still favor our membership are biding their time until things look more favorable to them. When that time shall come, if ever, nobody knows. Certainly at this time the behavior of the world in general, and Europe in particular, is such that our danger of joining the League is seemingly getting even more remote.

In view of this latest flurry for American can membership in the Leogue of Nations with note just what questions were scheduled for discussion if not for adjudication at the meeting of the League's Council, which was called late in May. The leading problem, of course, is that of Italy and Ethiopia. In a dispatch from Geneva the United Press catalogues the other questions as follows:

1. Settlement of the Gran Chaco border war between Paraguay and Bolivia in South America.

2. Approval of a northeastern European pact which France and Russia propose to substitute for the initial idea of an Eastern Locarno.

3. Details of the Danubian pact, to be signed at Rome in June.

4. Discussion of a Medeterrancan pact on economic and political issues facing nations bordering that sea.

Now it is quite plain that Uncle Sam has little if any direct concern with any of these problems including that in North Africa, unless it is that he desires peace and harmony to reign between Bolivia and Paraguay, which are located in the Western Hemisphere. And even in this case it is easy to see that he might earn the ill will of one or both friendly Latin neighbors if he were to attempt to settle questions which are really none of his affair and which might mean joining the League in the application of "sanctions." We certainly have no business mixing in the problems of northern Africa, political boundaries in East Europe, problems growing out of the dispute over little Austria or disagreements in the Mediterranean area.

Yet, if we had a membership in the League we would be expected to raise our international voice and take part in enforcing decisions over people who live 4,000 or more miles away from us. That would indeed seem to be traveling a long way to mix into a quarrel which is only to invite trouble. The reply may be made that the presence of Uncle Sam in an official capacity at Geneva would go a long way toward exercising a great "moral force" and avoiding war. We should have learned by this time that moral force, in this materialistic age, unfortunately is not very effective in the face of angry politicians and bristling machine guns. And in some cases—if exerting moral force means the application of blockades or other economic sanctions—this might easily lead to war in a most unexpected manner. Things have a habit of turning out that way. The only moral force which Uncle Sam might exert at Geneva are his economic resources, his war ships and his man power. And these are "moral forces" which it would be just as well to keep on this side of the Atlantic so long as possible. Uncle Sam is still in the red ten billions from the last war to say nothing of the dead and wounded whose loss cannot be estimated in money. And yet we won the war! Certainly those internationalists must think we are gluttons for punishment.

THANK GOD FOR THE SUPREME COURT!

(Editorial in The Atlanta Georgian)

The Supreme Court of the United States has again upheld the Constitution and Americanism.

By a unanimous decision, the National Recovery Act has been declared unconstitutional. This decision will be hailed with gratitude throughout the country.

It marks the emergence of sanity—from the welter of nonsense, confusion, crazy bill-drafting and adolescent experimenting, which make up so large a part of the New Deal.

It spells the knell of as greedy and insolent a bureaucracy as ever attempted to spread itself over a country dedicated to freedom and over a people pre-eminent for their sturdy virtues and self-reliant character.

Let us hope that it spells the end also of the pestilent innovator and empty-headed theorist in government.

There IS a way out of the depression; there IS an avenue of recovery; there IS an open return to happiness and prosperity—but the road is the way of common sense, of respect for the fruits of work and enterprise, of respect for individual rights.

The way is the American way—vindicated over and over again throughout our history. It is the way that has made us great and powerful as a nation; that has made the conditions of life among our people better than with any other people in the world.

It is the way of respect for our Constitution, the ark of our liberties, the foundation of our greatness, the source of our security, the promise of our future.

THANK GOD FOR THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES!

The shifting gusts of short-lived and fleeting opinion cannot sway it. The froth of the strutting little reformers of the day, the shallow-pated innovators of the moment, the litter of a so-called brain trust are powerless to confuse, much less sway, American judges. Salutary, timely, needed, was this great decision.

It reminds the American people that the foundations of their life are deep-imbedded in justice and freedom, and that reason, self-command and sobriety both of thought and conduct are still American characteristics.

TVA'S SOVEREIGN POWER

An imposing list of charges was directed at the Tennessee Valley Authority by Senator Austin, Vermont Republican, in connection with Senate consideration of more financial aid for that project. The critic charged that an audit had revealed "abuses, excesses of authority, violations of the law, overpayments of salaries and contracts, mismanagement and waste of the people's money." The G. O. P. senator was opposing an attempt by Senator Norris, psuedo Republican of Nebraska, government ownership enthusiast and supporter of federal utility projects, to redefine the powers and double the bond issuing authority of TVA.

Perhaps the Vermont senator has failed to comprehend the dispensation granted or assumed by the New Dealers in carrying out purported recovery programs. The critic should not be surprised by those alleged revelations of law violations and waste. The alphabetical agencies are a law unto themselves until an opportunity occurs to present their derelictions to the federal courts. One of the favorite functions of brain trust autocracy has been the issuance of executive, departmental and bureaucratic edicts in the guise of laws. The result has been the assumption of executive powers by numerous petty jobholders of the New Deal army.

The Vermonter also should express surprise over the waste of money in connection with TVA, said to equal five times the original authorization. The public may wonder where Senator Austin has been, that his ability to be shocked by New Deal excesses has not long since been exhausted. He should recall that TVA is one of the "yardsticks" costing hundreds of millions that are to drive out private industry and usher in Tugwell's new social order. The bureaucrats stubbed their toes on a federal court decision holding part of the TVA program unconstitutional. That setback scarcely will deter them, however, from seeking more millions from Congress. —Indianapolis Star.

BLOCKADING BUSINESS

As you read of the "privileged classes" in local relief administration, as you reflect on the fact that nearly five billion dollars of taxpayers' money are soon to be shoveled out in the name of recovery (or vote buying), you see why business does not go ahead as rapidly as Washington says it ought to.

The miracle is that business has made any progress at all. It is held in a strait-jacket of taxes. It drags a ball and chain of official restriction and official dictation.

It is turned over to the tender mercies of competition with Japan and other low-wage countries. It is told to "stop whining" by one prominent New Dealer and advised not to export its products by another.

And it is gouged to pay the greatest share of the crackpot experimenting and political spending which are the two main features of our government in this year of grace 1935.

Yet business and industry, if let alone, stand ready to put a sum estimated by the National Association of Manufacturers at twenty billion dollars into immediate production.

This is more than four times the amount of the government recovery fund. It would put more than four times as many men and women to work—on real work, at real wages, not on "government" work at "subsistence" wages. And it would not cost the tax payers a cent. That is in considerable contrast to the five billions of the government fund which present and future taxpayers must provide.

But business and industry are not going to put people to work until assured a freer hand than is now allowed them.

You can't blame them for that. If your store or factory is to be run by some red-tape-haltered mule at Washington you will not enlarge your store or factory. You would be a fool if you did.

However, that is pretty much the situation at the moment, and doubtless will be until the United States wakes up to the facts of life instead of fancies.

While in the meantime, the twenty billion dollars won't go to work and several millions of unemployed won't get a chance to.—Washington D. C., Herald.

Nearly half of the American Rhodes scholars at Oxford — thirty-eight of eighty-four—have formed a new society "to study political and economic trends in the United States and to see if it is possible to work for socialism within either of the old parties." What will Hamilton Fish make of that? — Springfield Republican.

We can't of course know what is in Congressman Fish's mind, but since college socialism seems to be as infectuous as the itch, we presume Mr. Fish hopes that when these thirty-eight crackpots get their diplomas or whatever it is they get and start home again, the boats will not be running in that direction.

MAN IN THE MOON

A BOOST FOR JACK

Since Jack Hayes has been out of the Chicago White Sox line-up, things have not been going so well. They have dropped more than one close contest that his hitting might have turned into victory. Moreover, Manager Jimmy Dykes had a chance to realize Jack's worth to the club.

Jimmy says he is counting the hours until that injured hand of Hayes' gets back into shape again. It is quite significant that the White Sox have fallen from the leadership in the American League since he has been out.

I have just received a clipping from a Philadelphia daily in which the sports editor, Wayne K. Otto, gives his own personal opinion of Jack and his worth to the White Sox. Says he:

"Injury to Hayes showed Jimmy Dykes that the Sox lost 50 per cent of their punch and defense the minute that young man is out of the line-up."

Managers, players and sports editors all around the junior circuit consider Hayes the spark plug of the White Sox defense, as well as a dependable man at the plate. The Sox are said to have one of the best double play combinations in either league with Hayes at second, but just another ball club without him.

He should be back in the line-up before long. Reports say the Chicago fans have gone for Jack in a big way this year, and the turnstiles at Comiskey Park are shedding the rust, caused from lack of use, for the first time in years.

MINDING OUR BUSINESS

Down here in the Southland, we Southerners like to be left alone, to run our business as we see fit. However, for the past few years we have had a hard time doing it. On several occasions even the justice of our courts has been questioned by those "enlightened Northerners". In fact, if things get much worse in this respect, we will not be able to butcher a porker without some kind of society or association for the protection of dumb animals having something to say about it. But what of their own justice?

Not so long ago an Alabama court condemned a bunch of negroes to the electric chair for a capital crime, and on DIRECT evidence, too. What a howl went up! They kept the wires hot with condemnation of our courts; they sent money, lawyers and whatnot down here to defeat the justice of our courts. Some of the worst of this came from the State of New Jersey.

Now, at this very moment, a WHITE man sits in a New Jersey prison death cell, convicted of a capital crime on CIRCUMSTANTIAL evidence entirely. That man is the alleged kidnaper, Hauptman. I would not say that he is not guilty, nor that he does not merit the sentence given him. But any justice of the supreme court will say that the mere shred of direct evidence is stronger than any circumstantial evidence.

But what I want to show is the offensive attitude of the people of a state, who will sentence a white man to the electric chair on a chain of indirect evidence, much of it quite questionable, and then condemn Alabama's courts for giving a like sentence for another capital crime in which all evidence was direct and unquestionable.

What we Southerners would like to see is a "hands off" policy, so far as our business is concerned. If their courts of justice find fit to condemn a criminal in their state, we have nothing to say. But we would like to be able to exercise the same right, without so much outside "advice". We want to let the other states run their business, and stop meddling with us as we go abut attending to ours.

THE OLD GRAY MARE

That conglomerated mass of man-made un-American tyranny has gone the way that bad government always goes, ultimately. It has been abolished—declared unconstitutional by none other than the Supreme Court of the United States, the highest tribunal in the land, and from whose decision there is no recourse. A check-up reveals that we have been living for something like two years in a free country, having an all-governing Constitution, yet have been forced to bow to an oppressive law that was never a law, but a hoax, because it was contradictory to our basic governmental law.

It is not my desire to assume an "I told you so" attitude but I wish my readers would recall an article carried in this column some months ago, ("Our Constitution," issue of January 17), in which the following statements were made:

I stated that the NRA was an unnatural law, un-American in principle, and absolutely unwarranted. That when the congress abdicated its power and authority to the president in 1933, it overstepped its right, in that the Constitution of the United States vests certain powers, through their election by the popular vote, to them and them alone. It does not give them the right to delegate this power to another, no matter what his position may be. It is theirs, finally and unalterably.

Congressmen are the spokesmen for the people they are to represent. They are elected and sent to Washington to speak for their people. When they gave over their powers and rights, they gave something that was never theirs—to give. Their rights were theirs to exercise—not to give away. Their unprecedented move left the people out of all governmental measures, and put all powers in the hands of one man. This constituted a monarchistic form of government finally, and is the very principle that the Constitution was drawn up in the beginning to defeat. So, the act of congress in 1933 put this country right back where it was before the Revolutionary War, with one exception—then there was an English monarch, and now there is an American one. The principle remains the same.

In the same article it was stated that, even if the congress did see fit to give over all its powers into the president's hands, nevertheless the Constitution gave him no license to exercise these newly-acquired powers. The contention that the new condition was one of centralized government—government without general representation, was offered.

In a summary, we contended that both the congress and the president had erred. That each had over-stepped its rights. The congress was given certain powers, but the right was not theirs to give that power to another. The president was given certain rights, but he had no right to acquire rights of others, nor to abuse the rights that are his own.

The Supreme Court, in its decision last Monday, set out these very reasons in declaring the NRA unconstitutional. Naturally we are a bit proud that our judgment was upheld by the Supreme Court. We are not so proud that NRA has gone, although we must confess that we have NEVER seen the wisdom of the act, as a whole. We believe the NRA has done some good. We believe the NRA contained some good sections, but from our point of view the bad parts far overshadowed the good. At least this was the general opinion. Officials were urged on every hand to remodel the NRA, to save the good features and discard the bad. But our officials could see no bad in the blue eagle, and such a thing as accepting advice was out of the question. They obstinately refused to do anything to their pet bird, to their own undoing.

One of the main things to which enemies of the act objected was the "must" clause attached to each division of it. Americans are free men, and not peons nor serfs. As free men, they may not realize just how dear is their liberty, never having been forced through any other kind of experience, but once a law is passed that tends to suppress that liberty and a howl goes up. Such was the case of the NRA.

At the time the NRA went into effect, everyone was in a mood to cooperate. "Times can't be worse," seemed to be the popular slogan, and so they entered into the act with all cooperation, never questioning the legality of it. After they had time to see where it was leading, or rather DRIVING them, people were not so sympathetic with it, as their liberties were taken from them. But there was nothing they could about it—the NRA was law. And what a law!

We have been taught that any law which tends to take away any part of our liberties is un-American. That is the reason this column has branded the NRA as such. Friends of the NRA raise their hands in horror at what may happen, now that the act is gone. They say that strikes will begin all over the country. I submit that never in the history of the nation's business have strikes been so general and widespread as since the advent of the NRA and the New Deal. Radical elements in the ranks of labor, sensing that the government was behind them in their eternal agitation, disrupted industry, and turmoil has resulted.

No one seems sorry to see NRA go, except those officials who gave it birth, together with those parasites who have taken advantage of the act to fasten themselves on useless jobs, to suck a living from the already over-burdened American taxpayers.

America wall manage to get along without the NRA. America has had depressions and panics before, long before people ever heard of a Roosevelt, a brain trust, or an NRA, and it has always managed to get back on an even keel again. Personally, I believe that the nation would be much further along the recovery road if the present administration had started building on a sound foundation, rather than the NRA, which has been found to be founded on sand.

Another thing, no one seems very much surprsied at the decision of the Supreme Court, and those in closest touch seem the least surprised of all. Hugh Johnson, under whose "iron hand" leadership the act went into force, when told of the Court's decision, said: "I knew that was the way it would come out." If that was true, then he KNEW the act was unconstitutional, yet he "cracked down" with all force of the NRA. Other officials of the NRA and high officials of the New Deal in every department have spoken likewise.

Having heard these reports and confessions from the very lips of the exponents of are NRA, there is but one conclusion that the every-day American citizen can draw—that the administration concocted an all-powerful misjustice, knowing it to be un-American and unconstitutional, and forced it down the throats of a suffering people who were powerless to help themselves, in that the men whom they had sent to represent them had proved traitors and had given them over into the hands of those whose lust for power knew no bounds, and who held no mercy for those people whose well-being they held in their hands. Viewed in this light, Americans rejoice that the NRA is dead. The American Eagle has whipped the blue eagle. Amen!—Man in the Moon.

ANOTHER GLOOMY DEAN

Prof. Tugwell is quite doleful in his predictions about the Middle West. He paints the picture so dark one almost feels that he expects the Midwest to change its new political complexion again.

Prof. Tugwell is quoted as painting the section as a depopulated desert 300 years hence, with only moving piles of dust for hundreds of miles, and cities of which little will remain except some skeletons of twisted steel, kind of super-buffalo skeletons on the plains, so to speak. All of this would result from the nation's failure to carry forward all of the New Deal's conservation program.

It is to be hoped that the good professor is taking too gloomy a view of the situation. Perhaps the Midwest will survive even if trees are not made to grow and flourish where nature did not intend them to grow and flourish.

Some of the old timers have lived out there for years and tell us that there have been bad dust storms before and that the Midwest has managed to survive. If drifts of dust are higher now than then, perhaps it is because there was nothing for the dust to drift against on the prairies before any buildings or fences were put up.

Perhaps the Midwest will be a barren desert three centuries from now, but if so, the AAA is going to have to do a lot of plowing under out there in the meantime.

BRASS TOGS FOR BABIES

Evidently there are still some folks who believe that the states ought to function even in a new era. Attorney General McGraw, of Texas, is quoted by a Washington, D. C., newspaper as having told the Senate Finance Committee recently, discussing the federal oil program, that it will soon no longer be necessary to go to the trouble of naming babies. He is quoted as predicting: "A brass collar with a number on it will simply be locked around the baby's neck and the key sent to Washington.

"Federal regulation of this type is making mere territorial possessions of states, little marionettes of their officials, shiftless and dole-taking governmental wards of the people of the various states."

Well, if this is done, Washington will even be busier than it is now, and there will remain the problem of providing a federal job or federal support for Tag No. 1687Y after he has grown up. The danger is, this brass tag and key business may discourage the potential parents of the nation even more than they are discouraged today. If so a lot of storks will be put out of employment. Which will be a big boost for Margaret Sanger.

If we don't believe in such things as supply and demand and over-production, please note that the more big oil wells which are brought in the less the value of the oil securities becomes.

A fresh coat of paint has preserved a lot of things, including some fading romances.

HARKING BACK

Nothing recalls the wide difference between the popular ideals for youth in this generation and the last more than the newspaper announcement that a little island in Charles River near South Natick, Mass., is being cleaned up in memory of Horatio Alger, Jr., the juvenile author of bygone days, who is supposed to have been very fond of the place.

Few children of this era, except some of those who do their book-shopping in the five and ten, have ever heard of the Horatio Alger, Jr., who wrote so many inspiring books for their fathers. A modern sophisticated generation of youth reading Alger's books would laugh at their stereotyped plots, their moralizing and their characters which seemed to be turned out more or less in machine made fashion.

But times have changed in more than literary ideals, and some of the changes have not been fortunate. In Alger's stories the poor but ambitions youth usually started as a bootblack or errand boy, helped to support his mother, and turned out to be the president of a railroad or big steel corporation, advancing by working hard and saving his money. To work hard and save one's money is no longer fashionable. We expect the modern youth to go through college learning to denounce the railroad and steel company, to spend his money in riotous living and then get himself supported by the governmental relief which is paid for by those who have been foolish enough to work hard and save their money. No wonder the literary disciples of Heywood Broun, if any, may be expected to make fun of Horatio Alger, Jr. He was one of the Old Dealers.

Secretary Wallace is quoted by newspapers as telling the visiting farmers at Washington that the processing tax is the same thing as the protective tariff. Well, the processing tax is raised to decrease American production which naturally increases foreign production, while the protective tariff is designed to increase home production, which naed to increase home production, which nathat Mr. Wallace has guessed closer on a lot of things or else it will be just too bad.

THREE SETS OF TWINS IN ROBINSON FAMILY

Above is an interesting picture made by kodak of three sets of twins in the family of J. M. (Doctor) Robinson of Clanton, presented to The Union-Banner by Mr. P. M. Martin of Union Grove community. In the above group, besides Doctor Robinson, are Mrs. Lessie Lowery and Mrs. Bessie Gore, twin daughters of Doctor Robinson; Mrs. Lurline Bean standing by the grave of her twin sister who died in infancy, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Martin (Mrs. Martin is the daughter of Doctor Robinson); the two babies are Glenda Farrell and Kendall Carroll, twin children of Marvin Martin and great grandchildren of Doctor Robinson.

MRS. MALISSA THOMAS DIED

Mrs. Malissa Thomas, age 80 years, died at her home in Greenville last Sunday night. She was the widow of the late J. W. Thomas, of Greenville, and the mother of Senator Earle Thomas, of Isabella. She was the mother of twelve children.

Burial was at Antioch cemetery, in Butler County, twelve miles from Greenville, Monday afternoon, with Martin & Sons, of Clanton in charge. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Alley Shell, a close friend and former pastor of the Thomas family.

STATE-WIDE BOXING TOURNEY SCHEDULED ON LEGION PROGRAM

The American Legion, in conjunction with the Macfadden Youth Movement, has just completed in Alabama plans for the most comprehensive athletic tournament ever undertaken in the state. Hugh N. Starnes, State Director for the American Legion-Macfadden Athletic Program, has just announced from his offices in Birmingham that all preliminaries for a statewide boxing tournament, finals to be held in Birmingham, June 20-21, having been completed.

Every Legion Post in the state and every town where the Macfadden Movement is in operation, has been invited to participate in the tournament, which is designed to give every boy in the state a chance to test his skill in the manly art of self-defense.

In order that every town may be enabled to enter teams in the tournament eight key cities have been designated as district centers for early matches. All winners from these eight cities are to compete in the finals.

The cities which will hold the district tournaments, and the dates of their events, follow: Mobile, June 10; Attalla, June 10-11; Jasper, June 12; Homewood, June 12; Tuscaloosa, June 13; Montgomery, June 14; and Decatur, June 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Clay Marcus and children of Birmingham were the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Marcus here Monday.

FIVE GENERATIONS IN THE SAME FAMILY

In connection with the interesting pictures of the twins, we are reproducing below a photograph which was printed in The Union-Banner about 12 years ago, showing five generations in the same family, all living at that time. Those in the group are Uncle Bill (W. R. Robinson) who died in September, 1925, about two years after the picture was made; J. M. (Doctor) Robinson, Perry Robinson, Mrs. Orell Northcutt and her baby girl, Melba Northcutt, of Gorgas, Alabama.

It is not often that five generations in the same family are all living.

Illinois Farmers Roar Approval

I. A. A. Breaks All Records For Mass Meeting Producers

Peoria, Ill., May 30.—Illinois farmers, convening here last week, in a monstrous meeting held under the auspices of the Illinois Agricultural Association, state unit of the American Farm Bureau Federation, roared their approval of the Agricultural Adjustment Act now pending in Congress, as the question was put before the record-breaking gathering of 16,000 producers, by Earl C. Smith, president of the I. A. A.

The meeting was one of the series of state-wide gatherings of farmers launched by the American Farm Bureau Federation and its state units, throughout the nation, in protest against the fight on the Adjustment Act by selfish middlemen interests. The huge convention, representing 95 counties, was addressed by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, Mr. Smith, Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and Donald Kirpatrick, general counsel for the I. A. A. and the A. F. B. F.

Armory Too Small

Thousands of farmers, unable to get into the armory where the meeting was held, listened to the program relayed outside of the building thru amplifiers. So intense was the interest in the matters to be discussed by the nationally known farm leaders that, hours before the meeting was called to order, every available bit of standing room was taken, the aisles were jammed, doors were blocked, and traffic on the street was tied up. Nothing like it had ever been witnessed before in Ilinois or any other state.

Accounts of the meeting were carried by leading newspaper services from coast to coast. The convention brought an immediate reaction in the Congress of the United States. Newspaper editorials praised the sincerity and unity of purpose of the gathering. Resolutions adopted in the meeting, as well as copies of addresses delivered, were requested by members of Congress.

Keynote of Convention

President Smith struck the keynote of the convention when he announced that the meeting had been called in response to repeated requests of Illinois farmers that they be given an opportunity to assemble and answer the nation-wide propaganda against the crop adjustment program which farmers themselves had largely written and caused to be put into operation.

"We are here," he said, "to tell the Secretary of Agriculture and the nation that we not only want the Adjustment Act preserved, but also simplified and strengthened by enactment of pending amendments. There isn't a farmer here for any other reason than the fact that he wanted to come, and every penny of expense connected with this meeting is being borne by farmers themselves."

Reviews Long Flight

Declaring that the gathering in no wise was called to put pressure on Illinois representatives in Washington, Mr. Smith said he had every reason to believe "that all the downstate Illinois Congressmen will support the amendments to the Adjustment Act, and that a number of Cook county representatives would do the same.

The president of the Illinois Agricultural Association reviewed at length the long fight of organized farmers to control farm surpluses and obtain price equality, which culminated in the enactment of the Agricultural Adjustment Act. He asserted the Adjustment Act had been most helpful in raising farm prices and farm purchasing power which was reflected in increased factory payrolls and better business conditions throughout the country.

ALL DAY SINGING AT CAPITOL HEIGHTS, MONTGOMERY, JUNE 9

Prof. A. A. Beaird of Montgomery was at the singing at Cooper last Sunday, and was extending invitations to singers to come to Capitol Heights schoolhouse, Montgomery, next Sunday, June 9th, to the all day singing.

The singers of that section have been meeting regularly for the past several months, and have worked up a class that is really good. This is their first attempt at an all day singing, but they are going to have it in a big way.

The officials of the organization are very anxious to have a good representation from Chilton County. They will make you welcome, you can bet on that. You may carry your lunch if you wish, and eat it there, or ample time will allowed at noon for you to go to a restaurant and eat. There will be no public dinner, of course.

ALL DAY SINGING AT CORINTH

There will be an all day singing at Corinth, next Sunday June 9th.

All singers and lovers of music are cordially invited. Bring your new songbooks and come prepared to spend the day.

CLANTON METHODIST CHURCH

The five o'clock vesper service is proving popular. Last Sunday the attendance increased over the previous Sunday. This service does not conflict with any other, and members of other churches are invited to worship with us. Teachers and pupils of the junior department will compose the choir. The pastor will speak on the subject, "One of God's Caravans."

At the morning service Dr. Middlebrooks, will speak on "The Message of the Trees." This is Nature Month in our church and the subjects each Sunday accord with the general theme of Nature.

Vacation Church School has been postponed two weeks. Each week-day except Saturday the session will be from 8:30 to 11:30. The school is for all children from four to twelve years of age. There will be no charge. Parents should take advantage of this opportunity to have their children taught religion for two weeks which will supplement the meager time we have on Sunday.

Keep in mind the services Sunday: Church school at 9:45. Morning worship at 11:00. Vesper services at 5.

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Mrs. W. L. Hampton entertained a number of children last Monday afternoon at her home in Maplesville in honor of the seventh birthday of her son, Bobby. The birthday cake with pink candles centered the table. Other decorations were bowls of sweet peas and bright colored candies.

Unity-Chilton Mission Institute

The W. M. U. of Chilton and Unity Associations are again sponsoring a Mission Institute, which will be held at Clanton Baptist Church, July 9, 10, and 11. Four tasks must be accomplished, if it is to be of the greatest value to our folks. Help me pray that these may be done.

1. Great preachers and teachers secured. We have already secured the services of Dr. W. H. Carson, Africa; Mrs. Carter Wright, S.B.C., W.M.U. Representative; Mrs. Ida M. Stallworth, State W. M. U. Secretary; Miss Carrie Littlejohn, Principal of W. M. U. Training School; and others are being sought, missionaries and outstanding preachers.

2. Each church represented in a large and beneficial way. We suggest that the S. S. Superintendent, the President of the W. M. S., if organized, if not, the teachers of the adult classes and the pastor, form a transportation committee, and begin now to arrange for ways for the people to attend. Get a school bus, truck or cars, if a number go in together it will be inexpensive. Plan to come every day. Do not have your revival meeting in your church at that date. Appoint six who will attend the classes every day and come back and teach those books in the local church, or one near by. Six will care for every age in your church. It is important to pass on your blessings in that way.

3. Lunch for each day. We do not wish to put the bodily feasting above the spiritual, but we wish each one to have a nice lunch each day. So we are asking each family to bring a generous basket one day, which will not be hard on anybody. The menu has been prepared and we are depending on you to do your share. If your church is not notified as to day and lunch chairman, by July 1st, get in touch with Mrs. L. D. Hughes, Verbena, for Chilton, and Mrs. Grady Heflin, Clanton, for Unity.

4. Each member of each family richly blessed. Begin now to arrange for the whole family to go all three days. It is the duty of every pastor and church officer to be present, and to urge others to attend. You cannot afford to miss this great opportunity for information and inspiration. The program will be printed later. Watch for it.—Mrs. S. J. Ezell, Director.

BETHSALEM NEWS

The singing society of Bethsalem met on last fourth Sunday afternoon, May 26, with a nice crowd present. The singing was called to order at 2:30 o'clock, by Mr. Clyde Wilkins.

Directors for the afternoon were as follows: Mr. Cecil Yeargan, Mrs. C. L. Wilkins, Mr. William Wilkins, Miss Ettie Charles Wilkins and Mr. Edward Wilkins.

The pianist for the afternoon was Mr. Raymond Brigance.

The society voted to get a dozen extra books for the visitors to use.

We will meet again next fourth Sunday afternoon, June, 23, at 2:30 o'clock. Everyone has a cordial invitation to attend.—Reporter.

VOCAL RECITAL AT LAY DAM

Miss Lucy Sargent presented her voice pupils in a recital Monday evening, June 3rd, at Lay Dam. Those taking part were Misses Frances Wood, Nell Marcus, Mildred Wilkerson, Mr. Woodrow Key and Miss Sargent. Mrs. Tommy Thompson accompained at the piano.

The program consisted of old favorites and popular songs. The guests were the families and many friends of the participants.

Sweet peas and large containers of lavender hydrangea and lacy elderberry blooms were used as effective stage decorations. Corsages of sweet peas or cape jessamine.

The hearty applause and compliments have been very encouraging to the young people who have been studying. Miss Sargent wishes to announce continuance of vocal instruction and training in group singing this fall on her return from summer school, where she will study for further instruction along these lines.

ICE CREAM SUPPER AT ENTERPRISE JUNE 8th

There will be an ice cream supper and a community singing at Enterprise on next Saturday night, June 8, begining about 7:30 o'clock. We are expecting some real good singing, and we are going to have plenty of refreshments on sale for everyone.

Everyone is cordially invited to come out and enjoy the evening with us.

The proceeds from the cream supper will go for the benefit of the base ball club here.

City Clerk, Claudie Pipes, stated Tuesday that he expects the Mayor and other city officials to be ready to occupy their own quarters in the new city hall building between June 15th and July 1st.

PLEASANT GROVE

JEMISON

Rain, and isn't it fine.

We have about the same news in regard to the sick. Some feel better, while, we are sorry to say that, there are some who do not feel so good. Mrs. W. E. Miskelley is not improving any. She is having to undergo an operation soon. We hope that she will be better afterwards.

A great many of the folks of this place went to Longview Sunday and report a real good day.

Mr. Bernie Davenport is home from Talladega where he has been in school for two years. He has made good progress.

The writer visited Mrs. W. E. Miskelley Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Champion and son, Sanders, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Champion Thursday night.

Mrs. Roxie Price, Mrs. Z. Woodley and Mrs. J. W. Woodley and children were guests of the Misses Champion Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. W. E. Miskelley's sister-in-law, Mrs. Ersie Bellenger, and little daughters of Leighton spent a few days with her last week. She has gone to Montgomery for a few days visit.

Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Spivey and son Erschel and Mr. and Mrs. Gentry, and Mr. Dalton Campbell and Mr. Dalton Champion went to Clanton Saturday.

Mr. Lance Franklin is taking a study under Prof. Maddox of the Thorsby Institute.

Mr. Erschel Spivey was the guest of Mr. Lance Franklin Saturday night.

Mr. Leo Miskelley spent a few days last week with his sister, Mrs. Hermie Hodgens.

Mr. Ike Waldrop of Illinois is visiting relatives and friends here.

Mr. Ray McLean, who has been working with Mr. J. N. Woodley, has gone home.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wright were the guests of her sister and family Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Spivey and Erschel and Laurene, Mr. Albert Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Vasteen Davenport and children spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. E. C. Davenport.

Mr. Frank Davenport spent a while here Sunday.

Mrs. Martha Wilson, who spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lenoir and Mrs. Bettie Merchant, reported a real nice time.

At the office in Clanton 1 to 2:30 p.m. and 3 to 4 p.m. Friday; Saturday 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The ages for diptheria shots are 6 months to 8 years; for typhoid from 3 years up.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Reynolds went to Montgomery Sunday to get their son who had an operation for appendicitis at St. Margaret's hospital last week.

WILLIAM ALFONZA POOLE BURIED AT SHILOH SUNDAY

William Alfonza Poole, age 66 years, who died Monday morning, May 27th, was buried Sunday, June 2, at Shiloh. Funeral rites were conducted by Rev. W. P. Lowery, with Martin in charge of burial arrangements. The funeral was delayed several days on account of the absence of Miss Vera Poole, daughter, who was visiting in Indianapolis.

Surviving Mr. Poole are his wife, Mrs. Allie Poole; four daughters, Mrs. Ida Culp, Mrs. Lona Scott, Mrs. Nell Scott, and Miss Vera Poole; one son, J. P. Poole; two sisters, Mrs. Lula Burnett and Mrs. Ida Fiquett of Clanton; two brothers, Walter, of Clanton and John, of Shiloh; one helf-brother, Albert Wilson, of Clanton, Route 3.

Pallbearers at the funeral Sunday were Renfroe Mullins, W. A. Kemp, C. L. McCutchen, E. E. Edwards, Hannon Owens and Bob Owens.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pitts of Sylacauga spent Friday night in Clanton as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Pitts.

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Burnette and "Chick" Fiquette spent the past week end in Troy with friends and relatives.

CHESTNUT GROVE

We are sorry to say that Mrs. Mary Lucas is very ill at present.

Mr. Willie Aldridge and Mr. G. G. Nabors were at the trades council meeting at Montevallo Saturday night and report a nice time.

We are glad to say that Brother Horace Nabors will give us two sermons next Sunday; one at 11:00 a.m. and at 2:30 p.m. Sunday school will start at 9:00 a.m. and we will sing until 11:00 a.m. There will be dinner on the ground and singing in the afternoon until 2:30. Everyone is invited to come and bring your song books and some dinner and help us out. So let's all come and have a good time.

Mrs. Eula Nabors visited Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Nabors Sunday p.m.

Misses Gladys and Clarice, Willmer and Francis Lucas were guests at Mr. G. G. Nabors' Sunday afternoon.

Mr. R. P. Busby, of Calera Route 1, was in Clanton Tuesday, and while here paid up for the The Union-Banner.

Miss Ethel Cagle left Sunday for Troy, where she will attend State Teachers College for three months during the summer.

CHERO

Formerly Chero-Cola

What ho! Who's this using a bottle of CHERO—the grand Cola drink—for a christening?

That HAT! Can it be? It is! Thanks, Your Grace for the compliment. It's true CHERO has a vibrant, flavorful zest more like champagne than any other Cola drink. But why not use an ordinary Cola drink and save this masterpiece for a Court occasion? You see, Madam, there's no other Cola like CHERO. It's just naturally refreshing—picks you up, naturally—healthfully—no artificial stimulant. Just the wholesome, nourishing goodness that reaches down and gives you a lift when energy's low.

May I suggest that Your Grace take it home and let the Court Physician test it? But, for the love of Empire, Madam, don't break a bottle of Cola so good as this!

CLANTON 3—ACME 4

Clanton lost a heart-breaker to the Acme Lunch Room team of Bessemer last Wednesday. It was a 12-inning affair, the locals losing, 4 to 3.

Golson started the game and gave up 8 hits in six innings. Robinson then took up the mound duties, and was touched for four safeties during the six innings he worked, and was credited with the loss. Cash went the route for Acme, giving up 8 hits.

Acme scored in the first on Gunnell's triple and Halfacher's single. Golson hit Griffin to start the 4th, and King's double and Cash's single got another run. In the 8th, Gunnell went safe on an error by Jones, Robinson hit Trammel, and then Gunnell scored on another 2-base heave by Jones.

Clanton did not count until the 7th. Hayes was safe on Gunnell's error. Jones popped out. Blood singled, and Hayes took third. Blood stole second. Robinson lashed a long single and Blood and Hayes scored. In the 9th Culver tripled and Hayes singled to knot the count.

Both teams went scoreless in the 10th and 11th. In the 12th, Gunnell doubled, and came home on Griffin's double for the deciding run. In Clanton's 12th, Robinson and Simpson hoisted to Griffin, and Blood was out, Halfacher to Vines.

CLANTON 7—McDADE 10

On Saturday Clanton lost another extra inning battle to McDade, of Montgomery, in 10 innings, 10 to 7.

Watkins went the route for Clanton, giving up 15 hits, including Dennison's homer. Dennison also stayed throughout, giving the Clanton hitters 17 hits, including Dock Baker's home run. Baker's homer was one of the longest drives ever seen here, clearing the distant left field fence by several feet.

Clanton's five errors helped the McDade scoring, all of them coming at critical moments.

The box score:

CLANTON 8—SPIGENER 4

The Clanton team went to Spigener prison Sunday and won from the prison team, 8 to 4.

Clanton banged out 14 safeties, including Dock Baker's second homer of the year. Simpson was on base by a single, at the time. These were the first two men up, in the first inning. Robinson pitched the first 7 innings for Clanton, and gave up 6 hits and 2 runs. Culver hurled the last 2 innings, giving up 2 hits and 2 runs.

Higginbotham started for Spigener, and retired at the end of the 6th, having allowed 12 hits and 8 runs. Hick pitched the last 3 frames, allowing 2 hits, but no runs.

Clanton bobbled four times, and the prison team 5.

ELECTROLUX operates on KEROSENE

"MY BROTHER HAS ONE JUST LIKE IT IN HIS NEW CITY APARTMENT"

ALREADY serving more than half a million fine city homes and apartments, Electrolux now comes to the country—operating on kerosene. It gives you all the famous Electrolux advantages—including perfect refrigeration, plenty of ice cubes—at low cost!

Costs Little To Run!

Owners report their Kerosene Electrolux running for as little as 3½¢ a day. Five gallons of kerosene runs this modern refrigerator a week or more. No daily attention is required.

Simpler . . . More Efficient!

That's because Electrolux operates more simply than any other refrigerator. Like all Electrolux, it has no moving parts! The heat from a wickless glow-type burner circulates the refrigerant which ordinary air cools. Electrolux uses no water!

No Moving Parts To Wear!

Thanks to its freedom from moving parts, Electrolux saves on repairs and is permanently silent, too! For parts that do not move cannot wear—cannot cause noise!

Besides providing modern city refrigeration for only a few pennies a day, Electrolux will add beauty to your home!

A bill abolishing the Alabama school book depository and designating the Board of Administration as the textbook distributing agency has been reported favorably by unanimous vote of the House committee on education.

Asserting that the Government threatens to drop its forest reserve projects because speculators have obtained options and raised land prices, Hunt Fraiser, of the Selma Chamber of Commerce, has moved to avert this possibility.

B. C. Apperson, secretary of the Alabama Independent Merchants Association, has asked merchants of the state not to make any radical changes affecting employes in the light of the NRA decision but that time be allowed for an "equitable" plan to be worked out.

Mr. Phillip Nelson and John Thomas Marlar spent last week end in Montgomery with Douglas Nelson.

PROF. ELLSWORTH ELLIS WAS BURIED AT MARBURY FRIDAY

Prof. Ellsworth Ellis, of Marbury, formerly principal of the Chilton County High School, died in Montgomery last week. His body was brought back to his home at Marbury where burial was last Friday.

Prof. Ellis was stricken with apoplexy while in Montgomery more than a week ago. He was carried to a hospital immediately after the stroke. He remained in an unconscious condition for five days before he died.

Prof. Ellis gave up school work here about seven years ago, when he was succeeded as principal of the county high school by Prof. L. C. Warr.

Rev. and Mrs. Homer Carroll, who have been living at the Poole residence near the Grammar School, have moved to Thorsby. The Walshes, who lived in the same house, have moved to McKenzie, Ala.

20,000 PEOPLE WILL GATHER AT FLORALA FOR MASONIC DOINGS

Florala, Alabama, is just now, perhaps, the busiest and most excited town in America. The citizens, thru their Masonic organization, are getting ready to stage their 64th annual Masonic Day celebration, which will be held on Monday, June 24th, this year.

This celebration, which began in 1871 simply as a community gathering for the public installation of Masonic officials, has grown into gigantic proportions, until it is now claimed to be the greatest annual Masonic day celebration in America, at which more than 20,000 people annually gather to enjoy a program which has grown into Mardi Gras proportions and includes scores of attractive features such as a grand mile-long parade, boat racing on beautiful Lake Jackson, water battles, pugilistic contests, swimming and bathing beauty contests, all-day singing and dancing, fiddlers convention, street clowns, airplane stunts, baseball, golf tournament, and scores of lesser important features, closing with a grand ball at night.

No matter in what direction your interest and pleasure may be inclined, your visit to Florara on this occasion will be one of the most pleasurable events in your life.

Excellent highways, special bus service and the Louisville & Nashville trains, via Crestview, Fla., afford the means of reaching the city in time to spend the day.

DR. CHARLES MOORE GRADUATES AT TULANE MEDICAL UNIVERSITY

Mr. and Mrs. J. Watts Moore left Monday for New Orleans to attend graduation of their son, Dr. Charles Moore, at the medical school of Tulane University.

It is announced that Dr. Moore, after graduation, will take a place as interne at Hillman Hospital in Birmingham.

PARDONED CONVICT BETTER OFF THAN MAN WHO BOUGHT FOOD

Birmingham, Ala., June 3.—The recent action of a legislative committee in turning "thumbs down" on the women of Alabama serving on a jury, brings up the old question of "women's rights" and the placing of women of Alabama on a parity with the Negro.

A news item in the Montgomery Advertiser of May 23rd, headed "Ex-convicts must register to vote" states that a ruling contained in an opinion rendered at the office of Attorney General, Albert E. Carmichael, is to the effect "An elector in Alabama who is convicted of a crime which disqualifies him to vote, in order to vote again, must re-register after he has been pardoned and his civil and political rights restored."

Although he may have been in jail for ten years, he does not have to pay back poll tax in order to vote. Therefore, it brings up the question about our unfortunate citizens who bought $1.50 worth of bread instead of paying their poll tax, and although honest, they are not even on a parity with criminals when it comes to having a voice in their government.

Speakers Explain Housing Program

Meeting Held At Wadesonian Theatre On Tuesday Morning

About 150 interested persons attended a meeting at the Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton Tuesday morning to listen to experts explain how the federal housing administration is able to render assistance to property owners who desire to repair and improve their property.

Addresses were made by Mr. Heeley and Mrs. Dent, of Birmingham, members of the federal housing committee of Alabama. They explained the federal housing act, how it operates, and how persons may go about obtaining and using money under the provisions of the law.

A motion picture was shown portraying the advantages of proper and prompt repairs to buildings, and the processes necessary for proper care of buildings through repairs.

Summarizing the application of the law it was stated that anyone desiring to avail himself of the housing administration's offer, should first figure out in detail just such repairs as needed, showing whether it is to be done on residence, barn, fence, etc. Then take the estimate to the local banker, who will be authorized to loan an amount up to 20 per cent of the annual income of the borrower.

Loans under the housing act are made directly by local financing institutions, and not by the government. Mr. Eric Hart is chairman of the federal housing committee for Chilton county.

AIRPORT IS GIVEN KIWANIS PROGRAM

Steadham Acker And Hayden Brooks Of Birmingham Made Addresses

The Kiwanis Club of Clanton has been the moving force behind Clanton's airport development from its inception. Continuing that interest, the Club at its meeting last Thursday night, devoted an hour to consederation of future plans which are hoped will materialize in the final completion of our airport, not only as a landing place for aircraft, but as a community center and receation ground for all the people of Chilton County.

Dr. V. J. Gragg, chairman of the club committee on public affairs, and leading citizen flyer of Clanton, had charge of the program. Invited speakers were two of Alabama's outstanding flyers, Steadham Acker, manager of the Birmingham Municipal Airport, and Hayden Brooks, noted army air pilot of recent war days. Coming from Birmingham with Mr. Acker and Mr. Brooks were Mr. Cooper, of the Birmingham News and Mr. Huey, of the Birmingham Post.

A group of county and city officials were present, including Probate Judge J. Lee Smith, Mayor C. Fenn Jones, County Commissioners. C. D. Duke, and Howard Oden. Pilot J. W. Allen, of Clanton Airport, was a guest.

Dr. Gragg conducted the program, acting as toastmaster. In response to his request Mr. Brooks and Mr. Acker made speeches concerning the importance of development and progress in aeronautics, both from a military and commercial standpoint.

Stress was laid upon the importance of local officials becoming active and interested in securing federal aid for Clanton's airport in the new works program to be instituted. Mayor Jones expressed his desire to help in whatever way he could to bring the power of the city officials of Clanton to bear in all possible ways to secure completion of our airport, making it a community center and recreation place, as well as a landing field.

ALABAMA'S ROAD FUNDS ARE READY

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace today had apportioned $4,151,115 for highway construction and $4,034,617 for grade crossing elimination prjects in Alabama out of a total of $400,000,000 allocated throughout the nation.

The funds will not be available for expenditure in any state until a program of the proposed projects has been submitted by the State Highway Department and approved by the advisory committee on allotments.

The largest of the grade separation projects is a $750,000 viaduct to be built in North Birmingham over 26th and 27th Stseets, to eliminate traffic hazards at five railroads—the Southern, Frisco, L. & N., Birmingham Belt and Illinois Central.

A total of 41 projects for other grade separations are allocated over the State. One is the straightening and widening of the road over Shades Mountain on the Montgomery Highway, which will cost $1,000,000.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Q. Wade spent Sunday at home. They are spending the summer in Selma.

Dr. Gragg's Flight To New Orleans

Left Here At Four A. M. And Arrived In Crescent At Nine-Thirty

Dr. V. J. Gragg, accompanied by Pilot J. W. Allen, took off in his airplane at the Clanton Airport early Tuesday morning, headed for New Orleans, where he will attend the centennial celebration of Tulane University Tuesday and Wednesday.

Dr. Gragg is an alumnus of the School of Medicine at Tulane, and he was highly enthusiastic at the opportunity to attend the occasion of the school's one-hundredth graduation exercises, in connection with which the special centennial celebration will be carried out.

A news bulletin from Tulane to The Union - Banner Tuesday said "Dr. Charles Richard Moore, of your city will be graduated by the School of Medicine of Tulane University on Wednesday, June 12, 1935."

A telegram from Dr. Gragg at Shushan Airport, New Orleans, at 9:30 a.m. said: "Arrived at nine-thirty. Fine trip." It appears that he carried out his promise that he would arrive in the Crescent City in time for breakfast.

FIRST SINGING HELD AT COURTHOUSE ON SUNDAY

As per announcement, an afternoon singing was held at the courthouse in Clanton last Sunday afternoon. Mr. Jesse C. Jones, who had been elected chairman, served in that capacity. The house was almost filled with singers and listeners, and the singing was fine for about two hours. There were as many directors present as could be used, notwithstanding the fact that there were several other singings not far off.

This singing will be held every second Sunday afternoon in each month, and the co-operation of the adjoining communities is invited. It is expected that a supply of new books will be on hand by next meeting time—the second Sunday afternoon in July.

RELIEF ROSTERS ARE VERY HEAVY

One Of Every Five Persons In Country Is Listed On Federal Aid

Washington, June 5.—One out of every five persons in the U. S. is dependent upon the federal government for support, a compilation of government statistics revealed today.

Between 25,000,000 and 30,000,000 persons out of an estimated population of 127,000,000 draw money for food, clothing and shelter from the treasury, figures compiled show.

These include families and dependents of persons on direct relief, government employees, beneficiaries of public works projects, Civilian Conservation Corps workers and enlisted men in the armed forces of the nation.

The figures do not include millions of holders of U. S. government securities, who are receiving nearly a billion dollars a year as interest.

It was estimated those dependent upon the government were drawing $3,000,000,000 a year from the treasury not counting what the war departments draw, which amounts to more than $500,000,000. The figures do not include a million persons on local, state and municipal payrolls, another drain on the taxpayer.

A sharp rise in the number of federal employees to carry on relief and other recovery functions of the government was shown by Civil Service commission figures. The 709,777 civil employees at the end of April, the highest number in more than fifteen years, were shown to have drawn total salaries in that month of more than $107,000,000, or at the rate of more than a billion and a quarter dollars a year.

President Roosevelt is receiving $75,000 a year. Chief Justice Hughes of the Supreme Court draws $20,500 a year, and the eight other Justices get $20,000 each; Cabinet members receive $15,000 each.

DR. KIMMEY WILL BE HERE MONDAY

Will Take Place As Permanent Health Officer In Chilton County

Dr. J. M. Kimmey, permanent health officer of Chilton County, will be here next Monday to take up his work as head of the Chilton County Health Unit.

For several months Dr. Kimmey has been taking a special advanced course in public health methods at Harvard University. For the past four years, prior to going to Harvard for special work, he was health officer of Shelby County.

Soon after the Chilton County Health Unit was established the first of this year, it was made known that Dr. Kimmey would come here in charge of the work as soon as he had finished his course at Harvard. Dr. Nickson was given the place temporarily until Dr. Kimmey could finish his college work.

It is stated that Dr. Nickson will go to Columbiana where he will take up the place of permanent health officer of Shelby County beginning next week. He will succeed Dr. H. T. Donovan, present health officer in Shelby. It has been reported that Dr. Donovan plans to come to Clanton to engage in the private practice of medicine.

TWO BOYS CAUGHT VIOLATING FISH LAWS WITH USE OF NETS

Game Wardens Lightsey, Lloyd and Marsh, caught two Smitherman boys one night last week and entered charges against them for violating the state law regulating the use of nets for catching fish.

The boys were using a large net in the immediate vicinity of Lay Dam. They and their net were brought to Clanton by the wardens, and the violators were assessed fine and costs totaling $16 each.

Warden Lightsey issues a warning to fishermen on Lake Mitchell that he will do his very best to enforce the laws of the state in that vicinity, and in order to do so will keep his officers posted to look out for all violations. "The river will be full of wardens," he said, "and fishermen had better refrain from illegal practices in taking fish."

Mayor Welcomes New Residents

EVERYBODY URGED TO UNITE EFFORT TOWARD BIGGER THINGS FOR CLANTON

City Already Contemplates Extending Facilities Into New Area Recently Included In The City Limits

To Those who have Recently been Made Citizens of Clanton:

The bill extending the corporate limits of Clanton has been passed by both houses of the Legislature, as advertised, without opposition in either house. The Governor has signed the bill, which places Clanton in position to get credit in the minds of the public generally for what we have and really are—a city of more than three thousand people. This being the truth, it does appear to me that the thought and fact we have moved up and forward to a greater prosperity, to better conditions as a people, from a small town of 1,800 to a city of more than 3,000 population, giving us a far better position and advantage, both politically and commercially, would touch the pride of those who have been included in the new limits, and we who lived in Clanton all the while, causing each one who is now within the city limits to raise our heads a little higher, quicken our step with the progress that is now upon us, replace the frown that may appear on the faces of a few with a smile, speak words of encouragement to all, join hands and hearts with those who are trying earnestly and courageously to improve our city, and make it a better place in which to live.

I favored and worked for the extension of the corporate limits, because I know it is best for you and all the people, and to the interest of the county as a whole. I was more active than any one else for the fact I am Mayor, and was requested by many progressive citizens to do so. It is a step forward to a greater and better city. Can you not realize the larger Clanton grows the more your property is worth, and the opportunity to buy and sell the things you wish is increased. I know some of you objected to being taken into Clanton. I talked with several and found the greatest objection given was the extra tax required to pay. Have you been benefitted by living near Clanton? Has your property increased in value on account of the growth of Clanton? I believe you will answer yes to these questions. You would not have your home, business and acreage moved 10 miles from Clanton without a very great difference in price. Then will you not be fair and just enough as a neighbor and friend to help cheerfully with your presence in the city to swell the population, and be willing to pay a small tax for the support of the city that is helping you?

You do not expect a car to run without oil and gas, or a horse to continue drawing the plow and wagon without food, nor would you expect always to receive rent from a building without spending some of the rent money received for repairs to the building. Are you not willing to do your part in carrying the burden of life and pay your portion of the price of improvement to your own city? I am sure you are when you think of it in the right spirit. In this same measure, Clanton needs and deserves your support and

Outline Failure Of New Deal And Line Up For Aggressive Campaign

Coliseum, State Fair Grounds, Springfield, Ill., June 11.—Grass roots Republicans from ten farm belt states found common cause today against the New Deal in a "declaration of grievances" holding President Roosevelt personally responsible for a "design to set up a collective form of government" in the United States.

The mid western meeting appears to have designated the prime issue upon which the 1936 presidential campaign will turn. Hard pressed resolutions committee members are completing today a "declaration of principles" upon which those prairie states—with 123 electoral votes within their borders—will be asked to support a Republican nominee next year.

Upwards of 8,000 delegates were reported registered at this off year political gathering. They came from Missouri, South Dakota, Nebraska, Iowa, Indiana, Illinois, Minnesota, Oklahoma, Kansas and Wisconsin. As they met today for the final session of a two-day convention it was evident that the 1936 campaign is on and that farm belt Republicans are willing to defend the "horse ad buggy" Constitution which Mr. Roosevelt would change.

'Grievances Outlined'

"Constitutional Democrats" have been invited to desert the New Deal next year in language which points directly to a party realignment if the program outlined here is realized. The Republican name, tradition and party organization would continue with Thomas Jefferson placed alongside Lincoln as an adopted "founding father."

The "grievances" for which the Republicans voted Mr. Roosevelt personally responsible were stated as follows:

1. Failure to reduce federal expenses.
2. An increase of 120,000 in federal employees.
3. The unbalanced budget.
4. Government competition with private business.
5. Unsound currency.
6. Subserviance of Congress to the White House.
7. Abandonment of the Jeffersonian tradition of democracy.

Foreign Markets Lost

9. Presidential control over the $4,800,000,000 works relief fund.
10. "Speculation" in foreign exchange with the treasury's $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund.
11. Destruction of American foodstuff which led to a decline in American standards.
12. Coincident expenditure of federal funds to reduce farm production and bring new lands into cultivation.
13. Loss of foreign markets through crop curtailment.
14. Interference with free business competition, creation of monopolies and destruction of small business.
15. An effort to 'socialize' bank deposits by enactment of a bank bill to make the Federal Reserve a political agency.
16. Concentration in executive control of "a larger mass of wealth" than any private citizen or group of them ever controlled.
17. Exertion of political pressure on "the hungry and needy."
18. Revelation of a Rooseveltian "desire for centralized power and his distaste for the Constitution."

NEW APPLICATION FOR HOME LOANS

L. F. Gerald Is Attorney And W. M. Polk Is Local Appraiser

We are informed that the Home Owners Loan Corporation, since additional appropriation has been made by Congress, has again allowed the filing of new applications for loans on homes. The loans may be secured for the purpose of paying mortgages of record June 13, 1933, or for taxes and for improvements, etc. However, any such applications must be received by the Montgomery office on or before June 27, 1935, or it will be too late. Mr. Lawrence F. Gerald is county attorney for Chilton County and Mr. W. M. Polk is local appraiser for the county, and we understand that information or blanks can be secured from either of these parties.

MORE BRIDGES IN CLANTON

While the population of Clanton was about doubled by the recent enlargement of the corporate area, we are reminded also that the number of bridges in the city was perhaps more than doubled.

In practically every direction one may go from Clanton, there is a creek or swamp, with one or more bridges on the roads leading into and out of the city.

Heretofore these bridges have been the property and responsibility of the county, being, in most every instance, just outside the corporate limits.

In fact, we have heard it said in the past that the original planners of Clanton restricted and located the border lines of the town with the deliberate purpose of leaving the bridges out so the county, and not the town, would have to keep them up.

We have one thing to be thankful for, even if we do now have the bridges in town. They are good bridges, most of them, built by the county in a most substantial manner. They will not be such a large burden on the town to keep them up.

BOYS AND GIRLS LEAVE FOR A VISIT TO WASHINGTON, D.C.

The party was composed of the following students: Woodrow Durbin, of Isabella; Jack Bolling, of Bibb County; Miss Josephine Adams and Miss Mildred Caldwell, of Jemison.

The students are making the trip as guests of Congressman W. B. Oliver, who some years ago set up such a trip as an award to two boys and two girls in his district who do outstanding work in vocational education.

Mr. Fant will conduct the party for a couple of days in visiting many points of interest in the city of Washington.

LAW WILL CHANGE ABSENTEE VOTING

Will Lessen Chances of Fraud In Law Intended For Good

Montgomery, June 11. — Senator Chestnut's absentee voting revision which has passed the senate and is now before the house appears to be a practical and a sensible handling of a subject which has been giving trouble in nearly every county of the state. It is charged that under our absentee law a man who has been living in Paris for twenty years has voted an absentee ballot in every election held in Alabama during that time—or rather someone votes it for him.

An absentee voting law is for the benefit of resident bona fide citizens who are unavoidably compelled to be away from their homes on election day. Mr. Chestnut's bill provides that the voter who cannot be at home election day can go to the probate office personally any time 20 days before the election, get his ballot and cast it in person. That will do away with the accumulation of bunches of such absentee ballots and casting them in the interest of individual candidates. Mailed ballots which have to pass through so many hands are too subject to manipulation.

There will be singing at Friendship church on Thursday night of next week, June 20th, beginning at 7:30. Everybody is cordially invited. All singers bring your new books.

TWO ARRESTED FOR BURGLARY

Jemison Boys Caught In The Attempt To Burglarize Clanton Motors

Joe Kellum and J. W. Davis, young white men about 25 or 30 years of age, of Jemison, were foiled in their attempted burglary of Clanton Motors Tuesday night and placed in the county jail.

The arrests were made by Police Chief John Browder and his men, assisted by the Sheriff's deputies.

The officers were on guard about the building and saw the two men break one of the windows in the rear. After breaking the window they evidently decided to circle the building again to see that everything was clear. As they came around to the front they saw the flash of an officer's light. Before they could get away the signal was given by Chief Browder, and the officers closed in on them.

The burglars had concealed on their person a 45 and a 32 Colt pistol, which were identified as guns taken from the Jemison Hardware Company a few weeks ago.

MAHAN-HURTT WEDDING IS SURPRISE TO MANY FRIENDS

A pleasant surprise to their many friends in Clanton was the announcement recently of the marriage of Miss Gertie Will Mahan to Mr. Curtis Hurt last January, 9, 1935.

The ceremony was quietly solemnized in Prattville and announcement of the event was made this week by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Mahan.

Mrs. Hurtt is a former student of the Chilton County High School and is a member of Clanton's popular younger social set. Mr. Hurtt is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hardy Hurtt, of Jemison.

The young couple will make their home in Clanton where Mr. Hurtt holds a responsible position with Polk Bros. Motor Company.

IT'S A BOY

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Easterling of Pine Dale are the proud parents of a nine-pound baby boy which arrived Saturday morning, June 8th. They will give him a name later.

MORE PROJECTS BEING PLANNED

Mayor C. Fenn Jones Getting Ready To Take Steps For City Improvements

Mayor C. Fenn Jones is greatly pleased over the successful passage of the bill to enlarge the city limits of Clanton. His first official act after the passage of the bill was to address a letter of welcome to the new citizens of the city who were made residents of Clanton by enactment of the law.

The Unoin-Banner is glad to have the opportunity of publishing this letter of welcome to our new residents. We urge all concerned to read carefully and ponder seriously the things the Mayor says to them in his letter. Mr. Jones, in advocating the bill for enlargement of Clanton, was acting with a sincere motive for accomplishing better and bigger things for Clanton and her people. He realized, quite correctly, we believe, that the key to the future lay in the question of a bigger town, a city with more people and more property.

Mayor Jones promised to do some things immediately for the betterment of Clanton if the city limits were extended He has already begun to lay plans to carry out his former promises. First, he has requested our Senators and Representative in Congress to give us a new census of Clanton in order to determine the exact population figures. This is a very important matter, since many advantages are given to cities on the basis of population. We will fare much better when certain melons are sliced if we can show a population of three thousand or more, instead of eighteen hundred.

Furthermore, Mayor Jones has already contacted federal authorities expressing his wishes to institute certain other public projects with federal aid. Among these are the important matters of extending water mains into the new territory recently added. Another, and most important of all is to secure a working plan to improve and increase building facilities at Clanton Grammar School. Still another important matter having the attention of the Mayor is the possibility of opening up additional streets and roads into the new city area, and the paving of some more streets in the city proper.

We believe Clanton will be greatly benefitted by enlargement of the corporate area. We believe the people who are brought into the city thereby will appreciate and realize distinct advantages from being in Clanton.

There can be no doubt that Mayor Jones was right in his views advocating city enlargement. The wisdom of his position will be proven, because he is evidently going to the bat in earnest to get for his people all of the advantages that are possible for them.

NINE SENT TO PEN

One white man, one negro woman and seven negro men were sent to the penitentiary last Saturday afternoon to put up time for Chilton county and the state of Alabama, as a result of conviction and sentence in the Circuit Court.

Following is the list of those who were carried away: Ed Thomas, white man; Lillie Belle Ford, negro woman; Abe Sherrod, C. C. Sammons, Curlee Vinson, Harvey Vinson, Harvey Dejarnett, Willie Roberts, negro men.

Relief Gardens Given Ratings

Judges Visit Several Projects In Chilton County Last Friday

A committee of judges composed of Miss Ruth Padue, Victor Norris and W. M. Wyatt, on last Fiday accompanied Miss Kittye Clyde Austin on a tour of inspection for the purpose of studying and classifying a number of relief garden projects in the neighborhood of Mountain Creek, Coopers and Clanton.

Highest rating was gven to gardens of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Maddox in Clanton, first place; Mrs. Long, Coopers, second; and Mr. and Mrs. Crawford, Clanton, third. Honorable mention was given to projects of Mr. Jordan of Mr. Creek; Mrs. Minor, Coopers; and Mr. Burkhalter, Coopers.

The relief garden projects are being carried out under garden supervsion of the relief administration, and constitute the only means of support of the families, except the small cash allowance granted them from relief adminstration.

Judging by those projects visited, it must be said that the people on relief are doing a fine piece of work with their gardens in provding food for themselves during the summer, and preparatory to canning vegetables for use during winter months.

Prof. Ellsworth Ellis, of Marbury, formerly principal of the Chilton County High School, died in Montgomery last week. His body was brought back to his home at Marbury where burial was last Friday.

Prof. Ellis was stricken with apoplexy while in Montgomery more than a week ago. He was carried to a hospital immediately after the stroke. He remained in an unconscious condition for five days before he died.

Prof. Ellis gave up school work here about seven years ago, when he was succeeded as principal of the county high school by Prof. L. C. Warr.

Rev. and Mrs. Homer Carroll, who have been living at the Poole residence near the Grammar School, have moved to Thorsby. The Walshes, who lived in the same house, have moved to McKenzie, Ala.

Florala, Alabama, is just now, perhaps, the busiest and most excited town in America. The citizens, thru their Masonic organization, are getting ready to stage their 64th annual Masonic Day celebration, which will be held on Monday, June 24th, this year.

This celebration, which began in 1871 simply as a community gathering for the public installation of Masonic officials, has grown into gigantic proportions, until it is now claimed to be the greatest annual Masonic day celebration in America, at which more than 20,000 people annually gather to enjoy a program which has grown into Mardi Gras proportions and includes scores of attractive features such as a grand mile-long parade, boat racing on beautiful Lake Jackson, water battles, pugilistic contests, swimming and bathing beauty contests, all-day singing and dancing, fiddlers convention, street clowns, airplane stunts, baseball, golf tournament, and scores of lesser important features, closing with a grand ball at night.

No matter in what direction your interest and pleasure may be inclined, your visit to Florara on this occasion will be one of the most pleasurable events in your life.

Excellent highways, special bus service and the Louisville & Nashville trains, via Crestview, Fla., afford the means of reaching the city in time to spend the day.

DR. CHARLES MOORE GRADUATES AT TULANE MEDICAL UNIVERSITY

Mr. and Mrs. J. Watts Moore left Monday for New Orleans to attend graduation of their son, Dr. Charles Moore, at the medical school of Tulane University.

It is announced that Dr. Moore, after graduation, will take a place as interne at Hillman Hospital in Birmingham.

PARDONED CONVICT BETTER OFF THAN MAN WHO BOUGHT FOOD

Birmingham, Ala., June 3.—The recent action of a legislative committee in turning "thumbs down" on the women of Alabama serving on a jury, brings up the old question of "women's rights" and the placing of women of Alabama on a parity with the Negro.

A news item in the Montgomery Advertiser of May 23rd, headed "Ex-convicts must register to vote" states that a ruling contained in an opinion rendered at the office of Attorney General, Albert E. Carmichael, is to the effect "An elector in Alabama who is convicted of a crime which disqualifies him to vote, in order to vote again, must re-register after he has been pardoned and his civil and political rights restored."

Although he may have been in jail for ten years, he does not have to pay back poll tax in order to vote. Therefore, it brings up the question about our unfortunate citizens who bought $1.50 worth of bread instead of paying their poll tax, and although honest, they are not even on a parity with criminals when it comes to having a voice in their government.

Speakers Explain Housing Program

Meeting Held At Wadesonian Theatre On Tuesday Morning

About 150 interested persons attended a meeting at the Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton Tuesday morning to listen to experts explain how the federal housing administration is able to render assistance to property owners who desire to repair and improve their property.

Addresses were made by Mr. Heeley and Mrs. Dent, of Birmingham, members of the federal housing committee of Alabama. They explained the federal housing act, how it operates, and how persons may go about obtaining and using money under the provisions of the law.

Summarizing the application of the law it was stated that anyone desiring to avail himself of the housing administration's offer, should first figure out in detail just such repairs as needed, showing whether it is to be done on residence, barn, fence, etc. Then take the estimate to the local banker, who will be authorized to loan an amount up to 20 per cent of the annual income of the borrower.

Loans under the housing act are made directly by local financing institutions, and not by the government. Mr. Eric Hart is chairman of the federal housing committee for Chilton county.

AIRPORT IS GIVEN KIWANIS PROGRAM

Steadham Acker And Hayden Brooks Of Birmingham Made Addresses

The Kiwanis Club of Clanton has been the moving force behind Clanton's airport development from its inception. Continuing that interest, the Club at its meeting last Thursday night, devoted an hour to consederation of future plans which are hoped will materialize in the final completion of our airport, not only as a landing place for aircraft, but as a community center and receation ground for all the people of Chilton County.

Dr. V. J. Gragg, chairman of the club committee on public affairs, and leading citizen flyer of Clanton, had charge of the program. Invited speakers were two of Alabama's outstanding flyers, Steadham Acker, manager of the Birmingham Municipal Airport, and Hayden Brooks, noted army air pilot of recent war days. Coming from Birmingham with Mr. Acker and Mr. Brooks were Mr. Cooper, of the Birmingham News and Mr. Huey, of the Birmingham Post.

A group of county and city officials were present, including Probate Judge J. Lee Smith, Mayor C. Fenn Jones, County Commissioners, C. D. Duke, and Howard Oden. Pilot J. W. Allen, of Clanton Airport, was a guest.

Dr. Gragg conducted the program, acting as toastmaster. In response to his request Mr. Brooks and Mr. Acker made speeches concerning the importance of development and progress in aeronautics, both from a military and commercial standpoint.

Stress was laid upon the importance of local officials becoming active and interested in securing federal aid for Clanton's airport in the new works program to be instituted. Mayor Jones expressed his desire to help in whatever way he could to bring the power of the city officials of Clanton to bear in all possible ways to secure completion of our airport, making it a community center and recreation place, as well as a landing field.

ALABAMA'S ROAD FUNDS ARE READY

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace today had apportioned $4,151,115 for highway construction and $4,034,617 for grade crossing elimination prjects in Alabama out of a total of $400,000,000 allocated throughout the nation.

The funds will not be available for expenditure in any state until a program of the proposed projects has been submitted by the State Highway Department and approved by the advisory committee on allotments.

The largest of the grade separation projects is a $750,000 viaduct to be built in North Birmingham over 26th and 27th Stseets, to eliminate traffic hazards at five railroads—the Southern, Frisco, L. & N., Birmingham Belt and Illinois Central.

A total of 41 projects for other grade separations are allocated over the State. One is the straightening and widening of the road over Shades Mountain on the Montgomery Highway, which will cost $1,000,000.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Q. Wade spent Sunday at home. They are spending the summer in Selma.

Dr. Gragg's Flight To New Orleans

Left Here At Four A. M. And Arrived In Crescent At Nine-Thirty

Dr. V. J. Gragg, accompanied by Pilot J. W. Allen, took off in his airplane at the Clanton Airport early Tuesday morning, headed for New Orleans, where he will attend the centennial celebration of Tulane University Tuesday and Wednesday.

Dr. Gragg is an alumnus of the School of Medicine at Tulane, and he was highly enthusiastic at the opportunity to attend the occasion of the school's one-hundredth graduation exercises, in connection with which the special centennial celebration will be carried out.

A news bulletin from Tulane to The Union-Banner Tuesday said "Dr. Charles Richard Moore, of your city will be graduated by the School of Medicine of Tulane University on Wednesday, June 12, 1935."

A telegram from Dr. Gragg at Shushan Airport, New Orleans, at 9:30 a.m. said: "Arrived at nine-thirty. Fine trip." It appears that he carried out his promise that he would arrive in the Crescent City in time for breakfast.

FIRST SINGING HELD AT COURTHOUSE ON SUNDAY

As per announcement, an afternoon singing was held at the courthouse in Clanton last Sunday afternoon. Mr. Jesse C. Jones, who had been elected chairman, served in that capacity. The house was almost filled with singers and listeners, and the singing was fine for about two hours. There were as many directors present as could be used, notwithstanding the fact that there were several other singings not far off.

This singing will be held every second Sunday afternoon in each month, and the co-operation of the adjoining communities is invited. It is expected that a supply of new books will be on hand by next meeting time—the second Sunday afternoon in July.

RELIEF ROSTERS ARE VERY HEAVY

One Of Every Five Persons In Country Is Listed On Federal Aid

Washington, June 5.—One out of every five persons in the U. S. is dependent upon the federal government for support, a compilation of government statistics revealed today.

Between 25,000,000 and 30,000,000 persons out of an estimated population of 127,000,000 draw money for food, clothing and shelter from the treasury, figures compiled show.

These include families and dependents of persons on direct relief, government employees, beneficiaries of public works projects, Civilian Conservation Corps workers and enlisted men in the armed forces of the nation.

The figures do not include millions of holders of U. S, government securities, who are receiving nearly a billion dollars a year as interest.

It was estimated those dependent upon the government were drawing $3,000,000,000 a year from the treasury not counting what the war departments draw, which amounts to more than $500,000,000. The figures do not include a million persons on local, state and municipal payrolls, another drain on the taxpayer.

A sharp rise in the number of federal employees to carry on relief and other recovery functions of the government was shown by Civil Service commission figures. The 709,777 civil employees at the end of April, the highest number in more than fifteen years, were shown to have drawn total salaries in that month of more than $107,000,000, or at the rate of more than a billion and a quarter doliars a year.

President Roosevelt is receiving $75,000 a year. Chief Justice Hughes of the Supreme Court draws $20,500 a year, and the eight other Justices get $20,000 each; Cabinet members receive $15,000 each.

DR. KIMMEY WILL BE HERE MONDAY

Will Take Place As Permanent Health Officer In Chilton County

Dr. J. M. Kimmey, permanent health officer of Chilton County, will be here next Monday to take up his work as head of the Chilton County Health Unit.

For several months Dr. Kimmey has been taking a special advanced course in public health methods at Harvard University. For the past four years, prior to going to Harvard for special work, he was health officer of Shelby County.

Soon after the Chilton County Health Unit was established the first of this year, it was made known that Dr. Kimmey would come here in charge of the work as soon as he had finished his course at Harvard. Dr. Nickson was given the place temporarily until Dr. Kimmey could finish his college work.

It is stated that Dr. Nickson will go to Columbiana where he will take up the place of permanent health officer of Shelby County beginning next week. He will succeed Dr. H. T. Donovan, present health officer in Shelby. It has been reported that Dr. Donovan plans to come to Clanton to engage in the private practice of medicine.

TWO BOYS CAUGHT VIOLATING FISH LAWS WITH USE OF NETS

Game Wardens Lightsey, Lloyd and Marsh, caught two Smitherman boys one night last week and entered charges against them for violating the state law regulating the use of nets for catching fish.

The boys were using a large net in the immediate vicinity of Lay Dam. They and their net were brought to Clanton by the wardens, and the violators were assessed fine and costs totaling $16 each.

Warden Lightsey issues a warning to fishermen on Lake Mitchell that he will do his very best to enforce the laws of the state in that vicinity, and in order to do so will keep his officers posted to look out for all violations. "The river will be full of wardens," he said, "and fishermen had better refrain from illegal practices in taking fish."

Mayor Welcomes New Residents

EVERYBODY URGED TO UNITE EFFORT TOWARD BIGGER THINGS FOR CLANTON

City Already Contemplates Extending Facilities Into New Area Recently Included In The City Limits

To Those who have Recently been Made Citizens of Clanton:

The bill extending the corporate limits of Clanton has been passed by both houses of the Legislature, as advertised, without opposition in either house. The Governor has signed the bill, which places Clanton in position to get credit in the minds of the public generally for what we have and really are—a city of more than three thousand people. This being the truth, it does appear to me that the thought and fact we have moved up and forward to a greater prosperity, to better conditions as a people, from a small town of 1,800 to a city of more than 3,000 population, giving us a far better position and advantage, both poiltically and commercially, would touch the pride of those who have been included in the new limits, and we who lived in Clanton all the while, causing each one who is now within the city limits to raise our heads a little higher, quicken our step with the progress that is now upon us, replace the frown that may appear on the faces of a few with a smile, speak words of encouragement to all, join hands and hearts with those who are trying earnestly and courageously to improve our city, and make it a better place in which to live.

I favored and worked for the extension of the corporate limits, because I know it is best for you and all the people, and to the interest of the county as a whole. I was more active than any one else for the fact I am Mayor, and was requested by many progressive citizens to do so. It is a step forward to a greater and better city. Can you not realize the larger Clanton grows the more your property is worth, and the opportunity to buy and sell the things you wish is increased. I know some of you objected to being taken into Clanton. I talked with several and found the greatest objection given was the extra tax required to pay. Have you been benefitted by living near Clanton? Has your property increased in value on account of the growth of Clanton? I believe you will answer yes to these questions. You would not have your home, business and acreage moved 10 miles from Clanton without a very great difference in price. Then will you not be fair and just enough as a neighbor and friend to help cheerfully with your presence in the city to swell the population, and be willing to pay a small tax for the support of the city that is helping you?

You do not expect a car to run without oil and gas, or a horse to continue drawing the plow and wagon without food, nor would you expect always to receive rent from a building without spending some of the rent money received for repairs to the building. Are you not willing to do your part in carrying the burden of life and pay your portion of the price of improvement to your own city? I am sure you are when you think of it in the right spirit. In this same measure, Clanton needs and deserves your support and

Outline Failure Of New Deal And Line Up For Aggressive Campaign

Coliseum, State Fair Grounds, Springfield, Ill., June 11.—Grass roots Republicans from ten farm belt states found common cause today against the New Deal in a "declaration of grievances" holding President Roosevelt personally responsible for a "design to set up a collective form of government" in the United States.

The mid western meeting appears to have designated the prime issue upon which the 1936 presidential campaign will turn. Hard pressed resolutions committee members are completing today a "declaration of principles" upon which those prairie states—with 123 electoral votes within their borders—will be asked to support a Republican nominee next year.

Upwards of 8,000 delegates were reported registered at this off year political gathering. They came from Missouri, South Dakota, Nebraska, Iowa, Indiana, Illinois, Minnesota, Oklahoma, Kansas and Wisconsin. As they met today for the final session of a two-day convention it was evident that the 1936 campaign is on and that farm belt Republicans are willing to defend the "horse ad buggy" Constitution which Mr. Roosevelt would change.

'Grievances Outlined'

"Constitutional Democrats" have been invited to desert the New Deal next year in language which points directly to a party realignment if the program outlined here is realized. The Republican name, tradition and party organization would continue with Thomas Jefferson placed alongside Lincoln as an adopted "founding father."

The "grievances" for which the Republicans voted Mr. Roosevelt personally responsible were stated as follows:

1. Failure to reduce federal expenses.
2. An increase of 120,000 in federal employees.
3. The unbalanced budget.
4. Government competition with private business.
5. Unsound currency.
6. Subserviance of Congress to the White House.
7. Abandonment of the Jeffersonian tradition of democracy.

Foreign Markets Lost

9. Presidential control over the $4,800,000,000 works relief fund.
10. "Speculation" in foreign exchange with the treasury's $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund.
11. Destruction of American foodstuff which led to a decline in American standards.
12. Coincident expenditure of federal funds to reduce farm production and bring new lands into cultivation.
13. Loss of foreign markets through crop curtailment.
14. Interference with free business competition, creation of monopolies and destruction of small business.
15. An effort to 'socialize' bank deposits by enactment of a bank bill to make the Federal Reserve a political agency.
16. Concentration in executive control of "a larger mass of wealth" than any private citizen or group of them ever controlled.
17. Exertion of political pressure on "the hungry and needy."

NEW APPLICATION FOR HOME LOANS

L. F. Gerald Is Attorney And W. M. Polk Is Local Appraiser

We are informed that the Home Owners Loan Corporation, since additional appropriation has been made by Congress, has again allowed the filing of new applications for loans on homes. The loans may be secured for the purpose of paying mortgages of record June 13, 1933, or for taxes and for improvements, etc. However, any such applications must be received by the Montgomery office on or before June 27, 1935, or it will be too late. Mr. Lawrence F. Gerald is county attorney for Chilton County and Mr. W. M. Polk is local appraiser for the county, and we understand that information or blanks can be secured from either of these parties.

MORE BRIDGES IN CLANTON

While the population of Clanton was about doubled by the recent enlargement of the corporate area, we are reminded also that the number of bridges in the city was perhaps more than doubled.

In practically every direction one may go from Clanton, there is a creek or swamp, with one or more bridges on the roads leading into and out of the city.

Heretofore these bridges have been the property and responsibility of the county, being, in most every instance, just outside the corporate limits.

In fact, we have heard it said in the past that the original planners of Clanton restricted and located the border lines of the town with the deliberate purpose of leaving the bridges out so the county, and not the town, would have to keep them up.

We have one thing to be thankful for, even if we do now have the bridges in town. They are good bridges, most of them, built by the county in a most substantial manner. They will not be such a large burden on the town to keep them up.

BOYS AND GIRLS LEAVE FOR A VISIT TO WASHINGTON, D.C.

The party was composed of the following students: Woodrow Durbin, of Isabella; Jack Bolling, of Bibb County; Miss Josephine Adams and Miss Mildred Caldwell, of Jemison.

The students are making the trip as guests of Congressman W. B. Oliver, who some years ago set up such a trip as an award to two boys and two girls in his district who do outstanding work in vocational education.

Mr. Fant will conduct the party for a couple of days in visiting many points of interest in the city of Washington.

LAW WILL CHANGE ABSENTEE VOTING

Will Lessen Chances of Fraud In Law Intended For Good

Montgomery, June 11. — Senator Chestnut's absentee voting revision which has passed the senate and is now before the house appears to be a practical and a sensible handling of a subject which has been giving trouble in nearly every county of the state. It is charged that under our absentee law a man who has been living in Paris for twenty years has voted an absentee ballot in every election held in Alabama during that time—or rather someone votes it for him.

An absentee voting law is for the benefit of resident bona fide citizens who are unavoidably compelled to be away from their homes on election day. Mr. Chestnut's bill provides that the voter who cannot be at home election day can go to the probate office personally any time 20 days before the election, get his ballot and cast it in person. That will do away with the accumulation of bunches of such absentee ballots and casting them in the interest of individual candidates. Mailed ballots which have to pass through so many hands are too subject to manipulation.

There will be singing at Friendship church on Thursday night of next week, June 20th, beginning at 7:30. Everybody is cordially invited. All singers bring your new books.

TWO ARRESTED FOR BURGLARY

Jemison Boys Caught In The Attempt To Burglarize Clanton Motors

Joe Kellum and J. W. Davis, young white men about 25 or 30 years of age, of Jemison, were foiled in their attempted burglary of Clanton Motors Tuesday night and placed in the county jail.

The arrests were made by Police Chief John Browder and his men, assisted by the Sheriff's deputies.

The officers were on guard about the building and saw the two men break one of the windows in the rear. After breaking the window they evidently decided to circle the building again to see that everything was clear. As they came around to the front they saw the flash of an officer's light. Before they could get away the signal was given by Chief Browder, and the officers closed in on them.

The burglars had concealed on their person a 45 and a 32 Colt pistol, which were identified as guns taken from the Jemison Hardware Company a few weeks ago.

MAHAN-HURTT WEDDING IS SURPRISE TO MANY FRIENDS

A pleasant surprise to their many friends in Clanton was the announcement recently of the marriage of Miss Gertie Will Mahan to Mr. Curtis Hurt last January, 9, 1935.

The ceremony was quietly solemnized in Prattville and announcement of the event was made this week by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Mahan.

Mrs. Hurtt is a former student of the Chilton County High School and is a member of Clanton's popular younger social set. Mr. Hurtt is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hardy Hurtt, of Jemison.

The young couple will make their home in Clanton where Mr. Hurtt holds a responsible position with Polk Bros. Motor Company.

IT'S A BOY

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Easterling of Pine Dale are the proud parents of a nine-pound baby boy which arrived Saturday morning, June 8th. They will give him a name later.

MORE PROJECTS BEING PLANNED

Mayor C. Fenn Jones is greatly pleased over the successful passage of the bill to enlarge the city limits of Clanton. His first official act after the passage of the bill was to address a letter of welcome to the new citizens of the city who were made residents of Clanton by enactment of the law.

The Unoin-Banner is glad to have the opportunity of publishing this letter of welcome to our new residents. We urge all concerned to read carefully and ponder seriously the things the Mayor says to them in his letter. Mr. Jones, in advocating the bill for enlargement of Clanton, was acting with a sincere motive for accomplishing better and bigger things for Clanton and her people. He realized, quite correctly, we believe, that the key to the future lay in the question of a bigger town, a city with more people and more property.

Mayor Jones promised to do some things immediately for the betterment of Clanton if the city limits were extended He has already begun to lay plans to carry out his former promises. First, he has requested our Senators and Representative in Congress to give us a new census of Clanton in order to determine the exact population figures. This is a very important matter, since many advantages are given to cities on the basis of population. We will fare much better when certain melons are sliced if we can show a population of three thousand or more, instead of eighteen hundred.

Furthermore, Mayor Jones has already contacted federal authorities expressing his wishes to institute certain other public projects with federal aid. Among these are the important matters of extending water mains into the new territory recently added. Another, and most important of all is to secure a working plan to improve and increase building facilities at Clanton Grammar School. Still another important matter having the attention of the Mayor is the possibility of opening up additional streets and roads into the new city area, and the paving of some more streets in the city proper.

We believe Clanton will be greatly benefitted by enlargement of the corporate area. We believe the people who are brought into the city thereby will appreciate and realize distinct advantages from being in Clanton.

There can be no doubt that Mayor Jones was right in his views advocating city enlargement. The wisdom of his position will be proven, because he is evidently going to the bat in earnest to get for his people all of the advantages that are possible for them.

NINE SENT TO PEN

One white man, one negro woman and seven negro men were sent to the penitentiary last Saturday afternoon to put up time for Chilton county and the state of Alabama, as a result of conviction and sentence in the Circuit Court.

Following is the list of those who were carried away: Ed Thomas, white man; Lillie Belle Ford, negro woman; Abe Sherrod, C. C. Sammons, Curlee Vinson, Harvey Vinson, Harvey Dejarnett, Willie Roberts, negro men.

Relief Gardens Given Ratings

Judges Visit Several Projects In Chilton County Last Friday

A committee of judges composed of Miss Ruth Padue, Victor Norris and W. M. Wyatt, on last Fiday accompanied Miss Kittye Clyde Austin on a tour of inspection for the purpose of studying and classifying a number of relief garden projects in the neighborhood of Mountain Creek, Coopers and Clanton.

Highest rating was gven to gardens of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Maddox in Clanton, first place; Mrs. Long, Coopers, second; and Mr. and Mrs. Crawford, Clanton, third. Honorable mention was given to projects of Mr. Jordan of Mr. Creek; Mrs. Minor, Coopers; and Mr. Burkhalter, Coopers.

The relief garden projects are being carried out under garden supervsion of the relief administration, and constitute the only means of support of the families, except the small cash allowance granted them from relief adminstration.

Judging by those projects visited, it must be said that the people on relief are doing a fine piece of work with their gardens in provding food for themselves during the summer, and preparatory to canning vegetables for use during winter months.

NUMBER OF CHILTON SINGERS ATTEND MONTGOMERY CONV.

It is estimated that two and a half thousand people attended the first annual Capitol Heights Singing Convention held in Montgomery last Sunday. All sections of the State were represented. Prof. A. A. Beaird, former Chilton county singer, is chairman of the convention, and presided at the session Sunday.

Among the singers known around here who attended were: Edward Jones of Prattville, Floy Devaughn of Clanton, A. B. Carter of Birmingham, C. F. Hull of Rockford, T. B. Mosley of Wetumpka, Johnnie Stamps of Birmingham, N. A. Smith of Montgomery, L. T. Grant of Cooper, J. B. Hammonds of Wetumpka, H. G. Carter of Prattville, J. J. Boone of Autauga, Lee J. Grant of Cooper, Mr. and Mrs T. E. Barry of Birmingham, E. F. Taylor of Prattville, Ralph Grant of Cooper, and Red Harden of Evergreen.

A number of quartet bands were there from different parts of the state and sung at intervals during the day.

Reports are that it was a splendid singing, notwithstanding the fact that the building where it was held, the junior high school building, was running over with folks most of the day.

MRS. MARTHA JANE WILLIAMSON

Mrs. Martha Jane Williamson, age 75 years, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. L. Jones, near Clanton last Saturday morning, after a long illness.

Funeral services were at Cane Creek Sunday at eleven o'clock, conducted by Rev. W. P. Lowery and Rev. W. S. Cox. Burial was in charge of Spigener Funeral Home.

Mrs. Williamson is survived by two sons, T. E. and George Williamson, of Clanton Route 5; four daughters, Mrs. Adell Hancock, Mrs. R. L. Jones, Mrs. W. M. Headley and Mrs. R. E. Jones.

LIBERTY HILL

Last Saturday and Sunday were our regular preaching days at this place, and we were very glad indeed to have Dr. Collis Cunningham, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Tallassee, with us. Dr. Cunningham is a returned missionary from Japan, and while here delivered two very inspiring messages to a large congregation.

Our singing society met at 2:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon and decided to change the singing from the second to the fourth Sunday. All singers are invited to meet with us the fourth Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock.

Our revival will begin the second Sunday in July with Rev. B. F. Dykes doing the preaching.

PLEASANT HILL

Will you please allow me a small space in your dear old Union-Banner to say few words about our Pleasant Hill community, which is known as Blow Graveyard, as I am so deeply interested to see the church improving as it is. I notice last week's clipping that it had three more names to it's piece, which makes ten. Now I can't understand whether that many more have moved into the settlement are more taking hand in the church.

The little faithful few took dinner at Mr. Twilles's Sunday and returned to Mr. O. L. Martin's Sunday night.

I am sorry Mrs. O. L. Martin was not feeling so good.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Stanley and Mrs. J. W. Cagle of Mitchell Dam, and Mrs. Jean Wyatt of Clanton attended the singing in Montgomery last Sunday.

CHRISTIAN STEWARDSHIP

LESSON TEXT—Deuteronomy 8:11-18; II Corinthians 9:6-8.

GOLDEN TEXT—It is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful.—I Corinthians 4:2.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Sharing God's Gifts.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Joyous Use of God's Gifts.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Does Stewardship Mean?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Practicing Stewardship Today.

I. Warning Against Forgetting God (Deut. 8:11-18).

God is forgotten.

1. Through plenty (vv. 12, 13). It is always true that in time of prosperity the people forget God.

2. Through pride (vv. 13, 14). The natural tendency of the human heart when visited with abundance is to be lifted up with pride.

3. Through self-confidence (vv. 15-18). The inevitable result of pride is self-confidence. The children of Israel arrogated to themselves the power to get wealth. It is ever so that material prosperity turns the natural heart away from God as the source of blessing.

II. The Sin of Robbing God (Mal. 3:7-12).

One of the sins of Israel which brought upon them the chastising hand of the Lord was that of withholding the tithe. The prophet assures the people that their bringing into the storehouse their tithes and offerings would be responded to by God in sending them abundance.

III. Talents Are to Be Used for God (Matt. 25:14-30).

1. The distribution of the talents (vv. 14, 15). This distribution was a sovereign act, giving to each one of his own servants his own money.

2. The employment of the talents (vv. 16-18). Two put to use the talents given them, resulting in doubling their value. One hid his talent.

3. The accounting for the talents (vv. 19-30). The Lord later demanded an accounting from each one of the servants. The ones who had been faithful were not only praised but promoted, while the one who hid his talent was not only reproached but also suffered the loss of the talent given him.

IV. Giving Should Be Systematic (I Cor. 16:2).

This instruction concerning giving is based upon the glorious doctrine of the resurrection of Christ. The one who has come under the power of the resurrection of Christ will be both systematic and liberal in his benevolences. The standard for Christian giving is not the tithe, but "as God hath prospered him."

V. Principles of True Benevolence (II Cor. 8:1-9:15).

1. Examples of true Christian giving.

a. The source of true giving (v. 1) is said to be the grace of God, which means that the disposition to give freely of one's possessions must be created by the Holy Spirit. b. They gave from the depths of their poverty (v. 2), and their unstinted gifts thus became richer in meaning. c. Their willingness surpassed their ability (v. 3). God reckons gifts by the degree of willingness, not by the amount given. d. They were insistent on being allowed the privilege of giving (v. 4). Christians ought to be taught that giving of their means is a high privilege. e. They first gave themselves to the Lord (v. 5). The only method of raising money which has God's sanction is a consecrated hand in its own pocket.

2. Emulation in giving urged (II Cor. 8:6-15). Paul used the generosity of the Macedonian church as a means of stimulating liberality with the Corinthians.

a. Not as a command (v. 8). Giving which has God's sanction must be not only spontaneous, but liberal. b. As a proof of the sincerity of love (v. 8). Love is benevolent action toward the one loved. c. As the completion of their harmony of Christian character (v. 7). The Corinthian church abounded in spiritual gifts, but needed the grace of liberality for the harmonizing of their lives. d. Christ an example of self-sacrifice (v. 9). Christ was rich, but for their sakes he became poor. e. Gifts to be acceptable with God must be from a willing mind (vv. 10-12). f. Every Christian should give something (vv. 13-15).

3. Encouragement to give (II Cor. 9:6, 7).

a. The volume of reaping is based upon the sowing (v. 6). b. There should be a heart purpose (v. 7). c. Giving should not be of necessity (v. 7). d. God loves a cheerful giver (v. 7).

All Are of God

Activities commonly called non-religious—science, art, literature, industry—all come from the same God. Their autonomy must be respected in the sense that there must be no attempt at ecclesiastical control over them.

Life

Life is not made up of great sacrifices, of great duties, but of little things. Smiles and kindness given habitually are what win and preserve the heart.—Sir H. Davy.

Senator Borah Made Historic Speech On Radio

Reaffirms Principles of American Government and Defends The Constitution

Senator Wm. E. Borah, of Idaho, has made many notable speeches in his long public career, but he never rose to nobler heights than in his radio address on Sunday night, June 2nd, in which he made a masterful defense of the Constitution and the Supreme Court.

His speech was a series of propositions—of fact, of undisputed law, of unchallenged history. To the listener there seemed to be a pause after the statement of each proposition, as if the speaker waited for some voice with the hardihood to dispute him or to dissent from his proposition—although dissent was inconceivable, so obviously true was everythng he said.

Referring to the Constitution of Italy as merely the restless brain of Mussolini; to that of Germany as no more than Hitler, reflecting each day his vagaries and his passions; and to that of Russia as Stalin's will and nothing else, he called attention to the fact that the Constitution of the United States is—

"The will and purpose of the American People, crystalized with a written document, binding upon rulers and people alike."

The characteristics of such so-called "constitutions" as those of Mussolini, Hitler and Stalin, are the repression they impose upon the people and the unchecked power allowed to their rulers. This point Senator Borah brought out with telling effect as he contrasted such Constitutions with our own, whose crowning virtue is the control it imposes upon our elected officials and the liberty it secures to the people. Under the feeble constitutions used by dictatorship to screen its absolutism, the people are subjects.

But as Senator Borah reminds us, under our Constitution, the people are the masters

It is congress, not the executive, which is entrusted with the power of legislating for the American people; and not even congress can legislate touching matters wholly within the state. It was this and only this, which the Supreme Court decided in the NRA case.

How far we have drifted from these principles in the last two years, and the extent to which the executive has used the "riotous power in the National Recovery Act" to toss off rules which have the force of laws, can be appreciated when we reflect that the executive departments have promulgated 5,000 laws, whose violation is defined as crime, and over 17,000 rules and regulations for the control of the jersonal conduct of our citizens. All these executive laws fill more than ten thousand printed pages and have already, in the attempt to execute them, cost the people over forty-one million dollars.

"Men have been charged," Senator Borah said, "with the violation of laws of which they had no knowledge and could not, as a practical matter, secure knowledge."

If this is the kind of law-making which the American people want, let them so decide, Senator Borah insists, by amending the Constitution, which is their only protection against improvised statutes of this type.

If our peopue are ready to renounce their liberties, see state lines obliterated and centralized bureaucracy set up in Washington in place of the American system under which we have grown great, let the question be presented frankly and above board, maintained Senator Borah, and then their decision can be taken and recorded.

But revolution by deception; constitutional changes by subterfuge and stealthy encroachment; lip service to the Constitution, with its overthrow the true objective of administration pilots—are not feasuble. This the Supreme Court makes manifest.

That the court could have reached a different decision of the NRA case is unthinkable. Thit this decision should be otherwise than unanimous is equally unthinkable.

"Those who feel," concluded the Senator, "that the states should be shorn of their power owe it to the people to submit their proposals in the way of a definite amendment. This is the American way to meet this issue."

DO YOUR FEET FEEL ON FIRE?

Do they ache and burn? Perspire excessively? Toes cracked?

Go right now to your druggist or department store and get a can of Zeeta, the antiseptic deodorant powder.

Rub it on your feet and shake it into your shoes. Then take out your watch. If in 3 minutes you aren't jumping for joy at the soothing, cooling, healing relief, go back to your druggist and he will give you your money back.

But be sure you ask for and get Zeeta. There's nothing that works so sure, so fast—and it's recommended by doctors, chiropodists, druggists everywhere for tortured, perspiring feet, water blisters, also for chafing and gunburn.

SINGING SCHOOL AT POPLAR SPRINGS BEGINNING AUGUST 5

Prof. L. T. Grant will teach a singing school as Poplar Springs church, beginning Monday, August 5th, and continuing for a term of twenty days. Prof. Grant is desirous of getting the full support of the people of the community in this school. With the patrons and students doing their best and the teacher withholding nothing in his power to make the school its best, nothing can keep it from being of untold worth to the community.

Everybody knows Luther Grant to be a teacher of exceptional ability and wide experience in the teaching of music, as well as a genuine Christian man who believes in the higher and nobler things of life. He is the kind of a man whom everyone would want their children to emulate in their battle through life.

WHOSE WORD WILL YOU TAKE FOR BLOWOUT PROTECTION?

LOW wheels, larger tires, and the high speeds of today make blowout protection in your tires vital to your safety as never before. Are you accepting exaggerated and unsupported advertising and sales claims—or are you accepting the judgment of men who risk their lives on their tires and know from experience the tire that gives them the greatest blowout protection?

Thirty-three race drivers and their mechanics lined up for the dangerous, gruelling grind of the 500-Mile Race at the Indianapolis Speedway May 30th. Firestone Tires were purchased and used on every one of the thirty-three cars. Not one of the drivers had tire trouble of any kind.

Gum-Dipping is one of the outstanding reasons why Firestone Tires give such amazing performance. By this process every cotton cord is soaked and every strand is insulated with pure liquid rubber, preventing internal friction and heat, the main cause of blowouts. Gum-Dipping is a patented extra process not used in any other make of tire.

Protect your life and the lives of others by equipping your car with Firestone Gum-Dipped High Speed Tires—the safest tires built.

It will be worth your time to read these three questions and their answers:

QUESTION 1—"Will the tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"

ANSWER—Leading university tests show Firestone High Speed Tires stop your car 15% quicker than the best of other popular makes of tires.

QUESTION 2—"Are they built to give me the greatest blowout protection?"

ANSWER—Unequaled performance records for sixteen consecutive years prove that Gum-Dipping gives you the greatest blowout protection ever known.

QUESTION 3—"Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me longer mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy?"

ANSWER—Thousands of car owners report unequaled mileage records—evidence of the longer wear and greater economy of Firestone High Speed Tires.

POOR O

A CABBAGE FROM BRADY COOPER

Mr. Brady Cooper, of the Midway Service Station, near Mountain Creek, sent us this week a sample of the cabbage he is growing this spring, the specimen weighing ten pounds. It was a nice hard head, with a wide spread of extra leaves for decoration purposes.

Mr. Cooper sent word by his son, John R., who brought the cabbage, that he expects to banish the depression in his part of the country by growing plenty of cabbage. If he has many like this one he sent, and if cabbage is a remedy for depression, times ought to begin to pick up around Midway.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the people of this community, and other communities, for their kindness during the sickness and death of our dear mother, Mrs. J. W. Williamson; also for the many beautiful floral offerings at her funeral.—The family.

Why The Telephone Company Resists Further Rate Reductions

Rates for local telephone service, unlike commodities, were not increased during the so-called boom years. But the telephone company like most other concerns suffered serious losses in revenue during the depression and since rates did not go up there is not sufficient margin left with which to absorb any further reductions.

During 1933 and 1934 the company accepted rate reductions in Alabama amounting to $157,000 a year. Operating under these reduced rates the company's earnings during the year 1934 amounted to only three and seven-tenths per cent on the investment in plant used to furnish the service.

It is the telephone company's responsibility to protect your service — to see that continued development, improvement and expansion is not hampered. The company recognizes its obligation to safeguard the employee body and to preserve their employment at reasonable wages. There is also a duty to the many thousands of people who have invested their savings in the telephone business.

It is to the best interest of the public, that Alabama's telephone service be maintained at the highest possible standard, that the plant and equipment be the most modern known to the art, so that service may continue to be furnished at the lowest possible price consistent with financial safety. This the telephone company is trying to do.

To not resist proposals for further rate reductions would undoubtedly be considered a serious failure of duty on the part of the company toward the public who depend upon us for efficient, dependable service, the telephone men and women in Alabama who are responsible for the continued improvement and expansion of the service, and the men and women in all walks of life who have invested their savings in the business.

CLANTON 6—COLUMBIANA 5

Clanton evened the standing for the season with the Columbiana club last Wednesday, winning on the local field 6 to 5.

Watkins was on the mound for Clanton, and gave up 9 hits, although Clanton gathered only 8 off Faulkner.

Taylor led the attack for Columbiana, with 3 out of 4, including a triple and a double. Littlejohn led for Clanton, hoisting the first pitched ball on his first appearance at the plate over the right field wall. On his last time up he doubled. Dock Baker got a brace of doubles in this game also.

CLANTON 5—WETUMPKA 3

The locals beat Wetumpka for the third straight time here last Saturday afternoon. The score was 5 to 3.

Through a misunderstanding in bookings, the Wetumpka team was not expected on this occasion, and several regular players were out of town. However, Manager Marcus rounded up a team or regulars and recruits good enough to win.

Foshee had a fast hop working, and allowed the Wetumpka team only 6 hits, while Clanton was getting to Adair for 12, including triples by Simms and Littlejohn.

Foshee struck out 10, and Adair 5. Each team erred one time.

CLANTON 3—TALLASSEE 13

The Clanton team went to Tallassee last Sunday and lost, 13 to 3. This game was a comedy of errors throughout, the Clanton team making 12 of them. The Tallassee diamond is more fitted for a rock quarry than a baseball field, and the ball took all kinds of crazy hops to make our team look miserable on defense. In addition to this, many chances that would have been easy outs on anything like a decent field went for fluke hits.

Besides all this, the Tallassee umpires lived up to the town's reputation of bearing down on visitors. This town has the name of being one where a visiting club has little if any chance of winning, and this game was no exception. Clanton batters were called out on strikes time and again, with the pitches crossing their shoe tops or dusting their eye brows. On the other hand, Robinson was getting no corners from the umps, and as was to be expected, when having to pitch across the heart of the pan to get a strike, his offerings were hit soundly.

NEW UNIFORMS

This week the Clanton team is sporting new uniforms. For the past two or three years the boys have been playing in rags, so to speak, but now they will be seen out in spick and span new apparel, from shoes to cap buttons.

The new uniforms will look something like this. Tan shirts and pants, trimmed in maroon, with maroon socks and caps. The fronts will carry the name: "Clanton," and this in maroon, also. The backs will carry the names of business houses in Clanton, who were public-spirited enough to buy the uniforms for the team.

The material from which the new uniforms are made is good, serviceable cloth and should wear well. The manager has said that in the future he will see that every member of the team will be dressed exactly alike. At least, we will have a well-dressed team, if this order is carried out.

The boys have been looking for the new uniforms all season, but some of the business houses couldn't see the worth of advertising in this manner, and it has been quite a battle to get enough merchants to sign up. That is all over now, however.

The management is grateful to those merchants who helped in this manner, and invites all to come out to the games. While there, check over the advertisers who have helped the club along this way, and give them a chance to realize that "It pays to advertise" with the Clanton Baseball Club.

UNION GROVE BASE BALL CLUB

The Union Grove base ball team played its third game since you heard from us. Owing to a misunderstanding last week's games were not sent in. The following is the score by innings of these. On Thursday, May 30, Union Grove defeated Lay Dam by a score of 9 to 6.

Lay Dam	1	1	2	0	0	0	2

Dorminey and Jones for Union Grove; Miller, Branch and Broadhead for Lay Dam.

On Saturday, June 1, Randolph defeated Union Grove by a very large score of 17 to 1. This was a very good game until the seventh inning.

Score by innings:

Dorminey, Kaiser, Marler, N. Jones and D. Jones for Union Grove; P. Lightsler, Brooks and Brown for Randolph.

The game on June 8th was good and hard fought from the start except for a little wildness. Dorminey had the situation well in hand, allowing only 3 hits, one in the fifth and one in the eighth. The game was as follows:

Union G.	AB	R	H	Randolph	AB	H	R

Summary—Two base hits, Dorminey and Howard; 3 base hits, A. Chandler, Howard 2; left on bases, Randolph 5, Union Grove 5; struck out by Dorminey 8, by Horn 3; wild pitch Dorminey. Double plays, Tucker to Boldin to Raburn.

GAMES EVERY WEEK

Sometimes it is impossible for the management to secure games far enough in advance to advertise them.

The county papers are printed on Wednesday afternoon, and so, at best, only one game per week can be definitely announced in them. However, all through the season, there will be at least two games played here each week.

Fans should remember this—there will be a game on each Wednesday and Saturday afternoon during this season. These are set dates. It is very probable that games for other days will be scheduled from time to time, and if so, everything possible will be done to advertise them. But the Wednesday and Saturday games are sure fires.

July 4th will fall on Thursday this year, and plans are being laid for a pair of ball games for that day—maybe three. Details will be published within the next week or two. Look for announcements.

FAIRNESS

Clanton has always bore the name of being a town where any kind of team could come and rest assured that they would be treated fairly. In baseball, football, or any other sport, by town teams or by school teams, this has been our record.

Naturally, Clanton people are proud of this record. On a few occasions, it has seemed that visitors got bad breaks, but it is a rare occasion when downright home-town favoritism has been charged.

On some occasions, in fact, it has seemed that Clanton referees and umpires have leaned over backward in trying to be straight. Our fans had rather see this, though, than for the town to bear a record of "taking" games of any kind.

The management of the Clanton Baseball Club will attempt to hold this record clean. It feels that its supporters had much rather see Clanton's team lose, fairly, than to win by trickery.

Proceeding on this assumption, the management assures those who attend games in Clanton this year that they will see clean baseball played by its members on the team, and that the umpires will be picked with care. The management will endeavor to pick umpires who know their job well enough to do it efficiently, and who are honest enough to give everyone concerned a square deal.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., June 8.—While most fields of industrial endeavor were suffering a slump during April of this year, the retail automobile business and building contracts were enjoying a vigorous increase over February and over April, 1934. The April sale of new passenger cars reached 3,581, an increase of 92.3 per cent over February and 32.6 per cent over the same month of 1934.

Gasoline sales in April registered a 1.8 per cent increase over the preceding month with a sale of 13,865 gallons. This was 14.3 per cent better than April, 1934, and was 129.2 per cent of calculated normal.

The value of building contracts awarded was $1,336,000, an increase of 87.6 per cent over February, but 27.2 per cent below April a year ago. In contrast, the building contracts awarded per square foot was 5.8 per cent below February, but was 129 per cent over April of 1934.

Coal production slumped 32.4 per cent with net tons produced reaching 680,000. This was 56.3 per cent better than April, 1934. Coke production with 178,472 tons dropped 6.1 per cent but kept 10.9 per cent ahead of the same month last year. Cotton consumption was 1.3 per cent ahead of February with 52,621 running bales.

The consumption of electric energy advanced 2 per cent with 99,557,000 kilowat hours. Pig iron production with 114,824 tons dropped 4.3 per cent.

A comprehensive discussion of county government will be given during the First Institute of State and Local Affairs to be held at the University of Alabama June 26-28, Dr. John R. McLure, director of summer school, announces. Every resident of Alabama is invited to attend the Institute.

Do you tire easily?

Sluggish, overworked blood makes you feel weak—mentally dull.

S.S.S. Tonic brings new vitality and tone to the whole body.

BODILY WEAKNESS is only one of the many symptoms of a low red-blood-cell count. Loss of appetite, underweight, nervousness and like common ills are often due to this same underlying cause.

The red-blood-cells must be up to normal and vigorous to keep the tissues pure and to help supply the body with fresh oxygen-energy in its circuit thru the entire body of over 200 times daily.

S.S.S. Tonic, in the absence of any organic disease, should help you get those vital red-blood-cells back up to normal. It will make you enjoy your food and help your digestion, too. It is a scientific medicine. 108 years of success. Just try it and you, too, may soon "feel like yourself again." Insist on S.S.S. Tonic in the blood red cellophane wrapped package. The larger size is sufficient for two weeks' treatment—and is more economical, too. At all Drug Stores. © S.S.S. Co.

This is an advertisement (you thought so, eh?) directed to those folks who love a refreshing and stimulating Cola drink and don't dare take one after sundown. Some folks even contend that many Cola drinks keep them awake if they drink them after three o'clock in the afternoon. Well, we don't know anything about other Cola drinks, but CHERO, the finest Cola drink of them all, wouldn't stop a baby's yawn. It doesn't contain anything that isn't good for you. But it does contain those fine energy building elements that the body takes up quickly. Next time you're out late—dancing, motoring, working, or just out late—body-tired, nerves frayed, pick yourself up with a CHERO. You won't do any sheep counting that night. And if you stick to CHERO you can pay your sheep his wages and discharge him right now. Don't forget CHERO is the Cola drink that's good for you.

PATES CHAPEL

Saturday night and Sunday were our regular preaching days. Bro M. Lockhart filled his appointment and rendered two wonderful sermons that were enjoyed by all.

Rev. M. Lockhart and two little daughters, Pauline and Christine were the supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Champion and children Sunday. They spent the night with Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Hayes after preaching Sunday night.

He attended the singing at Pleasant Grove and reported a fine singing. Quite a few attended the singing and all reported a fine singing.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Champion and little sons, Alfred and Albert of Cedar Grove spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hayes.

Mr. and Mrs. Grady Sewell and son, Lamar of Birmingham visited home folks here the past week end.

Announcements

We want to remind the folks again of the B. T. U. social that is to be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Maddox on the third Saturday night. There will be ice cream for sale and maybe a cake for some one. Come. Maybe you will win the cake. The public is cordially invited. The proceeds will go for a good purpose, something that will help to carry on God's message.

Our revival will start the second Sunday in August. Rev McCoy of South Alabama has been invited as helper.

CHESTNUT GROVE

We are glad to say that the health is very good here at present, and that is something to be thankful for.

Mr. T. M. Jones and family of Jemison visited Mr. and Mrs. Mack Nabors Sunday evening.

Misses Larett and Nina May Haywood of Ensley are visiting relatives here at present.

Bro. Horace Nabors delivered a good sermon here last Sunday. His lesson was II Peter and third chapter. A good lesson which we should all study.

The farmers of this place have got plenty to do at present.

Mr. G. G. Nabors was in Wilton last Saturday on business.

Miss Larett Haywood spent Sunday night with Miss Margaret Nabors of this place.

THE SINGING AT CORINTH

All reported a nice time and a good singing at Corinth last Sunday. The chairman, A. L. Robinson, led the opening song, then prayer was offered by E. L. Jones.

The directors before noon were as follows: Audie Brown, J. W. Cagle, Herman DuBose, A. M. Jones, Dewel Jones, Raymond Jones, Archie Jones, L. D. Hughes, N. J. Jones.

The congregation was dismissed for dinner with prayer by W. P. Dennis, and one and one-half hours was given for dinner.. A bountiful dinner was spread and enoyed by all at the table.

Directors for the afternoon were: A. L. Robinson, William Gilliland, J. W. Cagle, A. M. Jones, Raymond Jones, L. D. Hughes, N. J. Jones. Two quartets were arranged by O. L. Devaughn and R. M. Jones. Organists for the day were: Mrs. Flora Thomas, Archie Jones, Louanna Jones, Claudie Hughes, Lee Robinson. The closing prayer was led by Rev. E. A. Norris.

We sincerely hope that everyone had a good time, and we invite every one back with us again.—Reporter.

Misses Frances Smith and Mary Lou Fraser Honored on Birthday

The home was artistically decorated in a color scheme of pink and white. Dahlias, sweet peas and gladiolas were used throughout the apartments. After many interesting games and contests were enjoyed by the guests, refreshments consisting of punch, ice cream and cake were served. Assisting the hostess in serving were Mrs. T. M. Taylor, Mrs. Odean DeLoach, Mrs. Fraser and Mrs. Zebb Mims.

DERAMUS REUNION

On Sunday, June the 9th, the children and grandchildren of Rev. T. J. Deramus gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. McLean, of Adams, to celebrate the 85th birthday anniversary of Rev. Deramus. All the children were present except Mr. T. A. Deramus and Mrs. W. R. Ledbetter. There were several of the grandchildren that were absent also. We were sorry they could not be present. The morning was spent in meeting old friends and making new ones. At the noon hour lunch was spread in picnic style, where everyone enjoyed the good eats that was prepared for this occasion.

Those enjoying this happy occasion were Rev. T. J. Deramus, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. McLean of Adams, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Deramus and son, Raymond, of Selma, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Deramus of Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Williams and family of Billingsley, Mr. J. L. Deramus and little son, J. L., Jr., Mr. Cooper Deramus and two children, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Deramus, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Wright, all of Selma, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Deramus and Julia Frith of Plantersville, Mr. and Mrs. Ray McLean of Jemison, Miss Ethel Deramus of Maplesville, Mr. Sam Christian and little son of Maplesville, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Williams of Maplesville.

The invited guests were Rev. G. G. Williams and daughter, Lanette, of Clanton, Mr. and Mrs. Euell Colee and children, Mrs. W. J. Colee, Mrs. Merda Colee and children and Mrs. J. M. Browning, of Plantersville, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Wilson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wilson, Mr. O'Neal Lewis, Mr. Claude Hagler, Mr. Tommie G. Rucker, Mr. Clarence Smith of Maplesville, Mr. J. B. Asburn of Sprott, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Williams, Misses Allie and Eula Belle Williams, Mr. Robert and Mr. Clarence Moore of Billingsley, Mr. John Lawley and Mr. Doyil Smitherman of Adams.

Kodaking and music was enjoyed during the afternoon. At a late hour everyone departed to their respective homes, having enjoyed a pleasant day and wishing grandpa lots more happy birthdays, hoping to meet again soon.

OPPORTUNIST

(Editorial in The Chicago Daily News)

As a philosopher of government the president is hardly convincing. He juggles too lightly with fundamental principles. He reverses and contradicts himself too often. He has, by his acts, too recently repudiated too many solemn pledges.

Who does not remember how, before his election, this most extravagant of presidents posed as the apostle of strict economy? And how bitter was his opposition, before he became sponsor of the NIRA, to the interference of government in business? And how deeply he deplored, before the days of the AAA, the "futile attempt to reduce farm surpluses?" And how ardent, before he took us off gold and gave us the still unstabilized 59-cent dollar, was his defense of a "sound currency, to be preserved at all hazards?" And how profound, before he established the brain trust, with himself as chief brain-truster, was his contempt for what he then called " 'master minds,' in whose judgment and will all the people may gladly and quietly acquiesce?"

Sitting now amid the ruins of his so-called New Deal, speaking cross words about the Supreme Court, he asks the nation to accept him as the champion of centralized federal control, forgetting that only a few years ago, when he was governor of New York, the role he adopted was that of champion of states' rights.

In a radio talk on March 2, 1930, the same Franklin D. Roosevelt who now gibes irritably about "the horse and buggy age," was praising the clear vision of the authors of the Constitution, in foreseeing that "the greatest possible liberty of self-government must be given each state." To re-read the views he expressed as governor, in the light of the views he now expresses as president, is to be utterly amazed.

"The whole succes of our democracy," said Franklin D. Roosevelt as governor, "has not been that it is a democracy wherein the will of a bare majority of the total inhabitants is imposed upon the minority, but because it has been a democracy where, through a dividing of government into units called states, the rights and interests of the minority have been respected and have always been given a voice in the control of our affairs. . . . There are already, I am sorry to say, danger signals flying. A lack of study and knowledge of the matter of the sovereign power of the people through state government has led us to drift insensibly toward that dangerous disregard of minority needs which marks the beginning of autocracy. . . . If we do not halt this steady process of building commissions and regulatory bodies and special legislation like a huge inverted pyramid over every one of the simple constitutional provisions, we will soon be spending billions of dollars more. . . . Let us remember that, from the very beginning, differences in climate, soil conditions, habits and modes of living in states separated by thousands of miles rendered it necesary to give the fullest individual latitude to the individual states. . . . It is obvious that almost every new or old problem of government must be solved, if it is to be solved to the satisfaction of the people of the whole country, by each state in its own way. There are many glaring examples of where exclusive federal control is manifestly against the scheme and intent of our constitution."

Webster defines an opportunist as one who "seeks immediate advantage with little regard for principles or ultimate consequences." An opportunist may be intelligent and may have charm. But in matters of deep reasoning or deep conviction he can hardly expect to be taken seriously.

Legion Meets At Mobile In July

World War Veterans To Have Grand Time in Alabama's Port City

Mobile, June 12.—Chairman Inge, of the General Committee in charge of the Alabama Department Convention, American Legion, which begins at Mobile, July 14, has given notice to Legionnaires that they should make reservation for quarters as soon as possible, writing chairman James E. Duggan, of the Housing Committee, care Legon Headquarters, Battle House, Mobile.

As many of the former service men as desire to go in barracks can be accommodated at the low rate of fifty cents per day and those desiring rooms with bath and garage at private residences will pay one dollar.

The Mobile City Commission has turned over to convention managers two down town fire stations, equipped with showers and sanitations, to be used as barracks, if desired, and the National Guard Armory is also available for this purpose.

Other visitors, in addition to registered members of the Legion and Auxiliary, will be provided with quarters on making requests to the Housing Committee, and many of the most desirable homes in the city are being opened for the convention period to delegates and visitors.

Hotels, large and small, can accommodate approximately 1,100 guests, and advance reservations indicate that these will be filled early in the four-days sessions. Chairman Inge gives assuranc that all will be taken care of. The big entertainment feature is a boat trip to the Gulf on Tuesday, July 16.

Unity-Chilton Mission Institute

The W. M. U. of Chilton and Unity Associations are again sponsoring a Mission Institute, which will be held at Clanton Baptist Church, July 9, 10, and 11. Four tasks must be accomplished, if it is to be of the greatest value to our folks. Help me pray that these may be done.

1. Great preachers and teachers secured. We have already secured the services of Dr. W. H. Carson, Africa; Mrs. Carter Wright, S.B.C., W.M.U. Representative; Mrs. Ida M. Stallworth, State W. M. U. Secretary; Miss Carrie Littlejohn, Principal of W. M. U. Training School; and others are being sought, missionaries and outstanding preachers.

2. Each church represented in a large and beneficial way. We suggest that the S. S. Superintendent, the President of the W. M. S., if organized, if not, the teachers of the adult classes and the pastor, form a transportation committee, and begin now to arrange for ways for the people to attend. Get a school bus, truck or cars, if a number go in together it will be inexpensive. Plan to come every day. Do not have your revival meeting in your church at that date. Appoint six who will attend the classes every day and come back and teach those books in the local church, or one near by. Six will care for every age in your church. It is important to pass on your blessings in that way.

3. Lunch for each day. We do not wish to put the bodily feasting above the spiritual, but we wish each one to have a nice lunch each day. So we are asking each family to bring a generous basket one day, which will not be hard on anybody. The menu has been prepared and we are depending on you to do your share. If your church is not notified as to day and lunch chairman, by July 1st, get in touch with Mrs. L. D. Hughes, Verbena, for Chilton, and Mrs. Grady Heflin, Clanton, for Unity.

4. Each member of each family richly blessed. Begin now to arrange for the whole family to go all three days. It is the duty of every pastor and church officer to be present, and to urge others to attend. You cannot afford to miss this great opportunity for information and inspiration. The program will be printed later. Watch for it.—Mrs. S. J. Ezell, Director.

TWO IN MAYOR'S COURT

Two cases were on the docket of Mayor's court for disposition by Mayor Jones Monday morning. One case was for public drunkeness; the other disorderly conduct. Both defendants were assessed a fine and costs.

Three arrests were made by city police officers the past week, two of which have been set upon the Mayor's docket for next Monday morning.

MINERAL SPRINGS

There will be an ice cream supper and chicken supper at M. Gore's on Saturday night, June 15, for the benefit of this place. We invite all our neighboring churches to be with us and help us out. All Come.—M. Gore.

Misses Gladys Turner and Lucille Taydon, both of Isabella, were visiting Miss Mary Turner at West End the past week end.

MAPLESVILLE Y. W. A. TO STAGE A MUSICAL COMEDY

"The Flapper Grandmother," a musical comedy in 3 acts, will be staged in the Maplesville High School auditorium, Friday night, June 14th, at 8:00 p.m. This play is being given under auspices of the Maplesville Y. W. A. The cast will be composed of local talent, including 24 chorus girls, introducing 16 novelty songs and dances in attractive constumes furnished by the Wayne P. Sewell Producing Company, of Atlanta, Ga. The play is being directed by Miss Sally Pippen of Littleton, N. C.

The title role is being played by Miss Frances McCary, who, as an old lady 60 years "young", goes to Paris to regin her youth and fortune. opposite Miss McCary is Mr. Kermit Cobern as Dr. Joy, the village doctor in love with grandma.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS FISH FRY

The young men's class of the Clanton Baptist Sunday school had a social meeting and fish fry on Yellow Leaf Creek below Lay Dam last Thursday, June 6th. Twenty-one members of the class were present, together with some half a dozen visitors.

About seven o'clock Mr. H. A. Harris, the teacher of the class, called the boys together and to order, announcing that a short business session would be held and officers for the class elected for the coming year. This election resulted as follows: President, Earl Parrish; first vice president, Marvin Huett; second vice president, Louie Smith; secretary, Edwin Mullins: It was decided that the class be provided with an assistant teacher, and Mr. Claudie Pipes was elected for this position. The officers and members of the class pledged themselves for renewed efforts and enthusiasm to make the class nearer what it ought to be as one of the most important parts of the Clanton Baptist Sunday school.

Dr. S. J. Ezell was called upon to make a short talk to the boys, and after he spoke to them very fittingly for a few minutes, the cover was lifted from the tub of fried fish. What happened for the next forty-five minutes is nobody's business.

To say the least of the affair, it was a most enjoyable one, and the boys and their guests went home about nine-o'clock thoroughly full of fish and determined to keep up the fine spirit among the members that was aroused by their coming together in the capacity of that social.

STATE-WIDE BOXING TOURNEY SCHEDULED ON LEGION PROGRAM

The American Legion, in conjunction with the Macfadden Youth Movement, has just completed in Alabama plans for the most comprehensive athletic tournament ever undertaken in the state. Hugh N. Starnes, State Director for the American Legion-Macfadden Athletic Program, has just announced from his offices in Birmingham that all preliminaries for a statewide boxing tournament, finals to be held in Birmingham, June 20-21, having been completed.

Every Legion Post in the state and every town where the Macfadden Movement is in operation, has been invited to participate in the tournament, which is designed to give every boy in the state a chance to test his skill in the manly art of self-defense.

In order that every town may be enabled to enter teams in the tournament eight key cities have been designated as district centers for early matches. All winners from these eight cities are to compete in the finals.

Mr. Jeff Cobern of Maplesville was a visitor in Clanton Wednesday. He says he has just reopened his filling station on the Selma Highway three miles east of Maplesville.

HIGHLAND NEWS

Our Sunday school met Sunday morning at 10:00 o'clock. Crowd was small although we had a good lesson. Everybody come back next Sunday and bring some body with you. Let's all strive to make our Sunday school better and do more for the Lord in the future than we have in the past.

Remember that next Sunday evening is our regular singing evening. Everybody come and let's make it one of the best we have had. We don't want our singing society to go bad, so come on folks and do your best. We want all the singers that will, to come, and listeners, too; you are always welcome to Highland.

ARCHER'S CHAPEL

We are very proud of the crowd that attended our Sunday school last Sunday. We hope to have more out next Sunday. Rev. Payton will bring us a wonderful message, I am sure.

The graveyard will be cleaned off Friday, June 21. Everybody be sure and come and bring tools to work with.

There will be an all day singing in the old books here the fourth Sunday in June. Everybody come and bring a well filled basket.

Roger Babson, the ebonomist, after making a survey, says that President Roosevelt will be re-elected in 1936. We have no way of telling what the result will be next year and have no prediction to make. But if we were the other candidates we wouldn't be too discouraged by Babson. We have some recollection that a few weeks before the stock market crash of 1929 Mr. Babson said that such a thing couldn't happen.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

It may be of more than passing interest to many Americans, especially those who are sea-minded, that a two-year search for the grave of Moses Rogers, the captain of the first steamship to cross the Atlantic, has come to an end in the quaint little churchyard at Cheraw, South Carolina. It was known that the grave of Stevens Rogers, the navigator of the Savannah, as this pioneer steamship was known, was located in New London, Conn., and for many years it has been a shrine of American shipping. But the burial place of the brave captain has remained a mystery. It was known that Captain Rogers had gone to South Carolina, fallen victim to the dread yellow fever and died near Georgetown, and it was therefore supposed that the grave would be found in Georgetown cemetery.

But a search there proved unavailing. It was recalled that in those early days, more than a century ago, yellow fever victims were buried at night, usually in unmarked graves. A search of surrounding burial grounds was made and the grave of Captain Rogers was located recently at Cheraw. The search had been conducted by the National Maritime League at the request of the Sea Scout group at New London, Conn., where the captain had lived as a boy, and it was launched two years ago in connection with the observance of National Maritime Day set aside by Congress as a tribute to the Savannah and its pioneer achievement.

The news of the feat of Captain Rogers and his Savannah sent a thrill over the American public which can be likened only to that inspired by the heroic feat of Capt. Charles Lindberg over a century later. It marked the beginning of a new era—that of steamship travel over the Atlantic, the consequences of which have of course been far-reaching from the economic as well as the political and social side. Perhaps as great a change will be come in time from the spanning of the Atlantic by airship.

Over 200 units of the National Maritime League took part in the anniversary observation this year—May 22—of the feat of Captain Rogers and his crew, and meetings were held in more than 100 cities. It is fitting and proper, of course, that the anniversary of so important a feat be generally observed in the United States. But it is also highly essential that, as Americans, we see to it that the accomplishment of the Savannah does not become negligible from an American standpoint by our careless neglect or misguided policy in permitting American shipping to languish to the point where the American flag disappears from the high seas.

There was a time following the Civil War when this nearly happened. During that struggle, the American merchant marine was decimated in number by Confederate privateers aided and abetted by British shipping interests who were anxious to destroy Amerincon competition. Following this came an era when demagoguery and short sightedness prevented Congress from building up our shipping through subsidies, although subsidies were handed out in other directions. But to the eternal good sense and patriotism of the American people, there came a healthful change a few years ago. Since then the American merchant marine has taken a long stride forward and let us all hope it will continue to move in that direction. The enemies of our shipping industry, however, occasionally influenced or financed by European propaganda or money are always busy. The arguments showing the necessity of a strong American merchant marine should be well enough known now not to need repetition here. But it is to be hoped that the National Maritime League and other American organizations will wherever possible, emphasize the necessity of an American merchant marine over and over again. Our prosperity or very safety as a nation may depend on this some of these days, and at a time were are least expecting it.

THE HIGHER THE FEWER

Says the Alexander Hamilton Institute:

"Commodity prices have now reached a crucial point in the upward movement which has been in progress since February, 1933. An important factor in the rise which has already taken place has been the curtailment of agricultural production. New crops are now in the making. If growing conditions from now on should point to a larger harvest in 1935 than in 1934, the prices of farm products would decline. Such a decline would tend to be reflected in the prices of manufactured goods. Not only would the cost of raw materials be lower but lower food prices would have the way for a reduction in the cost of labor.

"If there is a larger harvest this year with a consequent recession in the general price level, the result will be an expansion of general purchasing power. At the present time prices are so high, relative to the national income, that the general business recovery movement is practically blocked."

Here are some interesting statements. It will be noted that the Institute in spite of crop curtailment programs, finds cause for encouragement for the general business picture in the prospect that crops will be larger in 1935 than in 1934. Although this will mean lower prices to the farmer it indicates that he will have more to sell. Lower raw materials mean lower priced manufactured goods. Thus the farmer can buy more finished products because the price is lower and the worker can buy more of the farmer's products for the same reason. Business will be stimulated by an increased volume of the output. The lowering of prices to the farmer will be more than made up by the greater supply he has to sell and the lower price of the things he buys. The city man will buy more because the supply is greater and the price more appealing. A bigger turn-over means more jobs, and consequently more "demand." The circle will form a rising spiral rather than a declining one.

All of this seems to be contrary to the policy of trying to win back prosperity by a planned scarcity. But it is worth thinking over, to say the least. Worth thinking over, and then some.

THE SUPREME COURT DECISION

May 27, 1935, has already become an important date in American history. It might almost be called a "Back to the Constitution Day." The Supreme Court of the United States, the highest and finest tribunal in the world, on this date rendered a decision which directs the attention of all our citizens to the beacon light of American tradition. America is to remain a union of sovereign states. The power of government is not to be moved almost in its entirety to Washington. There is still a place for home rule and for state rule in America.

The decision must be viewed by all thinking Americans with extreme satisfaction. It is a time not for celebration, not for words of bitter reproach toward those who viewed it differently, but a time for solemn thankfulness. The Supreme Court has spoken. The atmosphere has been cleared. Never was a decision more timely.

That the decision is timely, indeed, goes almost without saying. More and more a large body of our citizens have been looking on the government at Washington as a benevolent father who can regulate and give without demanding in return. But that is not all. Even states, formerly proud of their sovereign rights, have been succumbing to the blandishments of federal benevolence, indifferent to federal encroachment. We have representatives of states journeying to Washington and living in the hotels there. They have come almost as ambassadors, each not representing a proud common-wealth asserting their own right, but rather begging "court favors" in the way of national benevolence While the Supremen Court's decision has no authority over seeking belevolences such as these outlined, it serves notice on the legislative and executive branches of the government, and on the people that we still have 48 sovereign states whose constitutional rights cannot be bartered away even by their representatives.

Parts of the decision which tend to turn the tide of legislation and thought away from concentrated power at Washington held that Congress had no right to delegate its authority to the President, that Congress could only exercise its authority over interstate commerce and that which has a proveable direct connection with interestate commerce. No emergency, it was added, could justify the absorption of states' constitutional rights by the federal government.

In this regard it must be remembered that the delegation of power by Congress to the President to "legislate" did not stop there. Distinguished barristers have estimated that nearly as much regulation has been put in effect by departmental edict since New Deal legislation was enacted as had been made into law by Congress from 1787 up to that time. While the President ex officio is responsible for the department heads and they in turn for their clerks, it is evident that the limit of time would make it impossible for any Chief Executive, with many other duties to perform, to study the mass of rules and regulations which have been promulgated through this authorization during the past two years. Delegated authority legislation stimulated every ambitious bureaucratic head in Washington.

It is of course true that no national emergency could justify a disregard for constitutional rights. We were told at the time Congress was creating New Deal legislation in double quick time, that is was necessary to do as was done because of the national emergency. Yet, it is to be remembered, that Great Britain which is nearest to us in blood and legal ties, has been able safely to weather the same storm without the Blue Eagle. And we Americans should not yield to our British cousins and friends in matters of stability and patriotism.

It is possible of course that steps will be made by Congress to breathe life into parts of the NRA. So long as this is done within constitutional limits there can be no reason to criticize, except on matters of doubtful policy. But the important thing is that the Supreme Court has spoken in no uncertain terms and we have much to think over. It is now time for Congress to proceed carefully without the aid of mortar-board hats.

We heard Representative Cox of Georgia the other night over the radio, answering a speech by Governor Talmadge of Georgia. Is the Democratic donkey having acute indigestion or growing pains?

Since critics of the New Deal are mean enough to say that if this $4,800,000,000 doesn't turn the trick of restoring prosperity we will all be in the soup. What they probably mean is the alphabet soup.

It is reported that the Moscow government is studying ways to add joy and reduce drabness in Russian homes. Why not let them hang up a Christmas wreath or two on proper occasions?

PAGE RIPLEY

Page Ripley for me, please. I thought I had been around some, at least in Chilton County. And I thought I could tell anyone about all the different crops that are grown in the county. But I was mistaken.

One afternoon last week, I had occasion to visit Mr. J. M. Parrish, of Clanton Route 1, better known to me as "Uncle Monroe", and I had my eyes opened wide. His wife, "Aunt Julia", showed me her "fishing pole patch". In that patch she has hundreds of Japanese canes, which make the best of fishing poles. They grow tall, and straight as an arrow. They are tough, too, and will almost bend double without breaking. I'm sure any fisherman would be glad to have one of them.

It was the first time I ever heard of anyone growing fishing poles, especially in Chilton County. Mrs. Parrish has a nice patch of them, and confessed that she grows them for no other use than for fishing purposes.

Anyone who hasn't seen such a sight should, by all means, go there and see the only fishing pole patch in this neck-o'-the-woods. But don't pester "Aunt Julia" for a pole, for she has her own pet pole already picked out. The fishing pole crop will be good this year, though, judging by this patch—the only one I know of. Go and see it—you'll be interested.

GRASS ROOTS

This week the Republicans of nine mid-west states are holding a convention in Springfield, Ill. They have dubbed this meeting the "Grass Roots" Convention.

We just wonder if they mean that the delegates will try to get at the root of their party troubles, or if the term has any connection with former President Hoover's prediction that grass would grow in the streets if Roosevelt were elected.

We are informed that delegates to the convention will voice the protests most generally heard among citizens against the different Roosevelt measures. From these they will endeavor to draw up a tentative plan of attack against the Democratic administration, to be used in the fight for supremacy next year.

Republican leaders feel that they have a wealth of material from which to select strong points for the campaign. The Democratic air-castle measures have broken down in the mid-West in greater proportion than in any other section of the country, and it is thought that these Republican leaders will look to this section to turn "thumbs down" on the present administration in no uncertain manner.

IS IT AN OMEN?

Here is one for the book. It isn't supposed to be very logical, nor to carry a moral, nor anything high-minded, like that. After reading in the papers about the recent flood in Kansas and Colorado, the idea just popped up, just like that—I'm passing it on.

You will remember that for the past two years the mid-west has been plagued by droughts. As a result of the droughts, the grass failed to grow, leaving the lands bare, and when the windy season came, the dust storms arose. These dust storms completely destroyed what few crops the farmers had been able to start. In short, this section of the country became a land of starvation. The NRA held good at that time.

Of course, the NRA had nothing whatever to do with the drouth, but just the same, no sooner than the NRA was outlawed by the Supreme Court, the drouth region turned into a land of floods. And here is the funny part.

It had to be some river which overflowed to start a flood. But out of all the rivers in the whole country, the Republican River had to be the one to start it. Honest, there is a river out there by that name—Republican River—it came out of its banks for the first time in history, according to the people who live near it. And what the flood did to the drouth was plenty.

That was a fine chance for some bright young reporter to have a big headline rigged up to read something like this:

"REPUBLICAN - RIVER FLOOD OUSTS DEMOCRATIC NRA DROUTH!"

That's an idea, any way. Maybe this is an omen of what may happen in 1936. Maybe there'll be another Republican flood to wash away the present Democratic drouth. Who knows?

HOW TO STAY IN OFFICE

Office holders are a curious lot. They rant of the great responsibility they feel to their people, yet absolutely disregard the basic and fundamental law for staying in office, which seems to be the main object. To stay in office, an officer must please the people he represents.

Uncle Joe Cannon stayed in congress longer than any other man ever has, and here is his rule of procedure. Said he:

"When a question arises, I ascertain the wishes of the people I represent. Then, if my opinion differs from their (majority) wish, between the two opinions, I always vote as they want me to vote."

Uncle Joe went to congress when a young man, and, following this simple rule, stayed there until his death at a ripe old age. He pleased his people, and they rewarded him for keeping faith with them. His greatest desire was to conscientiously represent his people, and he often went against his own will to do it.

Such public officials are all too few. Generally they have a set of pet ideas to put over, and in many cases are but the tools of selfish interests with plenty of money. As "no man can serve two masters", the one with the money usually gets his work done, the official adopting the theory of "the public be damned".

Nowadays it seems all the rage for an official to build a reputation for being "hard headed", and once in office he usually forgets that his public exists until election year rolls around again. Would that there could be more Uncle Joe Cannons—officials who have the opinions, wishes and feelings of their constituents at heart. Ours would be a better place in which to live.

THE "WHY" OF ADVERTISING

I have been present when people would pick up a newspaper or magazine, read over an advertisement, and then speak about like this:

"Oh, I don't put so much faith in advertising. They'll say anything to get a person into the store, and then maybe the stuff isn't like they say it is, at all."

I wish all readers would stop just one minute and reason about the "why" of advertising. Just why does a merchant advertise? To draw customers, of course. Now, if he advertises an object to be of certain quality, and those probable customers find the goods to be otherwise than as advertised, the customers, naturally do not rush back to the store. So, the advertiser has not only lost money in his advertising, but a customer as well.

Good advertisers—good merchants don't advertise like that. There may have been a time when such was the case, but not any more. The wise merchant doesn't advertise his "shoddy" merchandise, if he has any. Rather, he advertises his best—goods that he knows will stand up and give satisfaction and bring his customers back to his store again.

Certainly the most of stores carry cheaper and lower quality lines of merchandise, but they are far too wise nowadays to spend their good money to advertise this low grade of goods. Unsually, a customer is dissatisfied with low grade goods, even if he knows it is cheap when he buys it. He never thinks of the fact that he spent little for the goods, and very probably got the value of his little money spent. He only knows that he is dissatisfied, and, following the natural human bent, blames the merchant for putting off sorry goods on him.

Wise merchants know this. They study their job of selling just like you study yours of farming or any other job, and making the most in the long run. A wise merchant had rather miss a sale of cheap merchandise than to make that sale, and then have it re-act by causing him the loss of future sales, which, in most cases, is just what happens.

So, when you read an advertisement nowadays, remember this: That merchant has spent good money to tell you about his goods. Is it reasonable that he will spend thus to help you find out how BAD his goods are? No! Advertised goods are usually GOOD goods. Buyers should remember that.—Man in the Moon.

NEW DEAL BY-PRODUCT

Appointment recently by Governor Curley of John P. Brennan to represent the state of Massachusetts in Washington, and similar previous action on the part of the legislature of New Mexico, has drawn trenchant comment from Raymond Clapper in the Washington Post.

This writer predicts that, in a few years, these "ambassadors" from the states will be as numerous in the national capital as foreign envoys. They won't be nearly so handsome or as good diplomats, according to Mr. Clapper, but they will get results. These "ambassadors" have votes.

The development, says this Washington commentator, is inevitable. It is irresistible gravitation toward the real seat of power. Despite vigorous onslaughts by Democratic orators during the campaign of 1932 against the bureaucratic tendency, the number of bureaucrats has increased under the Roosevelt administration beyond the wildest imaginings of those who watched the course of government a few years ago. These officials direct increasingly complex activities. They have enormous power. It is necessary to keep in constant touch with the more important of the bureaucrats.

And so two legislatures have solved the problem by creating the office of state "ambassador." Offhand, one would think that such a development would be vastly pleasing to senators and representatives. Under the system, these busy statesmen would be saved the time and the labor of running departmental and bureaucratic errands for the folks back home. The "ambassadors" would do the irritating contact work while the senators and representatives would do the heavy thinking for the country.

However, Mr. Clapper says this is not the case. The senators and representatives view the tendency toward "ambassadors" with misgiving and resentment. They consider the fact that many governors are potential candidates for the Senate. If these governors send a contact man to Washington, and that man brings home the bacon, it enhances their prestige and increases the number of their political followers. If a mere "ambassador," acting under instructions, can be so influential at the seat of government, how much more useful would his chieftain be!

But despite the dismay of many senators and representatives, the "ambassadors" soon will be coming from virtually every state, in the opinion of Mr. Clapper. And so we shall have an interesting by-product of the New Deal.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

IN MEMORY OF DEAR MOTHER, MRS. J. W. WILLIAMSON

It was on June 8th, when the Lord called our dear mother away. Her delicate body was laid to rest in the cold ground, but her soul was heaven bound. Mother lived a life that stood the test and her soul is sweetly at rest. Her heart was full of love, for she told us she was going above.

She taught her children to do what was right and in Jesus always to trust. In body she had to suffer an awful lot of pain, but it was for some noble purpose, and we know it was not in vain. Sickness and sorrow, it seemed that mother had more than her share but her reward is a home where everything is bright and fair.

Our part now is to prepare to meet her there. Dear mother, to see you go, we could not help but cry, but there is a blessed hope that we may meet in the sweet by and by.

A true mother's love is one of the purest ever known. So you have a wonderful friend if you only have a living mother. We read of a city of jasper and gold, that stands by a beautiful sea, but half of it's wonders have never been told. How wonderful heaven must be. Our mother has gone to that beautiful land and waiting for you and for me. With angels she sings on the glittering stand.How wonderful heaven must be.

If any of you have flowers to give mother, give them while she lives. When she has passed away, roses she cannot see, and praises she cannot hear. Give her flowers while she lives, trying to cheer her on. Useless the flowers that you give after the soul is gone.—Her Daughter, Adelle.

SOCIETY

Miss Mary Courtney Jones Entertains Honoring House Guest

Miss Mary Courtney Jones entertained at a lovely garden party at her home on Thursday at seven o'clock, complimenting her attractive house guest, Miss Louise Farrell, of Montgomery. The garden was lovely with a profusion of pink and yellow day lilies, fern and tall baskets filled with pink and yellow blossoms, added much to beauty of the garden, which was over-hung with Japanese lanterns.

The hostess and honor guest, gowned in pretty pink organdy frocks, stood by the pool to receive their friends. Miss Helen Moore served the punch here, too. The punch table was banded in wild fern, yellow day lilies and pink water lilies.

Little Ann Callen and Elizabeth Anne Duncan, in yellow and pink organdy frocks, greeted the guests as they entered. The tea table in the center of the garden held a silver basket of yellow daisies and pink snapdragons. The tea service was presided over by Miss Dixie Johnson. Bonbons and cakes in tones of yellow and pink and sandwiches and other dainties graced the table. During the evening about thirty young girls and boys called.

Mrs. J. P. Hayes Hostess

Mrs. J. P. Hayes entertained members of the Thursday Contract Club on last Thursday afternoon. Baskets and vases of summer flowers were used throughout the apartment. After a series of bridge games high score prize was awarded Mrs. J. Hance Alred. Mrs. J. Lee Smith was awarded guest prize. Delicious refreshments were served at a late hour to the following members and guests:

Mrs. L. F. Gerald, Mrs. James Wade, Mrs. J. Hance Alred, Mrs. Omar Reynolds, Mrs. Dick Hayes, Mrs. J. Lee Smith, Mrs. Sophia Jones, Mrs. Eric Hart.

Our Ladies Guild Has Meeting

Our Ladies Guild held a most interesting meeting at the home of Mrs. Phelan in Thorsby on Thursday, these being the days preceding Pentecost. Prayer to the most Holy Spirit was invoked by the chairman. After a short business session the program was given. Roll call. A personal piece of Catholic action was the response.

A round table discussion; "What is Catholic Action?" was ably led and followed by Miss Leary, Mrs. Phelan, Mrs. Parr and Miss Solomon, Mrs. Jones, who presided, presented the summary.

Before closing the meeting with prayer, Father Cazalos gave a scientific presentation of facts concerning sterilization. A delightful salad plate was served by the hostess.

Mr. Joe Mullins of Birmingham spent the week end with his mother here.

Miss Celia Gerald is visiting in Birmingham this week.

Mrs. Ruphus Brown was the guest last week of Mrs. Luther Rogers in Demopolis.

Miss Mary Frank Smith of Birmingham visited here the past week end.

POOR O

GULF PARK EXTENSION SOUGHT FOR BALDWIN

Montgomery, Ala., June 10.—An extension of Gulf State Park is being planned by Baldwin County citizens in cooperation with the Park Bureau of the Alabama Commission of Forestry. Dr. W. C. Holmes of Foley and State Representative A.B. McPhaul of Seminole are among the leaders in the undertaking. Other prominent citizens are assisting in the plan. Gulf Park already has an area of nearly 1,000 acres, including three-eights of a mile of ocean front and a large portion of what is known as Big Lake, a body of fresh water lying within a quarter of a mile of the sea. However, to round out the project about 2,000 acres additional are required.

Just how the supplemental acreage can be obtained is a very live question for the Park Bureau. The financial condition of the State is still somewhat unencouraging, and, while the United States Government will allot funds for the development of state parks, it will not buy the land. It is required that this be secured by the State itself.

As a part of the solution, at least, it is expected that considerable areas will be donated to the state. Strong efforts are being made by Baldwin county citizens to develop this phase of acquisition on a substantial basis. The National Park Service of the Federal Government and the Park Bureau of the State Commission of Forestry are prepared to continue and expand the work program, providing that additional acreage be secured. At the present time prospects for such a development appear quite favorable.

Alabama's the Place To Find Low Rates

"I think Alabama is fortunate in having a forward looking electric utility in it like the Alabama Power Company," writes Mr. Eugene Smith, of Ozark. "I have read a lot about low rates in other places, but it seems to me that Alabama is the real place to look for low rates." Adv. Alabama Power Co.

EDGAR LAMAR GAINES DIED

Edgar Lamar Gaines, age 47 years, died suddenly last Wednesday at the home in Brmingham. The body was shipped to Clanton and taken in charge by Spigener Funeral Home. Burial was at the Gaines family cemetery near Haynes Thursday, Rev Willingham conducting funeral services.

Surviving Mr. Gaines are the widow, Mrs. Minnie Gaines; four sons, Otto, Carl, Lamar and Earle; one daughter, Miss Elma Gaines.

J. Mell Martin is in Washington this week attending the National Conclave of Shriners. He is a delegate from Alcazar Temple.

PLEASANT GROVE
JEMISON

We had a real nice day here Sunday. So much good singing and nice behavior, for which we thank every body.

Our B. T. U. went to Center Hill Sunday night and rendered the program in a very good and impressive way. We thank the good people of Center Hill for the invitation and also invite them to visit us.

After B. Y. P. U. services the pastor, Rev. Maurice Hodgens, preached a very impressive sermon on "Repentance."

Messrs. J. N. Childress, Bud Robinson and Dalton Champion went to Clanton last Monday.

Mr. Cyrill Baggett of Thorsby spent a few days with his sister, Mrs. Vasteen Davenport last week.

Miss Edith Davenport spent last Monday night with her aunts, the Misses Champion. She and Mr. Lance Franklin of this community are attending summer school at Thorsby making up a credit so they can finish high school next year.

We like to see our young people interested in educational work.

Mr. Sydney Bellenger of Cleveland, Ala., spent the week end with his sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Miskelley.

Mr. and Mrs. Erskin Martin and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Marcus and little son, Aldene, were the week end guests of their home folks, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wright and sons, James and Maurice.

Mr. J. D. Wright of Thorsby visited his brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wright, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Miskelley spent Saturday night with his father, mother and brothers, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Miskelley, and Woodrow, Charley Vernon and Leo.

Most all of the sick people around here seem to be improving. There are a few who do not fell so good. Mrs. Walter Wood is not improving so much and Mrs. W. E. Miskelley is not so good yet. But we are always hoping for better things to happen, so hope that they will soon be enjoying good health. May God bless them all.

Judge and Mrs. C. B. Kennamer and sons, Ralph and Rex, of Montgomery, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Middleton here.

ITCH STOPS Like Magic!

Folks who have used HYDROSAL for itching, burning outbreaks could hardly believe such quick relief was possible! Doctors have prescribed HYDROSAL for 23 years. Even in stubborn, torturing eczema, Athlete's Foot (or "Itchy Toes"), rashes and pimples, the burning and itching fade away the minute HYDROSAL touches the skin. HYDROSAL penetrates the skin and acts to check growth of the germ causing local disorder. Gives Nature real help to quick healing. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau. Money back if it does not satisfy you. At all druggists in two forms, liquid and ointment—30c and 60c sizes.

BOLL WEEVILS REPORTED IN 21 ALABAMA COUNTIES

Auburn, Ala., June 11.—Boll weevils are plentiful throughout south Alabama. They have been reported by county agents in the following counties: Baldwin, Bibb, Butler, Chambers, Choctaw, Clay, Conecuh, Crenshaw, Dale, Dallas, Fayette, Hale, Henry, Jackson, Lawndes, Madison, Pike, Russell, Talladega, Tallapoosa, and Tuscaloosa.

Upon receiving the report, Prof. J. M. Robinson, entomologist, recommended the use of calcium arsenate in combatting this cotton insect. He stated that the poison should be applied by a dust gun at the rate of 5 or 6 pounds per acre.

ALABAMA LAND VALUES MAINTAIN BEST LEVEL

Montgomery, Ala., June 11.—The value of farm lands in Alabama has maintained a more nearly even level than the average for the United States and than other states surrounding, with the exception of Florida, reports F. W. Gist, state and federal agricultural statistican.

Index numbers of such values, based on the average of 1912-14 which are taken as 100, indicative the level of Alabama values in 1920 was 177, and the average for the United States in the same year was 170. The average for 1935 in Alabama is found to be 110, while that of the United States is 79. Only a few states show a higher level of land values at present than the average for Aalbama.

YOUNG CALVES NEED SOME GRAIN FEED THIS SEASON

Auburn, Ala., June 10.—Yearling heifers and 2-year-olds may be fed at this season on pasture alone, but the calves under 6 or 8 months of age require some grain feeding in addition to grass in order to keep thrifty and growing, advises W. H. Eaton, of the dairy division of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

"Most pastures may be improved by mowing several times during the summer to control the crop of weeks," he says. "Bitter weeds should not be clipped too low at the first mowing as this may cause seed to form so low as to be difficult to clip at later mowings."

HAY GROWERS SEEK ASSISTANCE FROM AAA

Auburn, Ala., June 10.—Hay producers of the Black Belt section of Alabama and Mississippi are at present raising money among themselves to send representatives to Washington on June 16th to ask the AAA officials to purchase about 700 cars of surplus Johnson grass hay for which they can not find a market.

WHEAT FARMERS WANT PROGRAM CONTINUED

Auburn, Ala., June 10.—Wheat farmers voted on May 25th almost 7 to 1 in favor of the AAA wheat control program being continued. The latest tabulations of 458,973 votes show that 397,840 farmers voted for the program to be continued, and 61,133 voted against it. Only one state voted that the program be discontinued; in New Jersey the vote was 58 for the program and 72 against it.

ROBINSON SPRINGS

Next Saturday and Sunday are our regular preaching days at this place; we cordially invite everyone to come out and hear Rev. Cost. You will enjoy hearing him preach.

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely; we have good attendance every Sunday, and we thank the people of the community for their interest.

We also have prayer meeting every Sunday night, when the weather permits. Everybody is invited to come out and be with us in our service.

Don't forget that our revival begins here the third Saturday in July. We invite everybody to attend our services at any and all times, and we extend to all a hearty welcome.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

Bismarck said, "What you wish to have in the life of a nation, first place in the schools of a nation." Freeman Hopwood, of the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism, said in an address, "The beauty of it is that we have so many atheists in the college faculties of America. They encourage the students all they can. As the movement grows, professors will become more and more open in their private beliefs." It is the opinion of the writer that the communistic influences—which every well-informed person knows are working in American colleges and universities—are going to wreck this nation unless the plain, average American citizen is awakened to a sense of his personal responsibility. Every American citizen should write the president of his church college, state colleges, and state universities and ask such specific questions as "Do you have any atheists in your faculty?" Do you have any teachers who believe in free love?" "Do your teachers believe the Bible?" If ten million letters like that should go to the heads of our colleges and universities, they would put on the brakes!

Mr. David McKinley, president emeritus of the University of Illinois, says "Minorities in various faculties demand the right or privilege to teach what they please, when they please, as they please, without accountability either to the institution or the public. Some of the faculty minorities spoken of want authority without responsibility, freedom without accountability. The defense for these things usually is freedom of speech, freedom of teaching liberalism, and the necessity of having the young people acquainted with 'real' life These are the academic shibboleths. We all believe in freedom of speech and freedom of teaching, but freedom is not license. What many of these people really want is not the right to express their opinions, but the right to compel institutions and individuals to furnish them a platform. If an institution objects to bringing in lecturers on companionate marriage or for the advocacy of communism, its officers are called reactionary and their action is called a denial of freedom of speech. Not so. Those who want these lectures can hire halls and talk themselves hoarse, but they have no right to insist that a university shall furnish them a platform and promote their causes."

Dr. McKinley is rgiht. These Godless college professors want freedom of speech in order to make atheists and communists and Godless degenerates out of the boys and girls of America. Fellow Americans, I warn you. If you sit quietly by and let this nefarious business go on you will wake up some day to find that this country is not America any more, but atheistic Soviet Russia

ALABAMA WAS FIRST TO PASS GOBBLER AND BUCK STATUTE

Montgomery, Ala., June 10.—The Pennsylvania conservationist whose recent research brought to light a good many of the early game laws failed to mention that Alabama was the first state to pass the now famous "gobbler law" and one of the first to adopt a buck law.

The facts revealed by the research, however, are of great interest to the sportsmen, one being that the first game law on record is laid down in Deuteronomy 22:6, which says:

"If a bird's nest chance to be before thee in the way in any tree, or on the ground, whether they be young ones, or eggs, and the dam sitting upon the young, or upon the eggs, thou shalt not take the dam with the young."

Following are some of the early game laws of this country: The first closure for a term of years was authorized by Massachusetts in 1718 to protect deer.

The first planting of upland game, not native, was by Richard Bache, son-in-law of Benjamin Franklin. He planted some Hungarian partridges in New Jersey in 1730.

The first warden system was put into effect in Massachusetts and New Hampshire in 1850.

The first hunting license was required in New York in 1864, and the first non-resident license was demanded by New Jersey in the same year.

The first rest day—a day on which there is no shooting permitted—was authorized in Maryland in 1872.

Arkansas was the first state to ban market hunting, passing such a restriction in 1875.

The first game law was established in 1905 in Illinois and the first bag limit was established by the State of Iowa—25 prairie chickens.

At the beginning of the Revolutionary War 12 of the 13 colonies had laws protecting certain species and banning certain methods and devices.

MAYOR WELCOMES NEW RESIDENTS

a small division of the profits you receive from Clanton, just as the horse requires a portion of the food produced by its labor, and the house demands the return of some of the rent money for its repairs.

These thoughts and principles of life are fundamental, as old as time, and the person who disregards them imposes on his friends and the public, and lives a selfish life. I believe the great majority of people are honest and have a desire to do the correct thing if they can only be shown the right. The narrow shell in which we have lived and moved so long needs to be broken, and let information, light and truth enter, taking the place of a selfish nature. We are all very much alike in this regard, but cannot live apart and for ourselves entirely. We must work together for our common good. "In unity there is strength." The point I wish to bring to your attention is that while you are serving and building Clanton, you are directly adding to your own wealth and that of your children, and performing a civic duty at the same time. We, who have lived in Clanton during the past thirty years have given our time, money and energy to the improvement of Clanton. We have borne the heat of the day, we have labored long and hard for its growth, have assisted in bringing it to its present standard of value in all respects. But it appeared to some of us that we had reached an end or a point from which we could not proceed further alone. We needed you, your friendship, your co-operation in business, needed you to hook up with us in a united effort to carry our city on to a better day.

As Mayor of Clanton and as a friend of yours, interested in your welfare, comfort and happiness, I extend to you from an unselfish heart and pure motive in this movement, a most sincere welcome to the place which your coming has advanced from a classification of a smell town to that of a city, and I beg you to join with me in the same spirit and good will I have for you and all of Clanton in my efforts for the progress of Clanton.

I have written Congressman Oliver to know if the Government will give us a census at this time on account of the extension of the city limits. If my request is granted, some two or three men will get the job of taking the census. It is very probable that the Postoffice Department will give us another, or possibly two more city mail delivery men. I do not know the requirements of us in this connection. The condition of the sidewalks and streets in the new territory may have a bearing on the matter. It is my desire to extend the water and sewerage line to you as soon as it is possible to do so, and give you fire protection along with the comfort and convenience of a water system in your home.

I hope and believe you will soon be convinced that it was right and best that the limits were extended, and that you can share in the general opinion of the public that Clanton is the most up-to-the-minute and thriving city of its size in the entire State. Three thousand population will attract more people and industries to Clanton than eighteen hundred will. In this respect alone, you are worth much to Clanton.

Get the spirit, co-operate with me and I will help you help yourself, and we together will make Clanton more favorably known than even it is today.

C. FENN JONES, Mayor.

W. O. W. MEETING THURSDAY NIGHT, 13, AT MAPLESVILLE

Maplesville Camp No. 519, Woodmen of the World, is staging a big blowout tonight (Thursday) under direction of District Supervisor, Mr. E. N. Shanks.

According to Mr. Shanks, there is a really big time in store for all Woodmen who attend. Special initiation features, accompanied by speaking, will constitute the program.

Refreshments and good things to eat will be available to all in attendance. A number of Woodmen from other camps are expected to attend. All Woodmen have a cordial invitation.

JUDGE KYLE PASSES

Prominent Alabamian Succumbs To Long Illness

Decatur, Ala.—Death Saturday had removed from Alabama's public life Judge Osceola Kyle, long prominent in the state's political activities and once federal judge of the Panama Canal Zone.

Judge Kyle, 73, died at his home here Friday night after a long illness.

For 16 years Judge Kyle served on the circuit bench of the Judicial District and represented Morgan County in the Legislature for four terms. In addition, he was former member of the Alabama Railroad Commission. sion.

During the Spanish-American war Judge Kyle served as major.

A COTTON BLOOM FROM ROBERTSDALE FRIEND

Mr. John Thames, of Robertsdale, Baldwin county, former resident of Chilton county has sent The Union-Banner a cotton bloom which he says was pulled on June 5th.

BOLTON RELEASED ON BOND

Following preliminay trial before J. L. Wilson Monday, Geoge Bolton was allowed bail of $1,000, which he promptly made, and was released to await action of the grnd jury in his case.

Bolton is alleged to have stabbed Barney Littlefield with a knife early in March, inflicting wounds from which Littlefield died a few weeks later. The altercation between the two men occurred in the toilet of the Chilton county couthouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Grady Heflin and sons spent Wednesday afternoon in Birmingham.

NONE OF BILLIONS IS EXPENDED YET

No Progress Made Toward Ending The Dole of 3,500,000 Families

Washington, June 11.—The official score of the New Deal's $4,800,000,000 fight against the depression today stood: Depression, 3,500,000 unemployed family heads on relief rolls; New Deal, none put to work.

President Roosevelt made the fund available more than two months ago, on April 8. The New Deal has made no definite progress in that time toward ending the dole by July 1, 1936, by creating 3,500,000 jobs.

The exact status of the program is:

1. The Division of Applications and Information has received 1285 project requests totaling $1,466,432,188. It has tentatively approved 447 applications amounting to $688,726,920.

None Actually Spent

2. The Advisory Allotment Board has recommended to President Roosevelt allocation of $1,193,000,000, including $500,000,000 for distribution to states for highway construction and grade-crossing elimination.

3. Mr. Roosevelt has alloted $814,213,600, including the highway and grade-crossing money, $156,000,000 to the Federal Emergency Relief Administration for direct relief and $107,186,500 to the U. S. Army Engineering Corps, most of it for rivers and harbors improvements.

4. None of the money has been actually spent for employment. Program leaders predicted the drive would be underway by July 1 and reach its peak in Mid-November.

Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Elmore and daughter spent Monday in Birmingham.

BUSINESS NOT AFFECTED BY NRA BEING KNOCKED OUT

Survey of 33 Cities Shows That Trade Holds On Without Assistance Of Codes and Hours

The nation's business was carried forward during the past week by a strong undercurrent. Retail trade improved in some areas as weather favored. More indicators of industrial production showed further recession, due to the seasonal trend, and in part perhaps to the disturbance of lifting the NRA codes.

Nevertheless, most authorities agree that business activity had been very slightly affected by the collapse of the codes. The Department of Commerce's survey of weekly reports from 33 cities said, "The Supreme Court's decision on NRA has so far produced no change of great consequence in actual trade activities throughout the country."

Cotton and woolen mill activities continued at a good pace, and rayon seemed scarcely affected. Automobile production was stepped up sharply last week. Production was 87,855 cars and trucks, compared with 65,675 for the previous week, and 69,107 for the like week of last year.

W. A. REYOLDS' BIRTHDAY

Mrs. W. A. Reynolds invited a group of intimate friends of Mr. W. A. Reynolds to a surprise birthday party for him at the home in Clanton Tuesday night.

The guests, a dozen in number, arrived at the home at seven o'clock, and were greeted at the door by Mr. Reynolds, totally unaware of what was coming off.

The group assembled later around the table enjoying the delightful dinner and an hour of friendly gossip.

Those enjoying this occasion were: Judge L. H. Reynolds, Dr. C. O. Lawrence, Dr. N. S. Johnson, Frank Callen, Grady Heflin, W. M. Wyatt, Wiley Littlejohn, Mayor C. Fenn Jones, G. C. Walker and Percy Pitts.

The friends presented as a birthday present to Mr. Reynolds a handsome fountain pen and pencil set.

CLANTON MAN CAUGHT BANDIT

Gulledge and Girl Cashier Break Up Attempted Hold-Up in B'ham And Catch Robber

Birmingham, June 7.—A pretty cashier and R. S. Gulledge, who happened to be passing by, today foiled an attempted robbery of the American Bankers Corporation, less than two blocks from police headquarters.

Mr. Gulledge, a former citizen of Clanton, who happened to pass the office as a man dashed out, drew his pistol and ordered the robber to "stick 'em up," the same words the bandit had used a few minutes previously on Miss Rita Ferguson, the cashier.

Mr. R. S. Gulledge, known in Birmingham as "Bob," is a native of Chilton county, a son of Gen. J. W. E. Gulledge of Clanton. His many old friends here know his as Stanley Gulledge.

The presence of mind which he used in this instance is characteristic of his well-known ability to do quick thinking.

ALL DAY SINGING WILL BE HELD AT COLLINS CHAPEL

The annual all day singing will be held next Sunday at Collins Chapel. So far, this event has proved a success each year, and it is hoped that next Sunday will be an enjoyable day.

All lovers of music are invited. Bring your song books and a big dinner basket.

READY TO ACCEPT LOAN APPLICATION

Forty-Five Per Cent Of Public Works Grant From P. W. A.

Mr. W. E. Spragins, of the office of State Engineer of the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works, has acknowledged receipt of a recent letter from Mayor C. Fenn Jones, and in reply says:

"This office is now in position to accept applications for loans and grants. The grant would be 45 per cent of the total allotment, the loan 55 per cent, and the interest rate on the loan would be 4 per cent.

"It is recommended that you employ an engineer to prepare your plans and application. It is necessary to fill out a set of standard forms which we will be glad to supply your engineer."

This information obtained by Mayor Jones brings more definitely to the citizens and officials of Clanton what procedure is necessary to accomplish certain public improvements which have been considered under the public works administration aid.

In connection with the Grammar School, as an example, it would be inferred from the letter of Mr. Spragins that Clanton may secure the money for the building requirements, 45 per cent of which would be a grant from the public works administration, and 55 per cent of it would be a loan at the rate of 4 per cent interest. The same figures would hold in other projects we might undertake.

It is time somebody was doing something about the grammar school. The trustees say they will not allow the old building to be used again next year. And by the time a few of us have a little vacation or two, it will be time to start school. There is no time to lose about this matter.

Cox Explains His Vote On Tax Bill

Representative Reaffirms His Favor For $2,000 Home Exemption Law

Representative C. B. Cox says he hears considerable criticism of his vote against a recent homestead exemption bill in the Legislature of Alabama, to which he offers the following explanation:

"I am in favor of a homestead exemption, and will support such a bill when the proper time comes for the Legislature to consider it in the proper manner.

"The recent bill which I voted against was presented to the Legislature at a time and in a manner which I deemed inappropriate and out of harmony with the forces of the State administration who desire such a law, but were not ready at that time to have it considered.

"There is a provision for homestead exemptions in the general revenue bill. When that bill as a whole is presented, I will favor enactment of the homestead exemption."

Experience in the Legislature teaches that people should be very careful before they censure or condemn a legislator for his vote. They should be sure the proposition is understood.

It is entirely possible, and in fact most likely, that certain cricumstances which will never be understood by the public, make is necessary at times for a representative to vote against a measure which he actually favors, because it may not be the proper time to enact it for the best interests of the people.

"Hell Drivers" Motion Picture

Will Be Given Under Auspices Of H. N. Smith Motor Company

A thrilling motion picture drama will be presented free at the court house in Clanton Saturday night, June 22, at 8 o'clock, sponsored by the H. N. Smith Motor Company and under the direction of Sam E. Brasseale, district representative for the manufacturers of Dodge and Plymouth automobiles.

The picture, "Hell Drivers," will feature the hair-raising, thrilling chances taken with death at the Indianapolis Speedway, where daredevil drivers speed to victory and glory in the new Dodge and Plymouth automobiles.

Aside from being an educational picture, this is said to be one of the most thrilling dramas ever centered around the speedway. In addition to the entertainment offered in the form of this presentation, eighty-five dollars worth of valuable prizes will be given to the audience.

On hand to welcome the crowds will be H. N. Smith, manager of the firm, Guy DeLoach, sales manager, Buford Lawrence, Horace Davis and Relph Hughes, salesmen.

Lemonade and other refreshments will be served, it was announced, before and after the show at the showrooms.

SAM'L MARTIN VICE-PRESIDENT ALA. EMBALMERS ASSOCIATION

Permanent organization of the Alabama Embalmers Assocaiton was perfected at a meeting in Birmingham Monday, with the following officers elected:

H. B. Dowling, Eufaula, president; H. P. Emmett, Fort Payne, first vice president; Samuel Martin, Clanton, second vice president; W. L. Jordan, Birmingham, third vice president; H. C. Ashton, Birmingham, secretary and reasurer.

After organization, the members of the Association, with their guests, enjoyed a banquet at the Tutwiler Hotel, with Luther Patrick acting as toastmaster. This was followed by a dance in the Tutwiler ballroom.

TWO SCHOOLS WILL BE REBUILT SOON

Isabella And Collins Chapel Will Be First Of The Projects

According to announcement of County Superintendent, Luther Little, this week, indications point to immediate reconstruction of two schools in the County, Isabella and Collins Chapel, which were destroyed by fire last year.

Immediate action toward these two building projects was made possible by a ruling from the Public Works Administration, that the government grant of 45 per cent of the cost of a project could be obtained where local sources were able to put up 55 per cent of the cost in cash.

In the cases of Isabella and Collins Chapel, there is available an amount of insurance money sufficient to pay 55 per cent of the cost, and the remaining 45 per cent will be a grant from the government.

Mr. Little states that plans have been made for the two buildings by Warren, Knight & Davis, architects, of Birmingham. Final estimates on the buildings will be ready to submit to PWA authorities in a few days. After final approval, bids will be requested, and the construction will be let by contract.

The County Superintendent expects everything to be worked out so that construction can be started on the two buildings during this summer.

NRA Setup For State Retained

Judge Petree Receives Notice Under Recent Act Of Congress

Although no instructions for continuation of the work have been received yet, Judge John D. Petree, Alabama NRA director, has been notified that the State's setup will be maintained for the present under the recovery extension resolution passed by Congress.

Coincident with notice of this reappointment as state director for a period not to exceed another year, Judge Petree received employment notices for NRA workers. Judge Petree's reappointment was accompanied by a notation saying, "This notice is being issued to all employees to maintain continuity of the employment pending decision as to which employes will be granted."

In lieu of more specific instructions from Washington, Judge Petree said Monday he was unable to announce the nature of the work to be done by his organization under President Roosevelt's "stop gap" NRA plan.

He said, however, that a survey now being conducted in the state to determine how many business firms still are observing code provisions would be continued.

RAISE OF LEGISLATORS' PAY BEING CONSIDERED IN COURT

Montgomery, June 18.—Constitutionality of the Arnold Bill approved by Gov. Graves on June 12, making an appropriation for payment of the official expenses of members of the Legislature of Alabama, was argued for four hours yesterday before Judge Walter B. Jones, presiding in the Circuit Court of Montgomery County. Judge Jones took the matter under advisement and will render a decision in a few days.

W. B. Leedy, of Birmingham, president of the Alabama Tax Payers' Association, last Thursday, filed through his counsel, John Yung, of this city, a taxpayers bill challenging the constitutionality of the expense bill on the ground it violated Section 49 of the Alabama Constitution relating to expenses of members of the Legislature. Upon the presentation of the bill and the giving of a bond of $1,000, Judge Jones granted a temporary restraining order against the payment of the expenses and set the case for yesterday. Under the Arnold measure, the pay of members of the Legislature is hiked from $4 to $6 a day.

Mr. and Mrs. William Leon Evans of Kansas City, Missouri, announce the birth of a son, born June 15th.

City Council Notes

The meeting of the Town Council Tuesday night was interesting and important, with a flock of public questions of concern to Clanton coming up for discussion and official action. Mayor Jones and Councilmen Popwell, Shaw and Heflin were present. Probate Judge and former Mayor, J. Lee Smith, was a visitor at the meeting, and discussed a number of the propositions in which both the Town and County are interested.

One of the Questions of mutual concern to the Town and County is the proposed paving of a small section of Second Avenue between the new city hall and the county property on the opposite side of the street. Judge Smith expressed the opinion that the County would be willing to go half way with the Town in the expense of this paving, and requested an expression from the Town Council.

The Council would go only as far as to expressing an interest, and promising to look into the cost of the project and then determine if the financial condition of the town would permit perticipation.

It was stated by waterworks superintendent, Milton Smith, that he is making every effort to remove the objectionable conditions of the water supply that has been caused from the new water mains recently installed. Members of the Council were in hearty accord with Mr. Smith on this question, saying they had received many requests from water users that something be done about this matter.

A resolution was passed authorizing Mayor Jones to proceed with arrangements for having the census of Clanton taken in order to determine the number of residents in the city since the limits were extended. It is thought that the expense of clerical force and enumerators can be handled by the relief office as a "white collar" project, in which even the town would have to pay only the expenses of a supervisor from the census bureau.

Mention was made in a casual way of the continuation of activity in draining swamps around Clanton. Judge Smith declared his hearty interest in this question, and indicated that the county will make an effort to keep the drainage project going until it is accomplished to the full satisfaction of the community.

Somebody mentioned the subject of mad dogs. It was the unofficial and unanimous agreement of all that the town and county should unite in a movement to inoculate all dogs against rabies, and then kill all dogs that were not brought in for treatment.

Division of opinion arose on the question of extending the water mains into the new territory recently added to Clanton. Mayor Jones expressed the wish that the Council would take immediate steps to extend the mains while benefit of a 45 per cent grant for the cost can be obtained from PWA. Upon the votes to extend the mains, Councilmen Popwell and Shaw voted for it, and Councilman Heflin voted against it. Mayor Jones cast his vote in favor of it, and when the meeting was finished, they were not able to determine whether the question was legally carried or defeated.

Mayor Jones, Mr. Shaw and Mr. Popwell expressed their feeling of obligation upon the part of the town to extend water mains into the new city areas, recalling that the promise had been made to many of the residents of the new territory that they would be given city water if and when they were included as a part of Clanton.

Councilman Heflin explained his vote against waterworks extensoin by saying he thought the first question should be to determine if the town is financially able to make the extension, which he doubted. Second, he said, we should first take steps to make sure we have plenty of water to give to the people, which he also doubted, as at present.

Waterworks superintendent, Milton Smith, added his expression of doubt about the present water supply being adequate to serve the needs if extension of the mains is made.

Mr. Shaw, Mr. Popwell and Mayor Jones, contended that the city water system is the only operation of the municipality that produces a profit. They said the extension would pay its own way by profits obtained from use of additional water.

Mr. Shaw said "If we haven't water to make plenty for all, I am in favor of dividing what we have with our neighbors, especially since we are under direct promise to do so."

Councilman Shaw is a vigorous champion of water. He believes in plenty of good cold water to drink, and in giving it to everybody. Being a Baptist, he freely admits his conviction that water should be supplied not only in quantity and quality sufficient to drink, but enough to baptize folks in and wash away their sins.

Mr. Shaw, in his ardor for water, went so far as to impress upon Judge Smith his opinion that the county should provide plenty of ice water at the courthouse for everybody to drink. He urged the installation of a cold water system at the courthouse such as will be installed in the new city hall. "We owe it to the people who come to Clanton to give them plenty of good cold water to drink," he contended.

Judge Smith congratulated the city officials upon extension of the city limits, building of the city hall, and upon departure, made a final appeal to the Mayor and Council to consider joining up with the county in paving the street in front of the city hall.

PLAN FREE BOOKS IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Dr. J. A. Kellar, State Superintendent of Education and Secretary of the State Textbook Purchasing Board, made the following statement with the release of the 1935 adoption of textbooks:

"Plans are under way to institute a system of free textbooks in Alabama. We hope that at least a part of this plan will be executed this year. Wherever possible, the Textbook Purchasing Committee having heretofore given attention to the very important business of selecting the best books available at these prices.

"The cost of the books to the individual pupil in all grades, with the exception of the sixth and eighth, has been materially reduced. The total bill of expense in the elementary grades, assuming that every child is provided with basal books for his or her grade, represents a saving of approximately $280,000.000. A total saving of approximately $87,000.00 is made by the new adoption on the required books for the several high school grades.

"In the first grade alone, the total price of basal books per child has been reduced from $1.56 to $1.02, or by 35 per cent. The enrollment in this grade averages annually about 165,000. At a saving of 54 cents per child, the new adoption makes a total saving of approximately $89,000.00 for this grade alone.

"An obvious advantage of a free distribution of textbooks is the fact that every child is supplied at the expense of the State with all the books he may need to do his work successfully. It is well known that under the present system of purchasing books by the individual consumer, there has been and is now a vast shortage of books among the pupils of the entire State. The small sale of textbooks during the past two years is proof of this. The total sales of the State Textbook Depository for the past two years was only about $500,000.00. In many sections of the State pupils are provided with less than Send your children to the vacation their work. In some sections of the State they have less than one-third of the needed books. This shortage of books is no doubt largely the cause of the larger proportion of failures in Alabama over other sections of the country. Approximately fifty per cent of the pupils in the first grade in Alabama fail of promotion each year as compared with twenty-five per cent failures for the country at large. The average enrollment for the first grade has been around 165,000 annually for several years. The enrollment in the second grade is annually about 80,000. The cost of re-teaching the failures for the first grade alone amounts to approximately $1,000.000.00 annually. We do not believe that our children have less native ability than the children of other states. We believe that the high per centage of failures can be materially reduced by the selection of the best books available and by getting them into the hands of all the children."

The State Textbook Purchasing Board is composed of Governor Bibb Graves, State Superintendent of Education J. A. Keller, and Honorable C. B. Rogers, Chairman of the State Board of Administration.

COUNCIL APPROVES TAKING A CENSUS

In reply to his various communications relative to obtaining a federal census for Clanton since the city limits were enlarged, Mayor C. Fenn Jones has received from the Bureau of the Census at Washington a letter outlining the procedure under which a census may be taken with federal sanction and supervision.

It is estimated that the cost of a special census, such as is desired in Clanton, would be about $170.

When a special census of this kind is taken, there is detailed for its supervision an expert employee of the census bureau, whose salary is paid by the bureau. Traveling and subsistence expenses of this expert have to be paid by the parties requesting the census. In addition to the expert, other clerks, stenographers, and enumerators have to be provided at the expense of the parties requesting the census.

Mr. Floyd Smith, director of work relief in Chilton county, has asked Mr. Hawkins, State Planning Engineer, if the Clanton census work can be handled as a "white collar" job, and thus save the city the cost of paying for the special clerks and the workers necessary to do the job.

JUDGE GLOVER RULED BONDS SUFFICIENT IN CONTEST CASE

Last Friday Judge Glover heard the motion filed by Mr. J. C. Pattillo and Mr. Arthur Martin to dismiss the contest filed by H. A. Harris and Akins Collins. The motion raised the question that the bonds filed by Harris and Collins were insufficient.

After hearing the testimony offered in the case Judge Glover overruled the motions.

Judge Glover took the position that the question of the sufficiency of the bonds was always under the control of the Court, and if at any stage of the proceedings it developed that the bonds, or either of them, are insufficient, the Court could require the execution of a sufficient bond.

BOY NOT RABID AS FIRST REPORTED

Son of Mrs. Ward Jones Was In Alarming Condition Monday

Quite a general interest was aroused Monday over what appeared to be a case of hydrophobia, after L. C. Jones, 14-year-old son of Mr. Ward Jones, of the Littlejohn settlement, was seized by a spell of violent convulsions Sunday night.

Different diagnoses of different doctors added to the confusion of many people who had been associated with the young man Sunday, and who would have been subject to contagion if the case had proven to be rabies.

Young Jones, it is said, was bitten by a dog some weeks ago. He very promptly took the shots for prevention of rabies.

However, when he returned Sunday night from an all-day singing at Collins Chapel, he was suddenly seized with violent convulsions that lasted for several hours into Monday morning. Some doctors said he had rabies and some said not.

When he began to drink water during Monday, the doctors began to abandon the hydrophobia theory, and those who had been associated with him began to feel a measure of relief. Continuing into Tuesday he improved steadily and began to ask for something to eat.

Finally it was determined that the young man had overeaten during Sunday, including an excessive amount of green apples, which caused his alarming condition.

NEW POST OFFICE IN A HURRY

Work on the new federal postoffice building in Clanton is going forward in a hurry. At the present rate the brick work of the main walls will be completed in another week.

Ousted Official Makes Charges

Former Aid To Secretary Of Commerce Will Fight Removal

Washington, June 17.—Ousted as assistant secretary of commerce, Ewing Y. Mitchell last Saturday promised a political battle with "detailed charges" against Secretary Roper and other administration officials.

His service was "terminated" by President Roosevelt for the officially given reason of "obtaining more effective supervision of certain bureaus in the Department of Commerce having to do with engineering and transportation problems."

Almost immediately the president named John Monroe Johnson of South Carolina to the post from which Mitchell had refused to resign for several months. Senator Byrnes, democrat, of South Carolina, sought Johnson's immediate confirmation by the Senate, but Senator Black, democrat, of Alabama, objected.

Mitchell's letters to Mr. Roosevelt revealed he had been in sharp disagreement with Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper for a year. He attacked the Pendergast Democratic machine in Missouri, likening it to the Tammany machine of New York, in March, 1934.

His statement charged "serious derelictions" in the Commerce Department, including "scandalous abuses" in connection with the parmanent lay-up of the giant passenger liner Leviathan, and improper inspections contributing to the Morro Castle disaster and the airplane crash that resulted in the death of Sen. Bronson Cutting (R., N. M.).

FIRST COTTON BLOOM BROUGHT IN BY ARCHIE HALL ON JUNE 14

The Union-Banner received its first cotton bloom from Chilton county Friday morning of last week. It came from the farm of Archie Hall, colored, of Clanton Route 3. The cotton was not quite two months old, having been planted on April 17th. The variety was Dixie Rose.

The first bloom last year was reported by H. O. Bean of Clanton Route 4, on June 18th. Mr. Bean said that he saw the first bloom on June 15th, but sent in the first one on the 18th.

On Wednesday morning Mr. H. L. Ratliff, of Maplesville Route 2, sent in a bloom, with this message: "This cotton bloom was plucked from the farm of H. L. Ratliff on June 17th."

TOWN OBJECTS TO NEGRO CCC CAMP

Council Instructs Mayor Jones To Forward Objections To Department

Much interest and outspoken opposition was expressed here this week when it became known that federal authorities were considering the placing of a contingent of negroes in the new CCC camp recently located and soon to be started in West Clanton.

Captain John O'Daniel, of Camp McClellan, was here Tuesday to discuss the matter with Mayor Jones. He went away and left the question with the Town Council to consider in their regular meeting Tuesday night.

When the Council met the question was taken up and discussed at length. A resolution was pased by the Council instructing Mayor Jones to notify Captain O'Daniel Wednesday that the Council objects to establishing a negro CCC camp within the city limits.

Probate Judge J. Lee Smith was present with the council, and expressed personal objection to having negroes in the camp. Further, he said he believed the County Commissioners would object to the proposition, and would not be willing to assist financially with the movement if it were to be a camp of negroes.

The coming of Captain O'Daniel was the first intimation from the government that this might be a camp of negroes. When the question was being considered at first, and the assistance of the Town and County officials was given to finance the rental of the location, nothing was said about the camp being occupied by negroes.

Expressions from both Town and County officials declare that if they had been told it would be a negro camp, they never would have consented to its location within the city limits, and would not have given financial aid in paying rent on the land to be occupied.

Rather than have a negro camp, the general opinion seems to prevail that Clanton had rather hove no CCC camp at all.

80 Billion Given To States Relief

Holt Believes His Program To Aid Alabama Will Be Approved

Washington, June 18.—Alabama will obtain approximately $80,000,000 for Federal works relief projects under the plan outlined by President Roosevelt to state relief directors at a conference here yesterday.

The President's plan calls for $1,100 to be allotted each state for each family now on relief. Alabama, according to Relief Director Thad Holt, now has 74,000 families on relief, which would justify an allotment of $81,400,000.

Mr. Holt was to present a comprehensive program for Alabama to the President today, and he declared that he hoped to have the program approved at once.

The state total will be further augmented by Public Works Administration grants for local projects and the cost of maintaining persons enlisted in the state's Civilian Conservation Corps camps.

Dr. Kimmey Here Ready For Work

New Health Officer Will Take Few Days To Get His Bearings

Dr. J. M. Kimmey, formerly health officer of Shelby County arrived in Clanotn Monday and began preparations to take over the work as health officer of Chilton County.

When interviewed Tuesday afternoon Dr. Kimmey stated that he had nothing of interest to give out for publication. He said he would devote a few days in getting acquainted with the local situation, after which he will set out upon a definite schedule of administration of the duties of his office.

Official confirmation and approval of Dr. Kimmey as public health officer by the board of censors of the county medical society is necessary before he will be fully and completely installed in the work. In this case, however, such approval of local doctors is considered rather a matter of formality which will be done without delay at the first and next meeting of the board.

Dr. Kimmey is already well known here, especially among the members of the medical profession. His former work in Shelby County gives him a fine recommendation, and it is generally conceded that Chilton County is fortunate in having him come here to administer the important affairs of our public health program.

Derris

You've Probably Heard About It

40 times more deadly to insects than Arsenates.

15 times more deadly than Nicotine — yet not toxic or poisonous to people or animals. Obtained from roots of tropical plants—used by savages as fish poison.

This is truly the ultimate insecticide for MEXICAN BEAN BEETLE. Effective for control of other insects, such as Cabbage, Potato, Tomato, Melon and Cucumber insects. However, for these insects the mixture should be different. We are receiving daily, mail orders from several adjoining counties . . . For $2.25 we will send you post paid, 5 pounds Derris Powder and a handy little dust gun. Don't let the insects destroy your crops. Write us if you are troubled with insects.

We have just received 2,000 pounds of Calcium Arsenate for control of boll weevil. Save the first bolls with application of a few pounds of this inexpensive dust.

Lesson for June 23

CHRISTIAN MISSIONS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 1:6-8; 13:1-12.

GOLDEN TEXT—Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.—Mark 16:15.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Sharing the Good News of Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Goes Preaching.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Can I Do for Missions?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Missionary Purpose of the Church.

God is, in his essential being, merciful and compassionate. All his promises to and actions toward man have been with redemptive ends.

I. Israel a Missionary Nation.

Following the apostasy of the whole race, God called Abraham to become the head of a race through whom all the nations of the earth were to be blessed (Gen. 12:1-3). The first gospel promise, that of Genesis 3:15, was to become an actuality through the missionary activities of the Jewish people.

1. The nations of the earth invited to look to God (Isa. 55:22). Israel was called to be the peculiar witness to the nations of Jehovah, the one God Deut. 6:4).

2. Christ given as a light to the nations (Is. 49:6). Christ is the way, the truth, and the life (John 14:6). Christ is the light of the world (John 8:12).

3. Jonah, a Jew, goes as a missionary to a Gentile city (Jonah 3:1-10). Jonah is prophetic of the nation and God's purpose for the Jews. While the chosen nation has been disobedient to God as Jonah was, yet after severe chastisement they shall fulfill the divine purpose.

II. The Church a Missionary Organization.

The very genius of the Church is propagation through devout missionary effort.

1. The apostolic commission (Matt. 28:18, 20).

a. The authority of Jesus (v. 18). God gave him all authority in heaven and earth. b. The commission of the apostles (vv. 19, 20).

(1) It was to teach, that is, make disciples of all nations (v. 19). They were to make known to the world that Christ died to save sinners.

(2) Baptize those who believed. This baptism was to be in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, indicating that the believer has been brought into definite relationship to each member of the Holy Trinity.

(3) To teach the disciples obedience (v. 20). Profession is not enough. Oberience must issue.

c. The all-sufficient promise (v. 20). There would constantly be the blessing and fellowship of the all-powerful Savior and Lord.

2. The missionary program (Acts 1:6-8). The Church is under solemn obligation to witness to all the world of the gracious salvation which has been provided in Christ.

3. The first foreign missionaries (Acts 13:12). The occasion for this enterprise was a meeting of certain prophets and teachers at Antioch. While these ministers were engaged in praying, the Lord laid heavily upon their hearts the evangelization of the world. This marks the beginning of foreign missions as the deliberately planned enterprise of the Christian Church.

4. Preaching the gospel in Europe (Acts 16:6-10). Paul's inclination was to tarry in Asia Minor preaching the Word, but he was carried along by the Spirit. The Holy Spirit is just as active in closing doors as in opening them. The time had come for the gospel to begin its conquest of another continent. Paul, being hemmed in on all sides, was given the vision of a man of Macedonia pleading for help.

5. Preaching Christ before Agrippa (Acts 26:12-20). Paul, having been brought before the king, took advantage of the opportunity to witness to him of the Savior. Observe, a. His manner of life (v. 12). He showed that he had been in strictest accord with the most rigid sect of the Jews. b. His supernatural conversion (vv. 13-15). Christ had appeared to him on the way to Damascus and revealed himself to him. c. Jesus Christ commissioned him for a work (vv. 16-18). He was sent to the Gentiles to open their blind eyes, to turn them from darkness to light and from the power of Satan to God. d. His consecration (vv. 19, 20). He rendered immediate obedience to his commission. He showed that the opposition which he now experienced was due to his vigorous prosecution of his work.

The Foot of the Rainbow

The foot of the rainbow is never where you think it is. Perhaps there is a pot of gold there, but there are many more pots of gold that you will pass on your way to realize your dreams. Some men have the vision to see them.

The True End of Life

Happiness is the true end and aim of life. It is the task of intelligence to ascertain the conditions of happiness, and when found the truly wise will live in accordance with them.

Mr. Thomas Gragg of Mobile is visiting relatives and friends here this week.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., June—The University of Alabama Summer School is preparing for one of the busiest weeks in its history with four different conferences scheduled for the week of June 24-28. The annual State Education Conference, together with the Parent-Teacher Institute; Institute of State and local affairs and the Alabama Federation of Women's Clubs.

The Marengo County High School choral club will sing before the Institute on Tuesday morning, June 25. The club is from Thomason, Ala., and is directed by Mrs. L. M. Lowery.

What offers the greater promise in county administration in Alabama, geographical consolidation of counties or the reorganization and redistribution of functions of county government in the counties as they now exist? Is the manager plan desirable for Alabama counties?

These are two of the important questions to be discussed at the first State Institute of State and Local affairs to be held at the University of Alabama, June 26-28.

A formidable array of speakers for panel discussions of two social questions of national importance to be discussed during the Institute of State and Local affairs at the University of Alabama, June 26-28 has been assembled by authorities in charge of the program, Dr. John R. McLure, director of the summer school, announced Tuesday.

In having the degree of Doctor of Civil Laws conferred upon him at recent commencement exercises at the University of Florida, Dr. Albert J. Farrah, Dean of the Law school of the University of Alabama, received the highest praise and acclaim from President John J. Tigert of the University of Florida.

Dr. Tigert told Dr. Farrah that he is one of the most distinguished legal educators in the United States today.

News of the death of the four-year old son of Prof. and Mrs. J. Henry Walker, Jr., in New Orleans on Friday reached the University of Alabama. Mr. Walker is assistant professor of zoology, and Mrs. Walker, as Catherine Indorff, was assistant professor of biology at the University before her marriage. Death of their child was direcly caused by an operation for tonsils. He has been ill for some time.

WALNUT CREEK

Last Sunday was preaching day at this place and a large crowd was present and every body seemed to enjoy the sermon very much. We are proud to have you visitors with us and invite you back again.

Our C. E. met back at 7:30 o'clock with a large crowd present. Our C. E. attendance is increasing every Sunday night and we are proud to have you with us.

We have preaching at this place every second and third Sunday of each month. Prayer meeting every Wednesday night. C. E. every Sunday night. We invite every body that can, to come out and take part with us in these services.

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

Work With The Re-Habilitated Clients

My work with the rehabilitated clients this spring has been very interesting to me. I have gone into the far corners of the county, offering my assistance to those farmers whom the government has given a chance to stage a come back. A year ago found them down but not out, and since they were given a chance most of them are staging an uphill fight.

It is very gratifying today to look into their gardens and see bush beans, pole beans, beets, cabbage, collards, squash, tomatoes, cucumbers, sweet corn, onions, pepper, okra and the like. One will also find in their fields well planned crops that are fertilized and cultivated according to experiment station recommendations. Most of them are interested in this new opportunity and are not hesitating to carry out improved methods.

One young farmer said to me the other day that he was now twenty-three years of age and the youngest child in the family. He has been listening to his dad all this time and just look where they are. They can do what they want to, but I am taking new suggestions.

There are quite a few of the clients really making good. John Floyd, near Clanton, William Moses, Jim Kelley, Seburn Singletary, Melvin Singletary, Jim Pane, all of Jemison; Joe Jenkins of Mt. Creek; Cunningham of Verbena; Allen Terry, Seamon Williams, Willow Talley, Allison John Davis, of Maplesville; Lige McGee, Rush and John Ford of Riderville; Madison Campbell of Randolph, are some of the clients who are really grasping the opportunity.

It is amusing to note the rivalry up at Jemison between Jim Pane and the Singletary boys. It is said that the competition grew so intense that Bro. Pane and Seburn are slipping out plowing in the moonlight. Seburn has a steer and Pane has a mule, but Seburn says that Pane will be conquered. It may be interesting to know that Seburn Singletary and Jim Pane have entered the Arcadian Nitrate of Soda Crop Contest.

Some of the clients are not doing much, but we must remember that there are some people who are always "on the proverbial hog" even in boom days.—Benj. Anderson.

REV. PAUL ODEN TO SHOW SLIDES AT FRIENDSHIP SUNDAY NIGHT

Rev. Wm. E. Robinson, pastor at Friendship, announces that Rev. Paul Oden of Maplesville will be at Friendship next Sunday night, June 23rd. and will show his collection of stereopticon slides of native scenes and Biptist missionary work in Japan. There are seventy slides dealing on this subject, which Rev. Oden will show and explain.

This program will follow the B. Y. P. U., and will begin about 8 o'clock.

Regular services will be held Saturday night and Sunday at Friendship. There will be no singing Sunday afternoon on acount of the all day singings at other places.

YEGGS LOOT BUSINESS FIRMS IN MONTGOMERY

Montgomery, June 17.—Yeggmen went on a rampage here during the week end, blowing safes in three business establishments and escaping with loot estimated at $3,750.

They took $3,000 from the safe of McGough Motor Co. and about $500 from the Cloverdale Pharmacy but made a waterhaul when the safe of Hill Grocery Co. on Cloverdale road was forced open.

Numerous petty crimes were reported and three negroes were slain in cutting and shooting scrapes.

PLEASANT HILL

We are glad to say that the good Lord has blessed us with another wonderful week end. However the rain Saturday night caused our crowd to be smaller than usual, but we had a good service just the same. We regret to say that our pastor, Rev. W. E. Robinson, could not be with us Sunday at 11:00 o'clock. Althiugh he sent Bro. H. D. Durbin to fill his place and he delivered a wonderful message to us. But Bro. Robinson was with us Sunday night and brought with him his wife and several other visitors which we were glad to have with us, and especially invite them back again.

We are glad to say our church is still growing and we are so thankful to see so many of our fathers and mothers getting interested in going to Sunday school, and we trust they will continue and take some one with them. For, good people, our church is going to be just what we make it and I believe it all starts in our homes. So let's each one strive the harder to make our church one of the best in the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Robinson of Pleasant Grove community were the week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Cleckler.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Twilley and children, Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Cleckler and children were the Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. O L. Martin.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Giles and Mr. Travis Maban of Clanton also had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Martin Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Mack Robinson and children, Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Robinson and little son, James, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Barnett.

Misses Daisy, Elizabeth and Pearlene Martin spent Sunday afternoon with Miss Lurlene Blow.

Mr. P. M. Cleckler and daughters, Jesse and Dotha, attended the singing at Collins Chapel Sunday afternoon and reported some good singing.

Don't forget our Sunday school every Sunday.—Reporter.

BOB JONES

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

"Have there always been trees here in this park?" That is what a converted drunkard asked Mel Trotter, a short while after the inquirer had been saved from drunkenness. Mel Trotter, who is the greatest rescue mission worker in the world and who reently received the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity at the Bob Jones College, said, "A drunkard looks down." Sin always pulls down. It takes the upward look to transform a human life. Paul had a heavenly vision to which he was true.

The thing that costs less and pays the biggest dividends is kindness. It is impossible to turn up your nose and smile at the same time. You can grin with your nose high in the air, but you cannot smile. What the world needs is a kindly smile and a sympathetic handshake, and a tender word. Of course, all of these things should be given in the name and spirit of Jesus Christ.

There seems to be a fraternity of drug addicts. These poor afflicted people fellowship together. "Birds of a feather flock together" holds everywhere in the social world. From many years of experience the editor has observed that "gripers" group together. "Griping" is a college word for complaining. Some people seem to be born with a tendency to find fault and even when these people become Christians they seem to carry this disposition into religious programs and they make trouble wherever they go. The apostle James says that all the war and trouble among Christians comes from war in our members. In other words, there is fighting going on in the very body of a complainer and a troublemaker. The trouble he causes is the result of the volcanic eruption of his own depravity.

Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Crawford and Miss Agnes Wingard of Columbiana were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Wingard last Thursday night.

REFUGE NEWS

Regular services were held here on Saturday and Sunday with good attendance. We were glad to recognize some visitors whom we invite to meet with us again.

Let us keep in mind the revival which begins at this place the third Sunday in July. The Rev. J. E. Burkstresser of the Mignon Baptist church of Sylacauga will have charge of the meeting. We are looking forward to the greatest revival in the history of this church. The pastor urges that the church be much in prayer for the meeting. One month from new, God being willing, we will be in the midst of this revival.

Also we wish to make this special announcement on next Friday night, June 21st, the Rev. Paul Oden will be at this place with his stereopticon slides on Japan. There are seventy pictures, showing life and scenery of the country and the work of the Southern Baptists among the Japanese. Rev. Paul Oden is a God-sent talent, and, as you know, a total physical blind.

So remember the date and come and see these pictures and hear this great message.

We are informed that our pastor has secured Rev. Oden's able help in the revival at Highland, beginning the fourth Sunday in July.

ICE CREAM SUPPER

There will be an ice cream supper at the home of S. J. Twilley on next Saturday night, June 22nd. There will be plenty of good ice cream, a pretty girls cake, an ugly man and guess cake and cold drinks.

Come, bring your nickels and dimes and help us out. Proceeds will go for the benefit of Pleasant Hill church.

ALL DAY SINGING—CENTER HILL

There will be an all day singing at Center Hill the fourth Sunday of this month, June 23. Please bring the new 1935 books and lunch. Come and enjoy the day with us.—Reporter.

MONEY in your Kitchen

THERE'S money earned (by being saved) in your kitchen every day if there's a Superfex Oil Burning Refrigerator in the corner. Superfex saves your foods from spoiling during the hottest days . . . provides the means to convert "leftovers" into tasty meals . . . gives you ice cubes for cooling drinks . . . saves you thousands of steps rushing downstairs or outside for foods that should be within easy reach in your kitchen. The burners of Superfex burn only about two hours a day to give you perfect refrigeration for 24 hours. Housewives tell us their total cost of Superfex is about ten dollars a year, sometimes less . . . and the money saved by Superfex is several times that amount.

Let us tell you about the five Superfex models . . . there's one to suit the needs of every family. When you've seen the one you like, you will be surprised to learn how easy it is to have one for your home.

Editor Union-Banner:

Please grant me space in your paper to announce the singing to be at this place next Sunday afternoon beginning at 2:30.

Each and everyone has a special invitation to attend. We need your help. May we depend on you

There is going to be a working day at this place on Tuesday before the third Sunday in July, for the purpose of cleaning the cemetery and church. Everybody who is interested please come and bring necessary tools.

The revival meeting will begin at this place the third Sunday in July.

Cleaning Renews Clothes

"Good Work --and Fast--eh!"

"Inexpensive Too, Dear!"

Essentially—keeping your clothing clean is our business. And your emphasis is, of course, on the completeness of our job. But more and more the speed with which we call for and deliver your clothing—the minor repairs at no extra charge—our low prices—and such little things as careful packing, are converting you and your neighbors to the idea that careful cleaning is not the only basis for judging a cleaning establishment. We offer good cleaning plus—every convenience in service!

NEW CHERO DRINK IS TAKING THE COUNTRY, SAYS MR. WHITE

Mr. Horsley White, local distributor for the new soft drink, Chero, says that he is highly pleased with the way people are taking to the beverage. His business has been better for the past few weeks than in a long time. Chero is a real cola, and it really will not keep you awake. Mr. White says: "Drink a bottle and go right to bed; your sleep will not be molested as with other drinks."

Chero is bottled in Montgomery, on Bell Street, and the operations of the plant will be glad to have you drop by and see the wonderful new machinery as you pass by.

ROYAL AMBASSADOR CAMP AT GRANDVIEW JULY 1 TO 5

The Royal Ambassador Bulletin announces the State R. A. Camp at Grandview July 1 to 5 this year. Reservations must be sent to Alabama W. M. U. office, 127 South Court St., Montgomery, by June 25th.

Camp Grandview is 17 miles from Montgomery on the Birmingham Highway. Turn to right at Prattmont and follow the camp signs.

Cost for the entire time is $6. This includes board, registeration, textbooks, notebooks and pencils.

The program of activities includes music, instruction by a corps of efficient and experienced leaders of young people, as well as plenty of amusements and recreation, such as swimming, hiking, games, and nature study.

Boys from 12 to 17 years of age will be eligible for the camp. Please notify Mrs. Horace Popwell, Clanton, if any boys from your church or Association wish to attend, so she can make reservations for the right number.

Eleven Cars Sold By Smith Firm

A very good record has been made by the H. N. Smith Motor Company since it opened for business in Clanton the first of this month. They have sold a total of eleven new units, including eight Plymouth cars, two Dodge cars and one Dodge pick-up. During these three weeks a total of six used cars have been sold.

Salesmen for this company are: Guy Deloach, Ralph Hughes, B. Lawrence, and Horace Davis, all of whom are well known over the county.

Special mention should be made of Ralph Hughes, who is a young man, 20 years of age, and has a splendid record since he began work on this job. He is the son of Charley Hughes of Verbena. During the first ten days with the dealers here, he delivered two cars.

Mr. H. N. Smith explains regarding the business that he has a contract direct from Detroit for the handling of Plymouth and Dodge cars. Mr. Sam Brasseale of Montgomery, is the factory representative for this territory.

PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION WILL SPONSOR PICTURE SHOW

The Parent-Teacher Association of Clanton Grammar School will sponsor a picture show at the Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton next Monday night. The title of the picture to be shown is "Go Into Your Dance," featuring Al Jolson and Ruby Keeler.

Proceeds of the show will go for benefit of the Grammar School, and everybody is urged to attend and thereby help out in this worthy cause.

CLANTON 9 — ALABAMA MILLS 2

The Clanton team slugged its way to a 9 to 2 victory Saturday afternoon over the Clanton unit of Alabama Mills. The game was marred by much wrangling over rules and umpire decisions.

Clanton got to McGuire and Busby for 16 hits, Simms leading the parade with 4 out of 5. Hayes got 3 out of 5, as did Littleton. Golson let the Millers down with 7 hits, allowing no batter over 1 hit. Clanton bobbled 3 times and the mill team 4.

AMERICAN LEGION 4— ALABAMA MILLS 3

The youngsters of the American Legion team, sponsored by Chilton County Post No. 6 of the American Legion, tied up in a thrilling 12-inning game at Clanton with the Clanton unit of Alabama Mills on Tuesday afternoon, June 11, and eked out a 4 to 3 decision.

The young Legion team touched Reynolds for 10 safe blows, while the Millers got to Easterling for 7. After a rather shaky start, Easterling steadied and pitched a good brand of baseball until he tired in the 11th frame, and was replaced by Wilson, who received credit for the victory. Both hurlers struck out 9 batters each.

LAY DAM 14—ISABELLA 7

The Lay Dam baseball team defeated the Isabella team last Friday afternoon on the latter's ground, 14 to 7.

The Isabella aggregation's pitchers were wild, walking 11 and hitting 4 batters. Broadhead, for Lay Dam, was wild too, walking 6 and hitting 1, but his mates backed him better in the pinches.

Lay Dam began pecking away with base hits from the beginning, while Broadhead held Isabella team hitless for the first 4 innings. The game was called on account of darkness at the end of the 8th.

UNKEPT DOGS SHOULD BE OUTLAWED AS MENACE TO THE COMMUNITY

Every time the question of hydrophobia comes to the attention of the public, we get aroused over the menace of stray and unkept dogs. When we contemplate the horror of human beings afflicted with rabies it makes us wish there was not a dog in creation.

But such harsh opinions about dogs are not necessary. A good dog is a good companion. But too many dogs are an unnecessary burden, and stray dogs are a nuisance that should not be tolerated.

Dogs can and should be inoculated to prevent rabies. A dog that is not worth inoculation should be killed promptly and gotten out of the way.

Recently there have been reports of many mad dogs. It is time we had another dog shooting. For the dogs we want to keep we should be required to use the vaccination shot. For the dogs that nobody cares anythink about we should be required to use the lead and powder shot.

SINGING SCHOOL AT POPLAR SPRINGS BEGINNING AUGUST 5

Prof. L. T. Grant will teach a singing school as Poplar Springs church, beginning Monday, August 5th, and continuing for a term of twenty days. Prof. Grant is desirous of getting the full support of the people of the community in this school. With the patrons and students doing their best and the teacher withholding nothing in his power to make the school its best, nothing can keep it from being of untold worth to the community.

Everybody knows Luther Grant to be a teacher of exceptional ability and wide experience in the teaching of music, as well as a genuine Christian man who believes in the higher and nobler things of life. He is the kind of a man whom everyone would want their children to emulate in their battle through life.

N. R. A. CASE AGAINST WADE AT SELMA HAS BEEN VOIDED

Montgomery, June 15.—Three NRA cases were dismissed by Federal Judge C. B. Kennamer Wednesday. Two of these cases involved the De Jarnett Oil Company, Inc., and John Q. Wade, against whom injunctions had been sought by the government to prevent construction of ice plants by the defendants in Montgomery and Selma respectively. The third case was against the Hattaway Lumber Company.

Chilton Farmers Got Over $334,000

State Farmers Get Huge Amounts From New Deal Set-Up

Auburn, June 18.—Alabama farmers have received more than 20 million dollars in New Deal benefit payments in the last two years and will have received an additional 10 million dollars by the end of this year, Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of Alabama Agricultural Extension Service, announced today.

From May 12, 1933, through April 30, 1935, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration distributed $20,214,543.92 in rental and benefit payments to farmers in the state who co-operate in the Government's program to reduce cotton, corn, hog and peanut production.

This amount was in addition to millions of dollars distributed in the state in 12-cent loans from the Government during the past two years.

Every county in the state shared in the benefit payments, with the amount in each county varying from a minimum of $35,605.77 in Baldwin County to a maximim of $896,936.82 in Madison County. Jefferson County's share was $70,547.92 for the two-year period.

The distribution in Chilton iounty totals $334,517.92.

WOMAN DECLARES SPOUSE WILL WORK IF AID IS NOT RAISED

Topeka, Kans.—A woman called at the Shawnee County relief headquarters to complain about the amount of money and supplies given her family.

"We just can't get along on what we're getting," she told a case worker. "My husband and I talked it over and he said if we didn't get more, he was going out and try to find a job."—Associated Press.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

As was to have been expected, much of the excitement and unsettlement over the Supreme Court's decision invalidating the NRA is beginning to subside. It is doubtful whether there was as much excitement as some newspaper headlines would have us believe. There is still much disappointment and chagrin on the part of some of the so-called New Dealers who may have had a great deal to do with writing the legislation. But there has been no revolution, no nationwide strike and no landslide return to child labor or wage cutting. Indeed there have been some wage advances. It is true that the threat of a coal strke remains imminent, but this trouble became acute long before the Court passed on the NRA. It is true also that there was a strike in Toledo, but this came about not because of wage slashing but for the reason that a demand was made for a twenty per cent increase in wages. As this is being written there seems to be good prospect that the difficulty will be settled by arbitration.

There is to be no immediate official demand for a revision of the Constitution, or for a new amendment which would give the government at Washington more power to regulate business and social affairs out in the states. A period of investigating, research and waiting seems to be ahead of us. It is proposed that a skeletonized NRA organization be kept until next April and that a plan be devised to enact some sort of mild recovery act which will be inside the Constitution. Doubtless this is a much wiser course than one proposing to rush headlong into an effort to change the Constitution, a course that would create much political heat and would doubtless fail in its purpose.

So it would seem that there is a great deal of wisdom in the proposal to wait and see what happens. We are not on the chasm of an economic abyss because the NRA was held unconstitutional. The stock market sagged for a day or two immediately after the decision but it has often sagged quite as much without any court decision and in doing so has caused little or no comment. In fact the market had risen 15 points since March and was due for a "correction." Doubtless the bears took advantage of the discouraged statements made by too ardent New Dealers immediately after the decision and the money crisis in France, using these two circumstances to sell stocks. The decline of five of the fifteen points was therefore not all surprising. Indeed had there been any widespread fear, because of the failure of the NRA setup, there might have been a real collapse with conditions in Europe as pessimistically tinged as they are.

In discounting all of the despondent statements of some of the ardent followers of the Blue Eagle as to what may happen now that we have returned to the "age of individualism" it must be remembered that the NRA was apparently on its way out even before the Supreme Court acted. It was becoming more unpopular and was being upset here and there by the courts and becoming more and more disregarded by the public, call it chiseling or what you will. The act had been passed not to make the Blue Eagle a permanent institution but for so-called emergency purposes. Extensions were proposed and debated, and it was evident that a bitter row was brewing in Congress over whether the life of the Blue Eagle was to be extended ten months or two years. Probably a compromise in Congress on the extent of its life would have been necessary had the Supreme Court not settled the matter once and for all. In view of all these facts it must be apparent to almost anyone not blinded by prejudice in the matter, that the NRA as constituted, would not have lasted much longer in any event. It is therefore easy to understand why the nullification of the act by the Court did not have the revolutionary effect that many of its people declared it would have. This bad result could only have happened if the killing of the Blue Eagle had destroyed public morale, which it did not. Recovery in the country depends not on the immediate enactment of a new recovery measure or the amendment of the Constitution. It depends on the building up of public confidence.

MR. BALDWIN'S IDEA

In a recent adress in Great Britain, Stanley Baldwin, noted Conservative British statesman, is reported to have regretted the absence of the United States from Genevan complications and to have added:

"It is in times like these, when we are talking so much about collective security that I lament so sincerely the absence of the United States from the League.

"For the United States to take part in collective security is, I am aware, not practical politics. But as one who has now been in public life many years and who can't be in high position in this country many years more I may perhaps be allowed one thing that those who follow me may bear in mind.

"I have always believed that the greatest security against war in any part of the world whatever, in Europe, in the East, anywhere, would be the close collaboration of the British Empire with the United States. * * *"

The United States is of course willing to cooperate with Great Britain in a purely American way in the interests of peace and tranquility. It is also willing to cooperate with France, Italy, Japan, Germany and any other nation for the same purpose.

The United States is not, however, willing to bind itself in advance to go along with Great Britain or any other country as to world policy. Too often in the past British statesmen have been able to fool us into believing that what is really purely selfish British policy is "in the interests of peace" or to "save democracy."

We have not the least doubt that John Bull would welcome the assurance of our collaboration, especially in the Orient. Great Britain has a dozen times as much at stake there as we have, many times as much trade to protect in China as we have. It would be, therefore, very satisfying to British politicians if they could be asured that American policy would collaborate with them in protecting these vast interests and this foreign trade.

Unfortunately for John Bull, however, the United States at this time has no disposition to mix into political affairs in Europe or the Orient, nor to promise in advance what we will or will not do. This tendency was eloquently and forcefully developed in the Senate recently in the defeat of the resoltion which would have placed the United States in the League Court.

Great Britain is a far flung empire and she could naturally use our resources in the interest of British policy especially in the interest of "peace and democracy." But developments during the past dozen years have opened our eyes. We willingly gave up battleship supremacy over Great Britain in the interest of disarmament only to see that nation outstrip us in other implements of sea power. Then there is the question of international debts. Perhaps if John Bull is so anxious to have our support he will do something toward paying these instead of boasting about his treasury surplus.

Of course we want to be friendly with Great Britain and the rest of the world. But when it comes to pull other folks' chestnuts out of the fire, let us remember that we have plenty of chestnuts of our own at home. Our ventures abroad have been expensive and unsatisfactory.

ALWAYS UP TO THE PEOPLE

There are some evidences that the talk of President Roosevelt to the newsapermen, following the action of the Supreme Court on the NRA did not "get over" so big, so far as those portions which went out to the public are concerned, as did some of the Chief Executive's charming radio addresses of previous occasions. In fact, the New York Times editorially commenting on the address captions it "An Imprudent Speech."

The note of confidence and optimism which was apparent and whch appealed so strongly to the majority of his listeners before, seemed to be lacking. We were told that in one stroke we had been set back to the "horse and buggy days," that other bits of New Deal legislation were in danger with the possibility that wheat would drop to 36 cents a bushel and cotton to five cents a pound if the fears were realized.

There seems to have been some expectation on the part of the Chief Executive's fellow partisions that, while admitting that most of the NRA had been rendered inoperative, it might be suggested there was no need to fear for the future of the country, that the administration, having tried one thing which the Supreme Court found outside the Constitution, would make a fresh start, try something else, building anew in the ruins. Yet this "happy warrior" note seemed to be strangely lacking.

We are told that it is now up to the American people. Whether this means an attempted amending of the Constitution time will tell.

Perhaps it might have been better if the American people had been informed long ago that it was principally up to them. No government has yet been found wise enough or brilliant enough to make a people happy and prosperous, one which could pull them out of a depression without the aid of their own efforts. In fact it might even be said that the faith, courage and above all the efforts of the people are necessary for any lasting success. It is always up to the people. The government may point the way and aid in a constitutional manner but it cannot pull the people over the hill. It will rather crumble before this is done if the effort is kept up long enough. Our future is indeed up to the people in a great measure, just as it has always been. It was the courage and enterprise of the people which built a great nation.

THE SUPREME GUARDIAN

The Supreme Court of the United States is what the framers of the Constitution intended it to be, the guardian of our established fundamental order, of the rights of the states and of the liberties of the people.

Above the passions of a day or a year, above the follies of politicians, and above the falsities of unbaked economists it exists as esential to keep the nation on that true course of orderly progress that has developed a great nation.

The decision rendered recently should still the talk as to the division of the Court between liberals and conservatives. There is no such division in unanimity on questions of vital concern to the maintenance of fundamental principles of our government. It is still a federation of states for national ends and not a centralized state for socialistic ends.

Stilled also must be suggestions for politically doctoring the Court by adding to its number of justices those subservent to executive ideas of congressional whims. The unanimous decisions in the three cases leave even unscrupulous designers of a doctored Supreme Court without any reason for suggestion or action.—Springfield Union.

Current Week—2 Games:

Batting—At bat, 7; hits, 3 (2 singles and 1 home run); percentage, .428.

Fielding—Put-outs, 1; assists, 5; errors, 0; total chances, 6; perentage, 1.000; double plans, 0.

Season—27 Games:

Batting—At bat, 113; hits, 37 (29 singles, 5 doubles, 3 home runs); percentage, .327.

BEING SANITARY

Here's one made for laughs, absolutely. Nothing serious about it. An eminent authority on sanitation says the time wll come when laws will be passed to force absolute sanitation from birth to death. Now, let's see what that would bring about, and what we would have to enact laws to take care of.

A baby would have to be born wrapped in cellophane, its body sterilized in scalding water, and clothed in immaculate clothes, all of this work being done by someone with sanitary rubber gloves on. All care of him during the first few years would have to be by remote control, no one's bare hands ever touching him. When old enough to attend school, his clothes, books, etc., would have to be handled by sanitary methods, such as rubber gloves or the like. Even his meals would have to be taken in some such manner. When old enough to go "sparking", he would have to do that by telephone, being careful not to touch the mouthpiece. Kissing would be taboo, and a little hug now and then would be out of the question. On the wedding day, he could not take his bride's hand (without gloves on), and in the after years twin beds would be an absolute necessity.

After worrying through his life, he would come to die. If he should be accidently killed, the worries would not be so great, but if he should die of disease, quite a few precautions would have to be taken by the undertaker, to see that no one took any germs from his body. This done, he would be tightly sealed in his casket, and buried deep in the ground. That would be sanitary from birth to death.

I may have left out a few things, but these are the main points that would have to be watched. A few other laws would have to be passed, too. Knobs on doors would come off, cars would have to be built without steering wheels, the old custom of handshaking would be out, and fighting with bare fists would be crime. In time, of course, the legislators could figure out the particular articles and acts to be ruled against, and I suppose there might be a code or something to take care of all they looked over, as a blanket measure. Think we'll ever become sanitary?

THE GAUGE OF A GUN

Here's a good one. Have you ever thought how the gauge of a gun is determined? I hadn't, and didn't have the slightest idea how it was done until I read an article not long ago, telling all about it.

The gauge of a gun is determined by the number of perfectly roud lead balls, the size of which will fit snugly into the end of the gun barrell, can be made from a pound of lead. For instance, a pound of lead will make 20 balls any one of which will fit into the end of a 20-gauge gun barrell; it will make 16 balls, any one of which will fit into a 16-gauge, and so on. The "choke" of a gun is determined by micrometric variations in the diameter of the muzzle of the gun. When the forms are drilled, the "cylinder" or openbore gun is the standard from which the gauge is figured, and the basic measurement from which choke variations are figured.

So much for the shotgun. Rifle calibrations are determined by so many hundredths of an inch, in our measurement. A .32-calibre rifle carries a barrell the muzzle of which is 22 hundredths of an inch in diameter, a little less than a quarter of an inch. A .44 pistol barrell is 44 hundredth of an inch in diameter, a little less than half an inch. Rifle and pistol measurements in foreign countries are calibrated according to their own particular system of measurements. However, in most cases, foreign made guns are drilled to measurements to compare precisely with our own, even carrying American-made ammunition, although carrying altogether different calibre markings.

Shotguns, where they are used in foreign countries, conform to our own system of gauges.

Another curious thing, one authority on firearms states that the United States is the biggest user of open-bore guns (shot guns) in the world. The rifle is the choice of all the other nations.

THE CAUSE OF THE PANIC

Not so long ago one of my life-long friends, and a Democrat, said to me: "I want to be honest about the matter. I know that President Roosevelt has slipped badly several times, but I will always admire him for the way he handled the bank situation in 1933."

That man is honest. He believed all he had heard about how badly Mr. Hoover had messed things up. I wonder just how many people are like him—who don't know the REAL cause of the bank panic of 1933. Here is the way one big banker has sized the cause up. He is a man who knows the banking game just as well as you know your own business of farming or merchandising. And, by the way, he happens to be a Southern man, and an Independent. He cares nothing for either party, and states his convictions from an open mind, based entirely on facts as he sees them, and not prejudiced by any partisanship. He says:

"The bank panic of 1933 had its beginning on election day, 1932. I think no one will deny that the depression was world-wide, nor that some ground had been gained toward normalcy, the world over. From that memorable day in November, 1932, the rest of the world kept on its way to normalcy, but America stopped, maybe slipped back a little, especially as concerns the banking interests of the nation. The financial status of the United States grew worse and worse, until the complete breakdown late in February, 1933.

"Personally, I care not for parties. And, that it may not be said that I am a sour grapes fox, I will confess that I really voted for Mr. Roosevelt. But I am firmly convinced that Mr. Roosevelt's personal attitude toward the banking and financial end of the nation's business had much to do with, and in connection with his party's reputation in money matters, was the sole cause of the bank panic.

"To begin with, in fairness to Mr. Roosevelt, I must say that it is generally known that his party's policies have generally leaned toward inflation. During his 1932 campaign, it was hinted by his opposition that if his party went into power, inflation might result. He might have set the national mind at ease at once by a simple denial of this, but no such denial was forthcoming.

"Bankers were at once alarmed when he failed to quash the inflation rumor as soon as elected. He had spoken of a 'sound currency' policy, and he was asked to define what he called a 'sound currency', but this request he ignored also. Men high in his own party's councils, who saw the effect a general feeling of insecurity might result in, begged him to assert his policy in the matter. He said nothing.

"A rumor went around that inflation must be on the way, inasmuch as the president-elect had failed to deny it. The financial structure tottered. Hoarding began, as depositors began to sense the situation, and there were a few bank runs. Mr. Hoover felt that a quick denial of inflationary intentions by the incoming administration would yet save the day, and invited him to the White House to talk the matter over. Mr. Roosevelt went, but failed to make the desired statement that even his own party leaders knew was needed.

"More people were becoming afraid. Bad news travels on the wings of the wind. There was more hoarding—more bank runs, and a few banks closed. Still no word from Mr. Roosevelt, although he was being beseiged on every hand to make the sorely needed statement of sound currency policy. By now the feeling of uncertainty was gripping the nation completely, and closing of banks was a daily occurence. Mr. Hoover did what he could—he ordered the Federal Reserve to reinforce its member banks, and frantically called upon Mr. Roosevelt again to reassure the people on his money policy. Mr. Hoover had faith in Mr. Roosevelt's intended policies, but he also knew that unless the latter made those policies known at once, a banking collapse was certain. His requests, along with those made by Mr. Roosevelt's fellow-partisians were politely ignored, and the inevitable bank crash came.

"I admire the way he handled the situation as soon as he came into office, but this situation would never have come to pass if he had not side-stepped his duty. It is true that the bank situation was laid at the door of his opponent, and I hate to think that he kept quiet for this purpose, yet I can see no other reason for it. This belief belittles my respect for the chief executive. A bigger man must surely have thrown aside his partisanship, and come to the rescue of the nation he was to head. A true patriot would surely have put the welfare of his people ahead of his own selfish party policies. Therefore, I must believe that Mr. Roosevelt is not the true patriot I thought him to be on the day I cast my ballot for him.

"It is incredible that he did not understand what a frank statement might have meant. Even if he had inflationary measures in mind, a frank admission would have helped. It would have removed the feeling of uncertainty, at least.

"The future? Well, I am a sound money man, and I shall certainly lend my support in 1936 to the candidate who lays before the nation a policy of sound money, without any hint or taint of inflation. Events have come to pass since 1932 that convince me more than ever of the yen of the Democratic party toward inflation. Although officials deny that our money is inflated in any degree at present, yet this does not remove the fact that inflation is a reality right now. The 59-cent dollar is nothing but inflation in disguise, and a thin disguise at that.

"Once the financial structure of the nation is placed back on a firm foundation, I have no fear that we will again take up our climb to normalcy which was halted on election day in the fall of 1932. Business will stand still until it can see a firm footing to step out on. It will take no steps when it can see nothing solid to step on."

This is the opinion of a man whose ideas are well worth considering, and whose opinion is unbiased by narrow political views. His is the opinion of a man who has tried to look for the real causes of the question he has discussed, without trying to blame everything on "old Hoover."—Man in the Moon.

A QUICK CHANGE OF ERAS

We have heard a great deal about the "horse and buggy" age of late. The expression has been used, of course, principally in the economic sense. But taking it literally and physically we were in the horse and buggy age so far as individual travel was concerned until the day of the present generation. From the time of Ben Hur—long before that—down to that of McKinley, we were using horse and buggy transportation, to get from place to place. It is indeed true that transportation has changed with the automobile. But that change, it must be admitted, came because of the inventive skill, the enterprise, the earning ability and the spending resources of the American people. Europe, in the physical way, is still pretty much in the horse and buggy age so far as the common people are concerned. About the only thing the European workman gets out of the private automobile is dust and the smell of petrol.

Now if the decision of the Supreme Court on the NRA puts us politically and economically back into the horse and buggy age, it must mean that conditions, polilcal and economic, before the summer of 1933 must have been antiquated. The horse and buggy are out of date. Therefore by inference Constitutional government as we knew it two years or so ago is out of date.

Just what then converted us politically and economically from the horse and buggy to the benzine and eight cylinder motor? Since outlawing the NRA took us back politically to the old gray mare it must have been the NRA which brought us away from her and streamlined us.

Just how was that done and how long did it take? Well, there is still some difference of opinion as to the details, but it required only a little while to ring in the change. Two days after the NRA legislation was handed to the Ways and Means Committe in May, 1933, it was reported to the House of Representatives. After about four hours of debate the bill was passed. The Senate too made short work of it.

Certain it is that the actual details consumed but a little time and certainly the transformation from one political age to another was not due to the inventive skill, the courage of enterprise of the American people, but rather to the intellectual and political prowess of the New Dealers at Washington. The people themselves knew little about it at the time except that we had recently passed through a banking panic, and were still frightened.

It may be that this important bit of legislation, now inoperative, took us out of the horse and buggy age into the gasoline era. If it did, this was the quickest epochal change on record.

HIGH PRICES

Says the Alexander Hamilton Institute: "The effects of the Supreme Court's decision invalidating the NRA which may be viewed as salutary are the removal of influences which tend either to maintain an uneconomically high cost level or an uneconomically restricted output. Their removal ought to conduce to the more desirable road to improved purchasing power—a business revival.

"The trouble with much of the recovery effort put forth has been the mistaking of the symptom for the disease—of the reflection for the reality. A price rise can, of course, be brought about by curtailment of production. This is the creation of scarcity values. If a national income should remain perfectly stable, the prices of all goods might be raised by curtailing production of all. The value of one postage stamp is immeasurably increased if all others of the issue are destroyed. But a price rise of this type is unhealthy simply because it is a rise which originates in scarcity value. The price rise which helps is one which is a reflection of rising output—not one which proceeds from curtailed output. In the former case, purchasing power is being augmented by the same process which brings about the rise in price. In the other it is not. And it has been a matter of no little concern that we have been engineering a price rise by means of restricted output."

This is undoubtedly true. The collegiate economists have been right, undoubtedly in holding that rising prices, and rising wages, accompanying period of prosperity. But such increases in price levels must come about naturaly and through universal economic laws. They accompany an increased demand for goods, and a concomitant increase in employment after we have reached the bottom of a depression and started upward. They usually accompany also a balanced governmental budget—as is now announced in Great Britain—and a gradual return of confidence because of the assurace of such a budget balance and the prospect of lower taxes in the fairly near future.

THE WISDOM OF WALLACE

Mr. Wallace, or national impresario of intensive fiddle-faddle, staged one of his epigram shows at Lexington, Va., the other day.

Some bullets of wit from the Kallacian popgun:

"We retain some of the bad habits of the pioneer."

One of them a shrewd appraisal of Mr. Wallace's juvenile farming.

"The leaders of the United States have been fed on the individualism of the Bible."

But those Hebraic supermen knew that prosperity never came to their country by destroying crops and by price-fixing.—

"Thomas Jefferson would have championed the farmer's cause."

No doubt, But where did Jefferson ever advise the farmers to destroy their live stock?

Mr. Wallace's statements are true in every particular—except as to facts.—Washington, D. C., Herald.

DIFFERENT WHEN BUSINESS IS BOSSED

The theory that we are on the eve of a great bocm in prosperity is said to be based on the fact that in five years or so after the great depressions of 1873 and 1893, a boom took business unawares.

We hope it is sound theory. It may be important, however, to consider that in those years the government wasn't borrowing billions and running a heavy deficit, that it did not tie up business in the difficulties and uncertainties of NRA, AAA and the other schemes but left business alone to make and mulitply itself and that, with far less gold in our monetary stack, the dollar was still the traditional dollar.

Precedent may apply now, when government is assuming to say what business may and may not do while leaving business uncertain whether or not to venture to do much.—Springfield Union.

Even at that we would rather trust a statesman who gets famous by writing patent medicine testimonials for publication than one who wins success by promising to lower taxes and give the poor more public money.

"The policeman says you and your wife had some words," remarked a judge in Ponia City.

"I had some, sir," replied the husband, "but I didn't get a chance to use them."—Wichita Eagle.

What the the most popular ten words nowadays in the English language? That's easy: Chain, letter, cross, mail, dollar, dime, don't, break, can't, lose.—Jersey City Journal.

The legislation of Quebec recently voted down a bill providing votes for women. The bachelor members were too crusty to give the women the vote and the married men said they didn't need it.

The reason Congress doesn't pass a rule compelling members to remain in the legislative halls and listen to all the speeches is that the Constitution prohibits cruel and unusual punishment.

It is said that the G. O. P. may change its name to J. O. P.—Jefferson's Old Party.

Would Like Taxes As Low As Electricity

"I wish everybody would start a crusade to make taxes as low as your prices for electricity," writes L. C. Rice, resident of Warrior. "Maybe the reason some of us don't use any more electricity than we do, cheap as it is, is because we have to save all of our spare change to pay our taxes with." Adv. Alabama Power Co.

CLANTON METHODIST CHURCH

(Dr. A. E. Middlebrooks, Minister)

If you enjoy pipe organ music come to the vesper services each Sunday afternoon ten or fifteen minutes before five o'clock. Mrs. Percy M. Pitts, evening organist, will give an organ recital for ten or fifteen minutes before the regular service begins. Come, meditate, pray and worship God in the quietness of this beautiful auditorium as you listen to soft worshipful music. Sunday afternoon the pastor will speak on the theme: "The Message of the Garden."

Sunday morning at 11:00 the theme will be: "The Mesesage of the Trees." A very important matter will be presented to the congregation for consideration, the outcome of which will effect every church member. Be sure to be present.

Eend your children to the vacation School that begins Monday morning at 8:30, continuing till 11:30 each day for two weeks with the exception of Saturday. The school is for all children from four to twelve years of age. There will be no charge. The program will consist of study, worship, work and play. The children will enjoy the school. They will need pictures for scrapbook work. Please bring next Sunday, any magazines you can spare, especially Christian Herald, Parents Magazine, World Outlook.

SELL SCRUB BULLS NOW ADVISES AUBURN PROF.

Auburn, Ala., June 17.—By using purebred bulls out of high-producing cows, Alabama dairymen can improve their dairy herds at very small cost, states F. W. Burns, extension livestock specialist.

"The co-operative bull associatioon is one method which enables dairymen to adopt a low-cost, long-time herd-improvement program," states Mr. Burns.

"Remember that your pasture herd depends on your present bull and if you are still using a scrub bull you had better sell him while prices are good, and co-operate with your neighbor in putting a production-bred bull in your community," he writes the dairymen of the State. "Your county agent and dairy department at Auburn will be glad to assist you with this necessary and worth-while work."

SUMMER MONTHS BEST TO CUT WINTER WOOD

Auburn, June 18.—Slack seasons during the summer months offer excellent opportunities for farmers to harvest the next winter's wood supply, says Lyle Brown, extension forester, who declares that wood cut during the hot summer months will dry fuel value for its weight than if used green.

"In cutting wood during the summer, there is no danger of bugs in cutting hardwood, but care should be exercised if pine is cut to see that all the tree is used, even to the larger limbs, and the small ones should be piled and burned," he advises. "his will prevent the attack of pine beetles which will attack freshly-cut trees and spread to live ones. Using the entire tree is a good practice, any way."

STATE CONVICTS MAY GROW LEGUME SEED

At the request of the Alabama Legislature, R. J. Goode, Commissioner of Agriculture, is looking into the possibility of having State convicts grow legume seed and sell them to farmers at reasonable prices.

The legislative resolution, introduced in the Senate by Senator M. B. Wellborn of Calhoun county, was passed unanimously.

ORDER TREE SEEDLINGS EARLY

Montgomery. — The State Forest Tree Nursery near Livingston will have a large number of seedlings available for planting by farmers and other landowners next fall, announces the Alabama Commission of Forestry. The principal species are long leaf pine, slash pine, loblolly pine, shortleaf pine and black walnut. The nursery is conducted by the Commission in cooperation with the United States Forest Service.

Under the procedure adopted, these young trees are sold to farmers and others who wish to reforest limited areas. The price is fixed at the cost of production. This amounts to $2.50 per thousand seedlings of slash pine, and $2.00 per thousand for the other species.

In most years there is a heavy rush of orders just before planting time. As a result many are unable to secure seedlings desired. The Commission recommends, therefore, that all applicants for tree seedlings place their orders during the summer so that arrangements can be made in advance to ship at the proper season.

Shipments are made from the nursery between January 1 and March 1. Five hundred seedlings is the minimum shipment made. Orders for seedlings should be addressed to the State Forester, 500 Dexter Ave., Montgomery, and must be accompanied by Post Office money order covering the cost of the young trees. Ordinarily the seedlings are shipped from the nursery by express, the charges to be paid by the consignee.

FIRST NATIONAL CONTEST IN 4 - H FOOD PROJECT OFFERS FINE PRIZE LIST

A national contest in 4-H food preparation, the first ever to be held, will be conducted for the 300,000 club members enrolled this year, announces the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work. County, state and four sectional prizes and a grand national prize are offered. The presentations will be a feature of approprite 4-H club events at the end of the project year.

The final feature of the contest will be awarding the national champion a $400.00 cash college scholarship given with the other prizes by the Electrolux Refrigerator Division, Servel, Inc., as an incentive to the 4-H club work in food preparation and protection.

WHAT IS IT, THEN?

Charleston, W. Va.—Is a crayfish a fish? Magistrate H. G. Thayer can't be sure and he seeks enlightenment. Two boys were arrested on a charge of using nets to catch fish. They told Thayer they were only after crayfish, which are like small crabs and which the boys claimed weren't fish. Thayer thought the matter over for a week and finally postponed the trial until the state game warden can get around to the trial and give his opinions.

STEEL FINDING WAY INTO HOME BUILDING

Auburn, June 18.—With timber being used much faster than it is being replaced, Alabamians are turning their attention to buildings constructed of steel, and to the use of Alabama mined and manufactured products.

To illustrate the wide variety of buildings which may be constructed of steel, the "Tennesteel Homestead" has been established two miles south of Birmingham on the Montgomery Highway.

Saturday, June 22nd, has been set as the formal opening date for the Homestead, at which time visitors will observe a cottage, garage, poultry house, barn, and fences constructed of steel. After that date the project will be open to the public at all times.

"'Tennesteel Homestead' will be more than a show place, illustrating the new steel trend in small buildings," said an oficial announcement. Truck and feed crops will be grown to illustrate the advantages of basic slag, another Alabama-manufactured product recognized and recommended by agricultural authorities throughout the South as one of the most profitable of all soil conditioners and stimulants to growth and crop yields.

FEWER HOGS EXPECTED INFOREIGN COUNTRIES

Fewer hogs are in prospect in most of the important producing countries of the world, acocrding to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Decreased slaughter is reported in Germany, Denmark, Netherlands, Czechoslovakia and Poland. Slaughter supplies in the United States, says the bureau, "are likely to continue small, at least until the summer of 1935."

BALDWIN COUNTY FISHING RODEO ON AUGUST 22 & 23

Montgomery, June 17.—Dr. W. C. Holmes of Foley, president of the Baldwin county chapter of the Izaac Walton League, announces that the annual Baldwin county fishing rodeo will be held August 22 and 23.

It will be held in Perdido Bay and gulf waters adjacent to Baldwin county mainland.

The rodeo was founded in 1931 by the late Dr. Sibley Holmes, of Foley.

175 ARE IN DEVAUGHN'S SINGING SCHOOL AT SYLACAUGA

Prof. W. M. Devaughn was back in Clanton last Saturday afternoon, after the first week of his singing school at Sylacauga. He reported one of the finest schools of his entire experience, with 175 on roll and all present at the classes Saturday morning. He has two classes through the week, but they all meet together on Saturday.

Prof. Devaughn indicated that he would very lkely add another teacher in the next few days, since its working him mighty hard to look after so many pupils by himself.

A card from Prof. Devaughn dated the 18th stated: "There are now 185 on roll; new ones coming every session. Am putting on another teacher Tuesday morning. Archie Devaughn is helping me teach. We are going to have a great concert at the close."

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING OF CHILTON COUNTY W. M. U.

The W. M. U. of Chilton County Association will meet with Liberty Hill Church the first Saturday afternoon in July, at 2:00 o'clock. The officers are especially invited to be present and help plan the program for the quarterly meeting and also make plans for the Christian-Unity Institute. So your help and your presence is needed.—Mrs. L. D. Hughes, Supt.

STATE GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., June 18.—Commissioner I. T. Quinn of the Alabama Game and Fisheries Department, expects this state to receive a share of an $8,000,000 appropriation voted by Congress for migratory waterfowl and other wild life restoration.

Following passage by the house, the senate last week approved the Kleberg bill giving President Roosevelt authority to allocate this sum from the $4,880,000,000 relief appropriation for restoration purposes. The president is expected to sign the bill, which also simplifies the purchase of duck stamps, within the next week.

"This will give the U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey $8,000,000 out of the federal relief appropriation for the acquisition and development of breeding and feeding grounds for migratorv waterfowl," declared Commissioner Quinn.

"It looks as though this bill will assure for wild life the allocation we have been seeking and I am very hopeful it will take in the two areas in Baldwin and Mobile counties which have been inspected by federal authorities as possible sites for migratory waterfowl refuges and feeding grounds."

The Kleberg bill was the answer to the recent widely published statement of J. N. Darling, chief of the Biological Survey, criticizing Congress for failure to provide for a wild life restoration program and it had the firm support of the National Committee on Wildlife Legislation of which the Alabama Commissioner is chairman.

SURELY M'DEARS—YOU CAN HAVE A COLA DRINK — HERE'S A CHERO

What! What! Who's been telling you that Cola drinks weren't good for you? Well don't let them tell you that about CHERO — the grandest Cola drink of them all—for it contains just the things children need. Natural flavors and essences—cane sugar—purest water—and don't forget, the sugar in CHERO is in practically predigested form. Tired little bodies assimilate it almost instantly. It builds energy, brings back strength. And, of course, children like CHERO better than any other Cola drink because of its tangy, fruity flavor. You can give CHERO to the smallest tots as often as they clamor for it, secure in the knowledge that here is a Cola safe for children.

THREE SENT TO PEN

One white man, J. W. Davis, Jr., and two negroes, Cliff Oden and Daniel Webster Pearson, were sent to the penitentiary of Alabama from the Chilton County jail Tuesday afternoon.

Young Davis is one of the men who was jailed last week upon charges of breaking in the Ford place in Clanton. He was already out on probation under sentence of two years for a conviction in the Circuit Court in April, 1933, for burglary and grand larceny.

After he was arrested here last week and placed in jail his probation was revoked, and he was sent to the pen to put up his two years sentence.

Cliff Oden was sentenced for 179 days on a charge of violating the prohibition law; Daniel Webster Pearson was sentenced 113 days on the same charge.

MIDWAY-MT. CREEK DEM. CLUB

The Midway-Mt. Creek Club met on June 12th, at 2 o'clock, in the club house. The club was called to order by the president, Mrs. W. A. Adams. Minutes were read by the secretary. Miss Ruth Pardue gave a talk on drying fruits and vegetables in the home. Also how to make a simple evaporator for home use, then how to prepare the fruits and vegetables for both.

She also demonstrated the kind of cans to use in canning.

Our next project will be canning. The club will meet in the club house July 10th at 2 o'clock.—Reporter.

SPECIAL MEETING CHILTON COUNTY POST FRIDAY NIGHT

Commander R. W. Lowe, of Chilton County Post No. 6, American Legion, announces a call for a special meeting of the Post Friday night of this week, June 21, at the courthouse.

Purpose of the meting is to elect Post officers for the coming year; also delegates to the State Department Convention in Mobile next month and prepare reports for the convention.

Commander Lowe urges all Post members to attend the meeting, and extends an invitation to all ex-soldiers in the county. He says he will furnish some drinks, refreshments and smokes, and hopes all members and ex-soldiers will come and have a good time.

The meeting will be at the courthouse, beginning at eight o'clock, Friday night of this week.

POSTOFFICE AT VERBENA HAS BEEN ADVANCED TO THIRD CLASS OFFICE

Twenty-One Offices In Alabama Are Advanced As Business Increases To Justify It

Verbena, Chilton County, is among the twenty-one Alabama postoffices which received a boost from the postoffice department at Washington, effective July 1st, as a result of the annual readjustment of postmasters' salaries, which is based upon the receipts of the offices. Not a single office in Alabama is to be reduced by the readjustment.

There were ten towns, heretofore fourth-class postoffices, which were adjudged to become third class, and hereafter their postmasters must be nominated by the President and confirmed by the Senate. Verbena appears in this list.

BARRETT AND COX WEDDING SURPRISE TO MANY FRIENDS

A wedding of much interest, but very surprising, was that of Mr. Hamey Barrett of Clanton Route 1 to Miss Vera Cox of near Billingsley. The ceremony was quietly solemnized at the home of Rev. A. L. Foshee Sunday afternoon.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Cox; the groom is the son of Mrs. M. C. Barrett. They will make their home with the latter's mother.

Their many friends wish them a long and happy life together.

Unity-Chilton Mission Institute

The W. M. U. of Chilton and Unity Associations are again sponsoring a Mission Institute, which will be held at Clanton Baptist Church, July 9, 10, and 11. Four tasks must be accomplished, if it is to be of the greatest value to our folks. Help me pray that these may be done.

1. Great preachers and teachers secured. We have already secured the services of Dr. W. H. Carson, Africa; Mrs. Carter Wright, S.B.C., W.M.U. Representative; Mrs. Ida M. Stallworth, State W. M. U. Secretary; Miss Carrie Littlejohn, Principal of W. M. U. Training School; and others are being sought, missionaries and outstanding preachers.

2. Each church represented in a large and beneficial way. We suggest that the S. S. Superintendent, the President of the W. M. S., if organized, if not, the teachers of the adult classes and the pastor, form a transportation committee, and begin now to arrange for ways for the people to attend. Get a school bus, truck or cars, if a number go in together it will be inexpensive. Plan to come every day. Do not have your revival meeting in your church at that date. Appoint six who will attend the classes every day and come back and teach those books in the local church, or one near by. Six will care for every age in your church. It is important to pass on your blessings in that way.

3. Lunch for each day. We do not wish to put the bodily feasting above the spiritual, but we wish each one to have a nice lunch each day. So we are asking each family to bring a generous basket one day, which will not be hard on anybody. The menu has been prepared and we are depending on you to do your share. If your church is not notified as to day and lunch chairman, by July 1st, get in touch with Mrs. L. D. Hughes, Verbena, for Chilton, and Mrs. Grady Heflin, Clanton, for Unity.

4. Each member of each family richly blessed. Begin now to arrange for the whole family to go all three days. It is the duty of every pastor and church officer to be present, and to urge others to attend. You cannot afford to miss this great opportunity for information and inspiration. The program will be printed later. Watch for it.—Mrs. S. J. Ezell, Director.

Florala, Alabama, is just now, perhaps, the busiest and most excited town in America. The citizens, thru their Masonic organization, are getting ready to stage their 64th annual Masonic Day celebration, which will be held on Monday, June 24th, this year.

This celebration, which began in 1871 simply as a community gathering for the public installation of Masonic officials, has grown into gigantic proportions, until it is now claimed to be the greatest annual Masonic day celebration in America, at which more than 20,000 people annually gather to enjoy a program which has grown into Mardi Gras proportions and includes scores of attractive features such as a grand mile-long parade, boat racing on beautiful Lake Jackson, water battles, pugilistic contests, swimming and bathing beauty contests, all-day singing and dancing, fiddlers convention, street clowns, airplane stunts, baseball, golf tournament, and scores of lesser important features, closing with a grand ball at night.

No matter in what direction your interest and pleasure may be inclined, your visit to Florara on this occasion will be one of the most pleasurable events in your life.

Excellent highways, special bus service and the Louisville & Nashville trains, via Crestview, Fla., afford the means of reaching the city in time to spend the day.

Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Broadhead and son, Hal, of Montgomery, spent the week end in Clanton with friends and relatives. Mrs. Broadhead remained over until Wednesday and was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Hayes and Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Hayes.

HOSPITAL OFFICIALS ELECTED AT ANNUAL MEETING MONDAY

The annual meeting of stockholders of Central Alabama Hospital was held Monday morning at the hospital building in Clanton.

Officers for the ensuing year were re-elected, as follows: Dr. V. J. Gragg president; Dr. R. B. McNeill, vice-president; W. M. Wyatt, secretary; J. C. Page, treasurer; directors—Dr. V. J. Gragg, C. Fenn Jones, M. L. White, Dr. C. O. Lawrence.

Business operations of the hospital for the past year showed more than 25 per cent of the gross business was for charity cases; notwithstanding which the hospital was able to pay out of its operating expenses over a thousand dollars on the debts of the corporation, and more than five hundred dollars for interest on indebtedness.

An invitation is extended to all W. O. W. members in Chilton County to attend the meeting.

NEW DEAL ASSAILED BY CARTER GLASS AS BEING OUT OF ORDER

Medford, Mass., June 17.—United States Senator Carter Glass, democrat, of Virginia, former secretary of the treasury, Monday assailed the New Deal, saying: "A government out of its constitutional order is certain to bring disaster."

Senator Glass launched his attack against the administration's policies after being awarded the degree of doctor of laws at the seventy-ninth Tufts College commencement exercises.

"Whether there be an 'old' or 'new' deal, there should always be a square deal," he declared. "And when a deal is made, too many cards should not be distributed to one and too few to the others.

"A govenment out of its constitutional order is certain to bring disaster, just as a planet out of its orbit."

TWO CASES IN MAYOR'S COURT MONDAY MORNING

Two cases on charges of public drunkeness were on the docket of Mayor's court Monday morning. Both were assessed fines and costs.

Mrs. S. J. Ezell and Mrs. Grady Heflin were in Wetumpka Tuesday for the Baptist Institute. Mrs. Henry Jones accompanied them to visit relatives.

JUDGE GRUBB WILL RULE ON AAA TAX LEVY FRIDAY, 28TH

Processing Tax Scheme To Be Tested In United States Court

Birmingham, June 17.—Judge Wm. I. Grubb, who held the NRA and the TVA unconstitutional, in federal court will rule June 28th on the constitutionality of the processing taxes on which the Agricultural Adjustment Administration's crop control scheme is built.

Constitutionality of the processing tax on hogs is the immediate issue which will be at stake in the hearing. Petition asking that the tax be held unconstitutional and that the Bureau of Internal Revenue be enjoined from further attempting to collect it was filed last week by the Alabama Packing Company, through attorneys Benjamin Leader and John D. Hill.

The petition sets out that the company has paid $180,000 in processing taxes and that the Internal Revenue Bureau is moving to collect $50,000 additional.

DR. H. T. DONOVAN WILL OPEN OFFICES IN CLANTON JUNE 20

Dr. H. T. Donovan announces the opening of his offices over Mazar's Store Thursday, June 20. Dr. Donovan, a native of Marion, has been for the past year Health Officer for Shelby County. He received a B. S. degree at Birmingham-Southern and spent two years at the University of Alabama. His M. D. degree was received at Louisiana State University and his interneship served at U. S. Marine and Charity Hospital, both of New Orleans. He also took postgraduate work at Vanderbilt University.

Miss Alma Allen, who assisted Dr. Arthur Johnson until his recent death, will assist Dr. Donovan in his office.

Mrs. Louise Knox, Miss Bloomery, Mr. Buttle of Montgomery spent the week end as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Foshee at their camp.

BOSWELL TO TEACH SINGING SCHOOL AT JACKSON CHAPEL

Prof. A. O. Boswell of near Cooper announces that he will teach a singing school at Jackson Chapel schoolhouse this summer, the date of beginning being Monday, July 8th. The school will run for four weeks of five days per week. All of the subjects usually taught in singing schools will be taught by Prof. Boswell.

A school was taught at this place last summer by Mr. Boswell, and he met with satisfactory results in every respect. He has had several years experience in teaching, and everywhere he has been he had complete success and given satisfaction in every way. This young man will no doubt be greeted with the full co-operation of the people of Jackson Chapel community this summer, as he has been heretofore.

CONSTITUTION SUPREME

No one man or party is stronger than the Constitution of the United States. This fact is indicated clearly by the reaction of the public to the President's avowed intention of bending the Constitution to fit in with the "New Deal" theories. The respect which people have for this document and for the nine venerable men who guard it outweighs even the magnetic personality of the most popular president of recent times. So long as this fundamentally sound condition exists, people of the United States need not fear the threat of dictatorship.

REV. CARROLL WILL PREACH AT CHESTNUT CREEK JULY 6

In the absence of the pastor, Rev. J. W. Jones, who will be at Climax, Ga., in a revival meeting, Rev. Homer Carroll will preach at Chestnut Creek Church, Coopers, on Saturday, July 6.

The pastor will return in time for the Sunday services, July 7th.

VOLUME 43.—TWELVE PAGES CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, JUNE 27, 1935 NUMBER 10

SIXTEEN MILES WILL BE PAVED

Dallas County Will Pave Road From Selma To Plantersville

Final okeh on the Selma-Plantersville link of the Birmingham highway, on which a 16.5 mile stretch will be graded and surfaced with a bituminous treatment, has been given by State Highway Department heads whose engineers already are on the ground making surveys for the work which will start within two weeks.

The construction will be carried forward under the three-way set up in which the county, state and federal authorities will share one third each of the total costs. One cent of the county's gasoline tax will go to this project. Effort to induce Chilton County to carry the road improvement on from the line to Clanton will be made by Judge W. M. Vaughn, judge of Probate.

Relief Labor Planned

Labor will be furnished from Relief rolls and several outfits probably will be put to work at the same time at different points on the road, it was stated Saturday by G. C. Phillips, Assistant Division Engineer of the Highway department who has established offices in this area.

Mr. Phillips stated that between eight and ten months will be required for completion of the road project which will extend from the end of the present black top surface road terminus at Morrison's branch to the Chilton County line above Plantersville. Weather conditions will determine the completion date for the road work, which will be carried on thru the summer and early fall and winter months. Employment to a number of persons needing jobs, both white and colored, will be given on the road project.

"THE LUCAS FAMILY" WILL BE AT COOPER SCHOOL AUDITORIUM

"The Lucas Family," is the title of a three-act comedy which will be staged by local talent at the Cooper School Auditorium next Saturday night, June 29th, beginning at 8:15. The play is sponsored by the Cooper baseball team, for which the proceeds of the occasion will be used. Admission charges will be only 10 and 15 cents, and it is hoped that everybody will attend. It is a good play that will make you laugh a dollar's worth.

SINGING AT NEW SALEM FIFTH SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Mr. Johnnie Miner asks The Union-Banner to announce that there will be singing at New Salem next Sunday afternoon, the fifth Sunday, beginning at 2 o'clock. Their regular time is every first Sunday afternoon, but have concluded to move up to the fifth Sunday, inasmuch as their preaching services have been changed to that day.

All singers are invited to be present. There will be a supply of new books. "Bring your new books and come along," says Mr. Miner.

COME AND HEAR!

Hear the truth concerning the things which have been, and which are, and the things which are to come, at the Clanton Gospel Tabernacle Sunday night at 7:30. Wife and I will be in charge of the services. We will be happy to meet all our old friends, and make new ones. We will hope to shake hands with you Sunday night.

These are great gospel days. The light of truth is shining that all may know the things that point to other things that shall shortly come to pass.

Come and hear.—L. P. Adams.

CELEBRATION TO BE HERE JULY 4TH

Baseball Games, Barbecue and Public Speaking Are Being Arranged

A July Fourth celebration in Clanton is being arranged under sponsorship of three local baseball clubs, the American Legion Club, the Alabama Mills Club, and the Clanton Club.

Schedules are arranged whereby each of the local ball clubs will play a visiting team at the high school park on Thursday, July Fourth, it is announced by Manager Marvin Marcus of the Clanton club.

In addition to the three baseball games, there will be lots of other fun and amusements.

Several from out of town will be there to address the gathering on subjects of particular interest to those engaged in farming, as well as other lines of business.

Arrangements will be made for serving barbecue and refreshments to all visitors who desire them.

Full and complete details of the day's program will be in next week's paper, which will reach all subscribers on next Wednesday, July 3rd. Meanwhile, everybody is urged to make plans to come to Clanton and enjoy the Fourth with your friends. You will have a good time.

THE UNION-BANNER A DAY EARLY NEXT WEEK

On account of next Thursday being the Fourth of July, and no rural mail carriers that day, The Union-Banner will come out to the subscribers on Wednesday of next week.

All correspondents will please take note of this and get your copy in to us just as early as possible. We would appreciate getting as much as possible on Saturday of this week.

VACCINATE DOGS FOR 50 CENTS

The town of Clanton has been unable to furnish vaccines for anti-rabies treatment of dogs this year as they did last, but Dr. W. L. Parrish is doing this work privately and is making a special price just to take care of the actual cost, which is 50c per dog.

This is not only for dogs in Clanton but anywhere in the county. There is talk of making vaccinations compulsory in the city limits of Clanton.

CONTEST HAS NOT BEEN SETTLED YET

Hearing Of Evidence Will Be Started In Court On July 8th

The election contest cases in Chilton County have not been determined yet, although some over-zealous partisians appear to create the impression by their talk that the matter has already been settled by throwing out enough legal votes to give the Democrats the offices under dispute.

The truth is that the contest cases have not been settled or disposed of in court. Trial of the cases for taking testimony is set in the Circuit Court for July 8.

Neither have there been any illegal votes thrown out, which it is implied was done upon a ruling of the State Attorney General, and made public last week.

Further than that, the question which was submitted to the Attorney General is not a question of issue in the contest, and will not be. Consequently the ruling of the Attorney General upon the question will not have any bearing on the cases, because the question ruled upon is not at issue.

When the case gets under way in the court, and the testimony is presented, it will be revealed as to what is the real issue with reference to the 700 votes that are claimed to be illegal under the ruling of the Attorney General.

STORES TO CLOSE THURSDAY JULY 4

Will Remain Open All Day Wednesday of Next Week

On account of the Fourth of July coming on Thursday of next week, it has been agreed among the stores and business houses of Clanton to change the summer half holiday closing schedule for next week to better fit the convenience of everybody.

Accordingly, it is announced that on next week the stores will remain open all day Wednesday, and will continue open until nine o'clock Thursday, July Fourth, at which hour they will close for the day.

This arrangement will apply only to next week, after which they will go back to the regular schedule of closing Wednesday afternoons for the balance of the summer.

Everybody is urged to take notice of the special order set up for next week. You will be interested in making your purchases for the Fourth, and the stores want to serve you as promptly and completely as possible. Don't forget to have your orders filled before nine o'clock on the Fourth.

Mr. O. D. Grooms of Valdosta, Ga., was in Clanton the first of this week, looking after the sale of his father's estate, the late H. J. Grooms. Mr. Grooms runs a fruit store in Valdosta, and is making good at the business.

HOWARD GARRICK OPENS A NEW SANDWICH SHOP

Those who like a good barbecue sandwich properly prepared will find something worth while at West End Sandwich Shop, which was recently opened by Mr. Howard Garrick.

Mr. and Mrs. Garrick are well known for their ability to prepare delicious barbecue and to serve it in a style to please the most particular persons. They extend an invitation to the people of Clanton to drive out to West End and enjoy one of their sandwiches with a cold drink.

There is plenty of parking space in a lot next to the sandwich shop and our curb service will be a specialty.

Mr. Bill Shurett, of Tuscaloosa, was a visitor in Clanton Monday.

IS MR. ROOSEVELT'S HOLD SLIPPING?

[EDITORIAL]

In an attempt to give a negative answer to the above question, our honorable contemporary, The Chilton County News, headed off their editorial column last week with some very caustic insinuations against those who do not see things just in accord with them. The said editorial begins with these words: "If anybody is under the delusion that Franklin D. Roosevelt has blown up politically, let him restore his sanity by meditating the recent action of American Governors at Biloxi in unanimously pledging their fealty to him and expressing their confidence in him."

A little lower down The News gives one reason for a "delusion" when it says: "All American Governors are politicians moved more or less by a lively sense of expectation of favors to come."

Nothing else more needs be said regarding the convention of governors at Biloxi, which wrangled over economic and inter-state questions for a couple of days and could not reach any common point of constructivism, so just all agreed to sign off by unanimously endorsing the President. So long as they consumed time in talking about the national program in detail, they could not get together on anything.

And then another who seems to be suffering from some "delusion" or the lack of "sanity" is The Montgomery Advertiser, the beloved champion of Democracy, which comes out editorially last Friday morning with the caption "Mr. Roosevelt Becomes Moony," and in a column and a half proceeds to burst forth into a number of hot "delusions" against some of the policies of President Roosevelt recently outlined. Regarding what they term "the president's bold plan for the 'redistribution' of wealth, the editor comments: "The address is not free from sophistry, and The Advertiser for one, regrets that the President has gone so far."

This prominent Montgomery daily continues this editorial with a most masterful and unbiased discussion of the question of limiting wealth by government manipulation in this country, and adds: "The plain truth, as we see it, is that the President is wrong in his philosophy. The President and Congress have a right to levy needed taxes.....but we submit that they are far afield in presuming to limit the earning power of American money in the hands of men and in the hands of their descendants.....America is a country of big prospects, big careers, big scenes and big emotions, and big fortunes. Lately we have become reconciled to big tax bills.....But are we ready to let our politicians veto the natural bigness of the country that made them what they are?"

In connection with this line of thought, "delusions," insanity, etc., The Union-Banner wishes to submit for the consideration of our honorable contemporary, The Chilton County News, and those of our readers who might be interested a few thoughts and comparisons.

Here's a quotation which we chanced to read. See if you can recognize it and name its author. "If, like a spendthrift, a nation throws discretion to the winds, is willing to make no sacrifice at all in spending, extends its taxing to the limit of the people's power to pay, and continues to pile up deficits, it is on the road to bankruptcy." Yes, we bet we know who you guessed uttered these words. It sounds like some of the "delusions" of some delusionist like Herbert Hoover; but he didn't say these particular words. These, believe it or not, are the exact words of Franklin D. Roosevelt in one of his pre-election speeches.

It was such statements as this that really illusioned the good people of Chilton county to give Mr. Roosevelt a majority in that election; but like most good Democrats, after he gets "in" all promises are forgotten and wild speculation and dangerous experimentation come in and are allowed to hold complete sway.

At the momentous time that it was, the people of this country went moony over Mr. Roosevelt, and swallowed his sweet oratory and choicy words without a gulp. The people, as a general rule, were honest in their voting and thought the country needed what Mr. Roosevelt and the Democrats offered; but The Union-Banner is not surprised in the least that the country has again been "gyped" by the Democrats. They are past masters in making promises, but they seem to be under no obligation at all to fill them, once they get into control. This is true from the high-ups on down the line.

Close observance will show that even some of our State officials in dear old Alabama are not totally immune to breaking campaign pledges.

Another statement of Mr. Roosevelt, made in his campaign, now sounds slightly antiquated. Can you imagine him saying: "I regard reduction in federal spending as one of the most important issues in this campaign. In my opinion, it is the most direct and effective contribution that government can make to business."

Being in the economic straits that this country was in 1933, who wouldn't fall for such statements from one about to be at the head of our great government. The only question in one's mind was "Is he sincere and will he stick to it?" We, good people, might have known that we could not depend on a Democrat sticking to a campaign pledge. They have always broken their pledges, they still break them, and always will.

In his message to Congress on March 10, 1933, the President said: "We must move with a direct and resolute purpose now. The members of Congress and I are pledged to immediate economy."

Now, can you imagine that a President and Congress could go into office pledged to this kind of a program of economy, and then inside of two years plunge the country into debt thirty billion dollars with the most reckless orgy of borrowing and spending that the world has ever seen? Read that pledge again, people of Chilton county, and compare it with what the Democrats of this nation are really doing toward "economy."

And then, imagine anyone with the nerve to charge that folks are in delusion and not sane who are not still following the President and the Democratic administration in their outrageous usurpation of power and total disregard for all laws and traditions of sound spending and proper use of official power.

We believe that you, gentle readers, must agree that the "delusion" is very definitely on the other side of the fence. It is certainly delusion, and not only that but total blindness for people to persistently defend such leadership and such unfounded and unscrupulous tactics as this Democratic administration is dealing out to the people of the country, and especially so when such officers were elected on such platforms and as a result of such promises as Franklin D. Roosevelt made to the American people, and now so completely disregards these promises.

The Union-Banner does not propose to be so wise, but frankly, we are not surprised at the outcome of this administration. The fact that it was Democratic was sufficient warning to us that it would bear watching. They have all done it in one form or another. Grover Cleveland got the country in bad by breaking down the tariff that the Republicans had spent years in building up, thus throwing the country into a panic and bringing cotton to four cents a pound. Woodrow Wilson did it again by plunging the country into war, and then tried to put us further into the mire by harnessing us up to the League of Nations.

Now, Franklin D. Roosevelt has played his Democratic vendage upon the country by socializing, communizing, legalizing and illegalizing more things than anybody ever suspected any executive could ever perpetrate upon the people of once free America.

It's no wonder to us that industry in this country has such little confidence in the Democratic party, and is afraid to risk and advance anything while they are in power. Business people with good business sense have a right to be cautious and to observe with care into what they put their money. In fact, the only safe thing to do is to hold tight to what one has until such time as the electorate comes to realize its folly in voting Democratic, and come to their sound state of mind by placing the country back into the control of that party which has saved the country time and again—the G. O. P.

We can't exist on "delusions," fancy schemes, spendthrift, recklessness, disregard for constitutional government and nullification of the fundamental principles that have made the country the greatest in the world.

The Supreme Court and the Constitution are due the credit of saving the day in the present crisis. The masses of the American people endorse the Supreme Court and the Constitution, and in due time will vindicate themselves by placing the government back into the hands of a safe set of men. The nation will do it, and Chilton county will follow suit. Wait and watch!

In the meantime, let us appeal to the young voters of Chilton County to keep abreast of the times by seriously studying the economic problems of the day, and watch the trend of politics. Some would have you believe the Republican party is dead never to rise again. This is some more of that "delusion" doctrine, and don't you be misled by it, although it comes to you flavored up with snappy music, hilarious dancing and gestures to attract your attention, while the unseen hand plays its strategy upon the unsuspecting public of which you are an important part. Young voters and old, do not be misled and deceived. Democrats are tricky. They never give you anything but for which they exact something greater in return. Study the situation and be sure of your actions before you act.

PLENTY OF BASEBALL

Plenty of baseball is on the menu for local fans this week. The schedule calls for baseball games every day. Monday, the Clantonites had the Montgomery Fire Department here. Tuesday, the American Legion took on the Selma Legion team in a double header. Clanton had the Maxwell Field team on tap for Tuesday. Thursday the Cotton Mill team has a game scheduled. For Friday the Legion team has a game scheduled. On Saturday Clanton has Independence booked. In addition to all this, the Clanton team goes to Kilby Prison on next Sunday, for a game.

Come to all the games. You will enjoy the good games for the sake of baseball, and get a lot of laughs out of the loose ones, if any prove to be like that. Come out for the local team, whether it be the Clanton team, the Legion youngsters, or the Alabama Mills team.

RENTAL CHECKS BEGIN TO ARRIVE

First Installment Totaled Over Thirty-One Thousand Dollars

The local cotton administration office this week announced the receipt of 1,685 of the first allotment of cotton rental checks, which amounted to a total of $31,119.11. This amount will be immediately distributed to cotton growers throughout Chilton County.

It was stated that the cotton growers of Chilton County will receive a total of 3,130 rental checks, the balance of which will be coming in a few days.

The rental and parity payments to cotton growers of the county for this year is estimated by the cotton office to total $146,421. The first rental checks will be paid immediately. The second rental checks will be paid in September or October. The parity payments will come about the end of the year, some time in December.

The cotton statistics for Chilton County this year show that there are a total of 31,095 acres planted in cotton, and 15,168 acres are rented to the government, upon which rental and parity payments will be made as estimated in the foregoing figures.

NEW CITY HALL IS READY FOR USING

Mayor And City Officials Will Move Business Offices This Week

Final details are being worked out this week by the city officials for occupying quarters in the new city hall just completed. Mayor Jones says he expects to move into the new place about Friday of this week.

Present plans do not include any formal opening of the new building, however, Mayor Jones expresses the wish that all citizens of the community will take the opportunity to visit the new city building any time it is convenient.

Mr. Jones takes great pride in the new building, and thinks it is something which the people of Clanton will be proud.

At the same time the city officials move in the fire department will also be transferred to its quarters in the building. A very fine arangement has been made for the fire boys. Their quarters will be made a place of pleasure for them, as well as convenient for their work of fighting fires.

Recently Councilman Diefenderfer went around to all the business people of the town and secured liberal donations for the purpose of furnishing the firemen's quarters in the new building. The citizens were glad to make such a contribution, for they fully appreciate the fine spirit and good service which the firemen render to Clanton.

CHICK FIQUETT IS SELLING AUTOMOBILES IN MONT'GY.

Mr. Clarence (Chick) Fiquett, popular automobile salesman, left Monday morning for Montgomery, where he will accept a position with the firm of McGough Motor Company, as salesmen for Oldsmobile and Chevrolet automobiles.

For the past year Mr. Fiquett has been with the Hayes Chevrolet Company, in Montevallo. He is well-known and very popular in both Clanton and Montevallo, and has many friends who heartily extend their good wishes for his success in Montgomery.

Upon leaving for Montgomery Monday he said: "Tell all my friends I will be back from time to time, and if any of them should happen to be in need of a new Oldsmobile, I will be ready to fix them up at a moment's notice."

AERO COMMITTEE ELECTS OFFICERS

Initial Banquet Meeting Held At Exchange Hotel Last Week

Permanent organization of the Chilton County Aeronautics Committee was perfected at a banquet at the Exchange Hotel last Friday night, with election of the following officers:

Chairman, Dr. V. J. Gragg; secretary and director of publicity, W. M. Wyatt; director of speakers, J. B. Atkinson; director of women's activities, Luther Little; airport committee, Dr. Gragg, Judge J. Lee Smith, Mayor C. Fenn Jones, Leo Thompson, and Dewey Rockett.

The Chilton County Aeronautics Committee will be a permanent organization, affiliated with the National Aeronautics Association, with local committees in many cities, towns and counties throughout the country.

Some weeks ago Dr. Gragg received from Senator W. G. McAdoo, head of the national association, a suggested outline for perfecting the permanent local organization here. The suggestions of Senator McAdoo were followed in the organization meeting Friday night.

The local committee is pledged to engage in various activities for the advancement of aeronautics in the future, particularly development of the Chilton County Airport at Clanton.

The membership of the Chilton County Aeronautics Committee is composed of the following persons:

Judge J. Lee Smith, Dr. V. J. Gragg, Mayor C. Fenn Jones, J. B. Atkinson, L. E. Diefenderfer, Leo Thompson, W. M. Wyatt, Dewey Rockett, H. F. Downs, C. D. Duke, J. Mell Martin, Luther Little, J. W. Fant, Billy Smith.

The delightful banquet dinner for the meeting Friday night was tendered the members by Dr. V. J. Gragg.

Pilot-instructor J. W. Allen delivered an address of much interest outlining the many measures that have been perfected and put into practice to guarantee the high degree of safety in aviation.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Newton of Mitchell Dam spent last Sunday afternoon with friends in Clanton.

GRANT WILL TEACH SINGING SCHOOL AT THORSBY SCHOOL

Prof. Luther T. Grant will teach a singing school at Thorsby Public school building, beginning on Monday July 8th, and continuing for 18 days. More than half a hundred have already subscribed, and prospects bid fair for a very fine school.

Prof. Grant is one of the leading teachers of the county, has had years of experience in the work, and is an upright Christian man with it. The people of Thorsby and vicinity are fortunate in getting Prof. Grant to teach this singing and music school for them.

SIMPSON-THOMPSON MARRIAGE

Mr. Charles Simpson and Miss Lillian Thompson, two of Clanton's most popular young people, were married last Friday morning. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. P. Cochran at his home in Greensboro.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Thompson, and a sister of Mr. Leo Thompson, of the Clanton Laundry. Mr. Simpson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Simpson, of Clanton.

Their many friends join in extending congratulations and best wishes.

AMERICAN LEGION ELECTED OFFICERS

Percy M. Pitts Will Be Post Commander For Next Year

At a special meeting of Chilton County Post of the American Legion held last Friday night, Percy M. Pitts was named as Post Commander for next year, succeeding Reuben W. Lowe.

Other new officers named at the meeting were R. D. Woodson, of Lay Dam, vice-Commander; Vaughn C. McKee, adjutant; W. M. Wyatt, service officer; L. C. Warr, chaplain.

Delegates chosen to represent the Post at the annual Department Convention in Mobile were Percy M. Pitts, Joe Calloway, Reuben Lowe, W. M. Wyatt, R. D. Woodson and Vaughn McKee. The convention meets in Mobile July 14 to 17.

The next regular meeting of the Post will be held at the courthouse Monday night, July 1st. A special feature of this meeting will be music by Mr. Kelley, of Pletcher. Mr. Kelley is a musical wizard, who plays a combination of instruments at one time by use of a cleverly designed mechanical contraption built and perfected by himself.

The Legion Post will assist the ladies of the Auxiliary in carrying a program of entertainment to the Veterans Hospital at Tuscaloosa on July 5th.

ADMISSION 10c and 25c

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

NORTH ALABAMA FARMERS SAVED 1,000,000 POUNDS CRIMSON CLOVER SEED

Auburn, Ala.—North Alabama farmers this spring saved over 1,000,000 pounds of crimson clover seed to plant this fall as a winter cover crop, says J. T. High, district agent.

Farmers of DeKalb led by saving 500,000 pounds with Blount coming second with 100,000. Other leading counties include Jackson with 75,000 pounds, Marshall, 75,000, Etowah, 50,000, Cullman, 40,000, and Calhoun, 35,000. Each of the other counties in north Alabama saved a large quantity of seed with indications that they will within the next few years produce enough seed for their winter legume needs.

FARMERS WILL VISIT EXPERIMENT STATIONS

Auburn, Ala.—To aid farmers in obtaining first-hand information on the experiments conducted, Alabama Experiment Station officials have completed plans for at least 15,000 farmers of the state to visit the experiment station, sub-experiment stations, and experimental fields during the month of July.

Farmers of various counties in southeast Alabama will visit the sub-experiment station at Headland during the week of July 8. Southwest Alabama farmers will visit the experimental fields at Brewton, Monroeville, Gastonburg, Aliceville, and Prattville during the week of July 15. North Alabama farmers will visit the Tennessee Valley and Sand Mountain sub-experiment stations and the Alexandria experimental field during the week of July 22. On July 23 the farmers of Tennessee Valley will visit the station at Belle Mina, at which time leading agriculturists will speak. For 3 days, July 24, 25, and 26, farmers of Sand Mountain will visit the station at Crossville.

FARMERS VOTE FOR FOUR AAA PROGRAMS

Auburn, Ala.—Of the 2,918,678 farmers who voted in the cotton, wheat, corn-hog and tobacco referenda, 2,511,109 voted for continuation of the agricultural adjustment programs and only 407,983 voted against the programs.

LIBERTY HILL CHURCH

There will be a working for the purpose of cleaning off the cemetery on Friday, a.m., July 12th. Come early and bring tools necessary to do the work. Please don't come one at a time and work around your own family graves and then not come back and help do the work on the entire yard, as has been done in the past. We need all the help we can get. It is a big job.

Remember our revival begins on the Sunday following, Rev. R. F. Dykes will do the preaching. Everybody is invited to come and worship the Lord with us. Hoping lasting good will be accomplished in our meeting.—J. E. Littlejohn, B. F. Massey, Zack Lowery Committee.

STATE GAME NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., June 26.—This may be the "machine age," but this testimonial submitted to the State Game and Fisheries Department by District Warden Tom Lipsey of Carrollton, should convince any "Doubting Thomas" that wild life in still abundant in Alabama.

"I wish to report a 'Believe It Or Not' incident which I noticed last week (June 14) while on a trip in North Tuscaloosa County," wrote Warden Lipsey.

"I was driving along and a fox crossed the road in front of me. After driving three or four miles further on, a ground hog crossed in front of me. Then later a quail with a bunch of little ones crossed my path, and next was a turkey hen with a brood of young turkeys, as many as eight or ten, crossing in front of me."

"I thought that this was a very unusual happening and that you would like to know of it.'

PORK CAN BE CURED DURING HOT WEATHER

Auburn, Ala.—Pork can be slaughtered and cured just as safely during the hot summer months as during the cold winter months, according to facts established by the Alabama Experiment Station.

As told by Prof. J. C. Grimes, head of the animal husbandry department, the proper method for saving meat during the summer months follows:

"Kill the hog and cut the carcass as wanted. Rub salt over the meat. Place it in water-tight barrel. (Each 300-lb hog or equivalent will require one ordinary barrel). After meat is placed, crack and place over it 200 pounds of ice for each 100 pounds of meat. Let it stay for 24 hours. Take it up and rub it with a curing mixture composed of 12 pounds of salt, 3 pounds of sugar, and 3 ounces of saltpeter. (Ech 100 pounds of meat needs 50 pounds of this curing mixture). After rubbing meat with it, repack it in iced brine in barrel. Pour remainder of curing mixture over it. Cover barrel with cloth or boards. Let it set 25 days for hogs weighing 200 pounds or less; and 30 to 35 days for hogs weighing more than 200 pounds, depending upon the size. Take it out, wash with warm water, hang and smoke."

TO TEACH SINGING SCHOOL AT ALPINE

Prof. I. D. Huett of Enterprise will teach a singing school at Alpine church, near Pletcher, beginning Monday, July 15th, and continuing for there weeks, six days a week. Rudiments of music, and classes in harmony will be taught, together with all subjects usually treated in singing schools.

Prof. Huett has taught at Alpine before—several years ago. He has had broad experience in this line of work, and will be able to give good service to the patrons of the school. He asks the full co-operation of the people of the community in the undertaking.

REV. M. LOCKHART RECEIVED PRESENT

Rev. M. Lockhart of Refuge community is very jubilant over having received a good-will present from the Pates Chapel B. Y. P. U. recently, and wants his thanks expressed through The Union-Banner. The present received was a summer suit of clothes, and the young preacher is very grateful to his Pates Chapel friends for this expression of their love and thoughtfulness.

MORE MISSION INSTITUTE PLANS

The plans for the Chilton-Unity Institute to be held July 9, 10, and 11, at Clanton Baptist church are taking a large place in the minds and prayers of the Christian leaders in these two associations. The W. M. U. Executive Boards are called for a joint session Friday afternoon, June 28th, at Clanton Baptist Church. The Unity Board will convene in the morning at 10:30. The joint session will be held at 2 o'clock. All members of both boards are urged to come. Some very important matters about the institute will be discussed. It is necessary that this meeting be well attended. Together, these two associations are planning to put on, with the Lord's leadership, the greatest meeting of its kind ever held in our community.

Are you going to be there? Are you going to do your part to make it the very greatest meeting? Are you planning to help some one to come who has no way? Are you preachers feeling responsible for announcing and encouraging attendance, and above all, coming yourselves?

We are anxious to have every one of our preachers there. We wish all church workers could come. We want you to see that your children have the chance to hear these great speakers, teachers and Missionaries. We are praying and planning and trying our best to make it a worthwhile meeting. Talk about it at church next Sunday. Announce the whole program next Sunday. Yours in His and your service, Mrs. S. J. Ezell.

Rev. H. D. Durbin will preach at the home of Uncle Billy Adams, on the afternoon of the fifth Sunday in June, at 3 o'clock. Everyone is invited.

FOREST AND PARK ACREAGE BEING INCREASING RAPIDLY

Montgomery.—Alabama's system of State Parks and State Forests is becoming a leading feature in the development of the Commonwealth, according to compilations being prepared by the State Commission of Forestry with the assistance of the office of Comptroller. Figures through March by Examiner J. C. Ard indicate that the State Park system included at the close of that period some 15,650 acres. State Forest areas for the same period totaled 4,269 acres. In the latter connection, all unused State lands are State Forests by general statute, but the figures stated comprise only those areas specifically developed and administered for such purposes.

The excess of acreage in the State Parks as compared with the State Forests is due largely to the fact that the National Park Service system of cooperation with the states enable the latter to comply with the Federal requirements as to Emergency Conservation Work more readily in the case of Park areas than for State Forest tracts. Undoubtedly the State Forest acreage will increase quite rapidly in the comparatively near future.

Of the total acreage in the State Park system, some 10,855 acres were acquired by donations from public spirited citizens. Most of the remainder of the Park acreage was necessarily purchased, much of it at a very low rate per acre making it practically equivalent to a donation.

DOUBLE BIRTHDAY DINNER

There was given at the home of Mrs. Evea Brown on Mt. Pisgah Road a double birthday dinner in honor of her two sons, Fonza Cunningham and Joe Brown, on Sunday June 23rd.

A wonderful dinner was served to Fonza Cunningham, Joe Brown, A. F. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Reubin Devaughn, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ray and children, Lois, Ollie Belle and Cherril, Miss Marie Scarbrough, Junior Scarbrough, Clifford Brown of Montgomery, Mr. Eugene Aldridge, Miss Dizena Friday, Mr. Wilson Maddox of Clanton.

Mrs. Evea Brown, Mrs. Joe Brown, Misses Beatrice and Bessie Brown served dinner and in the evening served ice cream and cake to all the dinner guests and to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brown and little daughter, Louise. A very enjoyable time was had by all.

DR. S. T. COUSINS OF WETUMPKA CLAIMED BY DEATH LAST WEEK

The funeral of Dr. Sam T. Cousins, 49, who died at a local hospital shortly after midnight Thursday, will be held at 10 a.m. today from his home in Wetumpka. Burial will be in the Wetumpka Cemetery, T. F. Leak & Son in charge.

Dr. Cousins, a well-known physician of Elmore County, had been in failing health for about a year and had been in the hospital here on two occasions since last summer, the last time only a few weeks. A heart ailment is said to have caused death.

A native of Equality, Coosa County, Dr. Cousins was a member of a prominent family. For many years his father, Dr. James Cousins, practiced medicine at Equality. He moved to Wetumpka about 15 years ago, where he was active in social and civic affairs. He was a member of the Methodist Church.

Surviving are his widow; one daughter, Mary Ellen Cousins; three sons, James Hall, Charles McGehee, and Bruce Holding Cousins; a brother, John Cousins, all of Wetumpka; three sisters, Mrs. Ellen Granger, of Montgomery; Mrs. S. F. Penton and Miss Lena Cousins, of Wetumpka.

JACKSON CHAPEL

Rev. E. L. Smith of Weogufka, Ala., will preach here Friday night of this week. Everybody invited to come out and hear him.—V. G. Smith.

MINERAL SPRINGS

Our Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. are not doing so well at the present time. It seems like every body is interested in something else other than our church. Come on, church members, an dgo to church next Sunday. It looks like we could look around and see that if our church ever needed pulling together, it is now.

Let's not forget that Bro. Green will preach for us next Sunday. He will help in our revival meeting, so we want to see a large crowd out to hear him at the 11 o'clock service.

Everyday Cooking Miracles

BY FRANCES WEEDMAN
Director Hotpoint Electric Cookery Institute

The June wedding. Is there anything more thrillingly beautiful? The final preparations, the mad rush to the church, the strains of the wedding march that sort of make you choke up inside, the march down the aisle, handsome groom, lovely bride, gay reception afterwards, the escape amid a shower of rice—it's a romantic spectacle just made for incomparable June days.

But—and here I'll bet I sound like some sort of female Frankenstein who is always taking the joy out of life—what about the days following the honeymoon? If the lovely June bride didn't temper sentiment with reason before the wedding, and learn how to cook, there's danger of the handsome groom becoming dyspeptic and grouchy and the beautiful bride eating her heart out with despair and desperation.

Modern June brides, though, do know how to cook, and thanks to a man who, years ago, saw possibilities in the use of electricity for cooking fuel, their cooking problems have been very much simplified. The modern electric range is an outgrowth of that man's inventive genius, and its growing acceptance everywhere by young housewives with cooking problems and hungry husbands on their hands is a tribute to his foresight.

Simple, Modern Lines

Simple, modern lines that reflect today's trends in design are found in this electric range. It fits into, and harmonizes with, all types of interiors in present-day homes; and it operates with the cleanliness, convenience and efficiency that modern housewives, young or old, demand. It offers such inviting features as a Thrift Cooker which effects substantial savings in both food and electric current, temperature control to insure perfect baking, automatic electric timer clock which permits "absent cookery," over-sized oven, smokeless broiler pan, double-extension sliding shelves with lock stops, stainless porcelain enamel oven and cooking top and other advantages almost beyond number.

But its greatest miracles are the foods it cooks with a perfection heretofore almost despaired of. It does more than its part in removing all fear and trembling from amateur cookery. Just follow your recipes and the simple cooking directions it prescribes, and the old-time newlywed jokes of the bride's first cooking efforts will be a thing of the past.

Granted that you have a new electric range all waiting and ready for use in your honeymoon cottage, let's consider what might be a particularly happy surprise for that dreadful "first meal." Surprises are usually reserved for dessert; and dessert, to a man, usually means pie. So let's try a fruit pie. Here is the recipe:

Fruit Pie
(Double Crust)
Pastry
1½ cups flour 1 teaspoon salt
Pie Plate ½ cup fat
Ice water

Sift, measure, and again sift flour. Add salt. Cut in fat. Add about six or seven tablespoonfuls of ice water. Roll and line pan. Fill shell with fruit, sugar, butter, and spice. Add top crust and flute edges. Place pie in cold oven. Set temperature control to 400 degrees F. or 475 degrees F. Turn switch to bake. Time—1 hour.

Follow these directions and your pie will be everything that you desire, and you can be sure that your husband's words of praise are truly sincere.

That crucial test—the bride's first apple pie for her husband—need cause no fears if the pie is baked in the oven of an electric range.

RIGINAL

PLEASANT HILL

Health of our community is good at this writing.

We had a mighty good Sunday school last Sunday with only a small number absent. We are hoping to hear them say present next Sunday, as we miss them so much.

Our B. T. U. is still getting along nicely. We had several visitors with us Sunday night, which we were glad to have and invite them back again. Although, we have not been doing B. T. U. work at Pleasant Hill so long, our boys and girls have become so interested that we organized the third group last Sunday night, and we now have a goodly number in each group.

We would like to say that our ice cream supper last Saturday night was a grand success, as we had a large crowd out and everyone seemed to be hungry.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Robinson of Collins Chapel community were the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Cost.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Robinson spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Cleckler.

Miss Willie Mae Davis was the guest of Miss Pearline Martin Saturday night.

Miss Ruth Phillips of near Shelby was the dinner guest of Miss Central Cost.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Twilley and children had idnner with Mr. and Mrs. Otis Davis Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pledger of Lowndes County are spending some time with Mrs. Pledger's mother, Mrs. Florence Driver.

Don't forget Sunday school every Sunday morning. Visitors are always welcome.

Mrs. Zora Guy Smith attended the International Convention of Pilot Clubs held in Savannah, Geargia last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Reedie Taylor and children of LaFayette spent the week end in Clanton with relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Mullins have as their guest Mrs. Mullins' sister, Miss Virginia Murphy of Aliceville, Ala.

Mrs. Tom Littlejohn and little daughter, Tommie Sue accompanied by Llayd and Mrs. D. G. Parker spent the week end in Meridian, Mississippi, where they visited Mrs. Pierce.

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Burnett of Clanton.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Gann and little daugher of Rockford, Ala. were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George McCain Saturday night.

Mrs. Billy Smith spent several days last week with relatives in Wetumpka.

SOCIETY

Miss Gulledge and Mr. Byrd Wed Last Sunday

Of much interest to the people of Chilton County was the wedding of Miss Frances Gulledge of Verbena.

The ceremony took place last Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock n the Methodist church in Verbena, with Rev. Cecil Ellisor officiating.

The musical program was of much artistry. It consisted of a violin solo by Miss Elizabeth Selma of Troy; a violn solo by Sidney Lanier Gibson and Frank Gulledge, brother of the bride; a vocal solo by Percy Pitts of Clanton, accompanied by Mrs. Pitts at the piano, and Mr. Gibson; The three violins played the wedding marches. Miss Catherine Chapman, pianist of Troy played. Miss Selma and Miss Chapman played throughout the ceremony.

The maid of honor was Miss Cordelia Gulledge, sister of the bride; the matron of honor was Mrs. William Nettles Roberts, of Pensacola; the flower girl was little Martha Porter Bailey, of Decatur, cousin of the bride. The best man was Welborn White of Troy; the ushers were Geo. M. Grant and John Selman of Troy; William Nettles Roberts of Pensacola, and Eugene DeLeon Bailey of Decatur. William A. Gulledge gave his daughter in marriage.

After the ceremony the parents of the bride entertained at a reception at their home.

Upon their return from a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Byrd will make their home on College street in Troy.

Mrs. Barnett Deramus Entertained For Brides Elect

One of the most delightful social events of the season was on last Friday afternoon, when Mrs. Barnett Deramus entertained at a lovely tea, honoring Miss Frances Gulledge, whose marriage to Mr. Marvin Byrd took place on Sunday evening at four o'clock; and Miss Mary Scott, bride elect of the summer.

The home was effectively decorated in a profusion of summer flowers. The tea table was covered with a lace cloth. Pink candles burned at each end. The punch bowl was decorated with garden flowers, and bowls of pink mint and sandwiches were placed at intervals on the table.

Tea was poured by Mrs. J. E. Edgar and Mrs. C. M. Ellisor. Others assisting in serving were: Mrs. John Ward of Selma, Mrs. W. D. Barton of Montgomery and Mrs. J. B. Fort of Auburn. Mrs. John Deramus and Mrs. Irby Deramus received the guests at the door.

The receiving line was composed of Mrs. Barnett Deramus, Miss Frances Gulledge, Miss Mary Scott, Miss Cordelia Gulledge, Mrs. W. N. Roberts (Fannie Jo Scott) of Pensacola, and Mrs. D. I. Deramus.

Miss Gulledge wore a lovely white organdy dress over blue, with blue accessories. Miss Scott was becomingly gowned in parchment lace.

About one hundred guests called.

Miss Sarah Elizabeth Venable is the guest of Misses Mary Jo and Jean Sanford in Wetumpka this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Johnson, Miss Julia Kennedy, Mr. Hix and Mr. Hightower of Brundidge, Ala., enroute from a two-weeks fishing trip to Washington, Canada and New York spent Friday night as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Wade.

AUTOMOBILE RACES THE FOURTH AT ALABAMA STATE FAIRGROUND

Automobile Races with the greatest line-up of cars and drivers ever seen in these parts and a night fireworks display of splendor will serve as the feature attractions on the American Legion's gigantic Fourth of July Celebration at the Alabama State Fairgrounds.

This show gives promise of being the biggest and best that any part of the South has ever had and it is planned as a permanent affair if appreciated by those that attend.

Already a greater number of requests for entry blanks are in the headquarters office of the International Motor Contest Association than have previously been received for any early race meet. This is largely due to the large cash purses and the fact that Birmingham's championship races are the only ones that offer national dirt track title contestant points towards the 1935 championship.

Turning night into day with the most spectacular fire works display ever seen in these parts are promises put forth by the Tearle-Duffield Fireworks organization, who for the past two years have thrilled millions that attended the Century of Progress in Chicago.

Mr. C. H. Duffields, president of the firm that bears his name will personally supervise the entire program and he made the statement that even those that had witnessed the beautiful world's fair show would awe at the spectacle that he has planned for the Birmingham American Legion's celebration.

The officials of the Legion have other features of interest such as the drum and bugle corps parades, the bathing beauty contest and other plans in the making, promise to satisfy even the most sophisticated holiday celebrator.

SCHEDULE OF MEETINGS

The following is a schedule of revival meetings to be held at churches of Rev. M. Lockhart:

Beginning at Refuge 3rd Sunday in July and run week following, with Rev. J. E. Bergstressor of Sylacauga doing the preaching.

DEAF? DON'T LOSE HOPE! . . .

Dr. Edward Kolar, M.D., said: "Ourine helped cases I had given up as hopeless. A truly remarkable scientific remedy."

No matter how severe your deafness or head noises are, a few drops of Ourine in each ear is guaranteed to help you.

R. P. Maxwell, Deputy Sheriff, says: "Have just finished my first bottle; glad to state I can now hear my watch tick. Today was the first time I heard the church bell ring in two years."—Stop worrying; use Ourine. 500,000 people have enjoyed prompt relief. At all leading druggists. Prepared by

YOU ALWAYS GET BETTER QUALITY AT NO HIGHER PRICE WHEN YOU BUY A FIRESTONE TIRE WITH FIRESTONE NAME AND GUARANTEE

TIRES may look alike on the outside, but on the inside where blowouts start, they are different. Firestone Tires are made blowout-proof by Gum-Dipping, a patented extra process which soaks every cotton cord and insulates every strand with pure liquid rubber. In fact, every 100 pounds of cotton cords absorb eight additional pounds of liquid rubber. This special process prevents internal friction and heat, the main cause of blowouts. No other make of tire is Gum-Dipped, yet you pay no more for Firestone blowout-proof protection than you are asked to pay for tires built without this patented safety construction feature.

The make of tires you buy for your car becomes a matter of vital importance when you realize that there were 882,000 automobile accidents in 1934 injuring 954,000 people and killing 36,000 and that 43,000 of these accidents were caused by blowouts, punctures and skidding.

Firestone High Speed Gum-Dipped Tires hold all world records on road and track for safety, speed, mileage and endurance. These records emphasize the undisputed evidence that Firestone Tires are not only blowout-proof but give greatest protection against skidding.

THERE ARE THREE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS THAT WILL SOLVE YOUR PROBLEM OF WHAT TIRES TO BUY

1 "Will the tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"

Recent tests by a leading University show that Firestone High Speed Non-Skid Tires stop a car 15% quicker than any other of the leading makes.

For eight consecutive years Firestone Tires have been on the winning car in the dangerous Pike's Peak Race where a skid means death. This is undisputed evidence that Firestone gives car owners greatest protection against skidding.

2 "Are they blowout-proof?"

Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires have the most amazing records for being blowout-proof of any tires ever built. In the gruelling 500-Mile Race at Indianapolis, May 30th, every one of the 33 cars was equipped with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. Kelly Petillo won the race and broke the record over this 26-year-old rough brick track without tire trouble—in fact, not one of the 33 drivers had tire trouble of any kind.

Ab Jenkins drove his 5,000 pound car on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires over the hot salt beds of Utah, 3,000 miles in 23½ hours, at an average speed of 127.2 miles per hour, with temperatures as high as 120°, without tire trouble of any kind. These are most amazing proofs of blowout protection ever known.

3 "Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me longer mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy?"

Firestone High Speed Tires not only give you more than 50% longer wear, but also lowest cost per mile. This is made possible by the tough, wear-resisting tread built with higher shoulders and a wider, flatter contour. This thick, rugged, scientifically designed tread is held securely to the Gum-Dipped cord body by Firestone's patented construction of two extra layers of cords under the tread. This is a special construction feature not used in any other tire. Unequaled mileage records by thousands of car owners add undisputed evidence of the longer wear and greater economy of Firestone High Speed Tires.

Legion Meets At Mobile In July

World War Veterans To Have Grand Time in Alabama's Port City

Mobile, June 12.—Chairman Inge, of the General Committee in charge of the Alabama Department Convention, American Legion, which begins at Mobile, July 14, has given notice to Legionnaires that they should make reservation for quarters as soon as possible, writing chairman James E. Duggan, of the Housing Committee, care Legon Headquarters, Battle House, Mobile.

As many of the former service men as desire to go in barracks can be accommodated at the low rate of fifty cents per day and those desiring rooms with bath and garage at private residences will pay one dollar.

The Mobile City Commission has turned over to convention managers two down town fire stations, equipped with showers and sanitations, to be used as barracks, if desired, and the National Guard Armory is also available for this purpose.

Other visitors, in addition to registered members of the Legion and Auxiliary, will be provided with quarters on making requests to the Housing Committee, and many of the most desirable homes in the city are being opened for the convention period to delegates and visitors.

Hotels, large and small, can accommodate approximately 1,100 guests, and advance reservations indicate that these will be filled early in the four-days sessions. Chairman Inge gives assuranc that all will be taken care of. The big entertainment feature is a boat trip to the Gulf on Tuesday, July 16.

UNEMPLOYED MONEY

By ROBERT V. FLEMING
Vice President, American Bankers Association

The volume of unemployed money in this country is vast and in all probability, with the Government's Work Relief Program entailing expenditure of nearly five billion dollars, will reach even higher levels, for as this money is disbursed it will find its way back to the banks from those who are provided with contracts and employment.

R. V. FLEMING

The banks endeavor to grant credit to all worthy borrowers. If a loan request is not in a form warranting a bank loan, it is the bank's duty to help put it in bankable shape if it is at all possible to do so.

While the Government can help by directing some measures for relief and recovery, we must help ourselves by doing our share to give impetus to the Government's efforts. The national income must be restored to something near the levels prevailing prior to the depression if we are to create sufficient purchasing power to justify the employment of our citizens in productive enterprise.

No Government spending program can make up the thirty billion dollar drop in the national income which has taken place. Only when business becomes active can we begin to transfer our unemployed citizens from relief rolls to private payrolls which, when the process is accelerated, will create the new and broader markets for goods and services necessary for complete recovery.

Central Banking Tried Before

Central banking was twice tried in this country with the First and Second Banks of the United States, covering the intervals from 1791-1811 and from 1816-36. Both of these institutions were abolished because the credit control they exercised became unpopular and the question of their continued existence became a political issue.

WHEN BORROWED MONEY SERVES A USEFUL END

Conditions Under Which Banks Make Loans—Community's Funds Aid Business.

The bulk of business is normally done with the aid of money borrowed from the banks. The business man can almost always use more cash to carry on his business. Often he finds he has not enough money on hand to meet his payroll because his customers are slow in paying him. Or he may be stocking his shelves with new goods and finds that he does not have the necessary funds on hand. Or the farmer may need new equipment or livestock. Then they go to the bank.

When the bank advances money it makes a written agreement with the borrower, called a note, the essence of which is this: 1st, the borrower agrees to pay the bank interest; 2nd, to pay it back at some definite time in the future, perhaps in thirty, sixty or ninety days; 3rd, furnish some form of guarantee for the amount due under the note.

The Banker's Obligations

The banker is naturally much concerned to see that he has good guarantees. He is responsible for safeguarding the funds entrusted to him and keeping them as active as possible in meeting the community's financial needs. The interest he collects is applied to meeting the various costs of this service.

Guarantees for loans may take one of two forms—a personal guarantee or a property guarantee. A "personal guarantee" may mean that the borrower's own reliability is such that his name on his note is sufficient. Or he may get someone in sound financial position and known to the bank to be trustworthy to agree to pay the loan if the borrower doesn't do it himself—to endorse his note, that is.

A personal guarantee is thought by many to be the soundest possible assurance—on the theory that "the promise of a man of character is the surest thing we know in human affairs." Experience supports this view.

A property guarantee means that the borrower gives the banker the right to make good the loan by selling certain of the borrower's property if the borrower fails to keep his promise. If the property is real estate, the paper giving the banker right to sell is the "mortgage." A loan with real estate as a guarantee is usually made for a fairly long time, at least a year. If the property used as a guarantee is stocks or bonds owned by the borrower, then the note is known as a "collateral" note.

Thus, loans take many forms to meet the needs and convenience of justified borrowers in conducting their prudent affairs. Borrowing money for useful purposes, with sound plans made for its timely repayment, serves a constructive end in both personal and business financial matters.

OBITUARIES — IN MEMORY

It becomes necessary for us again to call attention to the fact that we make a charge of one cent per word for all obituaries over 150 words published in The Union-Banner. So, if you want an obituary, or in memory article, published about a departed friend or relative, it must be confined to not over 150 words, or else money order for the remainder should be included if sent by mail, as outlined above.

If obituaries are sent in containing over 150 words and no money accompanies same, it will be either omitted entirely or, if possible, condensed to come within the requirement, and published.

MAJOR OBJECTIVE OF HEALTH UNIT

In 1850 a man named Lemuel Sattuck published a report of a sanitary survey of the State of Massachusetts, and recommended in this report that a State Health Department be established. About 20 years later, and as a result of his report, the first State Health Department of the United States was established in Massachusetts, and Paul Reviere, the same man who made the "Midnight Ride" was the first chairman of the first board of health. From this beginning there has been developed State Health Deparments in every state in the Union, and through close cooperation between Health officials, practicing physicians, and many other branches of science, as well as the public in general, much progress has been made in the fight against disease. But in spite of this progress, much remains to be done.

Chilton County, through its recent action in establishing the Health Unit, now has a better chance to participate in the health program that is being caried on throughout most of Alabama. And it is quite proper for the citizens of the county to want to know what they may expect from their Health Unit, and what the Unit is doing. This information will be furnished from time to time, together with a report of the results being obtained. Below is given an outline of the major objectives of the Unit, and these will be discussed from time to time through the newspapers and in other ways. These objectives are:

1. Sanitation.
2. Control of communicable diseases.
3. Public Health education.
4. Individual health protection and promotion.
5. Research.
6. Aid in the development of a social machinery that will insure each individual of the community a standard of living that is adequate for the maintenance of proper health.

Around these aims your health unit hopes to build up a program that will make a good county a still better place to live.

JESSIE DORMINEY ELECTED HEAD OF LITERARY SOCIETY

Miss Jessie Dorminey, of Jemison, has been elected President of the Morgan Literary Society for Girls at the Jacksonville State Teachers College for the summer quarter.

Christine Darden, of Weogufka, was elected vice president and Eddie C. Griffith, Gadsden, secretary and treasurer.

Miss Jessie Dorminey is a daughter of the late William Dorminey, of the Union Grove community.

Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Edgar had as their guests last week his mother, Mrs. J. H. Edgar, and brother, Jack Edgar, of Butler.

THE BUSINESS OF HANDLING MONEY

Banking Similar to Other Commercial Enterprises—Earnings Based on Income From Services Rendered

The money which the customers deposit in the bank is the "raw material" out of the handling of which it, just as any other form of business, seeks to earn its operating expenses and make a reasonable profit for those who have invested their money in it.

"How does a bank make a profit?" Profit is the difference between expense and income. On the "expense" side, the money used by the bank to keep itself in operation is spent chiefly for wages to tellers, bookkeepers, stenographers, officers and the other people who work there, performing the many services which bank customers receive in connection with their deposits, such as handling their deposits and checks for them, keeping an accurate account, supplying them with stationery and so on.

In many cases these services cause expenses greater than the balances in their accounts can earn and the practice is becoming general of charging moderate fees under certain circumstances. Other expenses are taxes, repairs and upkeep on the bank building and the interest that the bank pays on "time" or "savings" accounts.

On the "income" side, the money income earned by the bank consists chiefly of interest paid to it by borrowers and interest received on its investments. With a bank as with any other business, the difference between what it receives and what it spends is its profit.

Economy and Care

If a bank is careful in its expenses and conducts itself economically a moderate profit may be earned. It is necessary that it be prudent in making loans and investments so that it doesn't have trouble, compromises and adjustments in getting its money back again from borrowers.

"What does a bank do with its profits?" It first sets aside a portion as "surplus and undivided profits," a continuing fund that stays in the bank and is added to when and as profits permit. This fund serves very useful purposes as a guarantee to depositors and as a shock-absorber to the bank. It is a guarantee to depositors for even though it is a part of the capital funds of the bank which belong to the shareholders, yet in case of need the depositors have first claim on it. It helps to insure that their deposits are safe. This surplus item acts also as a shock-absorber to ease the bank through a year of lower earnings.

After its expenses and allocation to surplus and reserves have been amply provided for the bank will distribute the rest of its current earnings in dividends.

BANK ASSESSMENT PLACED TOO HIGH

Bank Leader Points Out Much of Government's Good Reconstruction Efforts Would Be Nullified

Atlantic City, N. J.—Much of the Government's good work in strengthening the capital structure of banks would be nullified by proposals in the pending Banking Act of 1935, placing too high the burden of Federal deposit insurance assessments on the banks, it was declared here in an address by Robert V. Fleming.

Mr. Fleming, who is first vice president of the American Bankers Association, spoke before the New Jersey Bankers Association convention. He described the activities of the American Bankers Association to bring about modifications in the deposit insurance plan, which would make it "as constructive as this type of legislation permits" and render "the law more practical of operation and permit us better to serve the public."

Mr. Fleming said: "Under the bill as originally introduced the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation assessment was limited to 1/12 of 1% of total deposits in any one year. The bill as passed by the House changes this to an annual mandatory assessment of ⅛ of 1%, a 50 per cent increase. Under the original proposal, which was also carried in the Senate bill, the Corporation would be given discretion to assess an amount not to exceed the 1/12 of 1%, based upon the ability of the banks to pay, to absorb their own losses and yet build up reserves so that their capital structures might be kept strong.

Would Defeat Main Purpose

"An important function of the F. D. I. C. is to see that all members of the insurance fund maintain strong capital structures. The very purpose for which it is created will be defeated if through too heavy assessments the capital position of the banks in the fund is weakened, particularly in a period of low earnings, and much of the good work done by the Government in its program to strengthen the capital structure of banks by the purchase of preferred stock and capital debentures by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will be nullified.

"I feel sure that Congress will recognize these principles and I am hopeful that the difference between the two measures will be adjusted to the satisfaction of Congress, the F. D. I. C. and the banks."

Mr. Sam Gowan, Udalph Curlee and Dan Smith attended the State Amateur Boxing Match in Birmingham Friday night.

TIFFIN RADIO AND ELECTRIC CO.

The Tiffin Radio and Electric Company is the name of a new firm that will open for business in Clanton about the 15th of July. The location will be in the Johnson Building next to Clanton Laundry, on Sixth Street South of the courthouse.

Tom and James (Gabby) Tiffin are the partners and owners of the new business. Both of them are graduate experts in the field of radio and electricial appliances.

They will handle the full General Electric line of radios, electric refrigerators and other home appliances. They will conduct a business of both sales and service.

As soon as Mr. Tiffin can get possession of the building they will set to work at remodeling and arranging the place to suit their needs. Formal opening will be announced as soon as it can be definitely determined as to the exact date.

Now that the NRA has been declared unconstitutional, there has been a big falling off in the demand for chisels.

Jack London said that thinking and writing what one thinks was an extraordinary way of making a living. We might add that by writing only what they can think, a lot of people would be idle most of the time.

Moscow subway stations are said to be like palaces. Of course we knew they wouldn't have any cuspidors.

Now that the Supreme Court has decided unanimously that the NRA was unconstitutional, who were the real chiselers, those who were defending their constitutional rights against the unconstitutional NRA, or those who were chiseling the Constitution by trying to coerce the public into bowing to unconstitutional restrictions?

The Germans have invented a noiseless airplane engine. Won't this encourage back seat airplane driving!

CAN IT BE BLUE EAGLE?

General Johnson is quoted as referring to the Schechter case, celebrated as causing the downfall of the NRA, as the "sick chicken case." But since the Supreme Court decision we are wondering whose chicken is sick now.

Henry Emerson Forsdick says that all social advance starts with somebody's sensitized conscience. Don't know about that. But most talk about social advance starts with an itch for office.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

The Republican grassroot convention held recently in Springfield, Illinois, by workers of the party in the Middle West is not a matter for joking on the part of paragraphers on wise-cracking newspapers. The attendance far exceeded expectations. Most of those who did come were from the rural districts and the small cities and towns. Only about one-third of the number were even local politicians. The delegates paid their own way. The Republican National Committee is practically "broke," and there is not, of course, even a chance that the AAA or other federal organiaztions helped to defray expenses.

Perhaps the most significant thing was the way in which the convention went about its business. It did not fall into the mistake of trying to write a platform for the national party and the penning of its resolutions was in the hands of such sound and skillful men as Edward A. Hayes, former head of the American Legion. But after all, nothing succeeds like success, and the best proof of the success of the Springfield meeting is the fact that it is to be imitated in other parts of the country.

Surprising enough to some, it was the disposition of Eastern newspapers to give considerable credit to the way in which the meeting was handled and what its ultimate effects may be on the Republican party. For instance, the independently Democratic New York Times stated in substance that the grassroot fervor will be a political factor in 1936 and that the Middle West will have considerable to say in the naming of the next Republican presidential candidate. The independently Republican Washington Post, on the other hand, featured in headlines the clever way in which the convention avoided all embarassing traps into which it might have fallen had it not been properly directed. Experienced political observers present noted the almost religious fervor of those present, due no doubt to their revived interest in the American Constitution and some of them predicted that if the fervor spreads there may be some surprising happenings in the next campaign.

Republicans over the country generally, however, are very properly not becoming too encouraged by passing events, even if they now do seem to be getting some of the breaks. They do not forget the $4,800,000,000 work relief fund which was placed at the disposal of the national administration by a "generous Congress," one which has usually been disposed to be "generous" with the people's money, and the effect it may have.

Oliver McKee, Jr., calls attention to this important political fact when he says, in The Boston Transcript: "If the Republicans face one obstacle that looms lager in their path than any other, it is the $4,000,000,000 fund which President Roosevelt has to spend during the next twelve or fifteen months. In fact, if not in name, this is virtually a campaign fund. Candidates for Congress, in particular, will find it difficult to assail the New Deal while the flow of federal cash into each congressional district proceeds in its present impressive volume. On the other hand, the G. O. P. believes that for the first time it is 'getting some breaks,' including the Supreme Court decision. The latter will enable spokesmen for the party to go before the people to prove that their previous charges of unconstitionality directed against the New Deal were justified. The next effort of the Springfield rally, therefore, is to hearten the G. O. P. just as did the regional rally in New England a few weeks ago."

The best that can be said is that the fight is going to be much hotter next year than a lot of politicians—Republicans and Democrats alike—believed it could be, when they surveyed the situation a few weeks ago. And the Springfield meeting is having its part in confirming this opinion.

GAINING IN SPITE OF NEW DEAL

The Union-Banner has often argued that business conditions in this country would have improved faster had industry not been hampered by the strangling and retarding influences of lots of the New Deal experiments. This argument is substantiated by the weekly reports of the U. S. Department of Commerce since the administration's chief hobby, the NRA, was declared unconstitutional and has become inoperative.

The Department's report issued at the end of last week showed that from surveys of 33 cities over the country, trade was continuing to pick up over the preceding week.

Some ardent advocates of the New Deal predicted and hoped that the bottom of business would fall out due to the Supreme Court's decision invalidating the NRA, but it is quite to the contrary.

Sure, business conditions in the United States are improving, and will continue to improve, but the loony ideas of the Democratic administration at Washington are not due the credit for it. The natural forces that are always on the job in America are bringing about the re-adjustment of economic conditions.

Natural forces are bringing about better times not on account of the New Deal tactics but in spite of their hindering influences. If they would take off the brakes entirely and stop extravagantly wrecking the credit of the nation by exhorbitant borrowing and spending and raising taxes, the country would be running in high in less than no time.

NEED OF POLITICAL OPPOSITION

"A live-wire Republican Party" is the most urgent need in the United States, declares H. G. Wells in his final article on the American Scene in Collier's.

To which most of us will say "amen."

The reason, as the noted British author sees it, is that of a constructive, creative party is not available to rescue the country from its mistakes, a failure in government will leave the country by default to "the raucous voices," the Longs and Renos and Coughlins and Gassaways.

That would mean utter ruin. Accordingly, his view follows that a Republican party of strong principles and definite and appealing aims is needed, a party to which the people can turn in confidence and trust.

The Republican party is strong. It follows sound principles, calling consistently for balanced budgets, economy in government, cooperation with business and industry to promote employment, reduction in public debts and sound promotion of international trade and friendship.

It has a minimum of 15,000,000 supporters in the nation, yet it is hampered because the principles it espouses call for a measure of sacrifce and hard work. They actually are better and sounder, but they do not appear so attractive as the siren calls of the share-the-wealth cliques and other bally-hoo artists promising Utopia.

The need of the Republican party is not only is to support sound and wise principles but—to make then attractive and appealing. It can be done, for these principles and policies lead to greater real income for the people, to greater and finer opportunity for their children, to a higher standard of living.—Syracuse Post-Standard.

HEADACHES ALWAYS FOLLOW

Senator Shipstead is a believer in fiat money. He said in a recent speech:

"For twenty-three years England fought the Napoleonic Wars with non-redeemable paper currency. Britain prospered as never before with what some people call fiat money, and when England adopted the gold standard and put gold behind its currency in 1820, the result was a depression the like of which had never been seen in English history."

The Minnesota Senator might have found other illustrations, but his reasoning is unsound. Because depression follows on inflation, he assumes that the inflation should be perpetual.

The pathology of inflation closely resembles that of an alcoholic spree. Senator Shipstead, being a temperate man, has had no personal experience of that kind, but no doubt he has observed the symptoms of others. The intoxicated man feels fine. He enjoys a form of mental "prosperity.'" He glows with a sense of well being.

But after the spree comes the headache, and there is no escape from it. After a period of inflation comes a period of depression, and that is the headache.

Even while inflation rules, there is no genuine prosperity. The booming prices create sudden wealth, but they penalize the wage-earner. Inflation cannot go on forever. Sooner or later the currency of a nation must be anchored to something.

Modern experiments with revaluation, and theories about "managed currency," do not contemplate fiat money. Either fiat money inflation leads to disaster and confiscation, as it did in Germany, or it means a depression headache when the currency system is once more anchored to real value.—Minneapolis Journal.

OUR FOREIGN "FRIENDS"

Internationalists in America say that this country should go into the League of Nations and the World Court if for no other reason than to keep them friendly toward us. The following facts and figures will go to show how "friendly" these nations are to us:

There are more than a dozen trade treaties and pacts between different nations in the old world today, and each and every one has been effected to curtail American exports.

The United States recognized Russia for trade purposes, we were told, yet we find Russia purchasing less from this country today than has been the case at any time previous.

Several nations openly boast that they will take any measure needed, even passing compulsory laws against imports from the United States, in order to gain their end of cutting down United States exports. There is a trade war going rampant, with Uncle Sam on one side and the rest of the world on the other.

Another thing, foreign nations are forever chiming in for peace pacts, disarmament, etc., and when Uncle Sam acquisces, which we find him doing on every occassion, and which we think is right, and a very commendable spirit, we wake up to find that foreign nations have not kept their end of the bargain, but have staged an armament marathon, each working feverishly to head the other off in armaments.

On top of all this, we must consider the war debts. On June 15, the installments on war debts of 13 nations to the United States fell due, the total of these being $180,909,501. Only Finland, with small debt paid. In addition to this amount, the other 12 of these nations are already in arrears in the sum of $630,767,827. This brings the total indebtedness to the Unied States to well near the billion dollar mark.

If we can scarcely manage to keep from being eaten up by the wolves on our own side of the fence, why should we jump into the same field with them and give them a better chance at us.

BY THE RULES

Friends of the New Deal and the NRA remind us of a bunch of little boys out playing ball. As long as they are winning, everything is fine, but when a rule of the game goes against them, they become hot under the collar and want to throw away the rule book.

As long as the NRA was in effect, and the bureaucrats held such high hand, everything was rosy for them, and they were having a grand time. If the game didn't fit the rules, in places, they merely made the rule fit the game. And they managed to get away with it, too.

After a while, however, the umpire, the Supreme Court, stepped in and said, in effect: "You boys must play by the rules. The rule book is the Constitution of the United States, and this rule book says they can't use this NRA play in the game. You'll have to leave that out."

How they ranted and howled—and are still at it, for that matter. President Roosevelt has been the best sport of all about it, however. He has told his "boys": The supreme Court ruling lets the NRA out. No matter how much we dislike to do so, we must abide by the rules." However, even Mr. Roosevelt has hinted that he may try to have the rules changed.

And while the president ponders over rule changes, the other would-be lords, and countless parasites continue to poison the air with their venom concerning the Constitution and the Supreme Court. To them, the Supreme Court was a grand body when it upheld the gold clause, recently, with a 5 to 4 vote. But when this same body was unanimous in condemning the NRA, they howled plenty, and began talking of changes in the Constitution, the Supreme Court jurisdiction, and even of the personnel of the Court.

If there is anything a fair-minded person detests, it is a bad sport. And the Washington set-up has proved itself a bunch of bad sports. They "can't take it."

FOUR GOOD ONES

If you are a member of an Ananias Club, in good standing, try any one of the four following yarns on your brother members. They ought to stick. And, if you're not in good standing, tell them all four, and I believe you will be re-instated right away.

The story goes that four men met in a hotel in St. Louis—an easterner, a man from Michigan, one from Florida, and a rancher from Texas. They had chewed the rag until near bed-time, when the easterner arose and said: "Well, it's about bedtime. I'll tell you this one, and then go. When I was in France, there was much rain, as every over-seas man knows. I was billted in an old farm house with a French farmer and his family, while I fully recovered from a small wound. It rained so much that month that nearly everything, even the war, was pretty near at a stand-still. The day before I left, the old lady's hen hatched a brood of chicks, and, believe it or not, three of them peeped out of the shell with little unmbrellas over their heads".

The man from Michigan cleared his throat and said: "That's nothing. I have caught trout in my home state in the winter time. I remember one extra cold winter. I went fishing, and caught a string of trout, and the last one of them had a full growth of fur".

The man from sunny Florida asked for the floor, and got it. Said he: "Now, them's pretty good lies. I'm going to tell you the truth. Down in my state it is so warm that the fish go naked the year 'round."

The old Texan leaned back, pulled at a boot strap and yawned: "You guys is jest tenderfeet when it comes to curious weather. Out on my ranch in Texas hardly ever any rain falls. Why, I know and have seen lots of frogs out there eight years old that don't know how to swim. No practice—absolutely none". How's them four?

THE LIE DETECTORS

If scientists have their way it may not be long before there can be no more Ananias Club. An electrical machine has been perfected with which the truth may be measured. For instance, in case of an important court trial, a witness might be placed in the machine and the truthfulness of his evidence—every statement—be measured.

The inventors of the new machine have proved that when the person is telling the truth, their nerves give off certain involuntary impulses which on the super-sensetive machine record on the "truth" meter. Likewise, when a person speaks an untruth, the nerves give an entirely different impulse, which register on the "false" meter.

In fact, there have been two different machines of the type invented. One of them has the two meters, as described above. The other has one dial, which when the person speaks truthfully, shows a blue light, as the nerve impulses in this case affect only the blue electrical bulb system. When a lie is told, the nerve impulses affect the opposite, or red bulb system, and a red light appears. The machines are said to be so sensitive that an "undecided" frame of mind registers with a pale green light; that is, when the person is not sure which is the real truth, his nerves so reflect his indecision, which affect another "system" of instruments. All the nerve impulses are involuntary. The person has no more control over them than he has over the blood in his veins.

The inventors claim that it will not be long before the accuracy of the machines will be proved, and that every hall of justice will be equipped with one of them.

WHO PAYS

When we hear of the expenditure of money by the government for relief or for public works, in an effort to alleviate unemployment, it is generally with a detached interest. Some of us are even inclined to credit our public servants who appropriate and put out the money with being "generous." Yet the fact is that there is no generosity in the practice at all. The money belongs not to Congress, not to the President, not to his cabinet members nor the heads of the other departments, not even to the Brain Trust, but to the people of the United States. Most of the money now being expended is borrowed money at that, and some of these days it will have to be repaid. When that time does come, the people will dig it up and they will "pay through the nose," to use a street expression, whether they pay taxes or not.

It seems to be a rather common belief that the fellow who pays no taxes directly to the government, to the state or community, does not pay anything for public upkeep. The belief is erroneous. We all pay, and the less a man has in personal goods or real estate, the less able he is to pay what is charged against him. If he doesn't own a house he pays taxes in rent, in fuel, in clothing and in food. Because the higher the taxes on the landlord, or the producer, the more it is going to cost the property-less man to live. He is paying taxes whether he knows it or not.

There is another way in which payment of huge debts might be exacted, and that is through inflation. But this method is one which, if it gets out of hand, spells ruin for all. Even at best, the worker, wage earner and the salaried man have to do the most paying in case of inflation. The price of commodities rises almost automatically while the rise in wages comes slowly and haltingly.

And getting out of debt by inflation spells more than ruining the individual who is not quick enough as a gambler to keep out of difficulty. It includes the wiping out of the investments of our colleges, our hospitals and other public charitable institutions which are supported in whole or in part by endowment and investment securities. Then the little fellow is hit again by the annihilation of the savings banks and the investments of life insurance companies.

There is no new or startling theory in this. It has worked in practice in the past in Russia, in France, in Germany, and in other foreign countries. It will work disastrously in the United States if unlimited spending and mounting public debts come to the point that real inflation is inevitable. The family suffers whether it pays taxes or not, and so does the insurance company, the hospital, the college and the church. It would be ironical indeed if theories and practices, said to have been put in vogue by college professors, should end by crippling or destroying the educational institutions which made these professors possible. Furthermore, as the Boston Transcript well said recently:

"It is indeed a strange and specious humanitarianism that starts by 'soaking the hospitals.' It is a dangerous kind of charity that begins by undermining the home and its bulwarks, and would make it immeasurably harder for colleges and universities to maintain their educational services and provide scholarships to worthy American boys and girls of small means. The self-righteous demagogues, who preach financial policies which bring to pass such results, and who at the same time pretend that they are the nation's only humanitar ,nsseiolbhudeZ a fwwkk w only humanitarians, should be forced to face the full truth at the bar of public opinon. The people, when rightfully informed, will know how to judge whether the demagogues are or are not their best friends."

AT THE CROSS ROADS

Former Governor Ritchie of Maryland has now openly joined the critics of the administration policies with the charge that it is virtually buying state rights by threatening to withhold federal funds from states unwilling to obey orders from Washington. The protest is not new or peculiar to Mr. Ritchie.

In fact, it is rather tardy from one known in past times as a constitutionalist and one of the leaders of a party hitherto devoted to the protection of the rights and sovereign independency of the states. But better late than never, says the old saw. Mr. Ritchie is one of many Democrats who must have been watching with ever increasing concern and indignation the repubiation and stultification of Democratic principles by a President and congressional organization nominally Democratic.

This amazing development, unique in the history of party government, is not confined to the species of political blackmail that has compelled Mr. Ritchie to leave his tent and strike at least one blow for his political faith. The New Deal comprehensively and fundamentally incompatible with Democratic party principles and traditions, yet a conventional party fealty, from which all honorable meaning has been eliminated by the course of action of Mr. Roosevelt and his aides, seems to have outweighed with most of the party leaders the higher considerations of party faith.

No doubt the pretense of emergency sustained this passive attitude. Such support has become too flimsy to bear any man of weight, and it is to be hoped Democrats who cherish the principles on which their party was founded and has been maintained to make effectual in government will face the logic of their predicament. Either they must reconcile themselves to and embrace a theory of government which reverses that of the Democratic party or they must assert their opposition and enlist in the defense of the American order.—Chicago Tribune.

DELAY WAS HEALTHFUL

One of the commonest yet erroneous remarks about the recent NRA decision now being made is that the NRA should not have been permitted to go along so far if it were unconstitutional and that there should be some way whereby the Supreme Court can pass on the constitutionality of an act as soon as it is passed.

The latter suggestion is of course impracticable because nobody under the sun knows, when a law is passed, just how it will be executed. It is also true that it is much better that the NRA be permitted to go on and try itself out before the Supreme Court passed on it, even had the Court been able to pass on it when it was enacted.

When the NRA act passed, the bank crisis was fresh in the memory of the nation. The Brain Trusters were regarded as a coteric of leaders who were to conduct us out of the wilderness into the promised land. A lot of people were frightened. Even Congress wasn't feeling so good, and appeared willing to go along as a sort of rubber stamp for the President.

Comparatively few long-visioned, calm-minded men then realized the impracticability and unconstitutionality of the program. They could not have made their voices heard above the New Deal tempest, and in any event they would have been branded as chiselers if not as traitors. A decision by the Supreme Court at that time, had it been possible, would have thrown a lot of college professors and a lot of people into frenzy. Just what might have happened politically or otherwise nobody is able to say.

But two years have passed. The NRA has been tried out, and has been upset in subordinate courts all over the land. It has steadily grown less popular and has steadily been less observed. So-called liberals have condemned it as well as alleged conservatives. It was regarded only as a temporary measure anyhow, and already a bitter fight was looming in Congress as to its shape and how long it would be continued.

The Supreme Court took up the question in the regular and orderly way, and decided it in constitutonal fashion. The American people had their little spree of federal regulation of state affairs, and were just beginning to feel the headache. When would there have been a better time to wind up the whole affair? Nobody can claim that the Court took snap judgment and that the Blue Eagle was not given an opportunity to do its stuff. The record has been written. Any benefits of the NRA can be maintained in a constitutional way and we can go about developing the biggest and best country on earth.

At any rate, if there was any delay in taking the case up to the Supreme Court, that was not the fault of the Court. Perhaps some of the legal lights who were entrusted with the future welfare of the Blue Eagle were not any too anxious to spread its feathers before the highest tribunal in the land.

OLD FASHIONED QUALITIES

In stressing the value of such old fashioned virtues as loyalty, honesty, hard work and common sense, some of which a few of us are apt to overlook at this time, H. M. Warner, in a business convention of his salesmen recently told how the Warner Brothes Picture Company had pulled out of the deepest shadows of the depression. When debts were mounting high Mr. Warner said it would have been easy to have stressed the impossibility of payment and to have taken the easier way of bankruptcy. In other words, to let the receiver do the worrying, and someone else do the paying. He continued:

"Bankruptcy would have been cowardice. Now I am happy to be able to tell you that our business at present is practically double what it was at the lowest point during the depression."

There is something here for all of us to think about. Nothing succeeds like honest, hard work coupled with American grit and determination. Employing a bit more of this combination might make it less necessary for us to depend on a benevolent government for aid at the expense of the taxpayers.

But there is another point not to be lost sight of. Mr. Warner says that motion picture business so far as this experience goes, is nearly double what it was two or three years ago. In the meantime there has been a public crusade and the motion pictures have been "cleaned up" and elevated in standard. Evidently good, clean, wholesome motion pictures pay better than the other kind in spite of what some of the so-called artistic directors would like to have us believe. That increase in business has more than one good angle.

25 YEARS AGO

News Items as Published in The Union and in The Banner, Issues of June 23, 1910

The Forest Lumber Company has just completed and put into operation a large saw mill and planing outfit, just south of the Clanton depot. It gives the appearance of life and go to the town.

Last Friday night a burglarious entry to the express warehouse at the depot was made and about a hundred pints of whiskey were taken. There is no clue to the depredators.

The negro man, Wiley Young, was hanged at the jail in Clanton last Monday morning for the alleged murder of Cleve Houlditch of Maplesville.

HIGHLAND NEWS

Saturday and Sunday are our regular preachng days. Bro. Lockhart delivered two wonderful sermons which were really enjoyed by a large crowd. We had lots of visitors with us Sunday; and we were glad to have them. Come back again.

There will be prayer service here next Sunday night. Rev. T. W. Billingsley will conduct the devotional. Everybody come.

Our revival will begin on the fourth Saturday in July. Rev. Paul Oden will be our helper. Let's everyone pray that we may have one of the best revivals we have ever had.

PATES CHAPEL

There will be an all day singing at this place next Sunday, June 30th. We cordially invite all good singers and lovers of music to come and bring your dinner basket. We especially invite the quartets to come and be with us.

Quite a few from this place attended the singing at Center Hill Sunday. All reported a good singing.

Mrs. Y. Z. Dale and little son, Franklin, of Sylacauga, who has been visiting the former's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Cleckler, returned home during the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Maddox and children spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Champion and children of near Cedar Grove.

Miss Eloise Jones has returned from a visit of two weeks in North Carolina, and announces to her friends that she is again at her beauty shoppe, ready to serve them.

Miss Inez Wyatt is in Birmingham this week visiting Miss Mary Cobb.

CLANTON METHODIST CHURCH

Are you in favor of changing the hour of morning service from 11 to 8? The congregation next Sunday morning will vote on this change. Be present and vote your sentiment.

The laymen of the church will have charge of the service Sunday at 11. It is Laymen's Day, and Mr. Omar Reynolds, church lay leader, will be in charge of the program. Several laymen will take part. The choir will render excellent music with Mrs. Barney Roberts at the organ. Last Sunday morning witnessed the largest attendance in several months. Don't miss Sunday.

Were you present last Sunday at the 5 o'clock vesper service? Several people have expressed appreciation of the fifteen minutes organ recital given by Mr. Evan Parrish before the regular service began. If you enjoy pipe organ music and a beautiful auditorium, come Sunday afternoon 10 or 15 minutes before 5, and meditate and worship as Mrs. Percy Pitts plays the organ. As many as fifty people were present early last Sunday for the organ recital.

The vacation church school in progress this week has a very fine enrollment. It will continue through next week. Mrs. L. J. Stewart is in charge of the beginner department; Mrs. M. W. Thigpen is in charge of the primary department. Mrs. Otto Jones is in charge of the junior department. The closing exercises of the school will take place Friday night of next week. Make your plans now to attend.

The board of stewards will have a social at the church Monday night at 8:00. Every member is invited to attend. Mr. Omar Reynolds, chairman of the board, will preside. It is our mid-year social for the stewards.

ATTEND SOME CHURCH SUNDAY!

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

County Training School News
All-Day Picnic on the Fourth of July

For your enjoyment and in the interest of the school, the board of trustees of the County Training School is sponsoring an all-day picnic on the Fourth of July at the school. They are putting forth every effort to make this day a pleasant one for you. Realizing the fact that to stay here all day you must have something to eat, they have arranged a very elabroate bill of fare for that day. Everybody is invited to come out and eat fried fish, barbecue, ice cream, peanuts, hot dogs, cold drinks, etc. Come and eat until you feel it.

Then see your team play baseball. The teams from Verbena, Marbury, Coopers, Maplesville, Riderville, Lily Hill, Clanton, Mountain Creek, Billingsley, and other teams in Chilton county are expected. They need your support. Come and root for your team. All teams will have a chance; then there will be an elimination; the two best teams will play, and the winning team will get a cash prize of one dollar and a half.

The trustees and other officials of the school cordially invite you to spend the whole day at the County Training School, and eat good wholesome food and enjoy good wholesome entertainment.

Ball Ground Well Scraped

During last week Mr. Ward, the road machine operator, came out and gave our ball ground a thorough good scraping. It has never looked so inviting to ball players before. It was quite pleasing to note how careful and patient Mr. Ward was in shaping our diamond for us. Then the thought came to me that some of our best friends are our white friends. We will be able to get our white friends to do many good and worthy things for us if we stand for higher ideals in life and behave ourselves as colored people should do.—Benj. Anderson.

MRS. IDA LEWIS DONNELLY DIED HERE TUESDAY A.M.

Mrs. Ida Lewis Donnelly, age 74 years, died about three o'clock Tuesday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Louise D. Higgins, in Clanton. Funeral services were held at the residence at three o'clock Tuesday afternoon, conducted by Mrs. S. J. Ezell. Burial was at Billingsley with Martin in charge.

Susviving Mrs. Donnelly are two sons, Bailey L. Donnelly of Boulder City, and Charles A. Donnelly, of Fiquard, Oregon; two daughters, Mrs. W. H. Mitchell, of Florence, and Mrs. Louise Higgins, of Clanton; one sister, Miss Effie Patillo, of Kammack, Texas; two brothers, C. A. Patillo, of Billingsley, and H. G. Patillo, of Selma.

GOOD BREED LIVE STOCK IS BEST KIND TO HAVE

Much is being said by specialists about farmers breeding their horses, stock, etc., so as to obtain the highest standard possible. This is very necessary.

An advance step along this line has been taken by Dr. W. L. Parrish and Mr. C. W. (Lum) Wilson who have bought a fine stallion of high breed, and placed him here. This stallion is a Coach horse, 5 years old and weighs 1,200 pounds. He is at McCain's stables in Clanton each Friday and Saturday and at Mr. Wilson's home near Thorsby the rest of the time.

DR. B. T. WAITES

Wishes to announce that he will be absent from his appointment at DeMabel's Beauty & Art Salon for several weeks, as he is taking a post graduate course in the East.

The Big Department Store On Main Street — Clanton

MAYNARD'S CHAPEL NEWS

There will be preaching next Sunday morning at the eleven o'clock hour by Rev. Maurice Hodgens. Sunday school at 10; B.Y.P.U. at 7. Visitors are invited.

Everyone will soon be through work so we expect to resume working on our church buildink.

We are glad to have with us every Sunday night Rev. Dewey Robinson, of Thorsby. He is interested in B. Y. P. U. and young people. He preached a splendid sermon last Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Newt Foshee were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Gibson.

Miss Marie Barnett visted little Willie Mae Williams, who has malaria. We hope for her a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Pate of Sylacauga are visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Steven Pate.

Miss Sadie Horton spent a while with Miss Marie Barnett Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Barrett and mother, Mrs. M. C. Barrett, of Clanton, were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Barrett.

Miss Jewell Barrett is going to the St. Vincent's Hospital Tuesday for treatment.

Mr. Orvall Gulledge and mother, Mr. Bud and Frank Strength and mother enjoyed a fine fishing trip last week.

Miss Olice Pate is spending some time with her sister in Sylacauga.

Richard Lee Williams was the Sunday dinner guest of Charlie Barrett.

Mrs. Dewey Collins and two little grls and Miss Roberta Collins spent Saturday afternoon with Mrs. Charlie Barrett.

Everyone is busy around here selling their early corn.

Remember the announcements and come help us out. We would like to see lots of visitors.

SOME COMPLAINTS ABOUT STORES NOT CLOSING

There are some complaints about some of the stores of Clanton, which agreed to close every Wednesday afternoon, not complying exactly with their agreement. They probably close the front door and continue to serve a little trade through the back.

This is unfair, and if continued will result in the whole agreement becoming void and everybody staying open. This s a good thing for the business concerns of the town to close a half day each week, and it should be carried on to the date origanilly planned—all through August.

ARCHER'S CHAPEL

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you please spare me a small space in your paper.

The revival meeting at Archer's Chapel has been changed on account of paint. It will begin on the fourth Saturday night in July.—Osie Payton, pastor.

MRS. JENNIE DAVIS DIED IN PENSACOLA, FLORIDA

Mrs. Jennie Davis, age 84 years, died Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Kate Kelley, in Pensacola, Florida. The body was prepared for burial and shipped to J. Mell Martin and sons, in Clanton Tuesday, who handled arrangements for interment in Clanton cemetery. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. A. E. Middlebrooks at eleven o'clock at the Methodist church.

Mrs. Davis was a former resident of Clanton, who spent many years of her life in this vicinity. She was the Widow of Frank Davis, who died here many years ago, and a sister of J. Osmond Middleton's mother.

Surviving her are a step-son, Clyde J. Davis; a step-daughter, Mrs. J. D. Cooper; one daughter, Mrs. Kate Kelley, of Pensacola, with whom she made her home for the past few years. She had one son, Emmett Davis, who died here many years ago.

Pallbearers at the funeral were C. Fenn Jones, Tom Kemp, P. D. Wilson, M. C. Broadhead, Dr. V. J. Gragg and W. A. Kemp.

MRS. SUSIE JANE HAND DIED AT JEMISON MONDAY

Mrs. Susie Jane Hand, age 78 years, died at 9:30 a.m. Monday at the home of her step-son, Mr. Tom Hand, in Jemison. Funeral services were held at the residence Tuesday morning, conducted by Rev. Maurice Hodgens. Burial was at Pine Hill, with Martin in charge.

She is survived by two sons, W. G. Hand, of Jemison, and Jeff D. Hand, of Ensley; one step-son, W. T. Hand, of Jemison; one daughter, Mrs. J. C. McLeod, of Bay Minette; one step-daughter, Miss Mattie Hand, of Jemison.

S. M. HALL IS DROWNED BATHING IN LAKE JORDAN

Sorene M. Hall, 21, a member of one of the most prominent families of Equality, Ala., was drowned at 10 a.m. Sunday while bathing in Lake Jordan. Hall, known to be a good swimmer, was believed to have developed cramps. He sank below the surface suddenly and, although several members of an outing party immediately went to his aid, they failed to recover the body until nearly two hours later.

Surviving are his father, C. H. Hall, well known Equality planter; a brother, James Hall, of Birmingham; and a sister, Miss Marjorie Hall, of Equality.

Funeral services were held Monday at 2 p.m. from Equality Methodist church, of which young Hall was a member. Burial will be at Rehobeth cemetery, with T. F. Leak & Son, of Wetumpka, in charge.

MEETING AT ZION RIDGE

There will be an all day service at Zion Ridge, near Mt. Pisgah, next Sunday, June 30.

Everyone invited to come and bring dinner.

CLANTON 12—MAPLESVILLE 4

Clanton went to Maplesville Sunday and defeated that club 12 to 4 in a free for all slug-fest. The Clanton team gathered 21 hits, and the Maplesville team 10. For Clanton, Baker got 5 out of 6, and Blood hit safely in all his 4 trips to the plate. Littlejohn and Hayes went hitless for the day, with 6 trips each. Culver, Clanton pitcher, got 4 for 5.

B. McAfee led for Maplesville with 3 out of 5, and Tucker got 2 out of 5. R. McAfee hit a home run inside the park for Maplesville.

CLANTON 14—ACME 7

Clanton gained revenge last Wednesday afternoon on the Acme Lunch team of Bessemer, by trouncing them soundly on the local field, 14 to 7. Earlier in the season the locals lost a heart-breaking 4 to 3 decision in a 12-inning game.

Watkins got off to a ragged start in the first inning and the Acme team scored 3 times. After this, however, he kept them fairly well in hand. Clanton evened the count in their half of the first, kept pecking away at the Cash slants until the 3rd, when they batted around, scoring 4 runs. Clanton failed to score in only one inning, the 4th.

CLANTON 5—MAXWELL FIELD 4

Clanton went to Montgomery and beat Maxwell Field on Tuesday, June 18, by the score of 5 to 4. The teams gathered only 5 hits each. Littleton led for Clanton with a single and a double, and Stieringer led for the fliers with 2 singles. Clanton made 5 errors and Maxwell Field 3, but one of the Flier errors came when Jones hit a sharp single to right field; the ball got through Lyons and went for a 4-base rap.

AMERICAN LEGION 17—LAY DAM 4

The American Legion team swamped the Lay Dam club Friday afternoon, 17 to 4. The youngsters touched Broadhead and Martin for 17 hits, while "Lefty" Easterling limited the Dammers to 6.

For Clanton, Williamson, Armstrong and Sidney Reynolds connected safely 3 times each, and T. Wilson, Ted Reynolds and "Tubby" Wilkinson gathered a pair each. Lakeman, for Lay Dam, came through for 3 safe singles, and was the only Lay Dam batter to gather more than one hit.

The Legion team is improving fast under the coaching of Bert Curlee, and shows signs of becoming a formidable contender for the state title before the season is over.

SEASON RECORD TO DATE

So far this season the Clanton team has played 21 games. Of these they have won 13 and lost 8. Last Sunday the locals won their fifth straight game.

The team has a team hitting percentage of .318 for the 21 games. Of the 248 hits they have rapped out, 189 of them have been singles, 41 were 2-base hits, 13 were 3-base hits, and there have been 6 home runs.

At this time, Simms is leading the "singles" division with 20. Culver and Littleton are tied for "doubles" honors with 6 each. Culver is leading the field in triples with 3. Dock Baker is home run king of the club, with 3. Littleton, Easterling and Littlejohn have a homer each also.

Following is a table showing times at bat for each member of the club who has been to bat as much as 1 time at any time during the season:

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

By Dr. ALLEN G. IRELAND
Director, Physical and Health Education New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction

Summer Camps

The summer camp is one of our most valuable gifts to childhood. There are camps to fit almost every purse, and nearly all give more than money can buy.

In selecting a camp, look first to the leaders. If there is understanding of children, kindness, and tolerance, you have a safe foundation. To run a successful camp, one must have a sincere love of children. Look next to the camp facilities, especially sanitary features and water supply.

Inquire into the daily menu. Are the food essentials provided, both in quality and amount? How about the milk supply? Children on vacation will need lots of it. At home, vegetables can be purchased in cans; at camp, they should be bought fresh from the farm.

Finally inspect the program, but be wary of the overloaded day. Fatigue may offset every benefit the camp has to offer. There should be outdoor sports, woodcraft, scouting, handcraft in moderation, balanced by long restful nights of sleep in the open. If you can afford a camp for the son or the daughter, by all means untie the apron strings. If it does no more than that, the camp justifies its existence.

"Do explorers drink milk?" asked a little girl. Dr. Ireland tells next week how she was answered.

ICE CREAM SUPPER

There will be an ice cream supper at the home of Silas Nelson, in the East-View community, on Saturday night of this week. Everyone has a cardial invitation to attend. The proceeds will go to buy equipment for the junior base ball team of the East-View community.

FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION

There will be a Fourth of July celebration at Union Grove baseball diamond. There will be entertainment for everyone so bring the whole faminly along.

At 8:30 o'clock the second nine will play Shiloh. Following this the first nine will play Verbena. In the afternoon the first nine plays Verbena, then an independent team of Union Grove will play Shelby. During the day there will be various other contests. Watch next week's paper for details. Make your plans now to be there.

On Wednesday, June 19, Lay Dam defeated Union Grove by a score of 9 to 8 at Lay Dam.

On Saturday, June 22, Union Grove defeated Shiloh by a score of 17 to 0 at Union Grove.

HOME COMING AND SINGING AT PILGRIMS REST JULY 6

Lesson for June 30

LIBERTY UNDER LAW
(Temperance Lesson)

LESSON TEXT—Romans 14:13-21; 1 Corinthians 8:9-13.

GOLDEN TEXT—It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor any thing whereby thy brother stumbleth. —Romans 14:21.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Giving Up Our Own Way.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Royal Law.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Attitude of a Good Citizen Toward Law.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Personal Liberty and Law.

A more appropriate title for this lesson would be "The Christian's Obligations in Matters of Conscience." The Scripture reference from Romans sets forth fraternal duties in matters of conscience. The background for these obligations is to be found in the fact that there were some in the Church who were very conscientious in regard to the eating of flesh. Likely, these were Christian Jews who were scrupulous in the observance of dietetic laws given by Moses. Others in the Church ate what was set before them without question. There were some also who had particular regard for feast days and holy days. Others regarded every day alike. Differences and disputes arose. In dealing with this situation the apostle enumerates the following obligations:

I. Neither Party Is to Sit in Judgment Upon the Other (14:1-13).

This instruction applies to things which are indifferent in themselves. The passing of judgment in such cases is wrong, because:

1. Every man is responsible to God alone (v. 4).

2. Every man must decide for himself what is right for him to do (vv. 5-7). Concerning matters indifference in themselves, an action which may be right for one may be sinful for another.

3. Every man lives not unto himself, but unto the Lord (vv. 8, 9). The supreme purpose of Christ's death and resurrection was that he might be the Christian's Lord, both in life and death.

4. Every man must give an account to God (vv. 10-12). Every man must one day stand before the judgment seat of Christ, and render an account of himself unto God.

II. A Stumblingblock Should Not Be Placed in the Way of Another (14:13-23).

In many things the Christian has liberty so far as he personally is concerned, but that very liberty may become an occasion of stumbling to another. The following urgent reasons are given:

1. The weak brother for whom Christ died may be destroyed (v. 15). If it was worth while for Christ to die for a man, surely it is worth while that we should deny ourselves some privileges for his sake.

2. Good should not be evil spoken of (vv. 16-18). One's manner of life determines the measure of his influence over his fellow men. Such life will be characterized by:

a. Righteousness, or moral rectitude.
b. Living in peace among brethren.
c. Joy in the Holy Ghost, the usual characteristic of the saved man.

3. That which makes for peace and edification should be followed (v. 19). He who causes the weak brother to stumble through the exercise of his liberty destroys the work of God.

4. We should exercise faith in God and abstain from meats and wine which offend the weak brother (vv. 21, 22).

III. Personal Liberty to Be Abridged (I Cor. 8:9-13).

Love is to be the governing principle of the life. Love is more important than knowledge. This love will move one

1. To abridge his liberty for the sake of the weak brother (vv. 10, 11). While the one who has proper knowledge can eat meat with impunity, if his eating would cause his weak brother to stumble he should desist from eating.

2. To exercise liberty in such case is to sin against the brethren (v. 13). Sinning against our brother for whom Christ died is to sin against Christ. The great question in all our acts should be "Will they harm our brethren?" This obligation is enforced by three important considerations.

a. The fate of the weak brother (v. 11). It may cause him to perish. Such a possible loss shows the responsibility of our actions. b. The relation of the man to his slayer (v. 11). He is his brother. c. What Christ did for the weak brother. Christ died for him. If Christ was willing to die for the man, we ought to be willing to deny ourselves our personal rights for his sake.

Purpose

The longer I live, the more deeply am I convinced that that which makes the difference between one man and another, between the weak and the powerful, the great and indigent, is energy, invincible determination, a purpose once formed and then death or victory.—Nowell Buxton.

The Right

Do the right and your ideal of it grows and perfects itself. Do the wrong, and your ideal of it breaks up and vanishes.—Martineau.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Wells of Selma were visitors in Clanton Sunday.

TIRES SHOULD BE CHECKED UP BEFORE HOLIDAY DRIVING

Wise Motorist Makes Sure He Is Not Riding On Worn Out Casings When Starting Out On Trip

Automobiles, and especially tires, should be checked over before the car owner starts on an extended Fourth of July trip, in the opinion of Mr. L. E. Diefenderfer, local dealer for The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

"If the car and tires haven't been checked over since the start of the summer driving season, the wise motorist will see that this important matter is attended to before starting on a holiday tour," Mr. Diefenderfer declared. "Tires especially should be checked over, if they haven't had this attention since last summer. Smooth worn tires are likely to give the motorist trouble at a time when he is all set to enjoy himself.

"Heat is a natural enemy of tire life, and the hot roads of summer time will help cause old tires to go bad about as quickly as any other means. Also, on a rainy day, when pavements are slippery, the danger of skids is increased immeasurably with old tires. New tires relieve the motorist from any worry or bother with tire trouble, and give him trouble-free miles over the holiday.

"Goodyear G-3 tires, that are in the public eye a great deal just now as a result of the investigations on tire mileage conducted by Joseph A. Faurot, noted detective, have proved especially popular by reason of their long-wearing qualities. Persons coming in to have their tires checked up at our station have seen these tires and put them on in place of 'Smoothies' in order that their summer driving might be absolutely without worry," Mr. Diefenderfer concluded.

PLEASANT GROVE
LAWLEY

There will be services at this place on Saturday, June 29, at 7:30 p.m., Sunday, June 30, at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., with the pastor, Rev. W. E. Robinson in charge, and Mr. Emmett Wilson leading the music. We are looking forward to a great week-end. We will begin a series of services which we are praying may result in a great revival, beginning on Sunday night, July 7, and continuing through the following week. Let us all go.

NEW SALEM

Services wil be held at New Salem church the fifth Sunday instead of the first Sunday, due to an engagement the pastor has for a meeting. All members are asked to note the change of time.—G. H. Carroll, pastor.

TIRED, ACHING, BURNING FEET

Relief in 3 minutes or your money back. Zeeta proves God-send to foot sufferers. Widely praised by users, doctors, druggists.

A new discovery called Zeeta has proved an untold blessing to thousands who suffered the tortures of burning, perspiring, tired, aching feet, itching, cracked toes, water blisters.

Just rub Zeeta on your feet and sprinkle it in your shoes. Then take out your watch. If at the end of 3 minutes you do not dance for joy at the blessed relief, go to your druggist and he will cheerfully refund your money.

Zeeta is sold and recommended by good druggists and department stores for 3 minute relief from aching feet, excessive perspiration, and also chafing and sunburn.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

Zacchaeus was a man of small stature. No doubt he had short legs, but strange to say, he outran the crowd and got a better view of Jesus than the long-legged boys. Short legs, provided the short legs move fast enough, can get a person to a place just as quickly as long legs can. A chicken can outrun a man. Handicaps sometimes prove to be blessings. A boy who has the handicap of poverty has to whet its intellect upon the grindstone of difficulty. That sometimes accounts for the mental strength of men who had great financial difficulties when they were young. There is no greater mental training than the mental effort to figure a way through difficulties. We tell the boys and girls in the Bob Jones College to make stepping-stones out of their difficulties and on these stepping-stones climb to success. As a matter of fact, all human beings are handicapped by the Adamic nature, but "where sin doth abound grace doth much more abound." It is possible for fallen human beings to become sons and daughters of Almighty God. Then, some day we shall see our Lord and we who were born in sin will by divine grace become like God.

"I don't think there is any more harm in playing cards than there is in talking about your neighbor.' As an evangelist I have heard that often. "I am no worse than he is" is a familiar expression. Human nature is very queer. We never get out of a hole by pulling somebody into a hole with us, and we do not make our sins any nicer by pointing to the sins of somebody else. As a matter of fact, it is not sins, but it is sin that is the trouble. Sin manifests itself in different ways. Sin is like disease. One man has typhoid fever. Another man has smallpox but both are sick. When a persons has typhoid fever he has sores inside his body. When a man has smallpox he has sores on the outside. A moral man who isn't a Christian has typhoid fever. A drunkard, a gambler, and a blasphemer have smallpox. They all need the physician, and remember that there is no other name given under heaven among men whereby a man may be saved but the name of Jesus.

MT. PLEASANT CLUB MEETS

The Mt. Pleasant home demonstration club met on June 4, 1935, at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Mims, with a large attendance of members and visitors.

The discussion for the afternoon was canning. Miss Pardue gave us a good lecture and also canned some beans and beets to let each person understand the pressure cooker. We were glad to have the vistors and invite them back again.

The club adjourned to meet with Mrs. J. B. Parrish of near Thorsby on July 2. Let me urge that every member to be present on this date as we have some important business that needs attention—Reporter.

A WEDDING SHOWER

There will be a wedding shower at Frank Collins's in honor of Rosie Lee Riggins, next Saturday evening at 2 o'clock. All are invited that wish, to come and bring presents. Cake, sandwiches, chocolate milk, and lemonade will be served.—A Reader.

MT. NEBO CHURCH

There will be an ice cream supper at my home near Mt. Nebo Church Saturday night, June 29th. Also cake contest, cold drinks and other amusements. Proceeds to go toward lighting Mt. Nebo Church. Public invited. —V. C. McKee.

VERY GOOD SINGING AT CANE CREEK ALL DAY LAST SUNDAY

The people of Cane Creek and adjoining communities gathered at that church last Sunday for an all day singing, as had been announced for some time. It was an annual affair, and a big crowd of folks had a general good time together singing prasies to the Master.

O. R. Robinson was chosen as chairman for the day, and R. E. Jones was selected to arrange the directors. Before noon those directing were: A. H. Glasscock, E. L. Glasscock, Emmet Wilson, Ammie Boswell and Ralph Grant. After dinner those put on the floor were Floyd Little, Jim Parrish, Lee Grant, Vester Miller, Luther Grant, Kermie Connell, Johnnie Miner, Jean Wyatt and J. R. Robinson.

The closing song was sung by the little son of Mr. Johnnie Miner, and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Wm. E. Robinson.

Pianists for the day were: Miss Lillie Mae Weldon, Amie Boswell, Lee Grant, Ralph Grant and Miss Ruby Yates.

The people of Cane Creek wish to express their gratefulness to all visitors for their help. They feel that they had a great day, and it was largely due to the co-operation accorded by the people from other and adjoining communities.

SINGING HELD AT BIG SPRINGS LAST SUNDAY, JUNE 23rd

Seyeral people from Chilton County attended the all day singing at Big Springs in Autauga County last Sunday, and reports come from there that the day was considered well spent and enjoyed by all. The singing was better than anyone expected it to be.

Services were opened with a song by R. L. Jackson and prayer was offered by Rev. S. M. Culpepper. Edward Jones of Prattville was elected chairman for the day.

Quartets were present from Selma, Prattville, Tabernacle, and Pilgrim. Some special songs were sung by little Inez Wyatt of Clanton.

Directors were: C. E. Deloach, J. C. Walker, E. F. Taylor, Dewey Bowden, J. W. Hooks, I. D. Huett, J. W. Cagle, R. M. Brigance, J. W. Kendrick, C. M. Billingsley, Buford Durden, Clemede Traywick, Alfred Traywick, and Gresham Lowery.

Mr. Graham and daughter of Selma sung a duet.

Prof. U. H. Abrams was in Clanton a few days this week. Since the close of the Clanton Grammar School, of which he is principal, he has spent several weeks at his home near Maplesville. While here this week Mr. Abrams was active in the interest of building some new classrooms at the Grammar School.

SINGING AT PATES CHAPEL

There will be an all day singng at Pates Chapel on Sunday, June 30. This place is two and one-half miles west of Thorsby. All singers are invited to attend and help out.

The CAT'S Out of the BAG!

$161 in Ontario — $28 In Alabama

Which Would You Rather Pay?

The people of Alabama could pay off ALL of the state's debts by paying only $28 each. For the people of the Province of Ontario to pay off all its debts each would have to pay $161.

Which Would You Rather Pay?

Ontario, you know, is where certain political theorists who were either careless with their facts or who had some political axe to grind (perhaps some of them got soft government jobs) promised the people of Ontario that if their government would only go into the electric power business, everything would be lovely. They promised that the power plants would not only pay for themselves but that they would make enough money with which to pay off other public debts.

What Actually Has Happened?

The public debt of Ontario, where the so-called "successful" government owned and politically operated electric power venture is located, has increased to $161 per person, almost SIX TIMES MORE THAN IN ALABAMA where power development is by private organizations such as this company. In Alabama, the state debt is only $28 per person. This company helps pay the taxes caused by this debt.

IN ONTARIO, the home owners and other property owners have to pay the increased taxes caused by the losses of the unsuccessful political power business which the government is engaged in, because that business pays no taxes.

The People of Ontario Got a GOLD BRICK

Is that what people of similar ideas are trying to foist upon the people of the United States? They tell a pretty story which, IF TRUE, would be interesting. But they never tell the WHOLE TRUTH.

Be wary of those who promise to put money into your pocket. They may want to get their hands in so they can take money OUT while they have you believing they're putting it in.

MAYOR ADVISES A FRIENDLY SETTLEMENT

Mayor C. Fenn Jones, of Clanton, has the distinction of being a very practical and human sort of fellow.

Although he is the judge of a court that has the power to assess fines and penalties for law violators, yet he is practical enough to try to avoid levying such penalties, if it can be done with due regard for the better interest of everybody.

Here is an example that will illustrate the point:

Last Saturday night two automobiles were passing through Clanton. The one going south on the highway, sought to turn left into Second Avenue. The one going north was proceeding straight through. They collided, due to a misunderstanding of signals or misjudging the distance from one to the other or incorrect calculation of speed.

Anyway, when the Mayor opened his court Monday the parties were on hand, each with his "gun loaded," so to speak. They wanted the Mayor to settle the question of damages, and how much, and which one should pay.

This, is was quickly determined, was a matter not in the jurisdiction of the Mayor. Whereupon Mayor Jones explained to the parties his inability to assess damages, but further informed them he could readily determine which one violated the city traffic laws, and could assess a fine for such violation. This revealed the fact that the parties were not so much interested in paying a fine.

In his good, sensible and common sense way, Mayor Jones advised the parties to go away to some quiet place and settle their differences like men ought to do, and stay out of the court. They thanked him, went their way, and have not been heard from since.

IT'S A BOY

Mr. and Mrs George Johnson announce the birth of a fine boy on Wednesday, June 19. His name is John Durwood. Both mother and son are doing nicely.

NOTICE

GOLD WATCH PUT IN CORNER OF NEW MULLINS BUILDING

Mr. Louis Prince, the jeweler, performed an unusual feat last week when he placed a gold cased watch in the corner of the new Mullins building which is being constructed on the corner of Second Avenue and the highway. The name of Mr. Prince and that of his wife were engraved on the inside of the case, together with the date they came to Clanton—January, 1935. The watch, an 18 size, 1892 model Elgin, was wound up when placed in the resting place. All the places where moisture could enter were securely sealed up.

In speaking of this and other things in general, Mr. Prince stated that he and Mrs. Prince wanted to preserve the date that they came to Clanton, which they consider an important epoch in their life. They like Clanton very much. It was after looking over the place and concluding that it was a fine town that they decided to pitch their tent here. After being here five months, they are still of the same opinion, and wish to express their appreciation for the splendid way they have been received, both as to business and socially, by the people of this section of the country.

STERILIZING LAW VOID

Montgomery, Ala., June 18.—The sterilization law recently enacted by the Alabama State Legislature, violates both the state and federal constitution, the State Supreme Court ruled today.

Known as the Dominick bill, the measure is unconstitutional in that it makes no provision for appeals, the court held. The law provides sterilization for all habitual criminals and for those persons being released from institutions for the feeble minded.

WORK RELIEF IS STILL DORMANT AFTER 85 DAYS

Dole List Is Virtually As Large As It was When Bill Was Passed

Washington, June 24.—Two and a half months after enactment of the President's plan to end the dole, the number of dole-getters is virtually as large as ever.

Work has not started on any project.

The Civilian Conservation Corps is enlisting new recruits, and some of the Government departments have put on extra workers to help get work relief under way.

A few projects have reached the bid-asking stage.

A total of $1,376,742,827 has been allocated by the President. He still has to decide how the other $2,623,257,173 will be spent.

Mrs. Thos. McLaughlin of Birmingham, who has been visiting Dr. and Mrs. G. E. Brown, of Thorsby, has been called home by the serious illness of he rdaughter.

JUDGE GRUBB WILL RULE ON AAA TAX LEVY FRIDAY, 28TH

Processing Tax Scheme To Be Tested In United States Court

Birmingham, June 17.—Judge Wm. I. Grubb, who held the NRA and the TVA unconstitutional, in federal court will rule June 28th on the constitutionality of the processing taxes on which the Agricultural Adjustment Administration's crop control scheme is built.

Constitutionality of the processing tax on hogs is the immediate issue which will be at stake in the hearing. Petition asking that the tax be held unconstitutional and that the Bureau of Internal Revenue be enjoined from further attempting to collect it was filed last week by the Alabama Packing Company, through attorneys Benjamin Leader and John D. Hill.

The petition sets out that the company has paid $180,000 in processing taxes and that the Internal Revenue Bureau is moving to collect $50,000 additional.

BOSWELL TO TEACH SINGING SCHOOL AT JACKSON CHAPEL

Prof. A. O. Boswell of near Cooper announces that he will teach a singing school at Jackson Chapel schoolhouse this summer, the date of beginning being Monday, July 8th. The school will run for four weeks of five days per week. All of the subjects usually taught in singing schools will be taught by Prof. Boswell.

A school was taught at this place last summer by Mr. Boswell, and he met with satisfactory results in every way. He has had several years experience in teaching, and everywhere he has been he had complete success and given satisfaction in every way. This young man will no doubt be greeted with the full co-operation of the people of Jackson Chapel community this summer, as he has been heretofore.

MAXINE HOGAN IS MARRIED TO MR. JOHN D. MARTIN

The marriage of Miss Maxine Hogan and John D. Martin was solemnized Saturday night, June 15, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Ferrell, close friends of the bride.

Tall baskets of summer flowers formed the background before which the marriage vows were read.

The impressive ring ceremony was pronounced by the Rev. Charles T. Ferrell, assisted by Rev. O. K. Lamb.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. Eloise Brunson. Mrs. O. K. Lamb sang "I Love You Truly."

The bride and groom entered together preceded by maid of honor and best man. The bride was lovely in a tailored model of white sheer crepe and a wide brim white picture hat with accessories of white. Her corsage was of pink roses, sweet peas and valley lilies.

Miss Blennie Youngblood, her only attendant, wore a tailored pink lace gown with white accessories and a corsage of roses and sweet peas. Mr. Elmer Long was best man.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. C. V. Hogan and the late Mrs. Hogan. She is a graduate of city schools and colleges. Her maternal grandparents are from South Alabama while her paternal grandparents are pioneers of Georgia.

Mr. Martin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Martin, of Clanton, Ala. He received his education from Alabama Polytechnic at Auburn. He is a member of the Rebels Social Club, of which he is vice president, and a prominent young business man of Birmingham.

After the wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Martin will be at home, 656 Idlewood Circle, later to make their home on Woodlawn Highlands.

Out of town guests were Mrs. L. P. Hogan, grandmother of the bride, of Chipley, Georgia, and Mr. Dexter Smith of Cordova, Alabama.—Birmingham News.

ADAMS NEWS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me a small space in your paper. As I have not seen any news from Adams in a long time, I thought I would write a little.

Health of this community is very good at this time. Our Sunday school at Mt. Carmel is progressing nicely. We have a splendid B. Y. P. U. every Sunday night, of which we are proud. We appreciate the vistors that we have every Sunday night and invite all who will to come and be with us. We also extend an invitation to any one who wishes to come and join our B. Y. P. U. Both new members and visitors will always find a hearty welcome at Mt. Carmel.

The little Junior B. Y. P. U. band is putting on some interesting programs every Sunday night. They would also welcome any new members to their band. We hope that some of the seed that we are trying to sow will fall on good ground and will spring up and flourish.

We want to announce that our revival will start on the first Sunday in July. Our pastor, Rev. A. S. Bentley will be there on the first Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock to preach. Then we will have services each day and night for a few days. We invite all who will to come and worship with us. We are hoping and praying for a good old time revival at old Mt. Carmel, so let's all give those few days to service for our Savior and Lord. We can surely give a few days time, out of each 12 months, to the service of the one who suffered and died for our sins.

PICNIC AT ENTERPRISE ON THE FOURTH OF JULY

There will be a picnic and barbecue at Enterprise baseball ground on the Fourth of July. Everybody is invited to come.

There will be several ball games and music and plenty of good eats. So everybody is invited.

DEVAUGHN TO HAVE A CONCERT AT SYLACAUGA SATURDAY NIGHT

Prof. W. M. Devaughn writes from Sylacauga, stating that he will put on a concert at the close of his singing school Saturday night of this week. He writes: "We are expecting to have a great concert; school is fine with 195 on roll and still coming in. Expect to reach 200 today."

To Teach At Cooper

Prof. Devaughn announces that he will begin a school at Cooper on July 8 and run for three weeks. Those who want to really study music should arrange to attend this school. Prof. Devaughn adds: "Tell the patrons that I especially want them to meet me at Cooper on the opening da, andy let's have a get-to-gether meeting. I want o make that the banner school of my life, if possible."

Arrangements are under way to have one or two trucks running to carry students. If there are some who would like to drive a truck, they should see Prof. Devaughn.

PASTORS CONFERENCE

The following is the program for the pastors conference Mondoay after the first Sunday in July at 10 o'clock at the Baptist Church in Clanton.

1. Pulpit Courtesy, by Rev. J. W. Jones.
2. Are we profiting or losing by our present method of church discipline?, by W. P. Lowery.

—Revs. Lowery, Lockhart, Hambrick, Committee.

ALL DAY SINGING AT OAK GROVE

Mr. W. J. Northcutt of Oak Grove, sends word to The Union-Banner to carry the announcement of the all day singing at that church the first Sunday in July. A broadside invitation is extended all to attend. Especially the singers. "Bring your new books and something to eat," says Mr. Northcutt. Oak Grove is on the highway north of Jemison.

SCOPE WIDENED UNDER FEDERAL RE-SETTLEMENT

New Plans Will Take Place of Rural Rehabilitation Work

R. K. Greene, former director of the Alabama Rural Rehabilitation Corporation, has been named Alabama rehabilitation director of the Federal Resettlement Administration, it was learned Sunday.

The newly created organization is charged primarily with the responsibility of aiding in the rehabilitation of destitute farm families and the resettlement of families now farming under supervision of the Alabama Rural Rehabilitation Corporation.

In this work, the Extension Service at Auburn, headed by Dr. L. N. Duncan, which has been closely identified with the program in the past, will continue to exercise a joint responsibility in formulation of policies, while administraton will be the responsibility of the rehabilitation director.

Transfer of the records of the Alabama Rural Rehabilitation Corporation to the Federal Resettlement Administration is now under way and will affect about 30,00 families enrolled in the program. Through this transfer the liquidation of the Alabama Rural Rehabilitation Corporation is contemplated, it was announced. The State will be redistricted and the administrative functions altered.

No New Jobs

"The reorganization of the affairs of the Rural Rehabilitation Corporation does not contemplate an increase in personnel," Mr. Greene said.

Director Greene, in fact, indicated that there would be considerable curtailment in the number of employees. The proposed plan of administration would divide the State into 12 districts, each district being based upon the number of rehabilitation families. One district manager will serve in lieu of county directors in the old program. The county directors in the old program, however, served both as work directors for the Relief Administration and county directors of the rural rehabilitation program.

Thad Holt, assistant to the director, advised all county work directors, county relief directors and county disbursing officers that, effective June 30, their responsibility in the rural rehabilitation program should cease. However, he said, the Relief Administration and Rehabilitation Corporation would continue to handle the rehabilitation cases until arrangements as to headquarters and personnel had been definitely completed by the Resettlement Administration.

The Resettlement Administration in all of its activities will be associated with the Extension Service and the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Greene emphasized, however, that the proposed resettlement of families did not contemplate removal of families to other states. It does embrace the financing of those farm families now on rehabilitation for the purbcase of farm homesteads, when such families have proven themselves trustworthy and deserving.

A FARMER CITIZEN MAKES SUGGESTION

Thinks Masons Should Build New Masonic Hall In Clanton

Some days ago one of Chilton County's prominent farmer citizens was in Clanton spending the day and observing the many new building projects under way.

"I admire the progressive spirit of Clanton's people," he said, "in securing the building of a new city hall and a new postoffice building. Likewise, I am gratified to see a modern new structure going up on Uncle Billy Mullins old corner. The remodeling of the Pinckard corner by the Big Four is something that adds to the already good appearance of Clanton.

"My information is that a new bank building is to be erected for the convenience of Clanton's first banking institution, the Peoples Savings Bank. This is gratifying to the many friends of this fine institution that bears the everlasting stamp of simplicity, honesty, straightforwardness and frugality of its founder, Uncle Pete Callen.

"With all the building projects I observe in Clanton, it is indeed impressive of the fine spirit of progress that has been made by the business people of our county capital.

"Now, I have a suggestion to make. I would like to see the Masons of Clanton get in step with the march of progressiveness and put up a new, modern, and adequate Masonic Hall on the fine property that belongs to the Lodge in Clanton. Today the Masons are using for their meeting place an old, building in which many of the older men of Clanton and surrounding communities learned our ABC's. I was one of the number. It appears to me that a new Masonic Hall on that property would be a very pleasing addition for Clanton to make along with the new bank, new city hall, new postoffice, and other improvements."

RALPH GRANT TO TEACH SINGING SCHOOL AT CONCORD

Prof. Ralph D. Grant will teach a singing school at concord school house, three miles east of Clanton, beginning Monday, July 8. The school will run for twenty days.

Ralph Grant is one of the best qualified teachers of music and singing in Chilton county. He has spent considerable time in preparing himself for this work, and succeded well in his studies.

Prof. Grant proposes to teach all sugjects connected with music and singing. If you are interested in any phase of the work, get in touch with him and arrange to attend this school.

PEOPLES BANK TO ERECT NEW HOME

Modern Building Will Take Place of The Present Structure

In 1901, thirty-four years ago, the Peoples Savings Bank erected the third brick building in Clanton and the structure was adequate for those days and for the then little village of Clanton. Chilton County and Clanton have grown since 1901 and the Peoples Savings Bank has grown with them.

For a number of years the bank has realized that its business had outgrown the original quarters. Recently the bank acquired a portion of the W. I. Mullins lot immediately West of the present bank building. An architect was employed and plans were drawn for a modern bank building. The contract has been let and the proposal was submitted to the Federal Reserve Board for their consideration. The Federal Reserve Board has approved the proposed addition and construction will start immediately.

Elsewhere in this paper will be found the bank's announcement of this addition to their bank building. It is noted that the business of the bank will be carried on in a new location while construction is going on. This paper joins the bank's host of friends and congratulates them on their plans to give to Chilton County and to Clanton a modern banking structure.

GEN. WOOD QUITS ADVISORY CABINET

Fifth National Business Leader Resigns His Job On F. D. R. Board

Washington—General Robert E. Wood, chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck and Co., Saturday became the fifth national business leader to leave semi-official ports in the counsels of the New Deal within the past few days.

Wood's resignation as the representative of business on the Federal allotment board of the works relief program was announced briefly from the White House, with the explanation he originally planned to serve only until July 1. He had served only about two months.

No cognisance was taken of reports in business circles that Wood was not pleased with the handling of the work relief program. Known to be a strong supporter of the president, however, Wood will continue as a member of the Roper Business Advisory Council. It was from this council that four other business men have resigned in the midst of reports of dissatisfaction with the way in which business advice was being taken by the administration. The council, created some 18 months ago to advise the administration on the business viewpoint, now has 44 members compared with 50 a few months ago.

Those who resigned from the council this week were: Robert E. Lund, St. Louis, chairman of the board of the National Association of Manufacturers; Harold C. Smith, Chicago, president, Illinois Tool Works; Edward L. Ryerson, Jr., Chicago, president of Joseph L. Ryerson & Son, Inc., and Howard Hienz, Pittsburgh, president, H. J. Hienz Company.

Whether the resignations portended another clash between the administration and business remained to be seen. Other members of the council are known to be somewhat unhappy, to say the least, concerning the council's activities.

Mr. Kelley, musician from below Billingsley, played for the meeting of the American Legion, using his homemade device.

July 13 Set As Tax Dead Line

Tax Collector W. G. Culp gives notice that Saturday, July 13th, is the dead line for payment of taxes on real estate in Chilton County.

Mr. Culp says all property upon which taxes are not paid by the 13th will be advertised for sale to pay such taxes.

PARODY ON NATIOAL RECOVERY ACT

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO NATIONAL RECOVERY ACT

To Perfect and Make More Effective the Broad General Policies of the New Deal.

AN ACT—To encourage national recovery by a proper regulation of morals and religion, habits, thoughts and acts of all inhabitants of the United States.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, by direction of the Brain Trust.

TITLE I

Section 1. A national emergency productive of widespread unemployment and disorganization of industry, which burdens interestate and foreign commerce, affects the public welfare, and undermines the standards of living of the American people, is hereby declared to exist, and it is hereby declared to be the policy of Congress to remove these conditions and to provide for the general welfare.

The Congress further finds that such unfavorable conditions are occasioned by and flow out from the failure of the people of the United States to observe, believe in and practice a proper code of religion and moral conduct, and form habits, and that such failure of the people to believe in, practice and observe and form, proper religion, morals and habits is conducive to, and has brought about, widespread and prevalent dissentions and disagreements among the people respecting a proper form of religion, and diversity of morals and habits of life, resulting in the belief and practice of improper religions, morals and habits, and thereby hindering and delaying national recovery and the advent of the abundant life, and to abolish and end all old improper religious beliefs and practices, and end sin and all immorality and formation of bad habits, and promote the general welfare.

SECTION II—ADMINISTRATIVE AGENCIES

To effectuate the policy of this title, the President is hereby authorized to establish such agencies; to accept such services and advice as he may find expedient; to appoint, without regard to any Civil Service law or confirmation by the Senate, and without advice from any one except Honorable James Farley, as many officers, employees, helpers, inspectors and investigators, and at such salaries as the President may find to be proper compensation for services rendered, under the provisions of this Act, giving proper regard to efficient party service rendered in all New Deal causes.

SECTION III—CODES OF RELIGION, MORALS, CONDUCT AND HABITS

The President, or through any officer, agent or employee appointed by him, as provided in Section Two of this Act, is hereby authorized to make and establish Codes, defining and prescribing proper religious beliefs and practices, moral conduct, acts and habits, to be believed in and practiced by all of the people of the United States, and to make such changes in such Codes from time to time, and as often as, the President, his officers, agents and appointees, may deem expedient.

SECTION IV—PENALTIES

Any person found guilty by the President or his agents and appointees of a violation of any provisions of any code made or established under the provisions of this Act, shall be punished in such manner as the President, or his agents and appointees, shall prescribe.

Foot Note: If any of the provisions of the foregoing act are declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court, it shall be the privilege of the President to issue a public statement, to the effect that the Supreme Court has dealt a serious blow to religious freedom and tolerance, and that the Supreme Court is trying to return us to the Dark Ages, by obstructing a proper development of the New Deal, and to all policies designed to give to all the abundant life, and the establishment of heaven on earth, and the President may immediately call the attention of the American people to the advantages of the Russian, German, Italian, Turkish, Chinese and Japanese system, compared to the old horse and buggy form of government under the constitution, which has for one hundred and fifty years been an obstruction and barrier to all brain trusters in their efforts to establish Utopia in these benighted United States of America.

Note Two: If the President is unable to discharge fully all his duties as provided for in the foregoing note, he is authorized and empowered to call to his aid and assistance his sons, Elliott and James, and as many other members of his family as may appear seemly to the President.

THREE DIE FROM AUTO ACCIDENT

Accident Happened Near The Alabama River Bridge Last Sunday

Montgomery, July 1.—Hope last night practically had been abandoned for the recovery of Mrs. Deason Jones, of Columbus, Ga., who was injured Saturday night in an automobile-truck collision eight miles north of here on the Birmingham Highway that caused nine other injuries and two deaths.

Mrs. Deason Jones died just before noon Monday at a Montgomery hospital.

Another of the injured, Cecil Jones, son of Mrs. Stanley Jones, who was killed, was reported to be in a serious condition. Hospital attendants said, however, that he had "a chance to recover." The others, who were confined to hospitals, were believed to be improving.

It was also reported that Mrs. Pauline Hunton and her son, Tommy, 5, of Miami, were not occupants of the parked machine nor of the large sedan which crashed into the truck. It was presumed by officers that they were passengers in the truck driven by J. A. Fulmer, of Montgomery.

The acident occurred when I. Sykes, of Columbus, Ga., swerved his large sedan to the left to avoid collision with the unlighted and parked car. Sykes's machine collided head-on with the moving van.

Sykes was badly injured. Of the passengers in his machine Deason Jones and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Stanley Jones, were killed; Mrs. Deason Jones was injured critically; Floyd Jones, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Deason Jones, received a broken leg and other injuries; Stanley Jones received severe lacerations; Cecil Jones, 10-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Jones received a fractured skull and bodily injuries, and Archie Allen and Mack Cooper, both of Prattville, suffered lacerations.

Fulmer, driver of the truck, was cut above the hands, and Mrs. Hunton and her son received minor lacerations.

The body of Mrs. Stanley Jones was sent to Prattville for burial, and the body of Deason Jones was brought to Clanton by Spigener. The bodies of both Deason Jones and his wife were buried at Bethany Tuesday.

Stanley Jones and Deason Jones are sons of Roary Jones, prominent blacksmith of Verbena for past several years.

POSTOFFICE TO BE FINISHED SEPT. 15

Engineer Outlines Plan of Arrangement For New Structure

Progress on the construction of the new post office building at Clanton, Alabama is proceeding rapidly. According to Frank H. Dohrmann, Construction Engineer for the Government, the building is expected to be ready for occupancy September 15

The post office will be one of the outstanding buildings of Clanton. It covers an area of 4,235 square feet, with main interance facing on First Avenue. The building is of early American type of archetecture, brick construction, one story in height, with exterior trim and entrance steps of Georgia marble. It will be modern and up-to-date in every way.

The public lobby will extend the length of the front of the building with the exception of the postmaster's room to the left. The lobby will have marble wainscot 4 feet 6 inches in heighth, with plastered walls and ceiling. The floor is to be of concrete with terrazzo finish in two foot squares with brass division strips between.

Windows in the workroom screen include General Delivery, Stamps, Parcel Post, Registered and C. O. D., Money Order and Postal Savings, and four letter drops with 397 lock boxes. The post office will have an up-to-date workroom covering an area of 1,740 square feet, with vault, a swing room, modern plumbing facilities, and mailing platforms to the side. There will be steam heat and up-to-date lighting equipment.

The general contractor is H. W. Beers, Jr., Atlanta, Georgia.

FIVE CASES IN MAYOR'S COURT MONDAY MORNING

Five cases were on docket in the Mayor's Court Monday morning, when Mayor Jones occupied the new courtroom in the city hall for the first session.

Four of the cases were for public drunkenness, in each case of which a fine and costs were assessed against the offenders.

One of these cases in which the charge was for driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated, was continued to next Monday.

LITAKER-PRICKETT WEDDING

A recent wedding, the announcement of which will be of interest to many people of the county, was that of Mr. H. Tarpley Prickett of Floyd community to Miss Mary Litaker, of Rockford, Ala., which took place at the home of the bride at 3 o'clock on last Friday, June 28th. Rev. Dunlop of Rockford performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Ormond N. Litaker of Rockford. Mr. Prickett is the son of T. A. Prickett of Floyd Community, this county. For the past year he has been in St. Louis, Mo., working as foreman of the laundry in Federal Transient camp at that place.

Mr. and Mrs. Prickett are making their home with the former's parents.

ALABAMA DEBT IS OVER 24 MILLIONS

Comptroller Hard Urges Semi-Annual Report of The County Funds

University, Ala., June 29.—Although 24 counties of Alabama owe a combined debt of aproximately $8,750,000 over their debt limit and about ten counties are dangerously close to the dead-line, and although the debt of Alabama counties on October 1, 1934 was $42,479,000, this debt is by no means insurmountable and can be amortized without undue hardship if the proper measures are taken, J. H. Hard, Jr., former comptroller of the Alabama treasury, said at the Institute of State and Local Affairs meeting at the University of Alabama Thursday morning.

Mr. Hard said that the first and most important need is the early installation of a system of uniform accounting and reporting in every county in the state.

The speaker said that while the functions of government have greatly increased, the system of accounting has not been improved. He added that methods used in some counties are more than 30 years old. He also said that the only present requirements is the state law requiring each county to publish a semi-annual financial statement and that this law is ignored by several counties.

"Among other things a system of uniform accounting and reporting will enable the responsible officials to limit expenditures to income and to see that value is received for every dollar expended. It will enable them and tax-payers to compare costs of the various services with those of other counties and thereby adopt the methods found most economical. It will serve as a foundation for the adoption of the budet system of accounting which is necessary if we expect to put our government on a sound financial bisis.

"The State is many years behind in the audit of the counties and under present methods will never catch up except by employing a large unwieldy force at an almost prohibitive cost. A uniform system will make possible frequent audits by the State department and to expoe incompetency and dishonesty.

"There are many competent public officials in Alabama. Under present methods the benefits of their efficiency and competent managements are limited to the counties fortunate enough to have their services. With the adoption of uniform accounting and the frequent publication of reports and comparative statements, their methods can be adopted by other counties and their services can be of benefit to all of the tax payers of the state.

"A comparison of the financial condition of the 67 counties are of September 30, 1934, will indicate the wide variance in management. Three counties were free of debt; eight had a surplus over their debt limit of over $250,000 each; eight had a surplus of from $100,000 to $250,000 each; eleven had a urplu of from $50,000 to $100,000 each; thirteen had a surplus of less than $50,000 each; while 24 counties were over their debt limit, an aggregate amount of over eight and three quarter million dollars. Such wide differences prove the need of a change from preent methods. It is a pity that an analysis cannot be made to determine why this great difference in government cost."

DUKE CARRIED TO HOSPITAL

Mr. Oliver C. Duke, disabled World War Veteran, who lives in the Liberty Hill community, was carried to Veteran's Hospital in Tuscaloosa Monday morning by Martin's ambulance.

For some days Mr. Duke has been suffering severely from a paralyzed hand caused by a blood clot in the arm. His physician here stated that a surgical operation was necessary to relieve him.

The stores of Clanton will remain open all day Wednesday of this week and until nine o'clock Thursday morning, at which time they will close for the Fourth.

After this week they will continue to close Wednesday afternoons during the remainder of the summer.

JIM REED SAYS WEALTH-SHARE TAX BURGLARY

Former United States Senator Denounces Proposal of Roosevelt

Kansas City, June 30.—Mossouri's fiery "Jim" Reed lashed out tonight at President Roosevelt's wealth-distributing taxing program as "open to every criticism which can be levied against the burglar or highwayman."

The Democratic former United States senator compared the plan to doctrines of the Soviet government, charged it was "violative of the principles of the Declaration of Independence," and asserted economic chaos would result if the program should become effective.

He predicted the proposal and its supporters would be repudiated.

"I think," the 73-year-old veteran of many a heated political campaign declared, "that there is enough common honesty and common sense among the American people to repudiate the doctrine and to repudiate its authors.

Likened to Burglary

"The proposition to levy a tax for the purposes of redistributing wealth is open to every criticism which can be levied against the burglar or highwayman."

"It is inconceivable," said the white-haired Missourian, pacing the thick carpet in his law office, "that any honest man, in his right mind, would propose, by force, to despoil a citizen of the property he has honestly acquired. The doctrine might be entertained in Russia, and indeed Russia is the chief exponent of this species of robbery.

"So much for the moral aspects."

"The economic effects will undoubtedly be disastrous, and in the end the suffering will be chiefly visited upon the laboring classes and small investors."

With a wry smile, he said, "It is the fashion to talk about vast aggregations of capital and to prate about redistributing capital," adding:

Capital Already Divided

"The fact is that in nearly every instance the capital is already distributel to many thousands of people. These great institutions have stockholders and bond-holders innumerable. These stocks and bonds have been invested in literally by millions of people.

"Smash the big organization and you destroy or injure all of these investors."

Reed visaged a "calimity" if insurance compaines were affected. He said:

"Destroy these companies and you will wipe out the deposits made by myrids of people who have sought to provide for their families and dependents after death. The effect of such a calamity would be worse than a disastrous war.

"And the principle can easily be extended if we are to distribute the wealth so that no man will be allowed property of any value. We have no more right to divide the property of the rich, either in morals or in law, than we have to divide the property of men of moderate means, and going further, to divide all property.

DATES SET FOR BOYS-GIRLS CAMP

4-H Club Members Will Have Joint Camp Near Millbrook

County Agent, J. W. Fant, announced Monday morning that tentative arrangements have been made for holding the annual summer camp of club boys and girls of Chilton County.

The dates set for the camp are for three days, August 19, 20 and 21. The place selected is at the Y. W. C. A. camp near Millbrook in Elmore county. It is stated that plans are to make it a joint camp of boys and girls at the same time and place, under the joint supervision of administrative leaders of each group.

Mr. Fant advised Monday morning that the plans so far arranged are only tentative. Within the next few days full details will be worked out at which time definite announcement of all club plans will be conveyed to each boy and girl club member in a letter sent to each individual on the club roster.

TERRACES AND COVER CROPS PROTECTS ALABAMA SOILS

Auburn, Ala.—Terraces and cover crops are two essentials in controling soil erosion in Alabama.

"Since our soil is the measure of all farm wealth, it is imperative that we stop erosion and this can be done by a well-designed terrace system and a well-planned rotation which includes cover crops, both winter and summer," says J. B. Wilson, extension agricultural engineer.

STATE COTTON FARMERS RECEIVE 2,000,000 DOLLARS

Auburn, Ala. — Approximately 70,000 Alabama cotton growers have received more than $2,000,000 in the first rental payment of the 1935 cotton adjustment program, and an additional 80,000 will receive over $3,000,000 within the next few days.

In announcing these figures Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the State Extension Service, reports that practically all 1934-35 cotton adjustment contracts have been cleared to Washington from the State office, except a few held up on technicalities.

FARM INCOME HIGHER THAN ONE YEAR AGO

Auburn, Ala.—Farm income from crops and livestock during the first four months of this year was higher than for the same period last year, reports the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Receipts from principle livestock products totaled $1,177,191,000 compared with $820,098,000 a year ago; and from principal crops $486,969,000 compared with $608,220,000 last year.

WAYS TO CONTROL LICE AND MITES ARE GIVEN

Auburn, Ala.—Lice and mites, two harmful poultry pests which do over a million dollars of damage to Alabama poultry flocks annually, can be controlled by poultrymen and farmers giving their poultry houses and flocks a little care.

John E. Ivey, extension poultry specialist, advises that mites be controlled by, first, "cleaning the house thoroughly, removing all litter, droppings, and nest material." He said that the second step is to "spray the interior of the house, especially the roosts and nests, with some material which penetrates the cracks and crevices where the mites hide and breed.

"There are a number of sprays for this purpose," he advises. "The coal tar or creosol spray or used crankcase oil will help if painted around the roosting quarters and nests.

"Another satisfactory spray for mites is made by mixing one ounce of common soap, one tablespoonful of 40% nicotine sulphate, and one gallon of lukewarm water. Use any of the above spray materials liberally."

Mr. Ivey states that lice are easier to control because they stay on the birds. "To rid the flock of lice put one or two drops of black leaf 40 (40% nicotine sulphate) under the wings and on the thighs of each bird. This individual treatment is best done at night after birds have gone to roost. Usually one individual treatment will kill all the lice on the birds and will last long enough to kill those hatched from eggs on the feathers at the time the treatment is administered. With this method used one ounce of black leaf 40 will treat approximately 125 birds."

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Randall, (Esther Farley), of Nashville, Tenn., visited relatives here last week.

MEAT ESSAY WINS FIRST IN ALA., IN NATIONAL CONTEST

Above is Miss Annette Folmar, of Troy, whose essay, "The Relation of Meat to Health", won first place in the state of Alabama in the twelfth annual meat story contest sponsored by the National Live Stock and Meat Board. A total of 12,269 home economics students from 682 high schools of 48 states participated in this contest.

In her winning essay, Miss Folmar stated that the high per capita consumption of meat is proof that the American people regard it as one of our most essential foods. Our forefathers relied upon meat to keep their bodies strong and vigorous and the necessity for meat is still as great as in pioneer days.

Miss Folmar emphasized the fact that from time to time statements are made from uninformed people to the effect that people would enjoy better health if they would refrain from eating meat. "Science and experience," she said, "show that such assertions are illogical and without foundation. From early childhood to old age, meat is now regarded as indispensible in the diet."

BANKHEAD GINNING TAX ESTABLISHED

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced that 12 cents per pound has been determined as the average price of lint cotton on the 10 designated spot cotton markets for a representative period, as the base for determining the rate of the tax on the ginning of cotton under the Bankhead Act. This determination by the Secretary, under the Act, automatically fixes the tax itself at 6 cents per pound. This determination proclaimed and in effect for the 1934-35 cotton season was 11.34 cents a pound, with the tax at 5.67 cents a pound. Under the Act, the average central market price per pound of basis 7-8 inch middling spot cotton on the 10 designated spot market constitutes the base for computation of the tax levied on the producer's allotment of tax-free cotton. A total of 10,500,000 bales (500 pounds net weight each) of tax-exempt cotton for the current year has already been allotted to producing States. The Act fixes the rate of the tax at 50 per cent of the proclaimed price, but in no event at less than 5 cents per pound. The price proclaimed by the Secretary, to be used under the Act as a base until a different market price shall be determined and proclaimed, was certified as the average central market price over a representative period for 7-8 inch middling spot cotton on the following markets designed under the Cotton Futures Act:

Augusta and Savannah, Ga.; Dallas, Houston and Galveston, Texas; Little Rock, Ark.; Memphis, Tenn.; Montomery, Ala; New Orleans, La.

The ginning tax is collected under the direction of the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Game and Fish News

Montgomery, Ala., July 3.—Picknig its way slowly but surely, the newly organized Jackson County Game and Fish Conservation Association has begun a vigorous membership drive after carrying the message of conservation to something like 3,000 farmers in the county.

Since the association was oranized April 23, Secretary J. F. Hodges of Scottsboro reports that 20 community meetings have been held in various parts of the county and he estimates at least 3,000 landowners listened attentatively to an explanation of the club's motives and objectives.

"We found all of them intently interested in the protection of the county's game and fish resources,' said Mr. Hodges. "It was our desire to build up public sentiment before we undertook a membership campaign.

"We explained the purpose of the movement and let it soak in before we started our drive and now they are coming in fast. We had 132 members to start with and expect to enroll between 300 and 400 before very long."

Mr. Hodges said the association is trying to persuade the Tennesse Valley Authority to establish a game preserve in Jackson county. At a meeting in June the association organized a "Hawk Club."

It offered 25 cents for each hawk killed up to 200. Thereafter each hawk would be worth 10 cents to the member killing it.

As an inspiration for a fish planting program it hopes to undertake in cooperation with the State Department of Game and Fisheries, the association is planning a fish fry in July and has asked James M. White to show some of the department's educational films depicting its fish cultural activities. A moving picture theatre has been reserved for the occasion.

The organization also is anxious to perfect a warden system that will protect certain areas in the county now vulnerable to non-residents who fish and hunt illegally.

Mrs. T. E. Wyatt and little daughter, Inez spent the week-end in Birmingham.

REHABILITATION IS NEED OF PEOPLE

Money, Food And Clothing Helpful, But Permanent Aid Is Wanted, Claim

Auburn, Ala.—Direct relief to underprivileged families in the form of money, food or clothing is valuable as a temporary measure, but permanent rehabilitation of these people can come only from education.

This is the conclusion of Dr. Harold Hoffsommer, professor of sociology at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, after making an intensive study of 5,080 people in 1,022 families located in 10 Alabama counties.

"Generally speaking, it may be said with considerable assurance that one of the major tasks confronting the rehabilitation worker is te allevation rehabilitation worker is the alleviation who has published the study in bulletin No. 7 of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. "Ignorance is the chief reason for the helplessness and dependence among these people.

TIMBER MAKING RAPID GROWTH

Montgomery. — Investigations on the part of the State Commission of Forestry disclose an unusual growth which is being made by the stands of young pine timber that are rapidly taking possession of the cut-over land of Alabama. Although growth of the older timber has not advanced to the stage where the amount can be readily determined, the development of the terminal shoots of the main stem and branches and the exceptionally large seed crop indicate that the older timber is growing at an appreciable rate.

The rapidity of growth of the young timber is easily discernable even to the layman since the growth of the terminal shoots is in the form of nodes which develop from the buds. Already the pines are adding a second node and should the season continue favorable an additional node will doubtless be formed before the growing season is ended.

The forest wealth now being added to the resources of the State in the form of new growth merits alert attention on the part of landowners and citizens to safeguard the young timber from destructive summer fires.

MANY AUTO OWNERS FINDING TIRES ARE UNFIT FOR SUMMER

Inked Footprints Indicates Condition of Treads At Local Dealers

Thousands of automobile owners the country over are finding that their tires are unfit for the heat of summer driving conditions as a result of a check-up being made by tire dealers the country over.

"In most cases, according to reports at the Akron offices of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., car owners themselves had not realized that their tire equipment was in need of replacement," declared Mr. L. E. Diefenderfer, local tire dealer.

"Our method of making an absolute check of the tire's tread conditions is by showing the customer an inked foot-print of the tire, made by applying an inking medium to the tread and then running the tire over a white sheet of paper. Unmistakable evidence that tires either do or do not have a safe margin of tread and traction is plainly shown."

In many cities in the country local authorities have welcomed the tire check-up that is being made in their areas, because they realize that it helps to reduce the number of accidents which are in the making when cars with tires in need of replacement are driven on the streets and highways.

During the past few weeks Mr. Diefenderfer said that he had footprinted many local car owners' tires and that right in this section of the state he could substantiate the national report that many tires now in use are in need of attention.

"It puts a little different slant on your efforts when you feel that you are really doing something that is constructive and may help prevent accidents," Mr. Diefenderfer declared, "and I am sure that when the plan of checking tires before the accident happens is understood by the car owners of a community generally, they will feel the same way about the procedure.

"FOOLISH!" you say. Of course; but is it any more foolish than cooking during midsummer weather on an old fashioned stove?

Actually it's lots worse to stay indoors and cook on a blistering, sizzling midsummer day than to wear an overcoat outdoors in July or August. If your husband doesn't believe it, let him try it sometime.

ELECTRIC COOKERY IS COOL. When you cook by wire, heat does not go out into the kitchen.

TO TEACH SINGING SCHOOL AT ALPINE

Prof. I. D. Huett of Enterprise will teach a singing school at Alpine church, near Pletcher, beginning Monday, July 15th, and continuing for there weeks, six days a week. Rudiments of music, and classes in harmony will be taught, together with all subjects usually treated in singing schools.

Prof. Huett has taught at Alpine before—several years ago. He has had broad experience in this line of work, and will be able to give good service to the patrons of the school. He asks the full co-operation of the people of the community in the undertaking.

It is a big job.

4,000 Immunized Against Typhoid

During the month of June members of the County Health Unit immunized approximately 3,000 persons against typhoid fever. This brings the total number of persons immunized since the Health Unit was established to around 4,000, which means about one fifth of the total population of the county. This, together with the immunizations done by the private physicians, should result in a very noticeable decrease in the number of cases of typhoid fever and speaks well for the people in that it shows their willingness in helping to stamp out this disease.

In addition to typhoid immunizations the Unit tested forty persons for the presence of hookworms and six persons were given hookworm treatment.

Other activities include 30 visits to cases of Tuberculosis in an effort to prevent the spread of the disease; five visits to cases of typhoid fever; and 17 visits to expectant mothers in the interest of safer childbirth.

While the above items do not include all activities they do indicate how members of the unit are managing to "keep busy."

GRANT WILL TEACH SINGING SCHOOL AT THORSBY SCHOOL

Prof. Luther T. Grant will teach a singing school at Thorsby Public school building, beginning on Monday July 8th, and continuing for 18 days. More than half a hundred have already subscribed, and prospects bid fair for a very fine school.

Prof. Grant is one of the leading teachers of the county, has had years of experience in the work, and is an upright Christian man with it. The people of Thorsby and vicinity are fortunate in getting Prof. Grant to teach this singing and music school for them.

Lesson for July 7

MOSES (LEADER AND LAWGIVER)

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 24:3-8, 12-18.
GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord.—Psalm 33:12a.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Moses Brings a Message From God.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Laws God Gave His People.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What It Means to Be a Patriot.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Religion in National Life.

I. Moses Prepared (Exod. 2:1-22).

1. His birth (vv. 1, 2).

Both his father and mother were of Levitical stock. At Moses' birth his mother was assured that he was to be the deliverer of the chosen people, and she was confident that God would somehow save him from the hand of the cruel king.

2. His preservation (vv. 3, 4). While his mother had faith, she did not ignore the proper use of means. Perhaps the story of how Noah and his family were saved suggested the expedient of the ark of bulrushes.

3. His education (vv. 5-10). Moses was educated first at his mother's knee. Here his mind was filled with the Word of God and acquainted with the Jewish hopes and prospects. He was further educated at the Egyptian court where he became acquainted with all the wisdom of the Egyptians.

4. His exile and marriage (vv. 11-22). Moses was obliged to take his flight from Egypt at the age of forty years because he prematurely attempted to enter upon his work as the deliverer of his people (Acts 7:25). While in exile, God taught him and qualified him for his work. During this time of rejection he secured a bride from among the Gentiles. Jesus Christ, his great antitype, while now in the place of rejection by his brethren, is getting a bride, his Church, from among the Gentiles.

II. Moses Called to Deliver His People (Exod 3:1-14).

1. The Lord spoke from the burning bush (vv. 1-6). It was while keeping the flock of his father-in-law in the desert that the Lord appeared to Moses in the burning bush, which symbolized the indestructible people of God.

2. Moses commissioned (vv. 7-10). In this commission God showed his active interest in his people. He assured Moses that he had seen their affliction and heard their cry. It was because of his grace that he obligated himself to deliver the people.

3. Moses' objections removed (vv. 11-14). Four objections were offered, each one of which God met and removed.

a. Personal unworthiness (v. 11). b. The difficulty of the people to understand Moses' relationship to God (vv. 13, 14). c. Unbelief on the part of the people (4:1). d. Lack of eloquence (4:10).

III. Moses the Deliverer.

1. From Egyptian bondage (Exod. 12:29-36). The culminating blow was the death of the first-born. There was death that night in every home through Egypt where the blood was not found. This is typical of the coming day of God's wrath when all who are not resting under the shadow of Christ's blood shall perish.

2. At the Red Sea (Exod. 14:1-3). Hemmed in on either side by mountains, the Red sea in front, and pursued by the Egyptians from the rear, God interposed, enabling the Israelites to cross dry shod.

IV. The Giving of the Law (Exod. 19-24).

1. The covenant proposed (ch. 19). This is the beginning of the theocratic kingdom. The Lord through Moses proposed to the people that on condition of their obedience he would constitute them his peculiar people (vv. 5, 6). To this the people heartily responded, engaging themselves to obey him (v. 8).

2. The content of the covenant (ch. 20). This embraces the Decalogue or Ten Commandments, setting forth obligation Godward and manward.

3. The Statutes of Moses or Secondary Laws (chs. 21-23). These laws pertain to a. Servitude (21:2-11); b. Personal safety (21:12-32); c. Property (21:33-22:15); d. Conjugal fidelity (22:16, 17); e. Miscellaneous laws (23:1-9); f. Set times of Jehovah (23:10-19). g. Personal piety (23:20-23).

4. The covenant ratified (Exod. 24). When the law had been duly set forth, the people were called upon to accept its obligations. The law was reduced to writing. The people were then called upon to commit themselves to personal acceptance of their responsibility. The covenant was then sealed by blood.

Secret of Happiness

"The real secret of happiness is to be in love with your job; to do work that you like to do; that interests you; that you believe in." That is, let us add, not only the secret of happiness, but the secret of success.

Revenge

We cannot honor our country with too deep a reverence; we cannot love her with an affection too pure and fervent; we cannot serve her with an energy of purpose or a faithfulness of zeal too steadfast and ardent.

MORE MISSION INSTITUTE PLANS

The plans for the Chilton-Unity Institute to be held July 9, 10, and 11, at Clanton Baptist church are taking a large place in the minds and prayers of the Christian leaders in these two associations. The W. M. U. Executive Boards are called for a joint session Friday afternoon, June 28th, at Clanton Baptist Church. The Unity Board will convene in the morning at 10:30. The joint session will be held at 2 o'clock. All members of both boards are urged to come. Some very important matters about the institute will be discussed. It is necessary that this meeting be well attended. Together, these two associations are planning to put on, with the Lord's leadership, the greatest meeting of its kind ever held in our community.

Are you going to be there? Are you going to do your part to make it the very greatest meeting? Are you planning to help some one to come who has no way? Are you preachers feeling responsible for announcing and encouraging attendance, and above all, coming yourselves?

We are anxious to have every one of our preachers there. We wish all church workers could come. We want you to see that your children have the chance to hear these great speakers, teachers and Missionaries. We are praying and planning and trying our best to make it a worthwhile meeting. Talk about it at church next Sunday. Announce the whole program next Sunday. Yours in His and your service, Mrs. S. J. Ezell.

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING OF CHILTON COUNTY W. M. U.

The W. M. U. of Chilton County Association will meet with Liberty Hill Church the first Saturday afternoon in July, at 2:00 o'clock. The officers are especially invited to be present and help plan the program for the quarterly meeting and also make plans for the Christian-Unity Institute. So your help and your presence is needed.—Mrs. L. D. Hughes, Supt.

REV. CARROLL WILL PREACH AT CHESTNUT CREEK JULY 6

In the absence of the pastor, Rev. J. W. Jones, who will be at Climax, Ga., in a revival meeting, Rev. Homer Carroll will preach at Chestnut Creek Church, Coopers, on Saturday, July 6.

The pastor will return in time for the Sunday services, July 7th.

Prof. W. M. Devauhn closed a most successful singing school at Sylacauga last Saturday night, when a bumper concert was put on. The enrollment finally reached 197 at the close of the school.

Mr. Floy Devaughn of Poplar Springs community goes to McKenzie, Ala., in Butler county, this week end, and will take up a singing school there Monday morning, July 8th.

EILAND FAMILY REUNION

On last Sunday, June 30, the children, grandchildren and great grand children of Mrs. S. A. Eiland gathered at Cedar Grove church. There are 12 children, all living and all present except one. A host of other relatives and friends were present.

Grandmother was so happy to have her children, grand children and great grand children and all of the other relatives and friends to join her at the dear old church that she loves so well. Se is 89 years old, and is still able to go to church and Sunday school.

The morning was spent in handshaking and talking. At eleven o'clock Rev G. W. Freeman made a very impressive talk.

A bountiful dinner was spread and all seemed to enjoy the day very much.

May grandmother live to have many more happy family reunions. To know her and her family is to love them.

May God bless them all and when their lives are ended, may they all gather around God's throne with grandmother to sing His praises forever.—A Friend.

TIFFIN RADIO SHOP WILL BE IN FORMER SPIGENER LOCATION

It was announced in last week's paper that the location of the new firm, Tiffin Radio and Electric Co., would be in the Johnson Biulding next to the Laundry.

We are advised this week that arrangements have been changed, and that the new firm will be located in the building recently vacated by the Spigener Funeral Home.

Tom and James (Gabby) Tiffin are the owners of the new business. They will handle the full General Electric line of radios, electric refrigerators, and other home appliances. They will conduct a business devoted to both sales and service.

Announcement of the formal opening of the business will be made as soon as the building can be made ready for occupancy and the display stock installed.

"Pits" Hold Drama of World's Greatest Racing Classic

START OF INDIANAPOLIS SPEEDWAY RACE

Unfortunately the average spectator at the annual Indianapolis Speedway Classic is unable to witness much of the tense drama of the race, which takes place in those little concrete-walled boxes known as the "pits," located on the "apron" of the track near the starting point. Here the "teams," composed of a dozen men, — a necessary organization for every entrant — perform their duties in an atmosphere tense with excitement but with the precision of a well-drilled stage show. Without their help no driver would stand a chance of winning.

Theirs is the directing genius behind the strategy involved in this four-and-a-half-hour contest. Whirling around the two-and-a-half-mile rough brick oval at speeds approaching 150 miles an hour, their senses reeling from the thunder of their motors, the fumes from the engines, and the eye strain, the drivers lose track of their position and their speed.

It is the pitmen who keep them informed on these important matters, and advise them regarding strategy through a complicated system of signalling. When to come in for water and gas, and who the leaders are at the moment are among the many pieces of information that the driver must depend upon his pit crew for.

The operations in the pit are as thrilling, at times, as the actual race itself. A car slides onto the apron and stops in front of its own pit. Half a dozen men leap the low concrete wall, each concentrating on a definite job. The cap is off the radiator in a second and a stream of cool water is flowing in; gasoline is already being poured into the tank; tires are examined; and two men lift the hood and their expert eyes and ears can tell in a split second whether all parts of the engine are sp[illegible]

One or two A.A.A. officials dash up. The pit crew gives them an anxious glance, for their inspection may mean loss of many precious seconds—possibly elimination from the race. These officials have the authority to order adjustments, and, if in their judgment the car has a defect, to order it from the race as a precaution of safety for all concerned.

Kelly Petillo won this year's race, setting a new track record of 106.24 miles per hour. Each of the two times Petillo stopped at the pits, he was seen to continue to sway in his seat, not yet recovered from the effects of the bodily rhythm induced by the terrific car-swing at high speed. Peter DePaolo, his pit manager, shouted advice into his partly deafened ears and within a minute or so Petillo was back on the track with a fresh supply of gas and water, and his engine in perfect tune.

Petillo frankly stated after the race that much of the credit for his performance was due to two factors—his pit manager and his tires. The winner said he was tempted several times to "burn up" his car early in the race to catch the several drivers then ahead of him. "I knew my Firestone tires would stand any speed my car could go," he said, "but I had my instructions from Pete DePaolo. He worked out the plan of campaign and I followed it." DePaolo signalled instructions to Petillo on almost every lap of the 200.

In the pits, too, watching and checking car performance, is the engineering genius of the country.

Take tires for instance. The recent race marked the sixteenth consecutive contest in which Firestone tires had been on the winning car. Firestone engineers and designers were in the pits throughout the race, checking every phase of the cars' performance. The drivers buy and pay for their tires, and have for years. Firestones were on all cars that finished and there was not one tire failure. With new records each year, the problem for tire and motor car engineers is ever new.

PASTURE CUTS COST OF FATTENING PIGS

Just how valuable is pasture for pigs? In 29 different tests with about 1,200 pigs in Ohio, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Iowa, and South Dakota the total of concentrated feed eaten by pigs on pasture averaged about 13 per cent less for every 100 pounds of gain than for the pigs in dry lots, according to summaries by the United States Department of Agriculture. The tconcentrated feed saved depended upon the kind and condition of pasture.

The concentrated feed saved depend- average weight of 55 pounds. About one-half of them were allowed to pasture. The tests showed that pasture took the place of about one out of each eight pounds of concentrated feed needed when pasture was not furnished. Pigs on pasture gained about one-quarter of a pound more per day than those in a dry lot. There was less opportunity for them to pick up parasites. Aside from other things, the pasture furnished vitamins, minerals, and exercise, all of which are necessary for speedy pork production.

Pigs should not be stinted with too little pasture. The exact number of pigs that can be carried per acre depends on the pasture. Pigs like and make good gains on alfalfa, lespedeza, rape, clovers, sudan grass, green soybeans, cowpeas, bermuda, bluegrass, and rye when properly supplemented with concentrated feeds. They make the best gains, however, on young, tender, succulent, green growth. The value of a pig pasture lessens as growth following a hay crop or clipping is good feed.

Two or more pastures give an opportunity to shift the pigs when pastures go down in feed value. Many farmers use a number of small pastures. Some plant late crops to lengthen the pasture season. Soybeans, for example, may be planted as late as the first of July in the middle West. Practical farmers have proved over and over again that their pig pastures are feed savers and money makers.

HOLDING FIRM DEATH CLAUSE STRICKEN OUT

President's Direct Appeal For Senate Bill Denied In Lower Chamber

Washington, July 1.—The House today rebuffed President Roosevelt in his demand for a mandatory "death sentence" for "unessential" utilities holding companies. The vote was 216 to 146.

Before packed galleries the House, without recording the vote of individual members, defeated an effort to insert the Senate "death sentence" provision in the less drastic House utilities bill.

The vote was counted by tellers who did not record the names of individual representatives as they showed their preference.

Defeat of the "death sentence" came after direct pleas by Mr. Roosevelt that it be enacted.

Majority Surprising

Defeat of the Administration on the bitterly fought issue was not unexpected but the size of the majority against the death sentence came as a shock to Houes leaders.

The extent of Democratic desertion from the Administration standards was immediately obvious when the result of the vote was announced. Many Democrats cheered lustily when it was found the death sentence had been beaten.

SPIGENER FUNERAL HOME MOVED TO NEW LOCATION

The Middleton residence, one of the landmarks of Clanton, located next to the Presbyterian Church, on the Selma Highway, has been remodeled and made suitable for use of the Spigener Funeral Home.

The business was moved to the new location last week. The local manager, Mr. Sam Cope, says:

"We are delighted with our new location, which is far more suitable for a funeral home than the place we formerly had in the busy and congested district down town.

"The Middleton residence has all the space we need for every purpose of our business. It affords us a nice and spacious parlor for use in conducting funerals when so desired. The location is in a quiet neighborhood, all of which makes it a most pleasing place for our business."

Harvey S. Firestone's Fifth Son Graduates From Princeton Univ

Finishes At Famous Institution Where Original American Ideals Reign Supreme

Princeton, N. J., June 18.—Mr. and Mrs. Harvey S. Firestone and their four oldest sons, who are all alumni of Princeton University, were present at the graduation of their fifth and youngest son, Roger, taday.

To have five sons receive degrees from a University like Princeton is a most unusual event and Mr. and Mrs. Firestone appeared particularly happy on this occasion. The eldest son, Harvey, Jr., was graduated in the class of 1920; Russel in 1924; Leonard in 1931; Ramond, in 1933; and Roger. this year.

Roger in his Junior year Won unusual honor of being elected to membership in Sigma Xi, national honorary scientific society, and this year at a meeting of the American Physical Society in Washington there was presented a scientific paper in original researth of which he was the co-autor. For the past two years he was coxswain of the varsity crew. At the class day exercises yesterday he was awarded the Bible Medal "for good sportsmanship."

"Aside from their scholastic records it is especially gratifying to me to know how well their classmates thought of my sons," Mr. Firestone said. "Roger was the fourth one to be voted by his class as the man most likely to succeed. I am happy to say that our four older sons are associated with me in the Firestone enterprises and that Roger after certain post graduate work will join them with me."

When asked why he chose Princeton University for his five sons, Mr. Firestone stated:

"In 1915 I made a study of the American college and was deeply impressed with the adherence by Princeton to American ideals and traditions. Now, after twenty years, during which I have witnessed my five sons obtain degrees at this University I am more certain than ever that these same ideals and traditions, which have made of our people a great nation, must still be the guiding impulse of the oncoming generation.

"President H. W. Dodd's statement in his baccalaurate address to the 475 graduates that there are no short cuts to success and that youth should beware of the present effort to substitute redical systems of economic and cultural life for traditions and customs that have stood the test of the race for generations was most timely. His admonition to young men not to forsake the old-fashioned virtues and not to be discouraged by the defeatist atmosphere of these times was inspiring.

"With the conditions which young men must face in life today the importance of education and character building cannot be too strongly stressed. There can be no greater service to this country performed by Universities such as Princeton."

Mr. Harvey S. Firestone congratulating Roger, his fifth and youngest son, who was graduated from Princeton University June 18.

Mr. Harvey S. Firestone with his five sons, all Princeton graduates. Left to right; Leonard, Raymond, Roger who was graduated June 18, Mr. Firestone, Harvey, Jr., and Russell.

President Roosevelt as Governor of New York, in 1930, is quoted as condemning the idea of having "master minds" run things at Washngton. Some people have accused him of inconsistency as soon as he got down to Washington. But the Supreme Court in its NRA decision convinced us that there isn't much in that talk about master minds framing the New Deal.

Very often a country maid sends out her name and address pencilled on an egg. Sometimes this results in romance and marriage. Another proof of the Biblical statement that casting bread upon the waters pays in big returns. She sends out an egg and gets a lot bigger one in return.

Miss Sallie VanSock, one of our local social leaders, writes us that since we have gone back to the age of unbridled competitino she is not afraid of the tooth and the claw. The Elks and Shriners, she adds, have been wearing 'em for years on their watch chains. And she thinks they are O. K.

Japan must be hunting trouble all right. It is said she insists in taking part the next time an international loan is made to China. So far as we are concerned Japan is welcome to do all the international lending all over the world from now on. Uncle Sam has his stomach full of it.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

For some time it has been apparent to the average student of American political affairs that we were rapidly getting away from the foundation of states' rights on which our Constitution was built, and that if the trend kept up for a few years longer at an undiminished pace our government would be as contralized as most of those in Europe. The government has been almost constantly increasing its control over what has always been regarded as purely intra-state business. More and more we have been getting regulation from Washington and less from Springfield and Tallahassee.

This was not entirely the fault of the national government. The leaders of many state governments, scenting something soft in the way of aid from Washington, seemed weakening on the idea of maintaining state sovereignty. Already one or two states had sent representatives to Washington whose duty it was to see what "we could get" out of Uncle Sam and the practice was growing in favor. It is of course much easier to let Uncle Sam do it, if he will.

The first rude jolt to the bureaucrats came with the decision of the Supreme Court nullifying most of the provisions of the NRA and defining and limiting the idea of interstate commerce. Since then there has been an awakening of the real American spirit. It seems that there are still a great many people left in the country who believe that democracy is worth preserving and that one way to do it is to safeguard the system of checks and balances in the national constitution.

Fortunately the patriots, who have this idea, are not confined to one party. Many of them are Republicans and many of them Democrats. The fact that the Democratic party, now in power and going ultra-nationlistic economically, was once known as the "states' rights" organization, while the Republicans were then supposed to be the strong nationalist party, now does not enter into the reasoning on the subject and it should not.

There may be some significance, from the standpoint of public phychology, in the statements made on June 11, by two staunch Americans, far apart in political affiliation and geographic location. These men were former Governor Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, and Senator Harry C. Byrd, of Virginia.

Concluding his speech to Republican grassrooters at Springfield, Ill., Governor Lowden said with due solemnity and lack of rancor:

"It is now proposed, by amendment of the Constitution, to test the latter half of the statement." (The statement referred to was that our government is an indestructible union of indestructible states.) "Around that issue the battle rages. And I have faith that when the people have spoken we shall still have an indissoluble union of indestructible states."

In his address at the commencement exercises at William and Mary College, the same day, Harry C. Byrd, of a traditional Democratic family and representing in Washington a traditionally Democratic state, said:

"In the shadow of these walls where democracy was cradled and nutured by the great men of Virginia's past I want to take my stand:

"For the preservation of the fundamental principles of our government.

"Against the destruction of the rights of the states.

"To preserve home rule.

"In opposition to any movement to abridge the present power of the Supreme Court of the United States.

"To have the checks and balances the founders so wisely adopted as a protection against a mob rule."

Perhaps the question of the indestructibility of our states will loom large in the 1936 election. If so, it is well indeed, for in that direction lies the preservation of the American system of government. Other roads may lead to glory but unfortunately they are too apt to lead to fascism.

ABSENTEE LAW STAYS AS IS

The agitation in the Alabama Legislature to eliminate some of the loop-holes and chance for fraud from the absentee ballot law in this State proved too good to be true, which to The Union-Banner is like the old saying, "It was just as we expected."

Who ever heard of a bunch of Democrats doing anything to eliminate fraud from an election law? They simply don't do such thing. This scandalous and outrageously corrupt absentee ballot law gives Democrats too good a chance to work in their crookedness to be set aside by them from the election laws.

It was by manipulation of the laxity of the absentee ballot law that most of the Democratic candidates received majorities in the last general election in Chilton county, it is charged, when about 420 absentee ballots were cast, which was more than twice as many as had ever been cast in any one election before. Such things as voting men who had been dead five years, and using names that had never before been heard of, are among the charges made against those too eager to get votes in that election. It is on these grounds that the contest is in the courts for settlement now.

There is no good reason why this law should not have been amended so as to free it from so much chance of corruption, except that it serves the Democratic purpose too well.

FROM HIM THAT HATH

One method of ascertaining how the average South Carolinian is disposed toward some of the New Deal adventures is to pull one's car by the side of the road end enter into casual conversation. In the rural areas are many persons who understand that from him that hath only that which he hath can be taken away. They understand that the federal government has been bleeding persons with property or with the color of property.

In another county a wayfarer was told by a merchant in an unincorporated town that persons of his kind believed that discretion required them to hush their tongues in public, but that they were disturbed by the manner of government's distribution. This merchant said that he was a Democrat, but that he could not approve a condition whereby the shiftless were encouraged to be more shiftless in the belief that government would feed and clothe them.

The voices of those who are getting from government are loud in praise of the abecedarian experiments. They are strongly in favor of a continuance of the system which benefits them. They care not a whoop that persons who have come into property by dint of saving and sacrificing are being stripped. They clamor for the skin of the rich without thought of the morrow when the rich shall be without means to assist the less fortunate.

It is not an easy matter to sound the consensus of South Carolinians. Tens of thousands of men and women shrink from expressing their views and convitions in public. They believe that reckless spending is hastening this country toward national bankruptcy. In this they are in harmony with what Franklin D. Roosevelt said when he entered the White House. They concur in the opinions expressed by Mr. Roosevelt that the nation's budget should be balanced and that the national indebtedness should be decreased.—Charleston News and Courier.

WHO WEARS THE MANTLE?

Suppose Calvin Coolidge were alive today and interested, as he would have been, in the nation's welfare. Suppose he should be waited upon by prominent men, regardless of party lines, who believe in the preservation of the Constitution and the salvation of the country from theorists and the dreamers of strange dreams. Suppose they should say to him:

"The United States has been passing through a serious depression which, in our opinion, could have been made to yield to recovery much quicker had we a practical government in Washington; had the Democratic party stuck to its 1932 platform instead of repudiating much of it and running after false gods. We have been trying to spend ourselves into prosperity. We are piling up the public debt in an alarming manner. We cannot continue without plunging over the precipice of bankruptcy or resorting to disastrous inflation.

"We have gone in for regimentation, for virtual dictatorship, only partially halted by the Supreme Court. We are threatened with schemes for revising the Constitution, which has been our firm foundation all these years, and for depriving the states of many of their rights. We are facing a crisis in the history of the nation. Isn't it your duty to lead us out of the morass, frustrate the machinations of the New Dealers and restore to us our birthright?

What, think you, would be the reply of Calvin Coolidge? He is not here to tell us, but we can imagine him taking the broad view of national safety. He might respond: "It is true that a crisis is upon us and that the election of next year is of vital importance. It is so important that it transcends all questions of party alignment. If I am to lead you it must be with the perfect understanding that, if elected President, it will not be as a partisian, but as a citizen of the United States representing the country as a whole. I shall not recognize party lines. I shall recognize only the grave issues involved, the principles laid down in the Constitution, the preservation of the people from the dangers that confront them."

Calvin Coolidge is dead. But surely somewhere in this nation there lives an American who can serve it as he would serve it. That man should be found. And it is not party, but security, that is the essential thing.

Coalition is in the air. May it discover a safe and sound landing field!—Philedelphia Inquirer.

While there is considerable evidence that the government believes in inflation to a greater or less extent, it still objects to individuals doing it. Ray Winters of Concordia is now in jail at that place, accused of inflating a one dollar bill to a ten spot.—Linn, Kans., Record.

WHO IS TO BLAME?

Up around Washington, just at this time, the "bee-in-the-bonnett" boys are busy at the old, old army game of passing the buck for the New Deal's present discomfiture.

President Roosevelt, although the best sport of them all, has a hankering to blast the Supreme Court for its recent jolt of his high-handed policies. He is far too wise to come out in the open and condemn the Court, for he knows that there are yet many true Americans who have a wholesome respect for our national Constitution. However, he has hinted that he might ask for a change in the Constitution which would limit the Court's jurisdiction over the chief executive. A bit of study of Amercan history might show Mr. Roosevelt that the Constitution was drawn up with this very purpose in mind—to keep a check on officials who might have a yen to run amuck.

On the inside, however, the pot is boiling. Mr. Roosevelt has raked the administration lawyers over the coals for not being smart enough to draw up the NRA laws in a manner that would stay inside of the Constitutional fence. They, in turn, have told the president that this would be an almost impossible job, and this hasn't helped the president's feelings any, either.

In the meantime, all the administration's forces have been busy predicting that business would go into the gutter since the NRA is out, (as business men are such hogs), and have been muttering prayers that their predictions would come true. However, statistics show that the reverse is true, and that has muddied the water still worse.

The result of all these reverses is that the bi-wig boys are in the same shape as a bunch of bottled wasps—they are stinging at anything and anybody who crosses their paths, even one another.

In the language of Amos and Andy, the boys are "regusted."

A short time ago, too, a lot of the rah-rah fellows were talking about how smart Mr. Roosevelt was to draw up the NRA. Now they say somebody, anybody else is to blame for the inconsistency of it. We wonder just who IS to blame.

CRACKING DOWN

Since the administration has been so ingloriously defeated in the NRA case, it has been seeking some way to strike back for wrong that it feels has been done it.

Officials feel that "big business" is jubilant over the death of the NRA, inasmuch as several of the heads of big concerns have predicted that business would thrive better without the NRA yoke.

To answer all this, the administration is concocting a "sock the rich" plan to take some of the money away from big business, in a campaign not unlike Huey Long's "share the wealth" plan. In fact, President Roosevelt has stolen Huey's thunder, and taken over Huey's motto.

In turn, Huey has welcomed President Roosevelt into his fold, and this hasn't helped the feelings of old-time Democrats, either. Some of them feel that Mr. Roosevelt has done this in order to keep Huey from cutting any of the Roosevelt cake in 1936. One big merchant once said that if he couldn't beat a man, he would go into partnership with him, and some Democrats believe the president is thinking along the same lines.

Meanwhile, as Mr. Roosevelt prepares to "crack down" on big business, the members of the business group are producing statictics to prove that the most of their holdings is divided into stock, and that a great per cent of this stock is held by employees and "little" men. They contend that by "cracking down" on them, the administration will, in reality, be hitting the little fellow, after all.

In other words, as the administration begins to "crack down", business begins to "crack up".

BELIEVE IT OR NOT

Here's one for the book, folks. I wonder why Mr. Ripley hasn't already heard of it and put it in his "Believe It Or Not" list. But I believe you can afford to believe it, even if it does sound a little bit off. Here 'tis:

Dr. M. R. Fenske, director of the petroleum refining laboratory of Pennsylvania says that the people of the United States use twice as much petroleum as they do drinking water. In a way that is saying that we use twice as much gas as we do drinking water, although we get more products from petroleum than gas alone. He goes on to state that enough petroleum is pumped from the ground every day to cover Manhatten Island to a depth of a foot and a half—Manhatten Island is 12 miles long, and averages a mile wide.

After wielding a pencil for about an hour, and figuring over a piece of paper as big as a cow-hide. I find that this amounts to about 625,634,743 gallons. And that's some gas, if you ask me. Figuring that could all be burned in cars, with an average mileage of 15 miles to the gallon, we would find the cars of this country running 9 billion, 365 million, 521 thousand, and 145 miles.

Gee whiskers—no wonder we're all broke! Not counting the money we have to pay out for that gas, the running of that many miles wouldn't leave us time to work and to make any money. And they're building more cars every day, and trying to conjure more gas out of old mother earth. Besides all that, the scientists are trying to find other kinds of fuel for cars, just in case the supply runs low. I guess they figure that we Americans intend doing a little riding around some time in the future.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH

Today we celebrate our national independence again. Truly, this should be a day of rejoicing. We have but to read our papers, or go to see news reels of happenings in other countries whose people, not so fortunate as ours, still struggle under regal bondage, to realize to some extent just what our liberty really means. And even then we cannot realize its full meaning, inasmuch as no American now living has ever known anything else but liberty.

Our American liberty is the fullest of any nation on earth. To do as we will, to go where we wish, any time we wish, to speak our thoughts freely and unafraid—that is liberty. In no other country is such liberty known. We should be proud of that, and hold due reverence for the men who brought us that liberty, and for the day on which we received it.

So, as we celebrate again this year, let's try to realize fully just what liberty we enjoy. Let's revel in the pure joy of living, where our acts are unrestrained insofar as they do not encroach upon the rights of our fellowman to enjoy the same liberty. Truly this is a day of rejoicing!

There is another thing about this day, too. In the past, some have been prone to carry their revelry too far on this day of days. Drunkenness, fights, and other like disorders have resulted. Every year officials warn against such. Let us remember that such maudlin orgies are not signs of enjoyment of liberty, but rather abuse of it.

And so, let us go our several ways on this day, enjoying the great freedom that is ours, and getting our full share of it, yet all times makin sure that we are allowing our fellow-man the same liberty we enjoy. Let's have a safe and sane Fourth!

BUDGETS AND INFLATION

It is generally admitted that the greatest bar to recovery in the United States is lack of public confidence, and of the accompanying loosening of credit strings by private business. One of the principal causes of lack of confidence is the specter of inflation.

The death of the NRA as a national controlling factor has resulted in no great upset to business. There has been no general wage slashing, no nation-wide lengthening of the hours of labor and no cut-throat price cutting. There have been some threats of strikes but there is a better than even chance that most of these will be adjusted.

Business could move forward by itself if public confidence were restored, and one of the best ways to bring this about would be, in some way, to allay the fear of inflation.

That this fear is one to be seriously considered is mentioned by Roger Babson, one of the keenest analysists of economic affairs in the United States. In a recent statement Mr. Babson pointed out haw chaos would inevitably come to us through inflation. He bases this belief on the tremendous increase of the foreign debt, and shows that during this year, when taxes are at their highest, the federal government has, been going in debt at the rate of $66,00,000 a week. According to Mr. Babson "never before in the history of the world has a nationa so deliberately unbalanced its budget."

The destructive results of uncontrolled inflation, and all of it gets out of hand sooner or later, ought to be pretty well known to the general run of Americans by now. They have been ponted out by the press again and again.

If we want restored prosperity we must have restored public confidence and to get this the spectar of inflation must be dissolved. As Mr. Babson well suggests, the people should urge on their national representatives that increased expenditures be voted down. We must return to a balanced budget as soon as possible.

POLITICS AND RELIEF

According to press dispatches the President has asked that politics be kept out of relief, out of the administration of the $4,800,000,000 recently appropriated by Congress for public relief and works. The President was said to have stated that there must be no political control or use of the fund, and no political discrimination.

All of which is right and proper and all good Americans hope that this high purpose will be carried out by those who spend the money. Unfortunately, however, past experiences do not convince us that there will be such non-partisian control of public works and relief by some of the subalterns in command.

For instance, there is the case of the CCC. Certainly anyone would concede that the forestry camps, having for their announced purpose the good of the American youth, ought to be kept free from politics.

Yet several weeks ago a young Michigan man in Washington wrote to the Michigan office in charge of G. A. Young, seeking a position in the proposed expanded CCC. He mentioned nothing of politics.

In the reply which he received from the office at Lansing he was informed, according to his statement, that it would be necessary for his name to be placed on the Friant accredited list at Washington and for action to be taken through "one of the presently eligible U. S. Congressmen from Michigan."

By way of postscr.pt the letter is said to have added:

"For your information the eligible U. S. Congressmen from Michigan are: John Dingell, John Lesinski, George Sadowski, Louis Rabaut, all from Wayne County, and Frank E. Hook, Ironwood, Michigan, and Prentiss M. Brown, St. Ignace, Michigan. The above listed U. S. Congressmen are of course at this time in Washington, D. C."

The significant thing is that all six of the "eligible" Michigan Congressmen are Democrats. Now Michigan also has eleven Republican Congressmen, too. Evidently they are on the ineligible list.

All of which led Congressman Crawford of Michigan to inquire: "Is the six hundred million dollars set aside for the CCC work to be used in carrying on a political exploitation of four million more youths located in 2,916 camps throughout the naton?" We wonder.

CLANTON 11— M. F. D. 10

On Monday, June 24, the Montgomery Fire Department's team came to town and lost to the locals 11 to 10, although outhitting them 23 to 16. Poor base running lost many scoring chances for the firemen.

The firemen started in to work on Robinson from the start, getting 4 safe hits in the first inning, one of them a double, yet scoring only one run. They took up the merry work in the second for 4 more hits, which, coupled with 2 bases on balls, counted 3 more runs before Culver was called in.

Singleton, Mock and McKinney each had 4 hits out of 5 trips up, one of Singleton's being a home run smash over the distant left field wall.

Culver and Tiffin led for Clanton with 3 out of 4 each, one of Culver's being a triple, and one of Tiffin's a double.

The box score.

CLANTON 1—MAXWELL FIELD 7

The Maxwell Field Fliers of Montgomery came to Clanton last Wednesday and defeated the locals 7 to 1. The visitors rapped Robinson for 11 blows, while Clanton was helpless before Pulliam's left handed hurling. In only one inning did Clanton batters get more than one hit.

In the 1st, a single, a triple, base on balls and another single got 2 runs for the Fliers. In the 5th, a single, base on balls and another single got another. In the 6th, a base on balls, a double, a single and Tiffin's error let in 2 more. And in the 9th, Littleton's error and 2 bases on balls to fill the bases were followed by Riales' single to score another pair.

Clanton's only score came in the third when Dock Baker singled, stole second and third, and came home on a ground ball by Hayes.

CLANTON 2—INDEPENDENCE 6

Clanton lost to Independence on the local field last Saturday by the score of 6 to 2. The visitors rapped Culver for 10 blows, including 3 triples and a double, while Longcrier had the Clanton batters eating out of his hand in all but the 5th. In that frame, Dickinson's error put Littleton on first. This was followed by Simm's double, Cleckler's single and Blood's double to score Clanton. After that Longcrier clamped down the lid and the fun was all over for Clanton.

In the first, Mims tripeld against the right field wall, and scored a moment later on Easterling's error. Two more were added in the third when Dickinson and Longcrier singled in succession to start the inning, and then the Clanton infield belw up completely. In the sixth Burnett tripled and Vinzant doubled to score another. In the 8th Burnett tripled again and came in on P. Langford's long fly to left. In the 9th, Dickinson, Longcrier and Deramus singled in succession to score the last run.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

The Clanton Baseball Team wants a name. Nearly all baseball clubs have some kind of name which they are known by, such as Birmingham's Barons, the New York Giants, Clanton's Millers, etc. Of course, Clanton has no Giants nor Barons to boast of, but we do have a good ball club, and it rates a name, at least. Besides, it becomes a bit monotonous, reading all the time about the Clanton team, and it would be a great help to have some other name to call the team by, at times.

Think this over and give the management your idea for a name for the club.

Mrs. Mathews Roper from Pensa-
Herbert Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ward, Mr. Littlejohn, all spent the day in Selma visiting uncle Billie Dunlap, who has been sick several months. Uncle Billie's friends in and around Clanton wish him a speedy recovery of health.

UNION GROVE

UNION GROVE BASEBALL NEWS

On Wednesday, June 26, Union Grove defeated Verbena in a very close game at Verbena.

UNION GROVE—CANE CREEK

On Saturday, June 29, Union Grove defeated Cane Creek at Cane Creek by a score of 10 to 5. The Union Team has only lost 3 games this season. They went into a rally in the first of the game Saturday. The first 4 men hitting safe, then when the catcher threw one away at second, trying to catch Martin stealing, all four men scored. This gave us a good lead which was never threatened.

Loosing pitcher Coggins.

FOURTH CELEBRATION

There will be a Fourth of July base ball game beginning at 8 o'clock. There will be various other games, such as racing, jumping, and others. There will be ice cream, cold drinks, barbecue sandwiches and plate lunches at a very reasonable price.

The community will serve dinner for all visiting players. So every one come. We are planning a grand time for all.

DOCK BAKER TO ABBEVILLE

The Clanton team lost a valuable member when Dock Baker accepted a place with the Abbeville Club in the South Alabama League last week.

Dock is a good fielder, and at the time of his departure had been to the bat for Clanton 73 times, for 30 hits and a batting average of .411. This kind of average is not to be sneezed at in any kind of company.

According to the best information available, Dock has been hired to play third base for Abbeville, and although we hate to lose a man like Dock, yet all are pulling for him to make good on his new job.

CLANTON 7—KILBY PRISON 10

Clanton lost the third straight game for the week to the Kilby Prison team Sunday, 10 to 7.

Glass, starting his first game this year for Clanton, saw his old last year's error jinx follow him over to this year again, as his game slipped away from him due to miscues afield. The Clanton team erred 7 times at crucial moments. In addition to this, the Kilby team gathered 13 safe blows.

Clanton got 9 safeties off the combined offerings of Copeland and Carter. The prison team bobbled 4 times.

LEGION TEAM DIVIDES

The American Legion team took on the Legion team from Selma on Tuesday afternoon, and divided the twin bill, winning the first 13 to 12, and dropping the last one 6 to 3.

In the first game the Clanton team took a commanding lead when the visitors' infield cracked up, scoring 7 runs. However, in the final frame, Selma duplicated this feat, scoring 7 runs to tie the game up. In Clanton's half, Simms singled, stole second, and scored Williamson's sharp single to left.

The second was a heartbreaker for Wilson, Clanton chunker. The lad gave up only 4 hits, but lost his game through errors. Clanton got 5 safeties off Henry, but couldn't get them together.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Alred and daughter, Miss Ruth, of Birmingham, spent Sunday afternoon in the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Wingard.

FARMERS SHOULD GET ATTENTION

Dr. Gragg Pleads For Local Center For People of County

"Blessed is he that expecteth nothing for he shall not be disappointed." I wonder if the author of that expression had the farmers of Chilton county in mind. No, I don't think so; however, it does seem to me he should demand more consideration.

Some time ago, I called your attention to my way of thinking how under federal aid with relief work it would be possible to build a community center, near Clanton, that would fill the bill for an athletic field, for various ball games, swimming pool, flying field, golf course, and above all a county fair ground; and a meeting place for farmers and their families from the four quarters of the county; a place where they could have their annual get-to-gether, free for all meetings; where everybody and his family could feel at home and know and say, this place is ours, not yours or his or theirs but ours.

Since calling attention to this great public need very little interest has been shown by the public; especially the farmers. A few individuals, I being one, did manage to get enough interest aroused to get a little landing field where, if the wind is right, your ship right, and you are good at making spot landings, you may get in and out alive if you have good luck and the Lord is with you.

A large ship, a fast ship, or as for that matter any ship does not try it in bad weather. At other places of no more importance, not as good towns, and no better counties are getting large fields and buildings that cost thousands of dollars, which the public can use as meeting places on any and all occassions that may be in demand.

Not long ago I called your attention to an allotment of more than $11,000.00 that was allowed to go back to the federal government just because no one seemed to be anxious enough to use it after it was allotted to us to use on our field.

Suppose that $11,000.00 had been put out in a community house for Chilton county folks to use for public meetings, speakings, fairs, etc., it would have been a credit to our county. We would have been proud of it for years to come, and poor people who needed food and clothing and were begging for work, could have had a job and reaped the benefits of what is now forever lost to all of us.

Now listen farmers of Chilton county; just because you are a farmer, are the people of a neighboring county that is a mining county, better than you are? A large part of these miners are negroes, and some are foreigners. Surely they are no better than our pure native white farmers.

Yet we are sleeping while they are reaping nearly all the benefits. Come on and help me to let our officials know that we are interested and want our wives and children and our neighbors children to have as good or a little better than other folks have. If you feel like I do about it tell the paper so, tell our officials so. How do they know what you want if you don't let your wants be known?

The new relief set up is here right now and if you don't act now it may be too late. I say let's get busy and build a community center that Chilton county will be proud of. We had better do something for ourselves while it is going. We will be taxed to pay for what other counties and other communities get while we stand idly by. What do you say?—V. J. Gragg.

IN MEMORY OF GRANDFATHER MR. R. F. LITTLETON

I cannot say, I will not say
That he is dead, He is just away
With a cherry smile and a wave of the hand
He has wandered into an unknown land.

And left us dreaming, how very fair
It needs must be, since he lingers there
And you, oh you, who the wildest yearn
For the old-time step and the glad return.

Think of him faring on, as dear
In the love of there, as the love of here,
Think of him still as the same, I say
He is not dead, he is just away.

—A granddaughter, Claudie Mae Shaneyfelt.

VERBENA 4—Lay Dam 0

The Lay Dam team went to Verbena Friday afternoon and lost to that club, 4 to 0. The visitors were unable to solve the slants of Moats, and when they did get on base, poor base running ruined their scoring. Moats gave up only 4 safeties, one of them a double by Branch.

Verbena hit Turner safely 8 times, including a triple and double by R. Williams, and a double by Barrett. Verbena erred twice afield, while the Dammers were giving Turner perfect support.

Wyatt Drug Co., Has Moved To New Bldg

Planning Grand Opening In Near Future In New And Modern Home In Thorsby; Located Near Franklin Garage.

Dr. Varney E. Wyatt, proprietor of the popular Wyatt Drug Company of Thorsby, announces this week that he has moved his store to its new and modernized home, next to Franklin's Garage.

The new home of the Wyatt Drug Company has been completely remodeled and is one of the most attractive drug stores in this part of the state.

New and more modern fixtures will be added to the present fixtures of the store and a larger and more complete line of drugs, sundries, rubber goods, medicines, etc., will be carried Dr. Wyatt stated.

Dr. Wyatt is being congratulated by his many friends and customers on this progressiveness and says, "We are delighted with the splendid business we are enjoying here in Thorsby, and are pleased to announce that we are now located in our new home. We have a very important announcement to make to the people of this section in the very near future and want them to be on the lookout for it."

Located on the Birmingham-Montgomery Highway right in town, the Wyatt Drug Company will have plenty of parking space for its customers' use when curb service is desired.

VEGETATION IS TO THE SOIL WHAT SKIN IS TO THE BODY

Vegetation on the earth is likened to the skin on our bodies by Federal erosion-prevention workers. Remove a large portion of the skin and terrible sores result. Reckless denuding of millions of acres of the richest land in the country has resulted in erosion; huge sores upon the earth.

"Recovery from the disease of erosion is not a simple matter," says H. H. Bennett, of the Soil Conservation Service. "Obviously we cannot return to pre-settlement conditions. the nation has its roots in agriculture and if the nation is to continue, agriculture must continue. We cannot raise corn and tobacco and cotton in the woods. We cannot harvest a wheat crop from the unbroken prairie. But we must make some concessions to nature, whose laws we cannot repeal even if they are irksome.

"Protection and production are not necessarily incompatible. With a system of correct land use we can farm much of our soid and keep it, too. We cannot safely farm all of it to clean-tilled erosion producing crops, Some of the steeper and more erosive land must be in trees and grass. These crops anchor the soil. Like the skin on our bodies, they protect the earth from the disease of erosion."

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

Local N. F. A. Boys Attend State Meeting At Tuskegee

Oud local N. F. A. club was well represented in Tuskegee at the state meeting which convened last Friday and Saturday. Through the vocational instructor a truck was secured at a very reasonable price and close to forty boys took advantage of this opportunity to go to Tuskegee, our most loved institution. Here the boys met and competed with other club boys from various counties in oratorical contests, seed judging contests, and contests in judging poultry and farm animals. Two of our boys, Clinton Calloway and William McKinney, brought back cash prizes of five dollars each for winning the seed judging and dairy judging contests, respectively.

Even though Chilton county fell off some this year, the boys as a whole made a very reputable showing. Many who have never been to Tuskegee before were inspired and came back with the determination to prepare themselves to make better showing next year.

Among those who made the trip were: R. D. Oden, Walter Oden, Ocie Chatman, Marcus Craig, Paul Wilson, Frizzle McKinney, Marshall Gordon, Clinton Calloway, Charles Calloway, Julius Ware, Edward Jackson, Melvin Turner, Hosea Oden, Arthur Lee Oden, Nix brothers, Jessie, Walter, Benjamin, and brother, Sam Dickerson, Fred Jones and McElroy Wilson of Clanton, Jerry Hardy and the Davises of Mulberry, Sailes and Hatchell from Jemison, and James Ziegler of Verbena.

Others making the trip were: Mr. Lockhart and son, Benjamin Anderson, teacher of vocational agriculture, A. B. Craig and Ed Hatchell.

Adult school at Jemison had a successful closing after ten weeks of enjoyable work. The adult school at Jemison, with Evelyn Cooper Moss as teacher, closed with an educational trip to Tuskegee. En route to Tuskegee, the group of 18 adult students stopped at the State Capitol. Many who had never been to Montgomery had their first visit to the State Capitol and to the State Department of Education, where they had an exhibition of their wark. The officials spoke very commendable of the exhibition and two completed projects, a "Wild Flower Scrap Book," and a vase were given to the Department upon request.

The time being limited, their stay in the Capitol city was short. They were soon at Tuskegee where they went about sight seeing. They visited the veteran's hospital and found the veterans busy making rugs, tailoring, making baskets and other things which were interesting to see.

Among those who made the trip were: Evelyn C. Moss, teacher, Ola Sailes, Jessie Cobb, Floyd Sailes, L. Z. Sailes, J. L. Robertson, Willie Reed, Alberta Singletary, Gussie Reed, Ora Singletary, Lucy Garrison, Alex Garrison, Leona Motley, John Motley, Joe Sailes, E. V. Roberts, Grover Lee Campbell, and Arthur Singletary.

LEAVE YOUR CONTRIBUTION TO THE FIREMEN WITH MR. DIEF OR JOHN BROWDER

Anyone who has not already been seen and wants to contribute something toward helping equip and decorate the firemen's quarters in the new city hall building should see either Mr. L. E. Diefenderfer, or Chief of Police John Browder. It is intended to fix up this part of the building nicely, and a lot of the citizens of Clanton have contributed toward it. Those in charge of raising the fund wish that no one be slighted.

Thanks To Mr. Percy Johnson

The teachers and adult classes take this method of thanking Mr. Johnson for helping them to have a successful adult school. We thank him in advance for any other good thing that he may be able to do for us toward helping us to become more useful citizens.

ANNOUNCING

Change of Location

We have moved into our new location next door south of Franklin Garage, and invite our friends to call to see us.

We will have a Grand Opening Day soon, and ask you to look for the announcement in the Papers.

In the meantime, when you are thirsty, visit our Fount—the best Drinks in Town. We dispense Southern Dairies Ice Cream.

We are better equipped to serve our customers, and will appreciate a visit from you.

ADMISSION 10c and 25c

MAPLE SPRINGS

The farmers around here are almost through laying by and crops are looking pretty.

There will be a clean up given at the church on Thursday morning, before the revival the third Sunday. All who will be interested in the working come as early as possible and bring your working tools. Don't forget the date.

We were glad to have the visitors with us Sunday night and the B. Y. P. U. invites them back. The subject for next Sunday night will be "What Do Baptists Believe About Religious Liberty?"

The many friends of Mr. Kern Sandlin sympathize with him in his misfortune last Saturday afternoon when lightning struck and killed his mule.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Downs attended the preaching services at Poplar Springs Sunday night.

Mr. Arnold Glenn was the supper guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davis Sunday night.

Mr. Jack Deloach and family, Mr. Wiley Jones and family, Mr. W. F. Glenn and daughters, Elsie and Lera, Miss Mary D. Wright, and Messrs. Sam Davis and Joe Lansford attended the singing at Swamp Creek and Providence in Coosa County Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Evan Downs from Birmingham were here last week visiting Mr. R. J. Downs and family.

Mr. Pete Wilson was the guest of Mr. J. R. Mitchell Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tucker had as their guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Claud Tucker and Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Tucker from Enterprise.

Mrs. Oliver Glenn was the guest of Mrs. W. F. Glenn and children Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alphus Downs from near Baker school were in this community Monday visiting Mr. R. J. Downs and family.

Mrs. W. F. Glenn and daughter, Delene, spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Bertha Mitchell.

Mr. Melvin Lansford from near Montgomery was here visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Lansford, Sunday.

Mr. Sam Davis spent Saturday night with his aunt, Mrs. Edna Mims.

Mrs. Jim Mims and baby, Ralph, spent the week end with Mrs. Cora Mims and children.

Miss Mamie Downs spent a while Saturday afternoon with Mrs. W. F. Glenn and daughter, Elsie.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Harris spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Jim Mitchell and children.

SCHEDULE OF MEETINGS

The following is a schedule of revival meetings to be held at churches of Rev. M. Lockhart:

Beginning at Refuge 3rd Sunday in July and run week following, with Rev. J. E. Bergstressor of Sylacauga doing the preaching.

Beginning the fourth Sunday in July at Highland with Rev. Paul Oden of Lawley doing the preaching.

Beginning the first Sunday in August at Liberty in Autauga County, the pastor doing the preaching.

Beginning the second Sunday in August at Pates Chapel with C. W. McCoy of Bayou Labatre, Alabama, doing the preaching.

The pastor is looking forward to the greatest series of revivals in the history of these churches.

HOME COMING AND SINGING AT PILGRIMS REST JULY 6

The annual home coming and singing at Pilgrims Rest the first Sunday in July. All singers, who can, are invited and especialy the quartets of the county. Everybody come and bring your dinner and song books and spend the day with us.—R. W. Kendrick.

PLEASANT HILL

Health of our community is fairly good at this writing. We regret to say that Mrs. B. L. Cleckler has been seriously sick but she is rapidly improving and we hope that she will soon be able to get out again.

We had another good Sunday school last Sunday, however there were quite a few absent. We would say that we surely did miss them and they missed a mighty good Sunday school. Let's everyone try to be present next Sunday and bring some one with you.

Listen, folks it is only three more weeks until our revival begins at Pleasant Hill and with the able help of our pastor, Rev. W. E. Robinson, we are expecting a real good od time revival. Start now and make your plans to be with us at each service.

Our B. T. U. put on a mighty good program last Sunday night. We had seemed to be interested We had several visitors whom we were glad to see and we extend a cordial invitation to them to come back again. You always have a hearty welcome at our church.

Mrs. T. T. Crumpton of Birmingham spent Sunday afternoon in the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Wingard.

LEGAL NOTICE

State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Notice is hereby given that a Bill will be introduced at the 1935 session of the Legislature of Alabama, which Bill is in substance, as follows, to-wit:

A BILL
To Be Entitled
AN ACT

To relieve and release J. T. Rockett, former Tax Collector of Chilton County, Alabama, on account of his failure to collect, while Tax Collector of Chilton County, Alabama, Ad Valorem Taxes assessed against the Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., a corporation, and its property in Chilton County, Alabama, for the tax years of 1929 and 1930, said Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., a corporation, having been entitled during said tax years to an exemption as against tax on said property and the relief and release hereby granted being on an assessment in each of said years of a tax value of $12,000.00, and to grant an exemption from said taxes to said Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., a corporation, for said tax years of 1929 and 1930.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF ALABAMA:

Section 1. That J. T. Rockett, former Tax Collector of Chilton County, Alabama, be, and he is hereby relieved and released from liability for or on account of his failure while Tax Collector of Chilton County, Alabama, to collect the Ad Valorem Taxes due to the State of Alabama and Chilton County, Alabama, by the Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., a corporation, on an assessed tax value of $12,000.00 for the tax years of 1929 and 1930, on the following described real estate, situated in Chilton County, Alabama, to-wit:

A lot of land beginning at a point 928 feet East from the Southwest corner of the North Half of the Southwest Quarter of the Southeast Quarter of Section thirty-five Township twenty-two, range fourteen; and running thence East 105 feet; thence North 527 feet to the South side of the extension of Fifth Avenue; thence West along the South side of the extension of Fifth Avenue 105 feet; thence South 526 feet to the point of beginning, containing one and one-eighth acres. Also a lot of land beginning at a point on the South side of the extension of Fifth Avenue from Tenth Street, said point being 33 feet West from the said Tenth Street, and running thence West along the South side of the extension of Fifth Avenue 198 feet; thence South 268 feet; thence East 200 feet; thence North 268 feet to the point of beginning; containing one and one-eighth acres. All of said land being situated in the Town of Clanton, Chilton County, and the State of Alabama; said Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., having been entitled to claim said property as exempt from such taxes during said tax years.

Section 2. That the Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., a corporation, is hereby released and exempted from the payment of Ad Valorem taxes due to State of Alabama and Chilton County, Alabama, in Chilton County, Alabama, for the tax year of 1929 and 1930, upon the said property owned by it in Chilton County, Alabama, of the tax value of $12,000.00.

Section 3. That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act be, and the same are hereby, expressly repealed. 6-27-4tc

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

"Him that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out." These wonderful words fell from the lips of our Lord. For two thousand years people have been coming to Him and He never has cast out anybody—old people, young people, good people, bad people, all sorts of people have been coming to Him. There are no hopeless cases if you can get them to Jesus. All cases are hopeless away from Jesus. There is no name given under heaven among men whereby we may be saved but the name of Jesus.

"I am not interested in doctrines, I am interested in a Christian experience." That is what a minister said in a pulpit not long ago. As a matter of fact, all Christian experience depends upon the doctrine of the atonement. This doesn't mean that a man has to understand the atonement to have a Christian experience, but the Bible states explicity that without the shedding of blood there is no remission. Since the Bible is true, then the salvation of the soul depends upon the blood atonement which Jesus Christ made on the Cross. The Bible teaches clearly that the death of Jesus Christ was substitutional and vicarious. He took our place. He died on our account. He bore our sin in His body on the Cross. That is plainly taught in Scripture. All the Bible doctrines have a practical value. Since Christ laid down His life for us, then according to the Bible we should lay down our lives for the brethren. Since He bore His cross, we should take up our cross and follow Him. Since He was obedient unto death, we should be obedient unto Him. Since He is coming again and may come any time, we should be looking for Him and should keep our lamps trimmed and burning.

Thames Forsyth left Sunday for a two-weeks visit to Huntsville and Columbus, Ga., where he will visit with friends and relatives.

ALABAMA DEEP FISHING RODEO

Montgomery, Ala., June 29.—The governor of Maryland has definitely decided to attend Alabama's seventh annual deep sea fishing rodeo, five other governors are pondering the invitation extended to them by Gov. Bibb Graves and T. J. Rester, as the personal representative of Mayor Cecil Bates of Mobile, has gone all the way to Hollywood to persuade Will Rogers to enter.

In reply to Governor Graves' mid-June Invitation to the governors of the 48 states to attend the rodeo as guests of the Alabama Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo Association, Gov. Harry W. Nice of Maryand, advised that he plans to attend and requested all the information possible about the big angling contest that will be held off Dauphin Island July 22, 23, and 24.

The five executives indicating they mght come to the rodeo are Gov. H. G. Crump of West Virginia, Gov. J. M. Futrell of Arakansas, Gov. Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina, Gov. R. L. Cochran of Nebraska and Gov. Louis J. Mann of Maine. Pressing business or other vacation plans interferred with the attendance of a majority of the others, but Gov. H. G. Hoffman of New Jersey, asked for a "rain check."

With registerations 100 per cent greater than they were this far in advance of the rodeo last year, L. G. Adams of Mobile, president of the rodeo association, expects the 1935 tarpon-busting tournament to shatter the attendance record of 525 anglers set at last summer's rodeo. Boat Chairman Albert Gill reports crafts have been entered by boatmen all the way along the coast from Pensacola, Fla., to New Orleans and that six boats have been chartered for a party of 60 southern Coca-Cola company dealers.

Game and Fisheries Commissioner I. T. Quinn, who is chairman of the prize committee, has completed the official prize list and announces that it will include eight complete deep sea fishing and surf casting outfits. In addition to these prizes a huge "grab bag" is being filled with valuable merchandise by Mobile merchants to be distributed at a big fish fry on the night of the annual Liar's Contest.

Meanwhile, Mayor Bates has a large crew of workmen busy repairing the Fort Gaines barracks on the island, putting roads and driveways in shape and repairing the pier. The rodeo is held in lower Mobile Bay in the Gulf waters surrounding Dauphin Island. The island is 30 miles southwest of Mobile and lies at the mouth of the channel leading into the bay. The prize game fish is the "silver king" tarpon, but competition always is keen in a dozen other competitive events for smaller game fish.

Miss Bertha Crowson of Thorsby was the week end guest of Mrs. Willie P. Jones.

NEW HARMONY CHURCH—LOMAX

There will be an all day working for the purpose of cleaning off the cemetery and church yard on Wednesday, July 17. Come early and bring tools necessary to do the work. Please don't came one at a time and work around your own family graves and then not come back and help do the work on the entire yard, as has been done in the past. We need all the help we can get. It is a job.

Now listen, folks, meet out early, as we will have preaching at eleven o'clock. Elder Cooke, a traveling minister, will preach on that date. After preaching we will then continue our work. Those who wish to do so, bring your lunch.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Beginning immediately this bank will construct an addition to its present building.

During construction it will be necessary for us to transact business in a new location. This bank will occupy the building on the South side of Main Street between the Hill Grocery Company and the Clanton Junior Dpartment Store.

We will spare no effort to maintain our usual service during the construction period. We earnestly solicit the cooperation of the public. This present absence from our old location is only temporary. We will be back in the original location by early fall, ready and more able to render you capable and efficient service.

We want you to come to see us in our new temporary home and we especially urge you to observe construction of the new building as it progresses.

Thanking you for your cooperation.

Assuring you continued safety and service

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., June 28.—Declaring that he was not recommending the abolishment of counties as governmental units in Alabama, Dr. S. H. Hobbs, Jr., head of the department of Rural-Social Economics of the University of North Carolina, told the Institute of State and Local Affairs in session at University of Alabama Friday morning that he was suggesting that an entirely new scheme of government could readily be devised which would function more effectively than counties as now constituted.

There are, Dr. Hobbs said, unquestionably instances where the best results can be obtained by the consolidate limits of the city the absorption

"In those city counties where the vast majority of the people and the taxable wealth are within the corporate limits of the city the absorption of the remainder of the county by the city and the administration of government over the entire area by the city would probably be the best solution."

The speaker pointed out that provision has been made by Alabama law for the cooperation of counties in various instances, and in at least one instance for the grouping of counties into larger districts. In the field of education, provision is made for inter-county cooperation in the creation and operation of line schools. Adjacent counties may jointly establish and maintain a tuberculosis sanitorium. There are other provisions for inter-county cooperation.

Continuing this point, Dr. Hobbs said that the inter-county cooperation is widely practiced throughout the United States and that it has been resorted to as a substitute for the consolidation of counties.

"If people are not willing to consolidate counties where it is a matter of common sense that they should be consolidated, then the next best thing is to have inter-county cooperation for various functional purposes."

"It is only fair to point out in connection with the advisability of county cosolidation in Alabama that the territorial units in Alabama are somewhat larger than the general average for the United States and are considerably larger than many of the Southern states. The 67 counties of Alabama have an average area of 765 square miles while Baldwin, the largest, has nearly 1,600 square miles. The average population is 39,496, ranging from 12,460 in Coosa to 431,495 in Jefferson. The most sparsely settled county, Washington, has 15 persons to the square mile, while Jefferson has 385 persons per square mile. But even so, 67 counties which served Alabama in the horse and buggy days are too many in this age of improved means of communication and transportation

University, Ala., June 28.—Answering his own question "Is the County Manager Plan Desirable for Alabama," Dr. S. H. Hobbs of the University of North Carolina told the Institute of State and Local Affairs meeting at the University of Alabama Friday afternoon that the great variation of counties in the various states and sections, in size, functions, cost, and governmental organization, makes difficult any generalizations relative to the county manager plan, except that a considerable number of counties in Alabama are already sufficiently large to justify the installation of this system.

Previously in his afternoon address Prof. Hobbs had said that county government everywhere is headless, and that this is even truer of Alabama than of many other states. Anyone, he said, who attempts to get a bird's eye view of local government in this state is bound to be impressed with the lack of any unity. County government is confusion and in Alabama it is confusion worse confounded.

"I know of no other state where there isn't agreement on so-called head of county government. Alabama has Boards of Revenues, Courts of County Commissioners, Board of Commissioners, and so on, and on, and on. Whether or not Alabama needs a manager plan of county government, certainly it needs responsible headship, and a uniform name for that headship. Such an organization of County Commissioners, Boards of Com- Alabama is open to frequent and serious criticism."

FLOYD NEWS

Health of this community is very good and it is something to be very thankful for.

The singing here last third Sunday afternoon was good.

We want to announce that our revival will start the first Sunday in August. We do hope to have a good revival at Floyd. We hope to have visitors and we welcome anyone to come and be with us then.

Mr. and Mrs. McLean are proud to announce the birth of a little daughter, Joanna, born June 14th.

Several from here went to Rockford last Sunday to the big singing. Among the number that went were T. A. Prickett, Bessie, Marie and Hilton Prickett, Dovard Huett, Denson Burkhalter. They reported a fine time.

Emmadine Smith visited Mrs. Prickett Tuesday.

Mr. Noel Prickett and wife visited Mr. Elmer Prickett last Sunday.

Mss. Lurlean Coortney visited Miss Maggie Prickett.

Mr. Tarpley Prickett returned home from St. Louis, Mo., last Wednesday after spending a year there. He says that is he going to settle down. Mr. Prickett went to Rockford Friday and was married to Miss Mary Litaker of that place. He was accompanied by Noel Prickett who interpreted the ceremony. We wish them a long happy life.

NAMED TEACHER AT JEMISON

Goodwater, Ala.—Miss Mary Moss Goggans, who has taught school in the county high school for the past three years, and at Weogufka High School prior to that, has been elected a member of the faculty of Jemison High School for next session.

Mr. Archie Devaughn, who has been working in Sylacauga for the past two or three years, is leaving over there at least for a while. On Monday morning, July 8th, he begins teaching a singing school at Gold Branch, in Coosa county.

NEW CITY HALL IS NOW OCCUPIED

Mayor and Clerk Began Their Business Operations Monday

At the hour for opening the business day Monday, July 1st, all departments of the city's government were installed in the new city hall. The only part lacking was the fire truck, which was brought to its new station in the building at noon Monday. Fireman Earle Gore drove the machine from the old station near the Methodist church. Beside him sat Mayor C. Fenn Jones, on the journey through the business district, and into the new city building.

A visit to the city hall Monday morning found Mayor Jones in his new office at the first door to the right after entering the main front. Across the entering hall from the Mayor's private office is the city's business office, presided over by city Clerk, Claudie H. Pipes. A third room on the ground floor is the Mayor's court chamber where he will conduct his court every Monday morning. Adjoining the court chamber is the city jail quarters.

The side walk entrance on the right side of the fronh of the building leads by a winding stairway to the second floor and into the city auditorium. This is destined to become one of the most useful and delightful places of assembly in Clanton. It is equipped with a spacious stage, footlights, ante rooms, and all things necessary for convenience and good appointment.

At present the auditorium is not seated. Also, there are some other features of finishing yet to be done on the second floor.

The firemen's quarters are in the entrance from the side walk on the left of the building. Here the city fire truck with all auxiliary fire fighting equipment will be kept, ready to speed to any fire at a mement's notice. In the rear of the fire department quarters is a room that will be fitted out for use of the firemen as a hangout.

Mayor Jones extends an invitation to every citizen to visit the new city hall when it is convenient to do so. Inasmuch as the auditorium is not yet equipped with seats, there is not announced any formal program of dedication of the building. Perhaps that will be arranged later.

CENSUS FOR CITY NOT TO BE TAKEN

Mayor C. Fenn Jones has stated that the proposal for taking a census of Clanton has been deferred for some time, owing to the fact that unofficial information reveals the plans of the government likely will be developed in a short time for a complete census of all the United States.

The Mayor says such plans, if and when worked out by the government, would provide a general census without expenses to municipalities or localities, and therefore, he deems it best to defer the matter of Clanton's census and wait until further developments.

Mayor Jones, comfortably and delightfully situated in his new office at the city hall, was glowing with enthusiasm for the future of the city of Clanton. Contemplating the revelations of a census when taken, Mr. Jones insists that all things with reference to Clanton from now on should bear the designation of the "city" of Clanton, instead of "town" as heretofore.

FATE MADDOX AND ARTHUR WATSON OPEN NEW GARAGE

Fate Maddox and arthur Watson, two of Clanton's old reliable and experienced automobile mechanics, have formed a partnership in the garage business and opened up their place of business in the Maddox building at the corner of the intersection of the Selma highway and the Birmingham highway.

They extend an invitation to their friends and former customers to idhxoatael nha ieten htnioern vt n come to see them for any kind of repair wark on any kind of a car.

Both Mr. Watson and Mr. Maddox are thoroughly capable by training and by experience in the work of repairing and servicing cars. They have worked at the trade in Clanton for many years, and their abilities are known and recognized by hundreds of people.

They will appreciate the continued patronage of their friends and former customers, guaranteeing everyone reliable and satisfactory service on every job entrusted to them. They offer wrecker service day or night.

REVIVAL CONTINUES

The revival at the Clanton Gospel Tabernacle will continue every night this week, at 7:30.

We had a fine audience Sunday night, and the blessing of the Lord was upon the service. The Sunday morning service was a most blessed Spiritual meeting. Everyone present was blessed and encouraged.

We invite the people all over this immediate community to attend the services this week. Send or bring your requests for prayer for anything.

Rev. L. P. Adams and wife are in charge of the services.—Reporter.

Mrs. J. R. Mullins, Jean Mullins, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Mullins are at Daytona Beach, Fla., on a vacation trip.

MRS. MORRIS HAMMOND DIED AT HOME, KEYSTONE, SUNDAY

Mrs. Morris Hammond, age 30 years, died last Sunday at her home in Keystone, after an illness of many months.

Funeral services were held at the home in Keystone Monday, after which the body was carried to Elmwood Cemetery, Birmingham, for burial.

Mrs. Hammond is survived by her husband, Mr. Morris Hammond, of Keystone; her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Pardue, of Saginaw; two sisters, Mrs. Kay Hammond, of Birmingham, and Miss Ruth Pardue, Home Demonstration Agent, of Chilton County.

FIST FIGHT IN STATE CAPITOL

The anti-sedition or anti-red bill before the State Legislature last Friday got so warm that a fist fight resulted between Representative John C. Arnold of Birmingham and Ralph Hurst, reporter for the Birmingham News, after Hurst branded Arnold a "liar."

The anti-sedition bill was passed, however, 59 to 39, and sent to the Governor for his signature. Opponents of the bill hoped to secure a veto from the Governor.

ABSENTEE BALLOT BILL WAS DEFEATED BY HOUSE COMMITTEE THURSDAY

The House Committee last Thursday reported adversely on the Chestnut bills to require that absentee ballots be cast in person instead of mailed, which means that these bills were killed by indefinite postponement.

The Owens bill to prohibit "Mud Slinging" in election campaigns, and the Hamner bill to make the chief of police elective in towns of less than 19,000 received the favorable report of the committees.

BABY BOY BORN WITH TOOTH

Nelius Miner of Clanton Route 1 brings the report that he is the father of a baby boy born on May 24th, and the baby at birth had a natural tooth. It was a front tooth in the lower gums.

Mr. Miner boasts of this being his thirteenth child, and the youngster weighed about 11 pounds at birth. The thirteen consists of seven boys and six girls. Eleven are living.

Mr. Miner lives on the old Tom Powell place in Sunshine community.

ALL DAY SINGING AT OAK GROVE

Mr. W. J. Northcutt of Oak Grove sends word to The Union-Banner to carry the announcement of the all day singing at that church the first Sunday in July. A broadside invitation is extended all to attend. Especially the singers. "Bring your new books and something to eat," says Mr. Northcutt. Oak Grove is on the highway north of Jemison.

VOCATIONAL UNIT AT HIGH SCHOOL

Sen. Earle Thomas of Isabella Will Have Charge of New Department

Public announcement is made this week from the office of County Superintendent, Luther Little, that a department of vocational agriculture has been authorized at the Chilton County High School, and that Senator Earle Thomas, former teacher of vocatonal agrculture at Isabella, has been named as head of the new department, which will be ready to function at the beginning of the next school term this fall.

For some time it has appeared probable that such a department would be possible here. The statement of Superintendent Little says that authorities of Chilton County, the State of Alabama, and the Federal Government have united in the allotment of funds to operate it.

The people of Clanton and patrons and students of the Chilton County High School are happy at the establishment of this new department, especially since it is known that Senator Thomas is to be in charge. Mr. Thomas was for nine years in the same work at Isabella, where he proved by hs work that he was one among the best men of Alabama in vocational agriculture work.

Mr. Thomas still lives at Isabella, but he plans to move his family to Clanton just as soon as he could find a suitable place to live. He has already begun an active survey of the students of Chilton County High School in order to determine the list of boys who will be interested in starting the vocational agriculture work at the beginning of school this fall.

Establishment of the vocational unit will make necessary some additional building facilities at the school. Superintendent Little states that the question is already under consideration with a probability this will be done by the time school starts again.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week Mr. Thomas will carry a group of the High School boys to Auburn to attend the State Conference of Future armers of America. Similar delegations will attend the conference from other vocational schools throughout the State.

Establishment of vocational agriculture at the Chilton County High School makes the fourth unit of the kind in the county. Isabella and Jemison had had the work for several years. A department for negroes has been in operation at the Chilton County Training School for several years.

Mrs. S. E. Bruce Died Last Sunday

Was Recognized As One of The Most Useful Women of Chilton County

Mrs. Amanda Caroline Bruce, age 68 years, died last Sunday night at her home in North Clanton, after an illness of many months.

Funeral services were conducted at the Clanton Baptist Church Monday afternoon by Rev. S. J. Ezell. Burial was in Clanton cemetery with Martin in charge.

She is survived by her husband, Mr. S. E. Bruce; one son, Homer Bruce; two daughters, Mrs. Ben Sims and Mrs. Ida Bell Duff; two brothers, Tom Lowe, of Houston, Texas, and Butler Lowe, of Clanton; one sister, Mrs. A. J. Marlar, of Billingsley.

Mrs. Bruce was a most useful woman, of great energy and activity. She was loyal, faithful and energetic in work supporting her church.

For many years Mrs. Bruce brought wide recognition to the agricultural progress of Chilton County by exhibiting several prize-winning displays of farm products at the State Fairs. In this respect, especially, will she be long remembered for her lasting contribution to the agricultural development of her county.

SINGING AT FRIENDSHIP THURSDAY NIGHT, JULY 11

There will be singing at Friendship church tonight, Thursday, July 11, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. Everybody is invited to come and bring your new books. Our last night singing was fine, and we hope to make this one still better.—J. Dudley Collins.

July 13 Set As Tax Dead Line

Tax Collector W. G. Culp gives notice that Saturday, July 13th, is the dead line for payment of taxes on real estate in Chilton County.

Mr. Culp says all property upon which taxes are not paid by the 13th will be advertised for sale to pay such taxes.

CHILTON LISTED FOR $13,200 FROM FEDERAL WORKS JOBS

Annocement was made last Thursday that Alabama had been allotted $13,000,000 from the federal government for projects INTENDED TO END THE DOLE and CREATE JOBS. Of this amount Chilton County was listed for $13,200 to come from the federal government and $4,000 to be furnished by the county. This appropriation was listed under the head of grading and drainage on secondary roads.

However, after this announcement was made it was found that the amount allotted to Alabama was some over $8,000,000 instead of $13,000,000. It is not known as to how this misfigure will affect the local allotment.

TALMADGE HITS AT ROOSEVELT PLANS

Georgia Governor Waves Banner of States Rights In Bitter Speech

Canton, Ga., July 4.—Gov. Eugene Talmadge waved the banner of state's rights here today in a bitter speech against the Roosevelt administration.

In this north Georgia town for an Independence day dedication of a new highway bridge, the governor made the address many observers believe is a bid for Georgia's vote against Mr. Roosevelt's renomination in 1936.

"State's rights is the bulwark of protection for the people of Georgia," he said. "It is also the bulwark of protection for the people in New York, Maine, California, Oregon and all of the other states of the union.

Bureaucracies Assailed

"When the time ever comes for us to placidly obey orders of 72 bureaucracies in Washington that override the constitution of the United States, our freedom is gone.

"When the time ever comes for the sovereignties of the several states of this union to be ignored and forgotten, then this union is ready for dissolution.

"It is fittng for us on July Fourth to take stock and see how far we have departed from the old land lines and foundation stones of government.

"Georgia, being ever alert to protect the sovereignty of the state and state's rights, not only helps and protects every other state in the union and every citizen in Georgia."

Claims New Deal Failure

Renewing his criticism of the new deal, Governor Talmadge told his home state audience all experimental legislation of President Roosevelt had been a failure, had retarded progress and called for immediate abandonment of the entire program "as the only road to recovery."

The agricultural program with its processing taxes, he said, "had bled the people white" and while the taxes filled the national treasury "with more money than the wildest dreams of Croesus," the nation was faced with famine and had to turn to multiplied imports to meet demands for products "the present administration deliberately destroyed."

The governor warned Washington officials that Georgia would not permit construction of highways in Georgia except by the highway board, referring to controversy over federal road funds.

WOMEN'S CLUB RALLY DAY WILL BE TUESDAY, JULY 23

Miss Ruth Pardue, County Home Demonstration Agent, announces that the annual rally of Club Women of Chilton county will be held at the high scool building in Clanton, on Tuesday, July 23.

Details of the program are being worked out, and full announcement will be made when they are completed. Numbers on the program will be provided by the members of different clubs of the county.

CREAM SUPPER FRIDAY NIGHT

Everybody has a special invitation to the cream supper Friday night, July 12, at the home of Mack Edwards, two miles north of Clanton on the Lay Dam Highway.

Be sure and come. We will have a pretty girl cake and also an ugly boy's cake. It will be for the benefit of the Cane Creek base ball club. We expect to hame a large crowd and a nice time.

BILL BLOOD WITH TIFFIN RADIO AND ELECTRIC CO.

Mr. Tom Tiffin, of the new Tiffin Radio and Electric Company, announces that his firm in the future will be in position to take care of any and all kinds of electrical work, such as wiring houses, and outdoor jobs of any kind.

He states that Mr. Bill Blood, an experienced electrician, has been employed by his firm to do this class of work. Anyone who may have a house to be wired is invited to get in touch with either Tom or Gabby Tiffin, or Mr. Blood. Estimates on any job will be gladly furnished.

MEETING OF THE COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION

The Chilton County Board of Education will meet in special session on Friday, July 26 for the purpose of considering transportation problems and any other important business coming before the board.—Luther E. Little.

THE FUTURE POLICIES OF THE UNION-BANNER

Although the partnership between W. M. Wyatt and T. E. Wyatt has been dissolved, as will be gathered from a legal notice elsewhere in this issue of the paper, the future policies of the paper will not be materially different from the past. The same general principles will prevail as have characterized the business for the past twenty years.

It is useless to mention civic pride, because a newspaper that does not do all it can for the advancement of its community, and is not always awake to the possibilities of better conditions for its citizens, both socially and economically, is not worthy of existence. The Union-Banner will at all times foster those things which it believes to be for the advancement and betterment of Clanton and Chilton County.

As to politics, The Union-Banner will continue strictly Republican in faith. We firmly believe that the Republican party is the party holding and offering the best opportunities for the common people of America. We do not hold that Republicans never make mistakes or that Democrats never do anything right, but everything considered, we are conscientiously of the Republican faith, and shall adhere to that doctrine unequivocally.

We at all times will invite the counsel and advice of our friends regarding matters that are of general importance to us all. We want you to feel free to give us your opinion on such matters, because we realize that no one person can know everything, but that two heads are always better than one. We want to honestly serve Clanton and Chilton County, and we can best do that when we have the co-operation, help and advice of all those good people who are unselfishly interested in our general welfare.

T. E. WYATT.

REVIVAL MEETING BEGINS JULY 21ST

Rev. J. Fred Sparks Will Conduct Services at Clanton Methodist Church

Plans are rapidly being worked into shape for revival services which will begin at the Methodist Church Sunday, July 21. The Rev. J. Fred Sparks, former conference evangelist in the North Alabama Conference, will assist the pastor. Mrs. Barney Roberts, Mrs. Percy Pitts, Mr. Evan Parrish and Mr. Percy Pitts will have charge of the music and singing for this series of services.

Other committees have been selected to round out a complete program of inspiration, entertainment, prayer meetings, publicity and finance.

Two services daily will be held, in the morning and at night. The pastor and committees are urging all people of this vicinity to make their arrangements to attend all these services. The Rev. Sparks will bring messages which should be of great benefit to the people of our town. The music and singing will be delightful.

You and your friends are all invited to attend every service.

Mr. I. L. Waldrop, of Herrin, Ill., was a visitor in Clanton last Friday. He is a former citizen of Chilton County, and has been visiting old friends here for about two months. This was his first visit to Clanton in eight years.

EARLE THOMAS WILL CARRY STUDENT GROUP TO AUBURN

Senator Earle Thomas, head of the newly established department of vocational agriculture at Chilton County High School, announces that he will carry a group of students this week to attend the State Conference of Future Farmers of America at Auburn, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Those who have signified their aim to go are Dolphin and Dalphin Popwell, twin boys of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Popwell, and Howard Martin. Mr. Thomas hopes to include some others in the list before he leaves on the trip.

Chilton Short On Relief Laborers

Less Than One Hundred Men Eligible To Work On Public Projects

Persons and organizations in Chilton County who are seeking to get various public works projects organized and started under the new federal program are facing a difficulty in the fact that there are so few laborers in Chilton County on relief.

It is said that the relief list has been scaled down and worked out in such a manner that there are now less than a hundred men in the county on the relief roster.

Government requirements for public works projects say that ninety per cent of the labor must be done by men on relief lists.

Therefore, it is perfectly obvious that Chilton County can do very little public works if the less than one hundred men on relief must be the dependence to do ninety per cent of the wark.

In a way it speaks well for Chilton County that so few of our citizens are on relief. Looking at it another way, it appears that by virtue of our people beng self supporting we may be denied many works projects that we might have if our people were poorer.

ELECTION IN BEAT 8 ILLEGAL ANYHOW

One of Inspectors Says The Whole Thing Should Be Thrown Out

One of the inspectors of the recent general election held last November in Beat 8, Chilton County, was in Clanton Tuesday. Concerning the contest of the election now in the courts he said:

"The lawyers in the contest have been sending me word for several weeks to come to Clanton and see them. They even sent me special delivery letters and set the exact date and hour when they wanted me to show up at their offices. I thought if they needed to see me so bad, they could afford to come to my office.

"I just happened to be in Clanton today on some personal business, and found that the contest had been put off again. Doubtless there are some who will seek to have it put off until it is a worn out issue.

"Some have come down our way and brought the report that already enough illegal votes have been thrown out to fix the result of the contest in favor of the Democrats. A few people believed that report, I guess, but not very many.

"Now, as to the election in Beat 8 last November, I will say, if it is of interest to anybody, that the whole thing was illegal from start to finish. I was one of the inspectors, and I know what I am talking about. If the Democrats want to get rid of illegal votes they can very easily wipe off the whole of Beat 8 by recognizing the facts when presented."

VISITORS FROM MOBILE

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Anderson, of Mobile, are spending a few days with the former's sister, Mrs. T. G. Culp, of Route 6.

Mr. Anderson is a native of this county, having lived near Clanton and around Pletcher. He has been away from here about 20 years. He has been with a steamship building company in Mobile for thirteen years.

J. E. Easterling Won Sales Prize

Award Is Made By Wofford Oil Co., To Woco Service Station Manager

Mr. J. E. Easterling, proprietor of the Woco Service Station, has been declared the winner of third prize in the tire selling contest of the Wofford Oil Company, which closed June 30th. For his mertis in this respect Mr. Easterling was awarded cash prize of $15.00.

The following letter complimenting Mr. Easterling, has been received from Mr. D. L. Gilliland, general manager of the Wofford Oil Company.

"Dear Mr. Easterling: It is a pleasure to hand you herewith check for $15.00, being third prize in the Yale tire contest which closed June 30th.

"We figured that you would win this money as we are familiar with your energy and ability, and we feel quite confident that, notwithstanding the fact there is no contest on, your sales of tires as well as other products will continue to receive your first and conscientious attention."

The many friends and customers of the Woco Service Station agree with Mr. Gilliland that J. E. is really a business man of energy and ability. He works hard, pushes his business, and gives his customers the kind of service that makes them come back for more. We congratulate him upon his prize-winning abilities.

MISS EUBANKS RETURNED FROM BEAUTY CULTURE COLLEGE

Miss Elizabeth Eubanks, one of the most prominent and popular young ladies of Clanton, has just returned from Jacksonville, Florida, where she spent several weeks in study and training at the Florida Beauty Culture College.

Miss Eubanks returns with the full recommendation and endorsement of Mr. Charles Shoemaker, president of the college, certifying her ability as a beaut culture artist.

She is now capable of serving her many friends by administering to them the latest methods in beauty culture. Her studio is located at the home of Mrs. Golson at 203 First Avenue. Her friends are invited to call on her.

WATTS HAT SHOP JULY CLEARANCE

Interesting Event For Ladies Begins Saturday of This Week

Miss Callie Watts, proprietor of The Watts Hat Shoppe, in Clanton, this week announces a July Clearance Sale that will be of extraordinary interest to the women of this vicinity. A large advertisement in the newspapers and a wide distribution of circulars will carry the message of this event to every woman in Chilton County.

A unique feature of the sale will be a distribution of keys one of which will open a lock. To the person who holds the right key Miss Watts will give a handsome radio set worth $39.50.

Miss Watts has put forth a constant effort to establish her business and make it of particular service and interest to the ladies who trade in Clanton. It is the only exclusive ladies shop in this vicinity.

Throughout the past few months there has been assembled a wonderful stock of fine wearables. These are offered in this sale at prices much lower than one would expect to find.

The main purpose of Miss Watts in attempting to clear out her stock is in order to be better prepared to assemble new things for the fall and winter season. She expects to go to the markets earlier this year than usual and to spend more time in selecting the things that will be most popular for future wear.

Every woman should visit the Watts Hat Shoppe during this sale. Read the advertisement and you are sure to find something that will interest you, both from the standpoint of something attractive to wear and in money-saving prices.

Republicans In Ohio Convention

Representatives of G. O. P. In Six States Issue Attack On New Deal

Cleveland, July 8.—A conference of "Republican Crusaders" from six states opened today in this city. Delegates met early to begin dsicussing issues, which were characterized as an effort to "revisualize interest in the Republican party." Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of Pennsylvania sent his greetings to the gathering One hundred and seventy delegates from Pennsylvania arrived on one train early in the day, with Charles W. Carroll as leader. Another large delegation from that State had already arrived still earlier in the morning.

The states represented were: Ohio, Pennsylvania, Michigan, West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee.

Attacks New Deal

Fletcher's message, including an attack on the new deal, said in part:

"Please extend to the Republican gathering in Cleveland my cordial greetings and best wishes for a successful and constructive meeting. These regional Republican rallies should furnish excellent guide posts on the road to victory and have my hearty approval and encouragement.

"The entire nation is now alive in both the open and concealed threats against our institutions. An aroused electorate will surely retire the professors and professional political jobbers in 1936. Political insincerity and opportunism will be repudiated. . . ."

CLANTON GOSPEL TABERNACLE

The services at the Gospel Tabernacle still continue each night. The steady attendance of the people is highly appreciated.

The minister is giving out great Bible truths on prephcy for these last days, showing that the world's movement among all nations are pointing unmistakably to the great tribulation, and the coming of the Lord.

Services each night at 7:30. Services Sunday will be at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. The night message will be "God's New Deal," answering the question, "Will Christ come in this age?"

The Rainbow quartett from Sylacauga will sing Sunday morning. Hear them.

RECOVERY BALKED BY EXPERIMENTS

Financier Who Predicted Five Years Depression Sees Prosperity Return

Chicago.—Silas H. Strawn, noted lawyer and financier, said in an interview Saturday that, except for what he called governmental "experiments" the nation now would be well into the recovery he forecast in 1930 when he predicted the depression would last five years.

Strawn was one of the few business observers then who realized at once the national business and industrial slump had moved in for a long engagement.

A past president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, he incurred strong criticism when he said soon after the market break of October, 1929, that universal "economic maladjustments" made a lengthy economic recession inevitable. He set five years as the minimum corrective period required.

"I am convinced," he said Saturday, "that if we had carriod on in a way which has always been consistent with our history and had applied ourselves persistently and courageously to working out of the depression, we would now be well on the way to a normal condition.

"In my judgment, the greatest detriment to a return to normalcy has been the fear and apprehension resultant upon the continuous experiments in agriculture, industry and finance which have been imposed upon our people by the present administration.

"A pulmotor is very effective in rescuing a drowning person, but such relief is ephemeral and connot be used to make that person strong and healthful."

Strawn said he could not undertake, under present conditions, to predict when "true normalcy" would be reached.

He scored President Roosevelt by inference, saying, "I hope that the recent decisions of the Supreme Court will convince the Congress, if not our president, of the futility of further experiments which are not only inconsistent with the principles laid down by the founders of our government and expressed in the constitution, but are contrary to the judgment of experienced business men and sound economists."

Strawn said he saw evidences of a return to prosperity. He added he believed "if business men and industrialists were let alone they would not only work out their own destiny but they would establish more friendly and cooperative relations with labor and rapidly reduce the volume of unemployment."

MR. AND MRS. JACK DAVIS GOING BACK TO GREENVILLE

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Davis and family will regret to learn that they have concluded to leave Clanton and move back to Greenville.

Mr. Davis has accepted a position with the Stewart Drug Store in Greenville, the same place where he was engaged as a pharmacist before coming with the Alred Drug Company here a little over a year ago.

The connection of Mr. Davis with Alred's will be terminated this week. He expects to move back to Greenville and resume his duties with Stewart's about the first of September.

During their residence in Clanton Mr. and Mrs. Davis have made many friends who will regret to learn that they are leaving. Our good wishes go with them as they return to their former home.

W. M. WYATT WILL REMAIN IN CLANTON

Although W. M. Wyatt has sold his interest in The Union-Banner to T. E. Wyatt, and has bought out a paper in Montevallo, he will not leave Clanton, but will work part time with The Union-Banner as an employee and put part of his time on his business in Montevallo. Generally speaking, he will be in Clanton most of the first three days of the week and in Montevallo most of the last three days.

Election Contest Is Delayed Again

Date Set For Monday, July 22, To Resume The Court Proceedings

The election contest cases were called up for hearing in the Circuit Court by Judge Arthur GloverMonday morning according to schedule. Before they had gotten fairly started the lawyers struck a stump which stopped everything, and the case was continued for two more weeks.

When the list of qualified voters of the county was called into evidence, it was found that proper certification of the same had not been made by Probate Judge J. Lee Smith.

Judge Smith being out of the city for a period of several days, it was impossible to complete this little detail, making it necessary to continue the case.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

The writer recently visited a home where he lived for a few months, twenty seven years ago. In the front yard was a magnificent oak. Twenty-seven years ago it was a small tree. How time flies! I wonder if I, as a human being, have grown in twenty-seven years as that tree has grown as a tree. Some day that tree will die. Man never dies. As long as God lives he must live. If we get to heaven by the grace of God we will never grow old. On the bank of the river in that city is a tree and the leaves on the tree are for the healing of the nations. Jesus came to give us life and to give it to us more abundantly. He doesn't only give us eternal life, but He gives us life that is full and life that satisfies.

Life consists not in the abundance of things which we possess. That is what Jesus taught. The modern mind has a material conception of life. Modern man thinks that automobiles radios, fine houses, luxurious bathrooms, gorgeous chandeliers, oriental rugs, and things like these make for happiness. Man is wrong. The more we have the less happy we are. Jesus did not discount things. He knew that man needed clothes and food and a shelter. Jesus discounted "the abundance of things." He taught that too many things instead of making us happy make us unhappy. When things become a burden they cease to be a pleasure. We waste our sympathy upon people who live in little houses and have few clothes and no luxuries. We had better weep over those who have estates to keep up and many servants to direct and whose tired shoulders are crushed under the load of "abundance of things". The most miserable people I know are the folks who have most. Jesus was rich but He became poor that we, through His poverty, might have true riches. True riches cannot mean gold, silver, bonds, stocks, lands, palaces. True riches mean that we respond to that which is good and noble and holly. In other words, we live constantly under the lordship of Jesus and take our orders from our Heavenly Father. Those who know how to thus live are the ones who have true riches.

DR. PARRISH WILL VACCINATE DOGS AT JEMISON ON FRIDAY

Dr. W. L. Parrish announces that he will be in Jemison on Friday of this week, for the purpose of vaccinating dogs against rabies. His charge will be 50 cents per dog. All persons in the Jemison neighborhood are invited to bring their dogs for treatment. Dr. Parrish will be at some convenient place in Jemison ready to start to work about eight o'clock, and will remain there as long as necessary. Bring your dogs as early as possible.

OVER 1,000 BOYS WILL ATTEND FFA MEETING

Auburn, Ala.—Over 1,000 Alabama farm boys have expressed their intentions of attending the annual meeting of the Alabama Association Future Farmers of America here July 11, 12, and 13. It is expected to be the largest gathering of farm boys ever assembled in the state.

Principal speakers on the program will be Governor Bibb Graves, J. A. Keller, Superintendent of Education, Dr. L. N. Duncan, president Alabama Polytechnic Institute, R. E. Cammack, supervisor of vocational education, and G. T. Sargent, assistant supervisor of vocational education.

Social features of the meeting include a watermelon cutting, a baseball game, and special music by string bands and brass bands.

U. S. SENATE PASSES BANKHEAD TENANT BILL

Auburn, Ala.—The Bankhead bill providing government money for financing tenant farmers and share-croppers in the purchase of land and homes has passed the Senate and is now before the House Agricultural Committee for consideration.

The bill would set up a corporation with an initial capitalization of $50,000,000 out of work relief funds, and an eventful borrowing power of $1,000,000,000 to make loans to farmers, farm tenants, sharecroppers or farm laborers, to purchase small farms. They would have up to 60 years to repay the loans at low interest rates.

ISABELLA HOME DEM. CLUB

Our Home Demonstration Club met at the agriculture building Friday afternoon, June 25th, with six members present and three visitors. One new member was enrolled.

The demonstration was on different kinds of glass jars used in canning. And also drying fruits and vegetables in the home.

Our next meeting will be July 19, at the home of Mrs. Earle Thomas. The demonstration will be on canning. Let me urge all the members to be present and bring enough fruit or vegetables to fill a quart jar. Visitors are always welcome.

SCHEDULE OF MEETINGS

The following is a schedule of revival meetings to be held at churches of Rev. M. Lockhart:

Beginning at Refuge 3rd Sunday in July and run week following, with Rev. J. E. Bergstressor of Sylacauga doing the preaching.

Beginning the fourth Sunday in July at Highland with Rev. Paul Oden of Lawley doing the preaching.

Beginning the first Sunday in August at Liberty in Autauga County, the pastor doing the preaching.

Beginning the second Sunday in August at Pates Chapel with C. W. McCoy of Bayou Labatre, Alabama, doing the preaching.

The pastor is looking forward to the greatest series of revivals in the history of these churches.

ALABAMA INCREASED SWINE PRODUCTION

Auburn, Ala.—Alabama farmers increased their hog production during the first six months in 1935, announces F. W. Gist, state and federal agricultural statistician, who reports that this state "is one of six states in the United States which increased its hog production from January 1 to June 30 this year."

Sows farrowed were 61,000, or 103 per cent of the year before. The number of pigs saved was 327,000.

"While Alabama and five other states were increasing their pig production during the past spring, the United States decreased the number of sows farrowed by 24.4 per cent and the number of pigs saved by 19.6 per cent," Gist says.

POISIONING WEEVILS PAYS $5 to $15 ON EACH ACRE

Auburn, Ala.—Cotton farmers may expect to profit by $5 to $15 per acre if they poison boll weevils when 10 per cent of the squares are punctured, says Prof. J. M. Robinson, entomologist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

"In experiments conducted on the Alabama Experiment Station the gains from dusting varied from no gain to 931 pounds of seed cotton per acre," he reports. "The large gains were made on fertile soils during the years that boll weevils were very numerous and the small gains on poor soils or during seasons that boll weevils were not numerous. The six years average gains on three types of soil receiving from 300 to 500 pounds of fertilizer per acre were 240 pounds of seed cotton per acre on sandy loam, 252 pounds on black belt clay, and 282 pounds of red clay. Since the average yearly cost of dusting an acre of cotton was $5, or $3.80 exclusive of labor, profits of $5 to $15 per acre may be expected."

BIRMINGHAM DISTRICT SINGING CONVENTION MET ON JUNE 30th

The Birmingham District Singing Convention convened in regular 5th Sunday session at the Protestant Methodist Church in West End, Sunday, June 30th, with Chairman J. E. Marsh, presiding.

A short and much enjoyed talk was made by the pastor, Dr. J. S. Eddins. The coonvention was featured by fine quartet singing in addition to good directing. The crowd was so large that it became necessary to divide the convention into two sections and use a nearby building. The following quartets were heard:

The Vaughan quartet of Lawrenceburg, Tenn.; Capitol Heights Quartet of Montgomery; the Vaughan Alabama Four, Cobb Sisters and Mash quartet. A night session at the city auditorium was heard by several thousand people.

The following directors were used: Mr. Teal, J. E. Marsh, John M. Dye, W. A. O'Barr, Champ Blackwood, Ed Downey, Rex Adams, J. S. Rain, W. R. Crumley, Buck Addington, Mr. Turner, Mr. Hammond, H. H. McDonald, Mr. Beasley, Mr. Smith, D. W. Tittle, J. C. Walker, Henry Eller, W. N. Waldrop, G. S. Sorrell, Mrs. Morris, J. W. Vaughan, Marvin Burnett, Mr. Brown, Mike Ford, Opie Walmsley, Keifer Vaughan, A. M. Pace, Mr. Barnett, L. B. Harris, E. A. Cobb, Chester Boren, W. B. Walker, Chas. Sharpe, Mr. Speights, Jake Walker.

The pianists were Dwight Brock, H. S. Dye, Mrs. T. E. Barry, Miss Vera Cobb, Miss Violet Hammond, Miss Bonnie Marsh.

An old fashioned lunch spread was enjoyed at noon and at 6 p.m.

UNION GROVE CEMETERY

The Union Grove cemetery will be cleaned off Friday, June 19. All that are interested in this, please come and bring tools.

Game and Fish News

Montgomery, Ala., July 9.—Meeting a demand of longstanding, Montgomery county sportsmen are planning to organize a permanent county-wide conservation association this month.

The meeting was first called for June 20 by Sheriff Haygood Patterson at the urging of a number of nimrods and anglers, but due to previously arranged engagements of some of the speakers it was deferred until early July.

Sheriff Paterson, one of the county's outstanding sportsmen, said a new date would be urged upon and announced very shortly. He has invited Game Commissioner I. T. Quinn to address the sportsmen and James M. White of the State Game and Fisheries Department, will show several reels of Alabama wildlife pictures.

The purpose of the organization, as outlined in advance by its backers, will be to cooperate with the Game and Fisheries Department in the enforcement of game and fish laws, place protective barriers around the game and fish resources of Montgomery county with particular attention to be paid to the dynamiter and trapper.

"Montgomery county offers and excellent opportunity for fish and game portection," Sheriff Paterson declared. "There are many power lakes near the city which are well stocked with bass and other game fish which should have the protection of organized sportsmen.

"Seining, trapping and dynamiting should and must be abolished and such practices can only be combatted successfully if every hunter and fisherman lends his support in law enforcement.

"Jefferson county recently formed an association of sportsmen with a charter enrollment of 1,000 members. Montgomery county has just as many sporting euthusiasts and this county should effect an organization equally as strong."

Hon. Pete B. Jarman, of Montgomery, former Secretary of State, was a visitor in Clanton a short while Monday afternoon.

POPULAR MISTAKES ABOUT HARD TIMES

Although 1935 is the sixth year of the depression, it is the twenty-second year of the causes of the depression, says a study of business cycles prepared by Colonel L. P. Ayres, Vice President Cleveland Trust Company, for a United States Senate committee appointed to investigate the sources of "this most serious of modern hard times." The study traces the roots of the depression to the World War, which began in 1914, and it points out eleven popularly accepted beliefs as to its causes which are held to be erroneous.

"Great wars appear to produce regular sequences of economic results which we may identify as commodity price inflation, farm-prosperity and farm-land speculation, price deflation and short primary post-war depression, a period of city prosperity and wide-spread speculation and secondary price deflation and a long secondary post-war depression," the study says.

"There are perhaps eleven widely accepted beliefs which are held to account for this depression and to explain its origin, which the writer believes to be erroneous. They may be designated as follows: a. malefactors of great wealth; b. overproduction; c. price declines; d. reduced agricultural purchasing power; e. shortage or maldistribution of gold; f. shortage of consumer purchasing power; g. overinvestment in productive equipment; h. technological unemployment; i. concentration of wealth; j. speculation; k. bad banking."

BANKERS HELP SOUND PLANS

A state-wide committee of representatives of agriculture, banking and allied agencies in Mississippi is sponsoring a corn production and improvement program for 1935 designed to stimulate production of improved and adapted varieties of corn sufficient to meet the needs on every farm in the state with respect to bread for the family and feed for livestock. The production of pork, other livestock and poultry products for the family are also on the program. The chairman of the Mississippi Bankers Agricultural Committee is a member of this committee to work up interest in the project. A prize corn contest is being sponsored.

The North Dakota Bankers Association's agricultural activities are: aid in problems relating to farm finance; activities involving agricultural education; campaigns to bring about community interest; administering relief agencies; help for 4-H Clubs and other junior farm groups. Miscellaneous activities include cooperative marketing agencies, reducing freight rates on agricultural commodities, experimental planting of new types of cash crops and introducing a type of farm sale and lease forms which give tenant and land owner maximum opportunity for gain

Miss Jones Entertains For Visitors

One of the loveliest of the summer parties was the breakfast at which Miss Mary Coutney Jones entertained twenty of her friends on last Wednerday morning. Miss "Dot" Busch of Cincinnatti, the charming house guest of Miss Jones, was the inspiration for this occasion. The guests were received on the porch, made inviting and cool with garden flowers and hanging baskets of ferns. At nine-thirty, they were invited into the dining room where a color scheme of pink, white and yellow was arranged. The breakfast table, centered with a silver basket of pink and yellow dahlias, flanked on either side with pink candles in silver candle sticks, was most attractive. Misses Helen Moore and Celia Gerald served here. The fruit course and coffee now was presided over by Miss Dixie Johnson.

The invited guests were: Misses Helen Moore, Helen Roberts, Helen and Mary Newel, Sarah Hollis, Sarah Lawrence, Margaret Davis, Dixie Johnson, Celia Gerald, Gertiwyl Vinson, Pauline and Elizabeth Hogan, Dorothy Waite, Nell Ross Mullins, Eloise Rasberry, Ruth Gowan, Elizabeth Williams, Kate Corcoran, Jane Pitts, Grace Plyler, "Dot" Busch and the hostess.

Miss Sara Elizabeth Venable Entertains Sub Deb Club

The Sub Debt Club met last Friday afternoon at the home of Miss Sara Elizabeth Venable. They left from her home and motored to Prattville where a swimming party was enjoyed. They returned to Venable's Luncheonette where a delightful supper was served.

Enjoying this affair were Theda Wyatt, Peggy Page, Lump Pitts, Olive Rainer Elmore, Nell Rockett, and Billy Johnson.

Miss Nell Ross Mullins Entertanis With Dance

Last Thursday evening Miss Nell Ross Mullins, popular member of Clanton's young society set, entertained a large number of her friends with a dance at the home of her parents on First Avenue. The spacious living room of the beautiful home was turned into a delightful floor for the fifty guests. From an attractive table on the porch, refreshing punch was served to the guests. Dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. Among the young ladies present were:

Misses Sara Lawrence, Ruth Shepherd, Celia Gerald, Eloise Rasberry, Jane Pitts, Mary Newell, Gertiwyl Vinson, Helen Newell, Helen Roberts, Pauline Hogan, Elizabeth Hogan, Sallye Mahan, Ruth Gowan and others.

The young men present were Joe Hall Johnson, Dan Smith, Grady Reynolds, Jr., Lawrence Gerald, Jr., Carl Jones, Morgan Reynolds, Sidney Reynolds, Ed Mullins, L. D. Easterling, Bill Hodges, Howard McHaffey, James Parrish, Emmett Parrish, Alex Hayes, Joe Earl Gowan, John Thomas Marlar, Frank Hogan, Reese Mullins, and others.

Mrs. Hall of Hope, Arkansas, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Johnson.

Mr. Ed Lowe of Birmingham attended the funeral of Mrs. Ed Bruce Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Jones on Montgomery arrived on the Fourth to visit his mother, Mrs. Willie Jones. They motored to Birmingham Friday, accompanied by Mr. Ralph Jones.

Miss Celia Gerald Compliments Miss Dot Busch

The home of Miss Celia Gerald was the scene of a beautiful party on last Tuesday afternoon at 3:30, when she entertained a number of friends at six tables of bridge, complimenting Miss Dot Busch, of Cincinnatti, the guest of Miss Mary Courtney Jones. The apartments thrown into one were most attractively decorated with silver baskets and vases of dahlias and gladiolas.

The charming hostess received her guests in a lovely yellow frock and passed dainty score cards as they entered.

The honoree was presented with a beautiful sport handkerchief.

A beautiful salad course was served to the following guests: Misses Sara Hollis, Sara Lawrence, Dixie Johnson, Ruth Gowan, Nell Ross Mullins, Elizabeth Williams, Ruth Shepherd, Hilda Hart, Helen Roberts, Helen and Mary Newell, Gertiwyl Vinson, Dorothy Waite, Pauline Hogan, Grace Plyler, Kate Corcoran, Alice Polk, Elizabeth McSwain, Mary Edith Jones, Jane Pitts, Eloise Rasberry, Mary Courtney Jones and the honoree, "Dot" Busch.

Rev. Father Cazalos, of Montgomery, was the guest of Mrs. Hugh Jones on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Courtney and their son, Jack, from Washington, D. C., were the guests of their sister, Mrs. Hugh Jones, the past week.

Misses Verla Ray and Annie Earle Dozier of Guinn, Alabama, Spent the Fourth and the past week end with relatives and friends in Clanton.

"Buddy" Venable is visiting relatives in Prattville this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer of Birmingham were guests, during the week end, of her brother, Rev. Middlebrooks.

Miss Laura Lamar of Montgomery visited Miss Willie P. Jones Saturday.

Mrs. A. N. Minor left Friday for a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Lawrence Street and Lieut. Street in Washington, D. C.

Rev. A. E. Middlebrooks is at Huntington College, Montgomery this week where he is teaching a Bible class.

Arthur Johnson, Jr. of the University visited his mother Sunday.

THE BANK DEPOSITOR HAS DOUBLE CHOICE

May Arrange to Have His Money Handled in Way Most Convenient to Him

A person's connection with a bank as a customer begins with the deposit of money. Anyone who has some money is obliged to decide what to do with it. He can keep it in his pocket, put it in a box or hide it away somewhere. Such places are risky and inconvenient.

The better plan is to let a bank keep it safely. The bank has a heavy fireproof vault and carries insurance against loss by burglary and is obligated to safeguard it in every way. If you should die, the bank itself will hunt up your family or heirs and return the money. They would not be obliged to hunt, perhaps unsuccessfully, for the secret hiding place.

When you make your first deposit the banker will want to know what plan of deposit you desire to use. Will you want him to return your money immediately at any time you ask for it? If so you intend to make a "demand deposit," as the banker says, that is, to open a "checking account."

The banker will not pay interest on such a deposit, but he will agree to pay or honor orders that you write against your deposit to yourself or others up to the amount of your credited cash balance. Such an order is simply your "check." Ninety per cent of the nation's business is done this way.

Another Kind of Deposit

If instead of a checking account you tell the banker you will never be in a hurry for your money but will give him a month or so notice, you can make a different agreement. You will then make a "time deposit," or open what is usually called a "savings account."

Your banker agrees to pay you interest on your money, but does not agree to honor any orders or checks against your "balance" with him. You agree to come into the bank yourself with your bank book when you make a withdrawal of any part of your deposit, and to abide by the rule of a specified period of notice before you demand your money.

As a matter of fact the banker usually does not hold you to this last unless the amount you ask for happens to be large or too many depositors come for their money at the same time. He will generally return any part of your deposit at once if he can do so with money on hand without disturbing his investments or other necessary arrangements to keep your money safely employed.

In another article we will tell about those who borrow the money you deposit.

Miss Margaret Davis returned Sunday from a visit in West Point, Ga.

Miss Mary Goodwin Jones is visiting in Birmingham with her sister, Mrs. Leroy Martin.

Miss Lucille Sherwood, who is attending the summer session at Alabama College, spent several days here last week as the guest of Mrs. Frank Callen.

Mr. and Mrs. Thigpin and son, who have made their home in Clanton for a number of years will move to Birmingham the latter part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Jones left Saturday afternoon for Miami, for a short visit to Mrs. Jones' mother.

Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Elmore and family returned from St. Andrews Bay, Florida last Wednesday after a two-weeks vacation there.

The following Clanton girls will leave July 21st for a two-weeks camp at Montevallo: Misses Ann Ross, Theda Wyatt, Olive Rainer Elmore, Lump Pitts, Billy Johnson and Lilian Smith.

Mr. Hoyt Reynolds passed through Clanton enroute to Birmingham Monday. He will visit his sister, Mrs. Sam Box.

Mr. Virgil Newton of Mitchell Dam has returned from a visit to friends in Birmingham.

Mr. Jack Curlee of Birmingham is visiting his grandmother here. He is also related to the Rocketts here.

Mrs. J. W. Hayes spent Tuesday in Montgomery on business.

Mrs. J. R. Mullins, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Mullins, Jean and Sarah Elizabeth Mullins are still enjoying a vacation at Daytona Beach, Fla.

Mr. Floyd Smith spent the week-end with homefolks in Prattville, Ala.

Mr. and Mrs. Neighbors were called to Rockford on account of the illness of Mrs. Neighbors' mother.

The friends of Miss Anna Sue Morris will be delighted to know that she is recuperating after a serious illness.

Mr. L. E. Duncan of Birmingham spent the week end here.

Mr. and Mrs. Mack Godwyn, who have an apartment at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Reese Mullins spent last Thursday in Prattville with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hance Alred and children spent the week end at their lovely camp near Higgins ferry.

Charles Venable returned Friday from a visit to his grandmother in Prattville. Buddy Venable is still visiting in Prattville.

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Burnett spent the Fourth of July with Mr. and Mrs. George McCain.

NEW HARMONY CHURCH—LOMAX

There will be an all day working for the purpose of cleaning off the cemetery and church yard on Wednesday, July 17. Come early and bring tools necessary to do the work. Please don't came one at a time and work around your own family graves and then not come back and help do the work on the entire yard, as has been done in the past. We need all the help we can get. It is a job.

Now listen, folks, meet out early, as we will have preaching at eleven o'clock. Elder Cooke, a traveling minister, will preach on that date. After preaching we will then continue our work. Those who wish to do so, bring your lunch.

BOB JONES

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

The writer recently visited a home where he lived for a few months, twenty seven years ago. In the front yard was a magnificent oak. Twenty-seven years ago it was a small tree. How time flies! I wonder if I, as a human being, have grown in twenty-seven years as that tree has grown as a tree. Some day that tree will die. Man never dies. As long as God lives he must live. If we get to heaven by the grace of God we will never grow old. On the bank of the river in that city is a tree and the leaves on the tree are for the healing of the nations. Jesus came to give us life and to give it to us more abundantly. He doesn't only give us eternal life, but He gives us life that is full and life that satisfies.

Life consists not in the abundance of things which we possess. That is what Jesus taught. The modern mind has a material conception of life. Modern man thinks that automobiles radios, fine houses, luxurious bathrooms, gorgeous chandeliers, oriental rugs, and things like these make for happiness. Man is wrong. The more we have the less happy we are. Jesus did not discount things. He knew that man needed clothes and food and a shelter. Jesus discounted "the abundance of things." He taught that too many things instead of making us happy make us unhappy. When things become a burden they cease to be a pleasure. We waste our sympathy upon people who live in little houses and have few clothes and no luxuries. We had better weep over those who have estates to keep up and many servants to direct and whose tired shoulders are crushed under the load of "abundance of things". The most miserable people I know are the folks who have most. Jesus was rich but He became poor that we, through His poverty, might have true riches. True riches cannot mean gold, silver, bonds, stocks, lands, palaces. True riches mean that we respond to that which is good and noble and holly. In other words, we live constantly under the lordship of Jesus and take our orders from our Heavenly Father. Those who know how to thus live are the ones who have true riches.

DR. PARRISH WILL VACCINATE DOGS AT JEMISON ON FRIDAY

Dr. W. L. Parrish announces that he will be in Jemison on Friday of this week, for the purpose of vaccinating dogs against rabies. His charge will be 50 cents per dog. All persons in the Jemison neighborhood are invited to bring their dogs for treatment. Dr. Parrish will be at some convenient place in Jemison ready to start to work about eight o'clock, and will remain there as long as necessary. Bring your dogs as early as possible.

OVER 1,000 BOYS WILL ATTEND FFA MEETING

Auburn, Ala.—Over 1,000 Alabama farm boys have expressed their intentions of attending the annual meeting of the Alabama Association Future Farmers of America here July 11, 12, and 13. It is expected to be the largest gathering of farm boys ever assembled in the state.

Principal speakers on the program will be Governor Bibb Graves, J. A. Keller, Superintendent of Education, Dr. L. N. Duncan, president Alabama Polytechnic Institute, R. E. Cammack, supervisor of vocational education, and G. T. Sargent, assistant supervisor of vocational education.

Social features of the meeting include a watermelon cutting, a baseball game, and special music by string bands and brass bands.

U. S. SENATE PASSES BANKHEAD TENANT BILL

Auburn, Ala.—The Bankhead bill providing government money for financing tenant farmers and share-croppers in the purchase of land and homes has passed the Senate and is now before the House Agricultural Committee for consideration.

The bill would set up a corporation with an initial capitalization of $50,000,000 out of work relief funds, and an eventful borrowing power of $1,000,000,000 to make loans to farmers, farm tenants, sharecroppers or farm laborers, to purchase small farms. They would have up to 60 years to repay the loans at low interest rates.

ISABELLA HOME DEM. CLUB

Our Home Demonstration Club met at the agriculture building Friday afternoon, June 25th, with six members present and three visitors. One new member was enrolled.

The demonstration was on different kinds of glass jars used in canning. And also drying fruits and vegetables in the home.

Our next meeting will be July 19, at the home of Mrs. Earle Thomas. The demonstration will be on canning. Let me urge all the members to be present and bring enough fruit or vegetables to fill a quart jar. Visitors are always welcome.

SCHEDULE OF MEETINGS

The following is a schedule of revival meetings to be held at churches of Rev. M. Lockhart:

Beginning at Refuge 3rd Sunday in July and run week following, with Rev. J. E. Bergstressor of Sylacauga doing the preaching.

Beginning the fourth Sunday in July at Highland with Rev. Paul Oden of Lawley doing the preaching.

Beginning the first Sunday in August at Liberty in Autauga County, the pastor doing the preaching.

Beginning the second Sunday in August at Pates Chapel with C. W. McCoy of Bayou Labatre, Alabama, doing the preaching.

The pastor is looking forward to the greatest series of revivals in the history of these churches.

ALABAMA INCREASED SWINE PRODUCTION

Auburn, Ala.—Alabama farmers increased their hog production during the first six months in 1935, announces F. W. Gist, state and federal agricultural statistician, who reports that this state "is one of six states in the United States which increased its hog production from January 1 to June 30 this year."

Sows farrowed were 61,000, or 103 per cent of the year before. The number of pigs saved was 327,000.

"While Alabama and five other states were increasing their pig production during the past spring, the United States decreased the number of sows farrowed by 24.4 per cent and the number of pigs saved by 19.6 per cent," Gist says.

POISIONING WEEVILS PAYS $5 to $15 ON EACH ACRE

Auburn, Ala.—Cotton farmers may expect to profit by $5 to $15 per acre if they poison boll weevils when 10 per cent of the squares are punctured, says Prof. J. M. Robinson, entomologist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

"In experiments conducted on the Alabama Experiment Station the gains from dusting varied from no gain to 931 pounds of seed cotton per acre," he reports. "The large gains were made on fertile soils during the years that boll weevils were very numerous and the small gains on poor soils or during seasons that boll weevils were not numerous. The six years average gains on three types of soil receiving from 300 to 500 pounds of fertilizer per acre were 240 pounds of seed cotton per acre on sandy loam, 252 pounds on black belt clay, and 282 pounds of red clay. Since the average yearly cost of dusting an acre of cotton was $5, or $3.80 exclusive of labor, profits of $5 to $15 per acre may be expected."

BIRMINGHAM DISTRICT SINGING CONVENTION MET ON JUNE 30th

The Birmingham District Singing Convention convened in regular 5th Sunday session at the Protestant Methodist Church in West End, Sunday, June 30th, with Chairman J. E. Marsh, presiding.

A short and much enjoyed talk was made by the pastor, Dr. J. S. Eddins. The coonvention was featured by fine quartet singing in addition to good directing. The crowd was so large that it became necessary to divide the convention into two sections and use a nearby building. The following quartets were heard:

The Vaughan quartet of Lawrenceburg, Tenn.; Capitol Heights Quartet of Montgomery; the Vaughan Alabama Four, Cobb Sisters and Mash quartet. A night session at the city auditorium was heard by several thousand people.

The following directors were used: Mr. Teal, J. E. Marsh, John M. Dye, W. A. O'Barr, Champ Blackwood, Ed Downey, Rex Adams, J. S. Rain, W. R. Crumley, Buck Addington, Mr. Turner, Mr. Hammond, H. H. McDonald, Mr. Beasley, Mr. Smith, D. W. Tittle, J. C. Walker, Henry Eller, W. N. Waldrop, G. S. Sorrell, Mrs. Morris, J. W. Game and Fish News

Montgomery, Ala., July 9.—Meeting a demand of longstanding, Montgomery county sportsmen are planning to organize a permanent county-wide conservation association this month.

The meeting was first called for June 20 by Sheriff Haygood Patterson at the urging of a number of nimrods and anglers, but due to previously arranged engagements of some of the speakers it was deferred until early July.

Sheriff Paterson, one of the county's outstanding sportsmen, said a new date would be urged upon and announced very shortly. He has invited Game Commissioner I. T. Quinn to address the sportsmen and James M. White of the State Game and Fisheries Department, will show several reels of Alabama wildlife pictures.

The purpose of the organization, as outlined in advance by its backers, will be to cooperate with the Game and Fisheries Department in the enforcement of game and fish laws, place protective barriers around the game and fish resources of Montgomery county with particular attention to be paid to the dynamiter and trapper.

"Montgomery county offers and excellent opportunity for fish and game portection," Sheriff Paterson declared. "There are many power lakes near the city which are well stocked with bass and other game fish which should have the protection of organized sportsmen.

"Seining, trapping and dynamiting should and must be abolished and such practices can only be combatted successfully if every hunter and fisherman lends his support in law enforcement.

"Jefferson county recently formed an association of sportsmen with a charter enrollment of 1,000 members. Montgomery county has just as many sporting euthusiasts and this county should effect an organization equally as strong."

Hon. Pete B. Jarman, of Montgomery, former Secretary of State, was a visitor in Clanton a short while Monday afternoon.

STATE TEACHERS EXAMINATION

The annual state examination for teachers will be held at the Chilton County High School, Clanton, on July 15, 16 and 17, 1935. No applicant shall be permitted to write the examination in any county unless engaged in school work in such county, except the county of his residence, without the written approval of the State Superintendent of Education. Any request for such approval should be endorsed by the Superintendent of Education of the county in which the person making the request is living, teaching, or attending school.

Satisfactory evidence is required of every person before being admitted to the examination, of good moral characte, of legal age of seventeen years, and of accredited senior high school graduation, or its equivalent; provided that this academic requirements shall not operate to exclude any person who has held a regular Alabama Teachers' Certificate. A uniform fee of $2.00 is required of every person admitted to the examination.

No second grade examination is offered but applicants for first grade failing to meet minimum requirements for a first grade certificate, making as high as 40 per cent on every subject and a general average of at least 65 per cent, may receive a scond grade certificate.

No certificate of lower rank than second grade will be issued hereafter on examination. No second grade certificate may be substituted hereafter as part of the requirement for obtaining a first grade certificate.

Each applicant for a life certificate shall submit to the examiner satisfactory evidence of having had at least four years of successful teaching experience in the schools of Alabama while holding a first grade certificate, or one of equal or of higher rank. The old certificate should be enclosed with the examination papers.

All applicants should be present at 9:00 o'clock Monday morning, July 15.

POPULAR MISTAKES ABOUT HARD TIMES

Although 1935 is the sixth year of the depression, it is the twenty-second year of the causes of the depression, says a study of business cycles prepared by Colonel L. P. Ayres, Vice President Cleveland Trust Company, for a United States Senate committee appointed to investigate the sources of "this most serious of modern hard times." The study traces the roots of the depression to the World War, which began in 1914, and it points out eleven popularly accepted beliefs as to its causes which are held to be erroneous.

"Great wars appear to produce regular sequences of economic results which we may identify as commodity price inflation, farm-prosperity and farm-land speculation, price deflation and short primary post-war depression, a period of city prosperity and wide-spread speculation and secondary price deflation and a long secondary post-war depression," the study says.

"There are perhaps eleven widely accepted beliefs which are held to account for this depression and to explain its origin, which the writer believes to be erroneous. They may be designated as follows: a. malefactors of great wealth; b. overproduction; c. price declines; d. reduced agricultural purchasing power; e. shortage or maldistribution of gold; f. shortage of consumer purchasing power; g. overinvestment in productive equipment; h. technological unemployment; i. concentration of wealth; j. speculation; k. bad banking."

BANKERS HELP SOUND PLANS

A state-wide committee of representatives of agriculture, banking and allied agencies in Mississippi is sponsoring a corn production and improvement program for 1935 designed to stimulate production of improved and adapted varieties of corn sufficient to meet the needs on every farm in the state with respect to bread for the family and feed for livestock. The production of pork, other livestock and poultry products for the family are also on the program. The chairman of the Mississippi Bankers Agricultural Committee is a member of this committee to work up interest in the project. A prize corn contest is being sponsored.

The North Dakota Bankers Association's agricultural activities are: aid in problems relating to farm finance; activities involving agricultural education; campaigns to bring about community interest; administering relief agencies; help for 4-H Clubs and other junior farm groups. Miscellaneous activities include cooperative marketing agencies, reducing freight rates on agricultural commodities, experimental planting of new types of cash crops and introducing a type of farm sale and lease forms which give tenant and land owner maximum opportunity for gain

SOCIETY

Miss Jones Entertains For Visitors

One of the loveliest of the summer parties was the breakfast at which Miss Mary Courtney Jones entertained twenty of her friends on last Wednerday morning. Miss "Dot" Busch of Cincinnatti, the charming house guest of Miss Jones, was the inspiration for this occasion. The guests were received on the porch, made inviting and cool with garden flowers and hanging baskets of ferns. At nine-thirty, they were invited into the dining room where a color scheme of pink, white and yellow was arranged. The breakfast table, centered with a silver basket of pink and yellow dahlias, flanked on either side with pink candles in silver candle sticks, was most attractive. Misses Helen Moore and Celia Gerald served here. The fruit course and coffee now was presided over by Miss Dixie Johnson.

The invited guests were: Misses Helen Moore, Helen Roberts, Helen and Mary Newel, Sarah Hollis, Sarah Lawrence, Margaret Davis, Dixie Johnson, Celia Gerald, Gertiwyl Vinson, Pauline and Elizabeth Hogan, Dorothy Waite, Nell Ross Mullins, Eloise Rasberry, Ruth Gowan, Elizabeth Williams, Kate Corcoran, Jane Pitts, Grace Plyler, "Dot" Busch and the hostess.

Miss Sara Elizabeth Venable Entertains Sub Deb Club

The Sub Debt Club met last Friday afternoon at the home of Miss Sara Elizabeth Venable. They left from her home and motored to Prattville where a swimming party was enjoyed. They returned to Venable's Luncheonette where a delightful supper was served.

Enjoying this affair were Theda Wyatt, Peggy Page, Lump Pitts, Olive Rainer Elmore, Nell Rockett, and Billy Johnson.

Miss Nell Ross Mullins Entertains With Dance

Last Thursday evening Miss Nell Ross Mullins, popular member of Clanton's young society set, entertained a large number of her friends with a dance at the home of her parents on First Avenue. The spacious living room of the beautiful home was turned into a delightful floor for the fifty guests. From an attractive table on the porch, refreshing punch was served to the guests. Dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. Among the young ladies present were:

Misses Sara Lawrence, Ruth Shepherd, Celia Gerald, Eloise Rasberry, Jane Pitts, Mary Newell, Gertiwyl Vinson, Helen Newell, Helen Roberts, Pauline Hogan, Elizabeth Hogan, Sallye Mahan, Ruth Gowan and others.

The young men present were Joe Hall Johnson, Dan Smith, Grady Reynolds, Jr., Lawrence Gerald, Jr., Carl Jones, Morgan Reynolds, Sidney Reynolds, Ed Mullins, L. D. Easterling, Bill Hodges, Howard McHaffey, James Parrish, Emmett Parrish, Alex Hayes, Joe Earl Gowan, John Thomas Marlar, Frank Hogan, Reese Mullins, and others.

Mrs. Hall of Hope, Arkansas, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Johnson.

Mr. Ed Lowe of Birmingham attended the funeral of Mrs. Ed Bruce Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Jones on Montgomery arrived on the Fourth to visit his mother, Mrs. Willie Jones. They motored to Birmingham Friday, accompanied by Mr. Ralph Jones.

Miss Celia Gerald Compliments Miss Dot Busch

The home of Miss Celia Gerald was the scene of a beautiful party on last Tuesday afternoon at 3:30, when she entertained a number of friends at six tables of bridge, complimenting Miss Dot Busch, of Cincinnatti, the guest of Miss Mary Courtney Jones. The apartments thrown into one were most attractively decorated with silver baskets and vases of dahlias and gladiolas.

The charming hostess received her guests in a lovely yellow frock and passed dainty score cards as they entered.

The honoree was presented with a beautiful sport handkerchief.

A beautiful salad course was served to the following guests: Misses Sara Hollis, Sara Lawrence, Dixie Johnson, Ruth Gowan, Nell Ross Mullins, Elizabeth Williams, Ruth Shepherd, Hilda Hart, Helen Roberts, Helen and Mary Newell, Gertiwyl Vinson, Dorothy Waite, Pauline Hogan, Grace Plyler, Kate Corcoran, Alice Polk, Elizabeth McSwain, Mary Edith Jones, Jane Pitts, Eloise Rasberry, Mary Courtney Jones and the honoree, "Dot" Busch.

Rev. Father Cazalos, of Montgomery, was the guest of Mrs. Hugh Jones on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Courtney and their son, Jack, from Washington, D. C., were the guests of their sister, Mrs. Hugh Jones, the past week.

Misses Verla Ray and Annie Earle Dozier of Guinn, Alabama, Spent the Fourth and the past week end with relatives and friends in Clanton.

"Buddy" Venable is visiting relatives in Prattville this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer of Birmingham were guests, during the week end, of her brother, Rev. Middlebrooks.

Miss Laura Lamar of Montgomery visited Miss Willie P. Jones Saturday.

Mrs. A. N. Minor left Friday for a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Lawrence Street and Lieut. Street in Washington, D. C.

Rev. A. E. Middlebrooks is at Huntington College, Montgomery this week where he is teaching a Bible class.

Arthur Johnson, Jr. of the University visited his mother Sunday.

THE BANK DEPOSITOR HAS DOUBLE CHOICE

May Arrange to Have His Money Handled in Way Most Convenient to Him

A person's connection with a bank as a customer begins with the deposit of money. Anyone who has some money is obliged to decide what to do with it. He can keep it in his pocket, put it in a box or hide it away somewhere. Such places are risky and inconvenient.

The better plan is to let a bank keep it safely. The bank has a heavy fireproof vault and carries insurance against loss by burglary and is obligated to safeguard it in every way. If you should die, the bank itself will hunt up your family or heirs and return the money. They would not be obliged to hunt, perhaps unsuccessfully, for the secret hiding place.

When you make your first deposit the banker will want to know what plan of deposit you desire to use. Will you want him to return your money immediately at any time you ask for it? If so you intend to make a "demand deposit," as the banker says, that is, to open a "checking account."

The banker will not pay interest on such a deposit, but he will agree to pay or honor orders that you write against your deposit to yourself or others up to the amount of your credited cash balance. Such an order is simply your "check." Ninety per cent of the nation's business is done this way.

Another Kind of Deposit

If instead of a checking account you tell the banker you will never be in a hurry for your money but will give him a month or so notice, you can make a different agreement. You will then make a "time deposit," or open what is usually called a "savings account."

Your banker agrees to pay you interest on your money, but does not agree to honor any orders or checks against your "balance" with him. You agree to come into the bank yourself with your bank book when you make a withdrawal of any part of your deposit, and to abide by the rule of a specified period of notice before you demand your money.

As a matter of fact the banker usually does not hold you to this last unless the amount you ask for happens to be large or too many depositors come for their money at the same time. He will generally return any part of your deposit at once if he can do so with money on hand without disturbing his investments or other necessary arrangements to keep your money safely employed.

In another article we will tell about those who borrow the money you deposit.

Miss Margaret Davis returned Sunday from a visit in West Point, Ga.

Miss Mary Goodwin Jones is visiting in Birmingham with her sister, Mrs. Leroy Martin.

Miss Lucille Sherwood, who is attending the summer session at Alabama College, spent several days here last week as the guest of Mrs. Frank Callen.

NEW HARMONY CHURCH—LOMAX

There will be an all day working for the purpose of cleaning off the cemetery and church yard on Wednesday, July 17. Come early and bring tools necessary to do the work. Please don't came one at a time and work around your own family graves and then not come back and help do the work on the entire yard, as has been done in the past. We need all the help we can get. It is a job.

Now listen, folks, meet out early, as we will have preaching at eleven o'clock. Elder Cooke, a traveling minister, will preach on that date. After preaching we will then continue our work. Those who wish to do so, bring your lunch.

Local Chevrolet Dealers Observing Anniversary

Hayes Has Made Splendid Record Of Service To Auto Owners In This Section

Large Numebr of New Cars Sold During Two Year Period

Chalking up two years of outstanding service to Chilton County and surroundings, the Hayes Chevrolet Co., local Chevrolet dealers are celebrating their second anniversary this week.

Two years ago, on July 8th, the Hayes Chevrolet Co. optned its doors to one of the largest motor companies in this section, occupying one-half of a large city block, with a brilliant display of new chevrolet cars and trucks and a staff of service men and salesmen unequalled in the state.

With J. W. (Dick) Hayes and his brother, M. C. (Jack). Hayes as heads of the company, it has grown by leaps and bounds during the past two years until now it is recognized over the entire state as a live, wide-awake firm.

Sells Many Cars

During these two years, they have sold and serviced 249 new Chevrolet cars and trucks which is acclaimed as a most unusual record. Attached to this record is also the fact that only one of these cars had to be repossessed during this time.

The number of used cars sold in these two years is far greater than the number of new cars. This firm has handled and sold 490 used cars and all to satisfied owners. Mr. Hayes stated that this large number of sales is attributed mostly to the fact that they give their used cars a complete check-up and "going-over" before they place it for sale.

Pleased With Prospects

Mr. Hayes stated that their volume of business has been more than pleasing and that "we have made countless friends through the sale of new Chevrolets and Chevrolet's ability to stand up kith service and satisfaction."

The staff of saesmen of the Hayes Chevrolet Co., is one of the largest in this section. They are at all times being complimented on courtesy and congenial manner with automobile buyers and owners who mthey come in contact with.

The staff of salesmen of the Hayes is one of the most complete and modern with a corps of workers who have been trained to efficiency and service.

The show room of the Hayes Chevrolet Co., is not only attracting attention through the new cars, but is a place of interest to base ball fans. On the walls of the room are displayed autographed photographs of members of ball clubs such as Chicago White Sox, all wishing the Hayes Chevrolet Co. the best of good things, attesting to the wide popularit the owners of the firm enjoy.

The Hayes Chevrolet Co. is extending a cordial invitation to the people of this section to come and take a ride in one of the new Chevrolets. They have competent drivers and salesmen who will gladly extend to you this courtesy and you do not obligate yourself in any way by accepting this invitation. "We just want to prove to you that the new Chevrolet is all what we say it is," Mr. Hayes stated.

CHESTNUT GROVE

We are glad to say that the health is very good here at present.

Misses Eva and Ester Lucas were the dinner guests of Mr. Tom Lucas Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lucas are the happy parents of a girl born to them June 18. The baby and mother are doing fine.

Mr. Fair Rotenbarry and family of Montevallo visited Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Hall Sunday.

Mr. William Holcomb and family spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Jim Denson.

Miss Betty Denson spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. Lee Denson.

We are glad to state that Brother Horace Nabors will start a few days meeting here next Sunday, the 14th, at 11 a.m. Every body is invited to come and hear some good preaching. We think it will be time well spent. So let's all come and help him to run the meeting and go away feeling that we have done our duty.

SINGING AT MT. PLEASANT BEAT 12, THIRD SUNDAY

There will be an all day singing at this place the third Sunday, July 21, in the thenew books. We invite all singers and lovers of music to come and be with us.

This church is in Beat 12, one and one-half miles north of Union Grove. Every body come, bring lunch and spend the day.—A Member.

IF YOU KNOW A COP WHO COMPLAINS

of Tired, Aching, Burning Feet

—tell him to shake Zeets, the antiseptic deodorant powder into his shoes and rub it on his feet.

In 5 minutes his misery is over—excessive, offensive perspiration disappears, the burning sensation vanishes, cracked itching toes heal—he will shout for joy and bless you for telling him about Zeets.

But be sure he asks for and gets Zeets—there's nothing else that works so sure, so fast.

Doctors, chiropodists, athletic trainers recommend Zeets for aching feet, water blisters, also for chafing and sunburn.

Your druggist or department store guarantees Zeets to relieve you in 5 minutes or your money back.

CHEVROLET PARTS SALES INCREASING

The Chevrolet Motor Company set a new all-time record during May for total volume of parts and accessories sales. The previous record dated peak of sales can be attributed largely August reaced a peak that stood as a record for nearly six years.

Announcement of the new record was made at White Sulphur Springs, by M. D. Douglas, manager of the Chevrolet Parts and accessories division, before a gathering of the leading field men of the division, guests of the Company during a three days' stay awarded them in recognition of their success in rolling up regional and zone records contributing to the high May total.

According to Mr. Douglas, the May peak o sales can be attributed largely to a general resumption of touring for pleasure, a natural sequence to the increase in spending power throughout the country.

"The curve of new car sales shows heavy gains over last year," he declared, "and new cars themselves create a demand for accessories—everything from insect screens to radios. However, our May record was far above what could be attributed to the sale of accessories for new cars, and it can be definitely concluded that much of the buying was for old cars.

"That means that motorists are taking to the road in larger numbers than during the recent touring seasons, and are equipping their cars with accessories that will contribute to their convenience, comfort and safety. They are making their old cars look new with seat covers, mederalizng them with radios, equipping them with spotlights, visors, dual windsield wipers, and other articles that add to the convenience and pleasure of both the driver and the passengers."

INTEREST SHIFTED FROM PUBLIC ENEMIES TO PUBLIC HEROES

Abstract of address by Carl E. Milliken, Secretary, Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., at annual meeting of International Association of Chiefs of Police.

Atlantic City, July 9.—A new public attitude that should do much to aid the anti-crime crusade which the nation is conducting and uphold the interests of law inforcement is reflected in the new emphasis which the press and the screen are placing upon current crime problems, according to Carl E. Milliken, former governor of Maine and Secretary of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc.

Public interest is shifting from the gun-toting desperado to the police and trained investigators who are cracking down one by one the aggreations of criminals operating in various parts of the country, he declared in an address here today at the annual meeting of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

"The press and screen of the nation have made good," he said, "in their promise to cooperate to the utmost in focusing public attention upon the problems of crime detection and law enforcement. The apprehension of the criminal has come to have news value equal to the commission of the crime. And the public which admires true courage, has come to sense the vast difference between this quality, and the acts of desperation and false courage of the machine-gun gangster."

"We have passed a period," he pointed out, "when the criminal seemingly held the stage, when crime after crime was committed with apparent impunity to the offender—an impunity often due to lack of public cooperation with those charged with the enforcement of law and order. Today the news of a crime whets public expectations of the apprehension of the criminal or criminals, and the public heroes are those who untangle the tortious skeins woven by the alleged master minds of crime and who destroy or deliver these criminals to justice, at the risk of their own lives.

"Bringing the achievements of the police and the federal crime detection agencies into sharp relief, the press and screen reflect and foster a renewed interest on the part of the public and especially the youth of the country in the heroes of the law. This should mean much to the maintenance of our national morale in dealing with the crime problem."

The country has become conscious, Mr. Milliken asserted, of the wide sweep taken by the anti-crime crusade and the continuing education necessary to meet the issue. "Due recognition at last has been given to the fact that the causes of crime are many and complex," he said, "criminals may be street-made, school-made, prison-made, or even home-made. Poverty, poor home environment, disruption of family life, inadequate spiritual training undirected street play, doting mothers, excesive use of alcoholic beverages, drugs, all these and many others are admitted to be important components of the crime problem. The mobilization of all existing community agencies towards effective crime prevention promises much in the interest of law enforcement in the United States."

CHARLIE BOLES HAS GOOD FARM THIS YEAR

Mr. Charlie Boles of Mt. Pleasant community reports that he is mighty well pleased with his crop this year. He and his son, Mack, 16 years old, have attended 23 acres this year, plowing a steer, and Mr. Boles says that his corn is especially fine. He is on the Alvin Bussie place, sometimes known as the Ed Price place.

As evidence of his good farm Mr. Boles brought The Union-Banner a fine watermelon, weighing about 35 pounds. It is said to be a Cuban variety. Mr. Boles planted his melon seed on April 23rd, and gathered his first ripe melon on July 3.

Legion Meets At Mobile In July

World War Veterans To Have Grand Time in Alabama's Port City

Mobile, June 12.—Chairman Inge, of the General Committee in charge of the Alabama Department Convention, American Legion, which begins at Mobile, July 14, has given notice to Legionnaires that they should make reservation for quarters as soon as possible, writing chairman James E. Duggan, of the Housing Committee, care Legon Headquarters, Battle House, Mobile.

As many of the former service men as desire to go in barracks can be accommodated at the low rate of fifty cents per day and those desiring rooms with bath and garage at private residences will pay one dollar.

The Mobile City Commission has turned over to convention managers two down town fire stations, equipped with showers and sanitations, to be used as barracks, if desired, and the National Guard Armory is also available for this purpose.

Other visitors, in addition to registered members of the Legion and Auxiliary, will be provided with quarters on making requests to the Housing Committee, and many of the most desirable homes in the city are being opened for the convention period to delegates and visitors.

Hotels, large and small, can accommodate approximately 1,100 guests, and advance reservations indicate that these will be filled early in the four-days sessions. Chairman Inge gives assuranc that all will be taken care of. The big entertainment feature is a boat trip to the Gulf on Tuesday, July 16.

LEAVE YOUR CONTRIBUTION TO THE FIREMEN WITH MR. DIEF OR JOHN BROWDER

Anyone who has not already been seen and wants to contribute something toward helping equip and decorate the firemen's quarters in the new city hall building should see either Mr. L. E. Diefenderfer, or Chief of Police John Browder. It is intended to fix up this part of the building nicely, and a lot of the citizens of Clanton have contributed toward it. Those in charge of raising the fund wish that no one be slighted.

CLANTON 11— M. F. D., 0

Clanton went to Montgomery on Tuesday, July 2, and shut out the Montgomery Firemen 11 to 0, in Cramton Bowl.

Mack Dennis held the firemen to 4 scattered hits, and only two firemen got as far as third base. Dennis struck out 11 batters, hit one and walked two.

Clanton got to Dennison for 16 safeties, including a double by Simpson and Tiffin's triple. Burnett and Dennis led for Clanton with three out of five, Hayes, Littleton and Simms following closely with a pair out of five.

M. F. D. 6—CLANTON 5

The Montgomery Firemen came to Clanton on July 4th and gained revenge for Tuesday's defeat, beating the locals 6 to 5.

The firemen got to Glass and Golson for 9 hits, but the Clanton infield contributed 5 costly errors, every one of which helped the scoring. Moseley, firemen's third baseman hit a home run with none on at first trip to the plate.

Hayes led for Clanton with two out of five, one of them a triple. Talley allowed the locals only 6 hits. Only in one inning, the 2nd, was Clanton able to get more than one hit in any inning.

Clanton has defeated the firemen two games to one for the season.

MAPLESVILLE 9—CLANTON 8

Clanton lost another 1-run decision Saturday afternoon to the Maplesville club, 9 to 8.

Maplesville out-hit Clanton 13 to 11, but errors again paved the way for the loss, Baker, at second, blowing up like a firecracker in the 9th to give the winning run.

M. Hayes led with the stick for Maplesville with 4 out of 5, one of them a triple. For Clanton, Simpson and Littleton led with 2 out of 4, one of Simpson's a triple, and Hayes was close behind with 2 for 5. The Clanton team erred 6 times, 3 of them being charged to Baker.

JEMISON 3—ALABAMA MILLS 1

Jemison defeated the Alabama Mills team on the mill field Sunday afternoon, 3 to 1, the three errors by the Millers helping in the scoring. Joyce Howard was on the mound for Jemison and held the Millers to 5 scattered hits. McGuire, Miller pitcher, was stingy with his blows, also, yielding only 6. Howard struck out 9 and McGuire whiffed 4.

LEGION 7—LAY DAM 4

The American Legion team went to Lay Dam on July 4th and defeated the Dammers again, 7 to 4. The Lay Dam outfit usually plays pretty fair defensive baseball, but on this occasion they blew up completely, making a total of 13 errors.

The Legion team gathered 10 safeties to the Dammers 7. "Tin Horn" Johnson led for the Legion with three out of four, and the Wilson brothers got a pair of blows each. Green was the only Lay Dam batter to get more than one hit.

STRONGER BUSINESS AND STRONGER BANKS

By F. M. LAW
President American Bankers Association

DURING the crisis when confidence was shattered, bankers were properly concerned in liquidity. Their main thought was to prepare to meet any demand for withdrawal of funds. They were more interested therefore in collecting loans than in making them. For this they cannot be justly blamed. It was a proper procedure.

F. M. LAW

Now that confidence has been so largely restored banks will naturally resume a more normal lending policy. This does not mean they will or should extend loose or unsound credit, but that in the utmost good faith bankers will perform their proper part in recovery by a sympathetic and constructive attitude in the making of sound loans. Nor should commercial banks make capital or long time loans, for the reason that their loans are made from funds derived from deposits payable for the most part on demand.

When the return of confidence is further on its way, business men will find need for credit in making their plans. Then good borrowers, who for the most part have been so conspicuously absent from the market, will return. They will be warmly welcomed by the banks.

Business Men's Fears

Business men have not yet laid all their fears. They worry about what Congress may or may not do. They concern themselves about a trend toward control of business by government. They fear taxes beyond their power to pay. These are real sources o. worry and when they are reassured along these lines they will be more inclined to take a fresh look at the future and to make plans to go forward.

As a matter of fact there are tangible evidences of recovery. The Federal Reserve Board officially has stated that prices, wages, business activity and production were back to the highest peak since early in 1931. Commercial failures in the United States are being cut almost in half as compared with the same period last year. It has been reported that the decline in export and import trade was definitely checked in the middle of 1933 and replaced during the last half of the year by a substantial recovery movement.

Among favorable factors is the improved condition of the banks. It is doubtless true that the banking structure of the country has never been in a sounder, stronger and more liquid condition than it is today. My authority for that statement is the Comptroller of the Currency. No longer is there any fear or thought of bank runs. Depositors once more know that their money is safe and the banker, thrice armed in the knowledge of his own strength, is looking forward.

"Sleepy" Miller, mechanic at Clanton Motors, had an accident last Saturday with a reamer machine which came very near costing him the loss of a finger on his right hand.

UNION GROVE BASEBALL CLUB

The Union Grove base ball team wishes to thank every one for their nice behavior at our Fourth of July celebration. We especially thank the ones from this community for the nice dinner served. We hope every one enjoyed the day.

In our first game we played Verbena. Owing to their late arrival we only had time for a 7 inning game, which Verbena won by a score of 8 to 5. Scott started for Union Grove and was relieved by Barnett, after a little over two and two-thirds innings, allowing 6 runs and 7 hits. Barnett went the rest, allowing only 4 hits and 2 runs. Losing pitcher, Scott. Moatts went the route for Verbena, allowing only 5 hits.

Score by innings:

Union Grove	000	020	3—5
Verbena	204	101	0—8

In the second game Union Grove defeated Shelby by a score of 11 to 6. Robinson and Howard pitching for Union Grove. Butts for Shelby. Winning pitcher, Robinson.

Score by innings:

Union Grove	613	000	100—11
Shelby	201	021	000— 5

In the night-cap we only played 5 innings, Verbena winning by a score of 6 to 2. Williams pitched for Verbena, Dorminey for Union Grove.

Score by innings:

Verbena	021	03—	6
Union Grove	000	00—	2

On Saturday, July 6th, Union Grove defeated Coopers at Coopers by a score of 6 to 3. Dorminey pitched for Union Grove, Thornton and Adams for Coopers. Losing pitcher, Thornton.

Score by innings:

Union Grove	500	100	000—6
Coopers	001	000	200—3

On Saturday, July 13th, Union Grove will play Dogwood at Union Grove. This should be a good game. Every one come.

Everyday Cooking Miracles

BY FRANCES WEEDMAN

Director Hotpoint Electric Cookery Institute

'Way back in 1776, when our brave ancestors declared their independence from England and, among other things, gave us a good excuse for shooting off firecrackers, who would have thought that the women of 1935 would be declaring an Independence Day, too? However, this Declaration of Independence is far different from that of our ancestors. Only by a mere realization of facts, without the use of ammunition, or of spying, is the modern homemaker declaring and winning her freedom — freedom from the drudgery of cooking, freedom from long hours of kitchen confinement.

Delicious summertime meals that cook themselves are possible with a modern automatic electric range.

Thanks to the magic of science, the modern woman can now play bridge all afternoon, and come home and graciously entertain guests at dinner that evening, serving a glorious oven-baked meal. She doesn't need a maid to put the dinner in the oven and take it out for her, because she has a new Electric Range — the genuine symbol of her declaration of independence. This life-like piece of equipment possesses the efficiency of a famous chef, the dependability of a judge, and the carefree disposition of a child all in one creation — traits of which some people can't even boast!

A Magic Servant

The new Electric Range always gladly consents and promises to take care of dinner while the mistress is out. But, after all, who wouldn't bargain to take care of dinner if it weren't any more trouble than this Magic Servant makes of it? The perfectly insulated, moisture-controlled, heat-measured oven not only turns out expertly baked morsels, but it carries its charges through the unbaked, infancy stage to a gloriously baked, finished stage, entirely unaided.

Oven Miracle Menu

Here is an Oven Miracle Menu which can be "walked out" on, come back to, and devoured immediately with the greatest of ease — crispy Oven Fried Chicken, new Peas and Potatoes en casserole, feathery Refrigerator Rolls, and Cream Puffs. And this is how Mrs. "Party-Goer" prepares this meal:

Season and flour the chicken and place in a low, uncovered roasting pan. Place shelled peas and the small, new potatoes in a casserole with a small amount of water, and cover. Mix refrigerator rolls, chill, make into rolls and place in baking pan. Mix cream puffs and drop on an oiled baking sheet. Then pop everything into the oven. Place the vegetable casserole on the lower oven rack at the back; place the chicken on the lower rack in front. Place the refrigerator rolls and the cream puffs on the top rack. Mrs. Homemaker then sets the obedient oven temperature control at 375° and tells the trusty Timer Clock to start the baking one hour before dinner is to be served and to turn it off after one hour of perfectly controlled baking. Then she goes merrily on her way.

There is no use to worry about these dishes becoming glum, tired and "crusty" while waiting to be baked in a moist, securely insulated oven like this Electric one! And there is no use to even wonder if dinner will be deliciously right — not when it is baked, a la "absent" cookery, by this sleight-of-hand magician!

BANK DEPOSITS WERE SAFEST INVESTMENTS

High Government Official Says No Investments Except U. S. Bonds Suffered as Little Loss as Deposits in Closed Banks

WASHINGTON, D. C.—No form of investments except Government bonds suffered as little loss as deposits in closed banks during the years 1931-32-33. Jesse H. Jones, Chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, declared in a recent address.

"A point generally overlooked in connection with bank failures in this period, is that upon the whole depositors in closed banks will get a somewhat larger percentage than has been true in bank failures over a period of any twenty-five years," Mr. Jones said "Heretofore they have gotten about 58%, but in these wholesale bank closings, my estimate is that they will upon the average, get about 65% of their deposits.

"Another point worthy of mention is that a depositor in a closed bank loses only a part of his deposit, while the bank stockholder loses all, plus a stock assessment.

"No form of investment, except Government bonds, has suffered as little loss as deposits in closed banks, and while I appreciate that there is little consolation in this fact, those who had their savings invested in stocks, bonds, mortgages, real estate, industrial investments, or in businesses of any kind, have had losses very much greater, and in a much larger percentage, than have depositors

It's Camp-Fire Picture Time

"Keep a Picture Story of Your Camp-fire Parties"

WITH the arrival of summer just about everybody, it seems, wants to take advantage of every opportunity to get out to the country, the lake or seashore for camping, marshmallow roasts, fish fries, corn roasts, clam bakes, beach parties and what have you.

Taking pictures at night around the camp fire is a lot of fun and the results pleasing and out of the ordinary. Since the introduction of the Photoflash lamp there has been a tremendous interest in camp-fire pictures for this lamp is so simple to operate. The Photoflash lamp is similar in appearance to a common electric bulb and can be screwed into a special holder resembling an ordinary hand flash-light tube. These holders are very inexpensive and can be purchased at almost any store selling photographic supplies. The flash is set off by pressing the flash button and it gives an intense light without any noise or smoke.

This is how you take a camp-fire picture. The people should be grouped as close to the fire as comfort wil permit. The arrangement of the group can be viewed in the finder of the camera by having someone hold a pocket flash-light or firebrand at each side of the scene. This wil indicate just what and who are included in the picture.

And let me warn you—be sure you have everybody in full view in your finder. Otherwise you may find the decapitated body of a dear friend appearing in the finished print.

It is well not to have the fire too bright, nor yet allow it to die down to embers whenthe picture is made.

With the camera resting on a tripod or firm support, set it at stop f.8 or U.S. 4, open the shutter, and set off the flash bulb and then be sure to close the shutter immediately. When using the Photoflash bulb hold it to one side of the camera, and slightly behind it. The latter position prevents possibility of lens flare from the flash. Here's one simple precaution:—see that the camera is placed where possible smoke from the fire may not be blown towards the lens or between it and the subjects.

Remember too it is not necessary to own an expensive camera to take camp-fire pictures at night. You can take such pictures—and good ones—with a box camera by using the largest stop.

So if you are planning on an outdoor party at night over this week-end, or a camping trip, be sure to be prepared to take some fascinating Photoflash pictures. Here's wishing you a lot of fun and good pictures.

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

By Dr. ALLEN G. IRELAND

Director, Physical and Health Education New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction

The Spring Play Day

It's time to be planning the spring play day. Give thought to making it a happy, joyous occasion.

To do that, provide some activity or job for every child. No one likes to be left out. If one can't run, play, or dance, he can serve in some useful capacity.

A large share of the planning should fall to the pupils. Let them organize committees and hold regular meetings with discussions of program, costumes, picnic luncheon and so on. Play up the health factor, for this is opportunity. Talk about training through observance of the health rules. And give a prominent place to sportsmanship, for these occasions are truly laboratories of citizenship.

For the program, stress the dances and the simple games and stunts dear to children. This calls for minimizing the old type of athletic field day, but in the end you will be more content.

What about the boy who is called a sissy? Dr. Ireland will tell parents how to deal with him next week.

"The call for circumscribing the functions of the Supreme Court comes from thin thinking and loose talking. Individuals whose well-meant but ill-advised efforts have been balked are going off half-cocked. Let the noise float away on the vagrant winds. There is no function of government in the United States more vital to personal liberty than the right and duty of the Supreme Court to pass upon the validity of statutes."—Portland Oregonian.

WHO WAS SHOT AND WHO WAS NOT!

A duel was once fought in Texas, says Facts and Fancies, between Alexander Shott and John Nott. Nott was shot and Shott was not, according to sircumstantial evidence. But as many remarked, it was better to be Shott than Nott.

There was a rumor that Nott was shot, but Shott avowed that he shot Nott, which proves either that the shot Shott shot at Nott was shot, notwithstanding. It was made to appear at the trial that the shot Shott shot Shott shot shot Nott, or as accidents with firearms are frequent, it might have been possible that shot Shott shot shot Shott himself and Shott would be shot and Nott would not.

It appeared to some that the shot Shot shot shot not Shott but Nott, and to others that Shott was shot by Nott. Any way, it is hard to tell who was shot, or probably maybe, if possible, both Shott and Nott were each about half shot.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litechert

Another bit of evidence that the United States Senate acted wisely a half generation ago in refusing to sign the Versailles treaty with its League of Nations annex comes to us with the news from Washington that the United States will take no action in the recent British-German naval pact and will make no protest against the alleged violation by Britain and Germany of the naval provision of the Versailles treaty.

It will be remembered that the treaty cut the German navy to a mere skeleton. Now Great Britain and Germany have signed an agreement contrary to the provisions of Versailles which gives Germany a sizeable fleet, one equal to the present fleet of France in fighting ability. France and Italy have protested the treaty violation. It can be imagined what pressure would have been put on Uncle Sam to get into this European poker game had our Senate not wisely refused to sign the Versailles treaty, and to join the Lague. As it was we signed a separate treaty with Germany which reserved our rights but gave us freedom of action in dealing with European questions.

The present situations brings eloquent proof for that statement of George Washington that there are no lasting friendships between nations. During the World War, Germany was calling England "Perfidious Albion," and France was depending on John Bull as one of its last bulwarks. Now Germany and England have moved closer together and France has adopted the phrase "Perfidious Albion." Perhaps in a few weeks or months the situation will be reversed again.

No matter what is the outcome of the present scramble in Europe it will develop that John Bull knows exactly what he is doing. He possesses the best diplomats in the world, the finest propaganda machine, and a slick way of making all of his diplomatic moves, no matter how self-centerd they may be, appear to have been taken in the "interest of humanity."

The way he has handled Uncle Sam is an example. During the Civil War Great Britain, by building and equipping Confederate privateers, helped just about to put the American merchant marine out of business, to aid his own merchant fleet. He has been seeking by propaganda to stifle the construction of a real American merchant marine ever since, and he even now has a great many alleged Americans fooled into believeing that we ought to depend on Europe to carry our goods over the high seas.

Of course, as a nation, we cannot afford to be either pro-British, pro-German, pro-French—just pro-American. But in order to keep pro-American we must maintain our standard of intelligent action in world affairs. We can only do this if we refuse to permit ourselves to indulge in any foolish sentimentality in the direction of Europe or Asia. It is always to be remembered that the wise modern nation only allows itself to become sentmental toward another nation when its national self-interest justifies it in so donig. This is what is back of the present "friendly" feeling of Great Britain toward Germany and it has been back of the British policy of alliance with France for many generations. Great Britain realizes that France and Belgium have become the British outposts so far as foreign attack on her is concerned. That is why she has been so vitally interested in protecting these two nations. Her present interest in Germany is no doubt designed to check German ambitions for a great fleet and to prevent the Franco-Russion entente from proceeding too fast for comfort.

All of which is of course none of our business. Let us see to it that we are not made a catspaw for any other nation, either in helping maintain the boundaries of Europe or "assisting" China in the "interests of humanity." In other words, let us nourish a real American policy.

ONLY POLITICIANS CAN BREAK FAITH AND GET BY

The Alabama senate, sitting as a committee of the whole, last week, gave its approval to that section of the State's general revenue bill increasing income taxes 50 per cent—a move already approved by the House or Representatives.—Press Report.

It is the history of government that, generally speaking, taxes of all kinds tend to grow higher instead of lower.

It is the history of politics that pledges made on the stump generally have no moral value. The present legislature of Alabama, by at least two-thirds majority, is committed to the people against any increase of taxes; but at least two-thirds of the members will vote for increased taxes, nevertheless.

In civilization only politicians are excused when they break faith.—Editorial in Montgomery Advertiser.

The above is a grave and serious admission to make; but it is true to a great extent. Evidences of it are presented most every day. This is by far more often the case in a commonwealth where there is only one political party.

It is a sad state of affairs. When a politician makes a pledge to his constituents and breaks that pledge, he has made himself a traitor, and there is no way around it. It is just as bad to lie in politics as it is in any other way—in most cases worse, because usually the politician disappoints lots of people, when otherwise it is usually just one disappointed.

The matter of breaking pledges is not one to be passed off jestingly. It is a serious matter.

More and more it becomes evident that Alabama needs two strong political parties. If we had them, we would have more consideration for campaign pledges than we do.

THE CONSTITUTION WILL STAND

Through the recent decision of the Supreme Court against the NRA and its discussion, it appears that many of the purposes behind the program of federal regimentation have been disclosed. Because the Supreme Court by its decision to uphold the Constitution which had been disregarded in an apparent effort to socialize the country, the Court has now become a camoflaged target. But the real target of many radicals is the Constitution.

Many theorists hold little respect for existing ideals and institutions. But their united cries for an immediate amendment to the Constitution have certainly not met with public approval. The American people, for the most part, realize that it is not an "amendment," but a complete abrogation of certain sections of the Constitution which these theorists desire. The voices in opposition to the surrender of state rihts, as would follow such a proposed change, have come not from any one section or any one party, but from all sections and from leaders of both parties. The South, normally a Democratic stronghold, arises in almost unanimous opposition to any change in the Constitution. In fact, a Democratic state convention in Texas almost broke up over the issue when a small faction broached the subject. The members finally voted unanimously against any change in the Constitution. The Midwestern convention of the Republican party adopted the slogan, "Save The Constitution." From coast to coast the atmosphere became charged with a renewed fervor for Americanism in opposition to "scrapping the Constitution."

The government of the United States, under the Constitution, was to be a government vested in the people for their protection against a despotic dictatorship. It was purposely formed with checks and balances—the Congress (legislative), the President (executive) and the Supreme Court (judiciary). The rules under which each department was to operate were set forth in the Constitution.

In the recent rulings of the Supreme Court, Congress was prevented in the future from surrendering its duties to the President. As a result, certain members of Congress and some of those expecting to receive the rights formerly vested only in Congress will be attempting to clip the wings of the Supreme Court and change the Constitution. The people will destroy any such plans. They remember the blood that has been spilled to establish the Constitution and preserve it. They will, therefore, stand solidly back of the Supreme Court in its decision.

Let us remember that state rights are fundamental; that a federal government cannot administer to all the individuals of our land, and that there are many problems which can not be satisfactorily handled from Washington, but must be taken care of by the states, the cities and the counties.

MAN IN THE MOON

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE!

The Union-Banner, and this column in particular, wishes to serve due notice to our political opponents that we are on the war path in dead earnest. We shall endeavor to uncover every unworthy Democratic act and condemn it. That there will be plenty of such in the next year we are quite confident.

From the national officials, on down to the county officers, we expect to keep out a weather eye at all times. We expect to see plenty, and we expect to strike at every opportunity.

As everyone knows, the high-handed national Democratic program is breaking down badly on every front (contention of The Chilton County News to the contrary, notwithstanding), the Alabama state government is the same old rotten mess it always has been, and which everyone is aware of, even Democrats. In fact, we believe our county Democratic government is just about the cleanest of the whole lot. But we will keep an eye on them, too, just from force of habit, and woe unto them who step off the straight and narrow pathway—just once.

We shall give no quarter and expect none. The Democrats have left gaps down in too many places, and we propose to put them up again for them. We will not have to look far for a target to shoot at. It seems that all Democratic plans have a habit of going awry of late, and there is a target in every one of them.

Within the short span of our own lives our memory does not recall one single instance when the nation or any of its several parts has prospered under Democratic rule. And a close study of the history of the nation's affairs discloses the same record. We challenge anyone to point to one period of prosperity under Democratic rule in nation, state or county. This being the case, is it reasonable to expect that they will change over-night?

So, again, we say—take notice! We have declared war— a fight to a finish. We have seen too much of Democratic tactics, and there is blood on the moon. Here's for a grand scrap.

DEMOCRATIC CONSISTENCY

During the presidential campaign of 1932, one of the Hearst newspapers said of Mr. Roosevelt: "He has the greatest chance to do great things that any man has had in decades. He has set forth a wonderful platform, and he impresses one as being able and willing to carry out his program as set forth. He is the most promising president in years."

A few days ago William Randolph Hearst, himself, commented on this particular quotation which his chain of papers had carried. His comment deplored the fact that he had been fooled so badly, and carried caustic criticism of the president's policies, setting forth each separate promise the president had made, and showing just how far the president had deviated from his stated intention.

Said Mr. Hearst:

"The president has failed to make good on one single major promise made in the 1932 campaign. I did not work for Mr. Roosevelt for the sake of himself, but because I believed the policies he voiced in his campaign would be good for the country. I still believe the platform Mr. Roosevelt won on would have been good for our nation. But the president's practiced policy is as far removed from his stated policy before election as day is from night. Without meaning anything personal, I would say that the president by his change of policy, has proved himself the preatest political traitor in the hstory of national politics."

We wonder why Mr. Hearst should feel so surprised by the president's duplicity. Knowing American political history as he does, we wonder that he did not expect as much from the Democratic representative. Mr. Roosevelt has done as well, perhaps better than any of his party's predecessors. We, for one, were not surprised in the least when the present president's fairy-tale platform went up in blue smoke when put to the acid test of every day use.

Another fine example of Democratic consistency for throwing promises to the four winds, is that of Governor Graves. In his campaign he filled the air with fine oratory about "hitching up big mules". So far, the first trace has not been hitched. The little fellows are still pulling the load, and our guess is that they will continue.

Mr. Graves also promised a reduction in the rates on automobile license plates. He set forth a fine schedule—$4.00 for "A" tags, $7.50 for "B" tags, $10.00 for "C" tags, and others in proportion. When the subject was brought up in the legislature recently, Mr. Graves told the body of lawmakers that "after earnest consideration" he was convinced that prices on the plates would have to be increased. He advocated a reclassification of autos, which would put the most popular sizes of cars, such as Fords, Chevrolets and Plymouths, which are far in the majority over the other makes, in a class for which tags would cost something near $15.00 besides regular tax, which is quite a bit higher than the present rate.

This new classification would make the owner of every old rattle-trap Model T pay the same for his license plate that others would pay for a plate for 1935 up-to-date 4-door sedan Fords, Chevrolets and Plymouths, and other cars in this price class. By the standard of your own sense of justice, we ask: Is this right and just? We don't think so, especially after the glowing campaign promises Mr. Graves made.

But such examples of duplicity and crawfishing out of promises are the rule, rather than the exception, with Democrats. We are not surprised that it has happened again. This is not the last time it will happen either. It is the rule of Democratic policy—an integral part of Democratic politics. It happens all along the line, from president to constable. We have no faith in ANY Democratic promise.

ALABAMA JOURNAL AND THE ABSENTEE BALLOT LAW

The Alabama Journal last Friday night took a smack at The Union-Banner for some assertions we had made a week previous regarding the absentee ballot law in Alabama. The Journal said: "Democrats are accustomed to take with a grain of salt anything that Alabama Republicans say about them." Which is to say that they believe only that portion of what Republicans say that they want to believe, and that is usually not very much.

The Journal adds: "We believe that Chilton and DeKalb counties would have been rescued from the Republicans if there had been no such thing as an absentee ballot."

As pointed out in our editorial two weeks ago, The Union-Banner firmly believes that the absentee ballot law in Alabama should be drastically amended so as to eliminate so much of the chances for fraud. And we believe that in realty the Alabama Journal feels the same way that we fell about it. Something like a month ago, writing editorially about the absentee ballot law, The Journal charged in substance that under our absentee law a man who has been living in Paris for 20 years has voted an absentee ballot in every election held in Alabama during that time—or rather someone voted it for him.

We believe that things like the above, and numerous other forms of fraud, happen in every election held in Alabama, under the present absentee voting law. And we believe that much of this was done in the last election in Chilton county, and from reports, DeKalb county suffered more from it than we did here.

But will the Democrats correct this evil? No, they are not liable to correct it any time soon.

STRIPPED BUT NOT STRAPPED

The New Deal has been stripped naked of nearly everything it had except the four thousand eight hundred and eighty million dollars but that is not saying that it has been stripped naked. With that sum of money at command we think we could elect any one of a dozen South Carolinian "Tories" we know to the White House and a brand new Congress, too. If Julius Ceaser had had one tenth that money he could have kept his legions in Rome and the Gauls and the Teutons would have crawled to him to eat out of his hand.—Charleston, S. C., News and Courier.

WHOSE BABIES ARE THEY?

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace in a statement made to a farmer's meeting in Illinois recently is reported to have said: "Farmers will take off the processing tax when industry takes off its tariff."

It would seem that the logic on which Mr. Wallace bases his statements must be a trifle sour. At least some of his conclusions are curdled.

One might well pause to wonder just how the farmers will "take off' the processing tax? As we remember it this tax was put into effect in Washington by the administration.

It is likewise true that industry did not "put on" the protective tariff. This was done by Congress and the tariff will not be removed until Congress acts, so long as our present form of government remains. Mr. Wallace seems to infer that the tariff is a terrible thing and that the processing tax as a defense was put in effect ot counteract it. It will be remembered that the present tariff was enacted under the previous administration. The party to which Mr. Wallace now seems at least temporarily attached condemned the present tariff in its 1932 platform and promised a "competitive tariff.' Three years have passed and the administration has been in full control of the legsilative machinery. Yet the tariff law has not been changed, nor will it be changed before another presidential campaign is upon us. So it would seem that if Mr. Wallace wants the tariff repealed he had better get to work in Washington rather than among the farmers or in the industrial centers of the country.

The fact is that few people, outside the theorists, want the tariff lowered. They realize that most of the protection has been canceiled anyhow by the artificial manipulation of prices and costs in the United States. The AAA policy has not only cut production in the United States, it has stimulated competitive production, so that we are now receiving rye, meat, and many other agricultural products from abroad instead of shipping a surplus to Europe as we ought to be doing if we are really going to revive foreign trade. Mr. Wallace says nothing about removing the tariff protection which we have against Canada, Argentine and other agricultural countries. Perhaps he thinks this unnecessary because we will soon, under a policy of scarcity and high costs, be importing from the Canadian and Argentine farmers anyhow. But at least we are given to feel that the "processing tax" is a kind of necessary evil because the protective tariff is an inevitable evil.

Here is the difference between the two: the AAA program, with its processing tax, tends to decrease production at home and to stimulate production abroad. The protective tariff tends to stimulate production at home and to decrease production abroad.

216 CONGRESSMEN UNDER "DELUSION"

Attention, Chilton County News:

A majority of the Congressmen of the United States has joined those who are "under the delusion that Franklin D. Roosevelt has blown up," and who fail to exercise "sanity" regarding national trends, when one puts it in the language of The Chilton County News, Democratic paper here, which recently used these hot phrases characterizing those who are inclined to differ with the President on his New Deal programs.

The House registered this stand one day last week when they voted on the "death sentence" bill aimed at the big utilities holding companies of the country. The vote was 146 for the bill and 216 against it, and Mr. Roosevelt together with the full forces of the administration were using all the vim they had to put the bill over.

Regarding this vote of the lower Congressional branch one southern daily newspaper said editorially:

"Thank God! We again have a House of Representatives—representatives OF THE PEOPLE, members of a co-ordinate branch of the government, equal in dignity and independence to the executive and judicial departments of the government!

"The vote was decisive. It was against the administration. It was against the theory and practice of dictatorship! It was against the use of "must" by the White House to coerce the legislative branch of the government and substitute its own judgment for that of the nation's lawmakers.

"It was a stunning rebuke to the administration—a deserved and merited rebuke. It will stand in history with the recent decisions of the Supreme Court."

In this action the House has disappointed the expectations and wishes of the President; it has met the expectations and wishes of the people, and that is what counts in the long run.

The Union-Banner believes in regulation of holding companies, but not destruction for prejudicial reasons.

This action of the lawmakers indicate that Congress is recovering its right mind and is rightfully asserting its independence of the executive branch of our great government.

And some more "delusion" and "insanity" was revealed in a recent poll taken among 514 leading newspapers in 38 States, made by "Newsdom," when only 23 per cent wholly approved the New Deal. 48 per cent opposed the major acts of the administration, and 19 per cent approved part and condemned part. A similar poll last year registered complete approval of the New Deal.

These polls, however, were not a registration of the personal views of these newspapers, but their idea of the way the populace they covered felt about the national administration's program.

In America the newspaper still remains sane, fearless and autonomous in spite of threats and innuendoes from the budding hierophants of totalitarianism in Washington.

MONTH OF DEBT DEFAULTS

June was defaulting debtor's month, so far as the United States and Europe are concerned. All of them but honest little Finland have run out on us. This includes Great Britain, which has been boasting of her balanced budget, and such nations as Italy and Czechoslovakia, who seem to have plenty of money and credit for other purposes but nothing with which to pay Uncle Sam.

We have heard a lot of big talk recently about what Italy is going to do to Ethopia, when it quits raining there in October. Well, maybe she will, and maybe she won't. But this does not alter the fact that Italy is spending millions on war-like preparations against the African nation, sending troops across the Mediterranean, building fortifications and doing other things which cost a lot of money.

Yet Italy tells us that she can't afford to pay on what she owes the United States at this time. She can't even afford to pay the instalment of the debt falling due now, although this is but a fraction of what her African venture has already cost her, and she is not able to pay anything on the old account, which is growing every month. She hopes, of course, there will be a downward adjustment if not outright concellation, but evidently is not aware of the fact that spending money for military adventures in Africa is not apt to put Uncle Sam in a good mood for debt-reducing.

Czechlovakia is another nation which has been in the limelight quite a little of late. She has defaulted too, along with the rest, and says that conditions have not changed so that she can pay us anything. Yet the Czechs have gone into a military alliance with Russia, which is none of our business, and at the same time, to bind the agreement, have extended to Russia a credit for thirty millions of dollars to be spent by Russia for munitions.

Other nations which owe Uncle Sam are preparing feverishly for war, too. Yet they can't pay anything on account. They are willing to sell to us or to borrow more, but not to pay what they owe us.

AN EDITORIAL BY A GEORGIAN

If you can produce prosperity from scarcity; if you can encourage private industry to reach out by scaring them white; if you can make people want to own property and buy property by continually multiplying taxes on it, then you can make water run up hill, you can spend yourself out of debt, you can drink yourself sober.—Governor Talmadge of Georgia, in Philadelphia Inquirer.

POOR OR

PUBLIC ENEMY NO. 1

In the field of disease tuberculosis may well be called public enemy Number one, for while diseases of the heart and of the kidneys are greater killers, tuberculosis kills a greater number of people in Alabama between the ages of twenty and forty-five, or the most productive period of a man's life, than does any other single disease. Although this fact is known to many the fact that tuberculosis can be prevented, and that it can be cured if diagnosed early, are still far from being firmly enough established in the minds of the people as a whole. Let us consider a few of the things that are known concerning this disease.

In the first place, tuberculosis is a communicable disease, and it is hereditary. The germs causing the disease are found in the sputum of those individuals suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis, and the disease is spread by means of this infected sputum. The sick person may throw off this sputum by cughing, sneezing, loud talking or laughing. He may also contaminate dishes, towels, bedding, etc., with this germ-laden sputum Knowing this method of spread, we may say that tuberculosis can be prevented by the proper isolation of those having the disease, and the proper care and disposal of their sputum.

That tuberculosis may be cured when early diagnosed has been proven over and over and as this fact becomes better known more cases are being found in the early stages. But it must be remembered that the disease is gradual in its onset and the patient may have but few symptoms of the disease until it is far advanced. For this reason everyone should have perodic examination by a physician, and this is especially true in the case of those in intimate and prolonged contact with a case of the disease.

The above discussion touches briefly upon a few of the points concerning tuberculosis that should be known to all.

Literature is available to those interested in the disease by writing or visiting the County Health Unit.

The finest COLA of them all

Make this test. Drink a CHERO. If you don't say it's the grandest tasting Cola drink you ever tried, tell the man who sold it to you to give your money back. If you don't say the zestfulness that the CHERO fruity flavor adds makes it the most delightful Cola drink you ever had, we don't want you to pay one cent. But there are a lot of other reasons why you'll want to stick to CHERO once you've tried it. For here is a Cola drink that's really good for you. A source of safe, quick energy that picks you up without any artificial stimulant. You couldn't do a better thing for your health than drink two or three each day. Of course you can drink as many bottles of CHERO a day as you like, because there's nothing in it (not one thing) to upset nerves or disturb digestion. Try a bottle of CHERO—the kind of Cola drink you have always dreamed of—today.

ADMISSION 10c and 25c

POOR OR

Do you tire easily?

Sluggish, overworked blood makes you feel weak—mentally dull.

S.S.S. Tonic brings new vitality and tone to the whole body.

BODILY WEAKNESS is only one of the many symptoms of a low red-blood-cell count. Loss of appetite, underweight, nervousness and like common ills are often due to this same underlying cause.

The red-blood-cells must be up to normal and vigorous to keep the tissues pure and to help supply the body with fresh oxygen-energy in its circuit thru the entire body of over 200 times daily.

S.S.S. Tonic, in the absence of any organic disease, should help you get those vital red-blood-cells back up to normal. It will make you enjoy your food and help your digestion, too. It is a scientific medicine. 108 years of success. Just try it and you, too, may soon "feel like yourself again." Insist on S.S.S. Tonic in the blood red cellophane wrapped package. The larger size is sufficient for two weeks' treatment—and is more economical, too. At all Drug Stores. © S.S.S. Co.

PREACHING AT PROVIDENCE ON NEXT SATURDAY NIGHT

The next regular preaching hour at Providence in Beat 16, namely at 11 o'clock in the morning, has been called in on account of some members wanting to attend a home-coming at Corinth. Instead of this regular service, there will be preaching by the pastor, Rev. J. D. Hughes, Saturday night beginning at 7:30 o'clock. All members are asked to remember this. Visitors are invited.

WIFE OF ERASTUS JONES BURIED AT NEW HARMONY

Mrs. Essie Jones, age about 34 years, wife of Erastus Jones, was buried Friday afternoon of last week at New Harmony cemetery, Lomax. The funeral was conducted by Rev. Enfinger of Walnut Creek. A Sylacauga undertaker had charge of the burial.

Mrs. Jones, a daughter of the late Coke Sharbutt, died of acute indigestion at Chipley, Fla., on Wednesday night, July 3rd, while she with her husband was visiting relatives. They lived at Sylacauga.

The body was shipped to Sylacauga Thursday and was brought back to Lomax for burial Friday.

Mrs. Jones had a sister to be buried at the same cemtery about two or three months ago. She leaves her husband and one daughter, about 12 years of age.

Wishes Other Costs Would Drop Like Electricity

Like lots of other Alabama folks, Mrs A. R. Steele, of Huntsville, is delighted with the way her bills for electricity have steadily gone down while other living costs were going up. Recently she wrote: "In the times we are having today, I am sure you will be surprised to receive this kind of a letter, but I am tempted to write it, as I am very much satisfied with my electric bills from your company.

"I have an electric range, water heater and refrigerator together with miscellaneous lighting and other appliances and I have used these appliances for the past seven years. Instead of my bills getting larger year by year they have been materially reduced.

"If the price on some of the other things we have to use were reduced correspondingly things would be a whole lot easier." Adv. Alabama Power Co

East View News

The revival meeting will begin here the second Sunday in July and run the following week. Everyone has a cordial invitation to attend and worship with us. Rev. Lawrence L. Stanley of Thorsby will do the preaching.

There will be a working at the church Thursday afternoon of this week to help beautify the church and yards and to get ready for the revival. Bring tools to work with.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Lorenza Smith all of Lanette, Ala., spent last week here visiting Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Smith and other relatives.

Mrs. Maggie Pitts of Atlanta, Ga., is visiting relatives here this week.

Mr. J. F. Nelson of Mt. Creek was visiting relatives here one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Prickett were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Prickett of Floyd community Thursday of last week.

Rev. A. C. Nelson left Sunday for Midland City where he will conduct a revival meeting.

LYNCHING RECORD FOR THE FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1936

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year.

I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were negroes. The offenses charged were: Wounding woman in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, 2; and Mississippi, 2.—F. D. Patterson, Pres.

LEGAL NOTICE

State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Notice is hereby given that a Bill will be introduced at the 1935 session of the Legislature of Alabama, which Bill is in substance, as follows, to-wit:

A BILL
To Be Entitled
AN ACT

To relieve or exempt the Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., a corporation, of or from the payment of all Ad Valorem taxes assessed against it or its property in Chilton County, Alabama, for the State of Alabama and for Chilton County for the tax year 1932, and/or which was due on said property at said time, and to annul, set aside and avoid the sale of said property for such taxes, which sale was made by W. G. Culp, as Tax Collector of Chilton County, Alabama, on the 19th day of November, 1934, and sold to the State of Alabama for $288.96, said sale being made under a decree of the Probate Court of Chilton County, Alabama, dated October 15th, 1934, and to declare such property exempt from such taxes, it appearing that the property so sold was exempt from taxation during said tax year, but that such exemption was not claimed or allowed.

BE IT ENACTED BL THE LEGISLATURE OF ALABAMA:

Section 1. That the Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., a corporation, be and it is hereby relieved and exempted of or from the payment of all Ad Valorem taxes assessed against said Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., a corporation, or against any of its property in Chilton County, Alabama, for the tax year of 1932, including all Ad Valorem taxes due either to the State of Alabama or to Chilton County, Alabama, for said year, and/or any tax which was accrued and unpaid against said property at said time.

Section 2. That the sale made by W. G. Culp, as Tax Collector of Chilton County, Alabama, on November 19th, 1934, whereby the following described property assessed to Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., a corporation, viz:

A lot of land beginning at a point 928 feet East from the Southwest corner of the North Half of the Southwest Quarter of the Southeast Quarter of Section thirty-five Township twenty-two, range fourteen; and running thence East 105 feet; thence North 527 feet to the South side of the extension of Fifth Avenue; thence West along the South side of the extension of Fifth Avenue 105 feet; thence South 526 feet to the point of beginning, containing one and one-eighth acres. Also a lot of land beginning at a point on the South side of the extension of Fifth Avenue from Tenth Street, said point being 33 feet West from the said Tenth Street, and running thence West along the South side of the extension of Fifth Avenue 198 feet; thence South 268 feet; thence East 200 feet; thence North 268 feet to the point of beginning; containing one and one-eighth acres. All of said land being situated in the Town of Clanton, Chilton County, and the State of Alabama; was sold for Ad Valorem taxes due on said property to the State of Alabama and to Chilton County, Alabama, for the tax year of 1932 under decree of the Probate Court of Chilton County, Alabama, dated October 15th, 1934, be, and the same hereby is annuled, set aside and avoided and said property hereby declared exempt from such taxes, it appearing that such property was exempt from such Ad Valorem taxes for such year, but that such exemption was not claimed or allowed.

Section 3. That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act be, and the same are hereby, expressly repealed. 6-27-4t-ch.

Lesson for July 14

NAOMI

LESSON TEXT—Ruth 1:14-22; 4:14-17.

GOLDEN TEXT—A woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised.—Proverbs 31:30.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Happy Family.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Making a Happy Home.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Living Our Religion.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Making Religion Attractive.

In teaching this lesson it will be necessary to cover the entire book of Ruth.

I. Naomi's Sojourn in Moab (Ruth 1:1, 2).

On account of famine in the land of Judah, Naomi, with her husband and two sons emigrated to the land of Moab. It is strangely inconsistent for a man whose name means "my God is King," who has a wife whose name is "the pleasant one," and who lives in a town which means "house of bread," to sojourn in the enemy's country on account of famine at home.

II. Naomi's Bereavement (Ruth 1:3-5).

After the death of her husband, her two sons married Moabitish women. In a short time, her sons also died. This is a dreary picture—three widows in the same home in a short time.

III. Her Return to Bethlehem (Ruth 1:6-22).

Having heard that the Lord had visited his people in Judah in giving them bread, Naomi decided to return to her home land. After she had experienced chastisement she returned.

1. Ruth accompanies her. When the time came for Naomi to go from Moab, Ruth and Orpah accompanied her for a distance. She frankly placed before them the difficulties which would confront them, and repeatedly urged them to turn back.

a. No chance to marry again. She reminded Ruth and Orpah that she had no more sons for whom they could wait.

b. Their heathen gods must be renounced (v. 15). She made it quite clear to them that idolatry could not be practiced in the land where God's people dwelt.

c. Though Orpah went back, Ruth stood the test. Her mind was fully made up. She was willing to accept as her God the One who was able to produce in his subjects the nobility of character she observed in Naomi.

2. Naomi's reception. Her arrival made a stir in Bethlehem. The people recognized her and perceived a marked change wrought in her. Ten years of such trials would make a noticeable change even outwardly, but the change was mainly inward. She asked that her name be changed to Mara.

IV. Naomi's Gracious and Tactful Behavior (Ruth 2, 3).

1. She remembered her wealthy kinsman (ch. 2). In the case of a forfeited possession, it was incumbent upon the nearest kinsman to redeem it. Boaz was a kinsman. It was necessary for both Naomi and Ruth to have food. Barley harvest afforded that opportunity. The divine provision was made for the poor when the harvest was gathered (Lev. 19:9, 10; 23:22; Deut. 21:19). The matter was talked over between Naomi and Ruth, and arrangement was made for Ruth to glean in the field of Boaz.

2. Naomi seeking rest for Ruth (ch. 3). This rest was to be in the house of a husband. Other things being equal, such is the only real place of rest for a woman. Naomi instructed Ruth as to her toilet preparations so as to be attractive and then also as to presenting her claim upon Boaz to perform the duty of a kinsman in redeeming the forfeited estate because of the sojourn in Moab. The redemption of the estate involved not only the ability to pay the price of the forfeited possession, but also the marrying of the woman.

V. Naomi's Reward (4:14-17).

1. Blessed by the women of Bethlehem (vv. 14, 15). The birth of a son to Ruth was the occasion of this blessing. It meant the perpetuation of the line of kinship, and looked forward to the true Redeemer, our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ.

2. She became the nurse for her grandson (v. 16). This not only provided her with a home and living, but with the opportunity of helping on the purpose of God in the coming redemption.

3. The baby given a name (v. 17). "Obed" means "servant of God." Ruth thus became a link in the ancestral chain of our Kinsman and Redeemer, Jesus Christ. The introduction of a Gentile into this line indicated the outreach of the redemptive purpose of God, which extends to the peoples of the whole world.

Progress

A marked characteristic of the progressive man is that he is always improving something somewhere. He has a horror of possible deterioration, and he knows the demoralizing, disintegrating power of familiarity with inferiority.—O. S. M.

Children

A child is trained much more by example than precept. Parents should therefore be most careful to act up to what they profess; and to let their actions be a reflex of their words.

C. E. Cagle, of Stanton, was a visitor in Clanton Monday.

EMERGENCY CONSERVATION WORK USES CCC CAMPS

Montgomery.—After over two years of Emergency Conservation Work under the President's recovery program, there still exists in many quarters a misapprehension as to the distinction between this Federal activity as the main objective and the Civilian Corps as its instrument, according to Colonel Page S. Bunker, Alabama State Forester. "The Emergency Conservation Work comprises various classes of projects directed toward improving conditions on public and private lands," states Colonel Bunker.

"While advances in forestry were originally the main objective, the development of parks and the control of soil erosion entered into the scheme very early. The Covilian Conservation Corps is the official organization of workers recruited by the Federal Government to work on these projects. The interests of the CCC, outside of the actual work performed, are under the charge of the U. S. Army

"In facilitating immediate supervision and administration of the work in its various branches, the Federal Government naturally turned to qualified local authorities. Thus, projects on State and private forest lands were placed under the supervision of the State forestry department. Similarly, State Park work was turned over to the State Park authority, which is included with the forestry department. Likewise projects directed toward the control of soil erosion were at first placed under the forestry department, but, with the rapid increase in the number of such projects, their administration was transferred to a newly created agency, the Soil Conservation Service, the State headquarters of which are at Dadeville, Alabama.

"Forestry Emergency Conservation Work on Federal lands is handled by the U.S. Forest service director under the immediate charge of the local Forest Supervisor or other Federal forstral officials in charge of the holdings. National Park projects are handled by the National Park Service in much the same manner. It is important for the local public, therefore, to discriminate as to the responsible agency in each case, it being necessary to determine whether the project is under the State forestry department, the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, U. S. Forest Service, or U. S. National Park Service. There is no such thing as a central ECW or CCC headquarters in any state, outside, possibly, the military branch, excepting in those states where all classes of work are under one administrative agency.

"The Federal Emergency Conservation Work is headed by Director Robert Fenchner at Washington. However, practically all technical and administrative work of any class of projects is handled by the Federal bureau most directly concerned, which in turn operates through the appropriate local authority."

B. T. U. ASSOCIATION WILL MEET

The quarterly meeting of the Chilton County B. T. U. Association will meet with Oak Grove Baptist church next Sunday, July 14.

We earnestly request all Unions in this association to be represented at this meeting, and would also be glad to have representatives from the churches having no union, as we want to help you get a union organized at some time in the near future. Please come. You can help us and we will try to help you.—J. L. Yates, Pres.; C. A. Maddox, Sec.

Will Be Honor Guests At Legion Convention

Mobile, July 9.—Veterans of the war between the states will be honored guests at the American Legion Department Convention to be held in Mobile, July 14-17, though the committee in charge is having wifficulty in finding a Union Veteran of that war who can attend the meeting. Spanish-American war men are quite numerous among the Legionnaires, and many of them are youthful enough to take an interested view of the state wide bathing beauty contest, wherein "Miss Alabama" will be selected to represent the state in the National Convention, at St. Louis, in September.

The annual American Legion bathing beauty contest will be held at Grand View Park, overlooking the mouth of Dog River, on the shore of Mobile Bay, on Tuesday afternoon, July 16, at 5 o'clock, and posts in all parts of Alabama will have held their local contests for the selection of their candidate for the prizes and honors then to be awarded.

Departmental officers of the Legion and Auxiliary have made a schedule of business to be taken up at the several Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday sessions. Following the Memorial meeting of Sunday evening, sufficient time is allowed for daily entertainment features, includng the gathering of veterans from various branches of war service, different divisions, wherein Alabama soldiers were numerous, the 40 and 8 and similar organizations. The divisional reunions and parades will be some of the outstanding features of this convention.

COLLINS CHAPEL

The members of Collins Chapel are asked to note change of regular services this month, from the third Sunday to the second Sunday. The pastor will be away in a meeting on the third Sunday. Therefore, attend the services the second Sunday if Possible.—G. H. Carroll.

HIGHLAND NEWS

Our Sunday school at this place is progressing nicely. There were 66 present Sunday but there is still room for improvement. Let's all strive to make it better.

All that are interested in the cemetery at this place meet here on Wednesday, July 17th, with sufficient tools for the purpose to clean it off. Don't forget the date.

Everybody come back to Sunday school next Sunday and prayer meeting Sunday night.

RETURNS FROM COOSA COUNTY

Vatchel Lindsey returned the first of this week from a visit of several days in Coosa County. Going by way of Log Cabin Beach, he arrived at Rockford Sunday morning, June 30th, he visited T. O. Dozier there, and he with T. O. Dozier and son went to Weogufka and visited T. O. Stewart and Oscar Honecutt.

Vatchel arrived back in Clanton last Sunday afternoon, and reports that he had a most enjoyable visit with old friends.

DATES SET FOR BOYS-GIRLS CAMP

4-H Club Members Will Have Joint Camp Near Millbrook

County Agent, J. W. Fant, announced Monday morning that tentative arrangements have been made for holding the annual summer camp of club boys and girls of Chilton County.

The dates set for the camp are for three days, August 19, 20 and 21. The place selected is at the Y. W. C. A. camp near Millbrook in Elmore county. It is stated that plans are to make it a joint camp of boys and girls at the same time and place, under the joint supervision of administrative leaders of each group.

Mr. Fant advised Monday morning that the plans so far arranged are only tentative. Within the next few days full details will be worked out at which time definite announcement of all club plans will be conveyed to each boy and girl club member in a letter sent to each individual on the club roster.

NEXT SATURDAY OPENING DAY AT WYATT DRUG CO.

Next Saturday will be formal opening day for the new store of Wyatt Drug Company, at Thorsby, at which time all the friends and customers of this popular store are requested to visit the new place.

Mr. Wyatt will give souvenirs to everybody who visits the store next Saturday, and he is offering some extraordinary opening day values to those who buy.

The new Wyatt Drug Store is a delightful place on the highway in Thorsby next to Franklin Garage.

PARTY ENJOYED PICNIC AT LOG CABIN BEACH SUNDAY

A party of friends and relatives from Montevallo, West Blocton, Enterprise, Birmingham and Mobile gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Pinkerson in Clanton last Sunday morning, from where they went to Log Cabin Beach for a picnic outing. After lunch they went to Mitchell Dam nearby where they were shown through the hydro-electric plant of Alabama Power Company.

Those who went on the outing were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Klotzman and daughter, Ida, of Montevallo, and son, Dave and Frank, of West Blocton; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Klotzman and baby, of Montevallo; Mr. and Mrs. Noah Klotzman and two children, of Montevallo; Miss Rose Baer and Sister, Jimmie, and brother, Ervin, of Montevallo; Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Greenburg, daughter, Sarah, and son, Bernard, of Birmingham; Miss Minnie Pearlman, of Enterprise; Mr. David Pinkerson, of Mobile; Mr. and Mrs. H. Pinkerson, of Clanton.

Miss Bonnie Clyde Griffin of Billingsley attended the Baptist Institute here Tuesday.

Miss Dorothy Waite has returned home after a pleasant visit with relatives in Bankhead, Alabama.

FUNERAL RITES HELD FOR COMER

Son of Late Gov. B. B. Comer Takes Own Life While In Failing Health

Alexander City, July 8.—J Fletcher Comer, 59, widely known textile operator and son of the late Gov. B. B. Comer, was found fatally wounded with a small rifle in a room of his home here early Monday night and officials said he died of his own hand.

Members of the family found Mr. Comer in a dying condition after hearing a shot. He had been despondent and in failing health for some time, returning only recently from a rest at a Florida camp.

Interment in Birmingham

Brief services were held here at 11 o'clock a.m., followng which the body was taken to Birmingham for services at the home of his sister, Mrs. Frank H. Latrop, with interment in the family plot in that city.

OBITUARIES — IN MEMORY

It becomes necessary for us again to call attention to the fact that we make a charge of one cent per word for all obituaries over 150 words published in The Union-Banner. So, if you want an obituary, or in memory article, published about a departed friend or relative, it must be confined to not over 150 words, or else money order for the remainder should be included if sent by mail, as outlined above.

If obituaries are sent in containing over 150 words and no money accompanies same, it will be either omitted entirely or, if possible, condensed to come within the requirement, and published.

WAREHOUSE BUILDING TO BE BUILT ON COUNTY PROPERTY

A proposal for the erection of a lare warehouse building on the southeast corner of the jail block has been submitted to the Public Works Administration by works director, Floyd Smith.

The building will be of sheet metal, size about 50 by 100 feet, and will cost about $2,300. Mr. Smith says the county has agreed to give $600 on the cost of the job.

The proposed building when erected will be used by the relief administration as long as needed, after which it will be devoted to the use of Chilton County.

Miss Helen Newell is visiting Miss Mary Sue Logan in Birmingham this week.

Miss Dorothy Duncan of Birmingham visited with Miss Gartiwyl Vinson this week.

THREE CASES IN COURT OV' MAYOR JONES MONDAY

Three men charged with public drunkenness were up before Mayor Jones in the city court Monday morning.

All of them plead guilty to the charges and were assessed fines plus costs.

Prof. Felston Mullins, teacher of vocational agriculture at Fairview High School, in Cullman County, passed through Clanton Tuesday night, with a delegation of his students on their way to the Future Farmers of America conference at Auburn.

DEATH OF MR. G. W. EDWARDS

For several months Mr. Edwards had been in declining health, and on June 24th, was taken with a severe attack of bowel obstruction, followed by disorders of the kidneys and urinary organs which bore on him for twelve days. He seemed to realize from the beginning of his illness that his time for departure from this life was at hand, and expressed the hope and faith in God for eternal salvation, and at the last hour the angelic countenance of peace shined upon his face.

Every effort was made by tender hands and skilled physicians to restore him to his wanted health, but God in his infinite wisdom saw fit to call him to a higher and more useful service beyond this vale of sorrow. He passed away on July 6, at 9:35 a.m. and was laid to rest in Samaria cemetery July 7th, at 11 o'clock. Martin and Sons in charge with Rev. J. W. Jones conducting the services from the church.

Mr. Edwards was a few days over 69 years of age at his death leaving a wife, Mrs. Anna (Dennis) Edwards; two daughters, Mrs. Emily E. Culp; and Mrs. Birdie Mae Jones; two sons-in-law, A. J Culp and S M. Jones; and a host of other relatives and friends to mourn his loss.

U. S. COURT RULES AGAINST THE AAA

Circuit Court of Appeals Says Agricultural Act Is Unconstitutional

Boston, July 16.—The United States circuit court of appeals today ruled the proccessing taxes collected under the agricultural adjustment act as unconstitutional. The court was divided two to one on its decision.

The decision was handed down in the case of the Hoosac mills which challenged the constitutionality of the processing tax and which appealed to the circuit court from a decision by Federal Judge, Elisha H. Brewster.

Seek Refund of Tax

The Hoosac mills receivers had asked recovery of $81,694 paid in taxes under the AAA.

Judge Scott Wilson read the 23-page decision today in which Judge Geo. F. Moris, of New Hampshire, concurred. Judge George H. Bingham, senior justice, dissented.

The circuit court took the appeal of the Hoosac receivers under consideration April 23.

Yesterday, Judge Brewster hinted that his district court finding might be reversed by the circuit court as he ordered continuation of a temporary injunction preventing collecton of processing taxes from four New Bedford mills and a Fall River corporatin.

Millions At Stake

The collection of some $700,000,000 of processing taxes hinges upon the question of their constitutionality.

The Hoosac mills suit was one of many brought by textile corporations who sought recovery of taxes paid on conatitutional grounds. The Hoosac mills suit was chosen by United States attorneys as a test case to be carried to the United States supreme court chiefly because of the initial success in obtaining a favorable decision in the district court.

New Dealers Predict Decision On Processing Tax To Be Had By Christmas

Washington.—Government lawyers Thursday predicted a Supreme Court ruling on constitutionality of the agricultural adjustment act by Christmas.

More than 153 cases challenging the processing taxes levied by the AAA are in the Federal Courts, they said. With nearly $1,000,000,000 involved, the government defense is being directed by two lawyers from Florida, Assistant Atty. Gen. Frank J. Wideman, head of the Justice Department tax division, and his chief assistant, James W. Morris.

BARBECUE AT BILLINGSLEY

The Masons and Eastern Star members are sponsoring a barbecue, on July 24, 1935, at the Billingsley High School. The principal entertainment will be good base ball games and lectures on Masonry.

TO CONDUCT REVIVAL AT TEMPLE CHURCH

The summer revival at Temple church, three miles southeast of Clanton, will begin on Sunday, July 28th, and continue for probably a couple of weeks. The preaching will be done by Rev. O. M. Montgomery, of Wynn, Ark. The preacher's wife, Mrs. Opal Montgomery, will assist with the music. The public is invited to attend these services.

A CURIOUS MELON VINE

Mr. Ruben Devaughn briught in to The Union-Banner last Thursday a water melon vine that was very different from the ordinary. It had large clusters of greenish looking flowers grown from the vine where melons were due to grow. The clusters were almost as thick as those of a cauliflower, and some of the branches were nearly as large as a quart bucket. No melons grew from the vine.

The vine came from the farm of Elmer Rollan of Highland community.

Fine Singing Held At Courthouse Sunday PM

With Mr. Jesse C. Jones as chairman, the regular monthly singing was held at the courthouse last Sunday afternoon. Attendance was good, there being about as many present as could comfortably be seated. There was a good size class, and the singing was fine.

After the chairman sung the opening song prayer was offered by Mr. J. Z. Mims. Directors placed on the floor were: O. L. Devaughn, L. D. Hughes, T. E. Wyatt, Audie Brown, Herbert Lowery, Ralph Grant, J. B. Williams, Emmett Wilson, A. O. Boswell, Archie Devaughn, Joe Painter, Steve Stanley and Kermit Lowery.

There were a number of other directors who were not called out, some asking to be excused and others for various other reasons. They were G. C. Powel, S. V. Miller, Dual Jones, C. H. Robinson and W. G. Culp.

Two quartet bands were present—the Sylacauga quartet and the Clanton quartet, both of which presented several numbers at intervals during the afternoon.

Another singing will be held at the courthouse the second Sunday afternoon in August.

Friend And Foe Gird For New Deal Fight

Republicans Become Active As Democrats Prepare Regime's 'Defense'

Washington, July 13.—Friends and foes of the "New Deal" in and out of Congress will take to the road immediately after adjournment of Congress in rousng speeches to measure the political winds for the 1936 campaign.

President Roosevelt will carry to the country his program of relief, reform and recovery. All members of the President's cabinet will deliver a series of speeches in defense of the "New Deal." Heads of the myriad alphabetical agencies tonight were priming for swings around the country.

The Republican high command already has swung into action, with regional "pep" meetings. Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, plans to make several addresses. Senator Huey P. Long (Democrat), of Louisiana, has mapped a trek from the Atlantic to the Pacific in his new sound truck to spread his "share-our-wealth" doctrine.

Fireworks Ahead

Ambitious plans of the battling political leaders foreshadowed the greatest joint debate for an off year in elections in many decades.

With the entire country in turmoil over the Roosevelt "New Deal," political chieftains in both major parties admitted their best course was to take to the stump immediately after Congress adjourns.

Threshed out in the hustings will be the President's revolutinary tax recommendations, the AAA, "death sentence" for public utility holdings companies, the Supreme Court's decision invalidating NRA, "New Deal" demands for a constitutional amendment to make such projects as NRA constitutional—every shred of the administration's record.

Republicans Busy

President Roosevelt having indicated his purpose to visit the San Diego exposition this summer, plans were under way to arrange the journey so that he may deliver a few speeches and confer with local Democratic leaders en route. It was expected the President would return to Washington by warship through the Panama Canal.

The Republicans have adopted as their slogan, "Save the Cnstitution." They will rip into Roosevelt's "New Deal" in every major aspect as a blow to the constitution.

In defense, the "New Dealers" will argue that everything done by the adminstration was necessary under the circumstances.

And when the clashing spellbinders return for the next session of Congress, politics will be uppermost in their thoughts. The next session will be dotted with field days on politics and the favor of legislation will be fixed by the reaction to the administration's appeal to the country this summer, leaders pointed out.

REV. J. E. BERKSTRESSER

The pastor of the Mignon Baptist Church, Sylacauga, will preach in a revival to be held at Refuge church beginning next Sunday, July 21, and continuing through Friday night of that week.

This preacher comes highly recommended as a forceful speaker and as a true man of God. The public is urged to hear him.

THOMAS S. PYRON BURIED HERE FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Thomas S. Pyron, age 51, died last Thursday in a hospital in Tuscaloosa. The remains were brought to Clanton Thursday afternoon by Martin and prepared for burial.

The funeral was held from the home, near the Grammar school, Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Dr. S. J. Ezell officiating. The body was laid to rest by Martin in Clanton cemetery.

Surviving are his widow, three daughters and two sons: Mrs. Pauline Lakeman, Mrs. May Lee Foshee, Mrs. Charlsie Burks; Morris Pyron and Thomas Pyron. The aged father, Thomas M. Pyron, survives, as well as two brothers; Luther and Albert Pyron of Selma, and two sisters, Miss Martha Pyron and Mrs. Horace Fulton, both of Bessemer, Alabama.

Pall bearers were: B. J. Sessions, W. G. Culp, H. S. Shaw, Tom Kemp, Jeff Ruffin and John Lott.

PROSPERITY AT ANY PRICE

[AN EDITORIAL]

The editor of this paper often thinks of a witty saying that gained recognition back about the time the United States was sending her sons across the pond by the millions to fight battles that we had little concern in. It went like this: "The United States is going to have peace if we have to whip everything in Europe to get it."

We discounted the cost and disregarded the ultimate consequence. Our national leaders went goofy over getting peace for Europe and "Making the world safe for Democracy." Or putting it in Biblical terms, we "Gagged at a gnat and swallowed a camel."

Today the term might sound something like this: "The United States is going to have prosperity if we have to 'bust' the country to get it." The present national administration seems to have forgotten everything except making everybody prosperous in a hurry, by destroying half of the nation's wealth and taxing the other half out of existence.

We could pay too big a price even for prosperity, and The Union-Banner believes that is exactly what we are doing. If this rise in business conditions can be made permanent, which we are afraid will not be the case, it is feared we will find that the price paid for it was too high.

At the present time the government is spending annually $3,500,000,000 more than it is taking in even from the various and sundry tax-gathering methods it has inaugurated. Are we getting prosperous to a pace in proportion to what the efforts are costing us in dollars and cents?

And speaking of taxes, we people of Alabama, the same as every other State, are paying on an average of three dozen different kinds of taxes to keep the State government operating. And at the present time the Alabama state debt has rached the staggering figures of $42,000,000, according to statistics recently made public. And it was under Democratic management that our State has come to possess this nice deficit. The Democrats can justly lay claim to the present rate at which we are piling up the national indebtedness, as well a great portion of the $28,000,000,000 which has already been incurred. But you haven't heard anything about taxes yet. The people of America are going to get good and tired of TAXES before they hear the last of it and before we pay for this prosperity which the Democrats are GIVING us.

Newspaper headings state that Alabama farmers are to get $150,000,000 and that Chilton farmers will be paid around $50,000 for not raising a certain acreage of cotton, etc. This all sounds good, but our farmers know that this money has to come from somewhere, and somebody some day is going to have to do hard, honest work to pay it back. We people right here in Chilton county, either directly or indirectly, will have to sweat for our part of it.

Another phase of the AAA business is that to an alarming extent it is making wards of the farmers of the country to the government. And who wants to be a ward to anybody or anything? Our farmers want to do honest work and get honest pay for what they do. Our people generally are not the kind to want continuous hand-outs; we want to earn our living and not be under bondage to anybody or anything—not even the government.

The AAA has changed America's stand in the textile business of the world from 60 per cent a few years ago to only 40 per cent now. Japan now leads the world in the textile industry. It is nice to get 12 cents for our cotton, but it is not so nice for us to let Japan and other foreign countries gradually cut the ground from under us and our world trade. That is exactly what is happening under the AAA.

This country is importing meat and meat products from foreign countries in great quantities, as a result of the pig slaughtering rampage of the AAA. During the first four months of this year we imported 120,180,000 pounds of meat and meat products from foreign countries. This business belonged to the meat raisers of America, but the AAA took it away from them.

We can never get permanent prosperity by starting at the top and working downward. We have got to build a solid foundation and from there gradually build upward before we really get anywhere.

July 30 Is Date Set For Solons To Reassemble

Graves Delays Action On Anti-Sedition Bill Till Session Reopens

Montgomery, Ala.—Alabama's Legislature Thursday stood in recess until July 30 after a busy one-day session Wednesday during which the $24,000,000 general revenue bill was signed into law, several administration "must" bills were given final passsage, and a number of new bills were received.

While the House was gripped in hot debate over the so-called Quinn bill, word was received that Governor Graves would delay until July 30 any action on the anti-sedition bill which is on his desk for his signing or veto.

In the "must" bills was the measure appropriating $500,000 to supplement federal funds for paying teachers' salaries, and another reorganizing the State Department of Education to reduce the number of divisions from 10 to 4.

Final passage was given bills creating a people's public service attorney, and setting up an oyster development commission.

NEW KIND OF COTTON GROWS IN BUNCHES

Mr. W. J. Best of Clanton Route 6 is trying a new variety of cotton this year. It is known as the Mars Rose, and the bolls grow in bunches. There are usually from two to seven bolls to the bunch, which, Mr. Best says, will greatly facilitate picking. Instead of picking one boll at a time, one can just reach and get a whole handful of cotton at one time.

Mr. Best invites anybody who wishes to come out to his farm and look over this new kind of cotton. He will be glad to show you around over it. This is the first year Mr. Best has tried this cotton, and he is expecting great returns form it.

Democrats On A Tour Checking Public Minds

New Deal Sends Out Scouts To View Reactions Of New Deal Acts

Washington, July 15.—New Deal political scouts are scattering over the country today to check reports that the Roosevelt Administration is slipping.

Emil Hurja, patronage dispenser of the Democratic National Committee, is taking political temperatures in the North Central part of the country in combined survey and vacation.

Postmaster General James A. Farley is ready for a swing through the Middle and Far West including a pause in Ohio where Democratic Gov. Martin L. Davey has been having trouble with the New Deal.

Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins' comment on administration of relief in Ohio brought a libel suit by the governor, but it subsequently was withdrawn.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace left yesterday. He will be gone three weeks on a tour which will extend to Seattle, Wash. President Roosevelt will go on the road if and when Congress adjourns. He would like to visit the exposition at ly done through private contractors. way places.

INCREASE OF 815 SHOWN ON B'HAM'S RELIEF ROLLS

Washington, July 1.—Birmingham's relief load of 24,567 persons in June showed an increase of 815 over the May figures, according to a report released by Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator.

Of 140 cities in a survey for the two months, 123 showed a decrease in relief rolls. According to the total for these cities, the number on relief declined 3.3 per cent, and expenditures dropped 6.6 per cent.

Montgomery reported a decrease of about 100 persons on its June relief roll of 3,685. Mobile's 5,857 persons on relief in June represented an increase of more than 300 over May.

Criticism Hides Praise For New Taxing Plans

Chamber of Commerce of U. S. Demands Slash In Rising Public Expenses

Washington, July 13.—A crossfire of vigorous criticism and hearty praise—but with criticism souding the louder—today rushed the President's tax plan to the bill-drafting stage.

In order to finish hearings today, the House ways and means committee met earlier than usual and sat later, giving up its usual Saturday recess. The sum and substance of what it heard was this:

A demand from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States for a reduction of expenditures if not a balanced budget through economy.

A remark by Chairman Doughton, (D), North Carolina, that all who had been heard, and that the committee probably could not take the bill up in executive session before week after next;

Insistence from the Merchants' Association of New York that the projected new levies be deferred until they can "be duly considered and enacted as a part of a properly coordinated plan for balancing the budget."

An assertion that the general conference of American rabbis "heartily approves" the President's plan.

Three Testify Against Bill

The Chamber of Commerce argument was presented by three witnesses, objecting to the tax plan in general and its four points in particular.

Fred H. Clusen, of Horicon, Wis., opposed the graduated corporation income tax to replace the present flat rate; Roy C. Osgood, of Chicago, objected to increases in inheritance and gift levies; E. C. Alvord, of Washington, spoke against higher personal income tax rates.

Clausen held that anything could "hardly be more inadvisable" than the new tax program which "may progressively diminish returns." He described the plan as "disturbing and harmful" and asserted it would "tend toward Federal monopolization of revenues to the detriment of State budgets."

On top of that, he contended, it would "add complexities to the rate structure . . . . which would prove more difficult of administration" than even the present involved laws. And furthermore, he added, it would "penalize" large corporations because of size and without regard for the economic advantages of big operations, and "have serious repercussions on employment."

Clausen said he would prefer a budget balanced by reduced expenditures to one levelled up by new taxes.

Alvord's argument was that higher personal income taxes would discourage individual incentive, that "funds will not be risked in new enterprises" and that the result would be a flight of capital from "producing activities into tax-exempt securities."

Kills Incentive To Thrift

Osgood contended that if estate and inheritance taxes should remove the incentive to "thrift and endeavor, and economic injury, not a benefit, must result."

Body Of Judge Deason Be Buried At Verbena

Funeral Services At Clanton Baptist Baptist Church Saturday Morning.

Early Wednesday morning, it was learned that former Judge E. B. Deason, age 64, died Tuesday night at a hospital in Boulder, Colorado.

Mrs. J. E. Gowan received a telegram stating that Judge Deason had succumbed following an operation.

Mrs. Deason, who was Miss Alice Strock of Verbena, died last August. The Deasons are well known throughout this section of the state, Mr. Deason having been former Judge of Probate of Chilton County. Two sons survive, William and Charles.

Mrs. Gowan stated that the body would be shipped to Clanton, arriving Friday afternoon. Funeral services will be held Saturday morning at Clanton Baptist Church, and the body will be carried to Verbena for burial.

DO YOU WANT TO PAVE THE STREET?

Government Proposes To Pay Part And Lend Money For The Rest

Since the street leading out Selma highway has been paved, people in other sections of town have looked somewhat with a view of envy upon the property owners out there, when they notice how much better it is than the residential sectons where dust and mud still predominate. Some have wondered if there would be a chance to get their streets paved.

Well, Mayor Jones as a plan to submit to the prop rty owners whereby they can get their streets paved, just like the Selma highway, and at minimum cost. Mr. Jones' letter below is self-explanatory. Read it and see if you do not want to take advantage of the extraordinary offer while you have a chance at it:

Clanton, Ala., July 15, 1935.

To The Property Owners of Clanton:

When I was elected Mayor last September I had no idea of trying to do any street paving. I had no hope that this much needed improvement could be accomplished for the reason I did not consider the city or the people either were prepared to carry the cost. It did not occur to me then that the government of the United States would today say to the property owners of Clanton: "If you will pave the street in front of your property, I will give you 45 per cent of the cost and lend you the 55 per cent balance at 4 per cent."

I have information from good authority the streets of Clanton can be paved 20 feet wide using the same material and specifications as was used on 4th avenue, or better known now as Selma highway, for approximately $9,000 per mile, and possibly less, if two miles or more of paving can be had under one contract.

The average resident lot in Clanton is 75 feet facing street, and the cost of this size lot would be only $41.25 to each property owner. Included in this price is the cost of paving all street intersections. This cost is arrived at after deducting the 45 per cent grant the government from the price of $9,000 per mile.

Just think of it, a most wonderful opportunity to get rid of the dust and mud at such a small cost, and at the same time elevate Clanton still higher in the minds of the people throughout the country. An offer that may never be made to you again. Can you afford not to take advantage of it? I think not. If you are interested in this proposition, I would like for you to tell me so. Get busy on your street and see if you can find anyone opposed to having this improvement done. It will not take long for two or three people to canvass each property owner on each street and let each owner of a lot sign request for the paving to be done. I suggest that the property owners on each street and avenue look after their own interest and canvass their street or avenue only.

This offer by the government to individual owners of property is the best and most liberal I ever knew to be made in a business way, and I hope you will accept it promptly.—Yours very truly, C. Fenn Jones, Mayor.

THE HOME MAKERS S. S. CLASS TO HAVE PICNIC LUNCH JULY 21

The Home Makers Sunday school class of Clanton Baptist Church will have their regular class meeting Friday afternoon, July 21, at Mims's Pond on Lay Dam road. We will have the regular meeting and then the picnic.

Each member bring a small lunch and be at the church at 4 o'clock. All members are urged to be present.

Mr. Thames Forsyth returned Monday from a two-weeks vacation trip to Huntsville and Columbus. He spent a week at each place.

Alabama To Start Big Highway Constructions

Montgomery, July 15.—First projects of the State Highway Department's $4,185,732 Federal road program and the $4,151,115 grade separation program were to be announced today as the department received regulations from Washington governing expenditure of the funds.

All contracts will be let to private contractors, H. H. Houk, department engineer, said. The regulations permit the state department to rent equipment and supervise the jobs, but, Mr. Houk said, experience has proved the contracts can be more economically through private contractors.

All workers employed will be obtained through the National Re-Employment Service.

The department will decide on wage scales to be paid with the apporval of the Federal Bureau of Public Roads. Wages are expected to average about 30 cents per hour, with a maximum of 75 cents for highly skilled work. Each worker will be limited to a 130-hour month and an eight-hour day.

Total cost of projects must be such that at least $1,400 is allowed for each man employed per year. Contractors must certify the number of men they will employ on a project. And at least 40 per cent of a project's cost must go for labor.

Nelson and children, Jim Harvey, Vera Mae, Barney and Mildred, Mrs. Molly Chitty, Mr. and Mrs. Britten Nelson and children, Katherine, Kate, Phelix and James, Mr. and Mrs. Tuskin Nelson and children, Ervin and Lucile, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Williams, Mr. and Mrs. John Cagle and children, Evere, John, Jr., and Charles Daniel, Mr. E. L. Manning, all of Verbena.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Nelson and children, Zula, Emma, John, Mable, Mary, Francis, Buster, James and Billy. Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Nelson and children, Lou, Donie, Ester, Homer, Cary, Gladys, Morris and Minnie Myrle, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Keen and children, Eloise, Warren and Louise, Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Bice and daughter. Mrs. Minnie Mullins, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Billingsley, Mr. and Mrs. Will Moates and children, all of Clanton. Mr. W. A. Campbelle and daughter, Essie, Mr. and Mrs. George Julian and children, Ruth and Myra, Mr. and Mrs. David Smith, all of Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Robinson and children, Douglas, Audrey and Dorothy Nell of Knoxvile, Tenn.,

The afternoon visitors were: Miss Louise Smith, Mr. W. L. Henderson, Mr. Joe Berry Jones.

Those absent were Mrs. W. A. Campbelle, Mrs. David Smith and little daughter, Lonella, Mr. and Mrs. William Campbelle, all of Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Blair of Birmingham. Mr. and Mrs. Dock Hilyer and little daughter, Imogene, of Clanton.

Late in the afternoon goodbyes were said and everybody returned home wishing them to have many more such days.

LEAVE YOUR CONTRIBUTION TO THE FIREMEN WITH MR. DIEF OR JOHN BROWDER

Anyone who has not already been seen and wants to contribute something toward helping equip and decorate the firemen's quarters in the new city hall building should see either Mr. L. E. Diefenderfer, or Chief of Police John Browder. It is intended to fix up this part of the building nicely, and a lot of the citizens of Clanton have contributed toward it. Those in charge of raising the fund wish that no one be slighted.

Several members of the chapter plan to visit Deatsville chapter Friday evening of this week for a public installation of officers.

STATE GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., July 16.—Having invited President Roosevelt and the governors of the 48 states to Alabama's seventh annual deep sea fishing rodeo, Gov. Bibb Graves this week dispatched special invitations to approximately 200 more persons prominent in national and state governmental affairs. The rodeo dates from July 22 to 24.

The recipient of this new batch of invitations included members of President's cabinet, his private secretary, numerous officials high in the ranks of the New Deal, U. S. Senators and Representatives, national conservation leaders and the game and fish commissioner of each state.

Mobile Bay and the adjoining waters in which the rodeo is held are reported teeming with game fish, particularily the silvery tarpon, and L. G. Adams, president of the rodeo association, says the outlook is bright for a new record registeration.

CARD OF THANKS

Please allow us space in your paper to express our thanks to our many friends, the pallbearers, and Mr. Martin, the undertaker, for their kindness shown us in our recent bereavement.—Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Kelley and Family.

Mr. Parker Taylor left Monday morning for the Legion Convention at Mobile.

Prof. A. O. Boswell reports that he has 47 on roll in his singing school now in progress at Jackson Chapel. He is well pleased with the school.

FINANCIAL PARTICIPATION IN FOREST PROTECTION

Montgomery.—That timber growers are becoming increasingly interested in the system of cooperative fire protection afforded through the supervision and financial participation of the State and Federal Government is evidenced by the fact that five additional landowners in one South Alabama county have just entered into cooperative agreement with the State Commission of Forestry. Owners of sizeable areas aggregating around fifty thousand acres, or more, of timberland often find it practicable to handle their fire protection along with their other operations, such as logging, trespass prevention, etc. Holders of young timber in smaller or more scattered tracts, however, frequently are unsuccessful in their single handed efforts. Several such owners in a locality, banding together in protection activites, may solve both the problem of cost and that of effective results.

In the case of the five south Alabama forest owners, whose lands are in the same general vicinity, an arrangement was made with the State for each owner to pay to the Commission of Ferostry a small fee of a few cents per acre per annum to which the Commission adds a like amount of State and Federal money, setting up a joint account reserved for expenditure in the area comprising the holdings of the cooperators. The next step is for the State to prepare a fire plan drawn up with view to both efficient and economic administration, followed by the selection of patrolmen and other personnel to keep watch over the woodlands and to work up the interest and cooperation of other citizens in the locality in the keeping down of fire protection improvements such as trails, firebreaks, observation towers, etc.

While under extermely hazardous conditions it sometimes may be necessary to increase the allotment during the year, usually, under similar arrangements, it has been possible to effect small savings out of the joint annual appropriation to form an emergency reserve calculated to carry the work through any unexpected contingencies. Owners who have followed this method of cooperation during past seasons state that they have achieved much better and less expensive protection than when attempting these activities as a part of their regular operations and without the supervision of the State.

SAFETY FACTOR IS IMPORTANT PHASE OF TREADPRINTING

Offers Public Opportunity To Check Up On Its Tires Without Obligation

Public consciousness of the fact that motoring is no safer than the tires which equip the automobile, has been aroused by the campaign launched by Goodyear in a safety drive to check up on tires that are dangerous.

Dramatized by the treadprint plan, by the inspection stories of Joseph A. Faurot, fingerpinting and crime expert, who made a survey for the tire company, and carried through to be careful inspection of the tires on cars of customers, a definite, well-planned program to eliminate the unsafe tire equipment on highways this summer has been producing results.

"Certainly it is a plan to help business," said L. E. Diefenderfer, local Goodyear dealer. "But it is more than just that. It is a worthwhile safety measure which we Goodyear dalers believe will pay big dividends in lives saved, accidents prevented and general safety improvement right when it is needed most—at the peak of the year's biggest driving season.

"The treadprint operation provides a quick, simple, but positive proof of the exact condition of the tires on the car, and this check-up is offered without obligation," Mr. L. E. Diefenderfer said.

"We can show anyone in a minute just what his tires will do in case of emergency stops on the highway, because we can see what there is in the way of tread to provide adequate traction if a quick demand is placed upon the carcass. The car owner can hold the proof of his tire's ability in his hand and see at close range upon just what his motoring safety depends.

"Hundreds of motorists are availing themselves of the opportunity to check up on their safety, which places them at no obligation. I certainly am glad to do my small share in helping make driving safer this summer."

County Farm Agent's Notes

POTATO PLANTING SCHEDULE GIVEN

Auburn, Ala.—The fall crop of Irish potatoes should be planted the latter part of July or in August, the exact time depending upon the section of the state in which the potatoes are being planted, advises Julian Brown, extension horticulturist.

"The potatoes should be planted in the northern sections of the State from July 20 to August 1; in the middle area from August 10 to 20; and in the southern sections from August 20 to Septemher 1. Nothing is to be gained by planting during mid-summer when temperatures are high and moisture is quite limited.

"Because of high temperature at planting time the seed pieces should be planted deeper than is recommended for the spring planting, unless the field is to be mulched.

"Growers should plant their fall crop of potatoes in a low moist area, or as nearly so as possible. Mulching with three or four inches of leaves or straw will tend to keep the soil cool, help maintain a favorable level of the moisture, and greatly increase the vield."

County agents are advising farmers how to treat spring-grown potatoes to make them sprout.

FARM WOMEN OFFERED NEW FOODS BULLETINS

Auburn, Alabama.—In an efort to assist Alabama housewives in providing balanced, year round diets for their families, the Alabama Extension Service has published a new booklet, "Food Preservation," by Miss Margaret Garrett, specialist n food preservation. The booklet is for free distribution and may be obtained from the County Home Demonstration Agents or from Miss Garrett.

ITCH STOPS Like Magic!

Folks who have used HYDROSAL for itching, burning outbreaks could hardly believe such quick relief was possible! Doctors have prescribed HYDROSAL for 23 years. Even in stubborn, torturing eczema, Athlete's Foot (or "Itchy Toes"), rashes and pimples, the burning and itching fade away the minute HYDROSAL touches the skin. HYDROSAL penetrates the skin and acts to check growth of the germ causing local disorder. Gives Nature real help to quick healing. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau. Money back if it does not satisfy you. At all druggists in two forms, liquid and ointment—30c and 60c sizes.

SHOULTS NEWS

Rev. W. E. Robinson of Clanton, the pastor of our church here (Pleasant Grove No. 2) just closed a very successful revival. By his heart-stiring messages, the members were awakened to their sense of duty toward the church and community. The visible results were 13 additions to the church. New interest and enthusiasm is being manifest by a great number of the members. Brother Robinson preaches the Bible whether it suits the people or not and that is what we have needed for a long time.

A large crowd attended Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. Sunday.

Mrs. Willie Hicks, director of B. Y. P. U. entestained the senior union Saturday night at her home. Games and contests were enjoyed, after which ice cream and cake were served by the hostess, assisted by her sister, Miss Allie Walker.

Plans have been made to begin to rebuild the church which was blown down recently by the wind. Services are now being held in the school building. A great spirit of cooperation seems to exist among the entire community and we feel that we will soon be able to worship in our church again. Any member of Pleasant Grove who lives out of the community, is invited to come next and give work or money, or both.

The many friends of Mrs. J. R. McAfee are happy to learn that she is fastly improving.

Miss Novce Garner returned to Montgomery Sunday after spending last week with relatives here.

Mr. James Shoults and sister, Margarett of Birmingham are spending a few days with their parents here Mr. and Mrs. Croff Shoults.

Miss Eva Jane Bearden is improving since returning home from a hospital in Selma.

Mr. and Mrs. Alonza Askins and little David Glennis of Clanton motored over to Tuscaloosa Sunday and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Richards. Miss Vivian Silas and Miss Bernice Davis, who have been visiting friends and relatives in Tuscaloosa and Maron, returned home with them.

Save YOUR CLOTHES

Many a hole is blamed upon moths which is really caused by dirt. Little grains of dirt, often coated with acid from smoke laden air, lodge in cloth, accumulate moisture and set to work to excavate an ugly hole in that perfectly good suit or dress. If you have your clothing cleaned regularly, soil is removed before it gets in its dirty work. You'll save money in the long run—and look well continuously.

S. R. Butler, state tax commissioner, revealed that the assessed value of taxable property in Alabama declined $312,771,631 in the past four years.

Plans for establishing a Cooperative Self-Help Cannery in Selma have been announced with the federal meat cannery to provide the nucleus for the project.

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

By Dr. ALLEN G. IRELAND
Director, Physical and Health Education New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction

Sissy

Only one who has been called "sissy" in real earnest can describe the full horror of what is implied.

Our mistake is to say "Oh, it's just a kid's fun, it doesn't mean anything." And it's a particularly sad mistake when spoken by one who is the parent or teacher of a child so tagged by his playmates. Because it means that a real opportunity for service is being overlooked. It's a challenge.

When the kids tag on that label "sissy" don't think it's their mistake. They're seldom wrong. They know all the signs. If you can, consult a good psychologist or psychiatrist. "Sissy" needs the best treatment. If you can't, steel yourself to keep hand's off. Let him fight his own battles. Let him taste defeat. Withhold your too ready sympathy, but show interest in his every effort to make good. Encourage self-confidence, and for each success have a simple word of praise.

Encourage hobbies, is Dr. Ireland's advice to the school. He tells why in his next article.

STATE TEACHERS EXAMINATION

The annual state examination for teachers will be held at the Chilton County High School, Clanton, on July 15, 16 and 17, 1935. No applicant shall be permitted to write the examination in any county unless engaged in school work in such county, except the county of his residence, without the written approval of the State Superintendent of Education. Any request for such approval should be endorsed by the Superintendent of Education of the county in which the person making the request is living, teaching, or attending school.

Satisfactory evidence is required of every person before being admitted to the examination, of good moral character, of legal age of seventeen years, and of accredited senior high school graduation, or its equivalent; provided that this academic requirements shall not operate to exclude any person who has held a regular Alabama Teachers' Certificate. A uniform fee of $2.00 is required of every person admitted to the examination.

No second grade examination is offered but applicants for first grade failing to meet minimum requirements for a first grade certificate, making as high as 40 per cent on every subject and a general average of at least 65 per cent, may receive a scond grade certificate.

No certificate of lower rank than second grade will be issued hereafter on examination. No second grade certificate may be substituted hereafter as part of the requirement for obtaining a first grade certificate.

Each applicant for a life certificate shall submit to the examiner satisfactory evidence of having had at least four years of successful teaching experience in the schools of Alabama while holding a first grade certificate, or one of equal or of higher rank. The old certificate should be enclosed with the examination papers.

All applicants should be present at 9:00 o'clock Monday morning, July 15.

REVIVAL MEETING BEGINS JULY 21ST

Rev. J. Fred Sparks Will Conduct Services at Clanton Methodist Church

Members of the Clanton Methodist Church are enthusiastically talking plans for the series of revival services which will begin on July 21, with the Rev. J. Fred Sparks, former conference evangelist of the north Alabama conference, doing the preaching.

Merchants of Clanton have consented to close their places of business for one hour each day during the time of preaching, so as to allow their employees the opportunity of attending.

Below is a copy of the agreement: "In order to express our desire to cooperate, and to allow our employees, if they wish to do so, to attend the if they wish to do so, to attend the services, we the following, hereby agree to close our places of business for one hour each day, such hour being the one designated for services at the Clanton Methodist Church Revival, and the Baptist Church Revival, which will begin shortly after the close of the Methodist Revival." This was signed by the following:

W. J. Billingsley, J. D. Bell, Watts Hat Shoppe, Wade's Grocery Co., J. R. Kemp, W. H. Hayes, A & P Tea Co., by G. C. Armstrong, Big Four Hardware, Hill Grocery Company, by L. J. Stewart, Mgr., Taylor Dry Goods Co., Peoples Cash Store, Clanton Jr. Department Store, Clanton Cash Store, W. J. Easterling, Clanton Shoe Shop, Mazar's Department Store, Ben Margolis—"Ben's," V. J. Elmore's 5c, 10c & $1.00 Store, M. A. Gore, The Leader.

Managers of several other concerns were out of town, but it is believed that their names will be added to the above agreement.

Present plans call for the services to begin at 10 o'clock in the morning and last until 11 o'clock. It is expected that services will continue for two weeks at the Methodist Church.

On August 4th, revival services will begin at the Clanton Baptist Church with Dr. A. H. Reid of Birmngham doing the preaching, and Mr. Plunkett Martin of Lafayette directing the singing.

Emphasize Your Points of Charm

We're celebrating our Eighth Birthday in Clanton during the month of July. These years of service have taught us that every woman has points of charm which it is wise to develop and emphasize. A permanent wave to us is more than a certain amount of curls—it must become your wave, blended to your type of beauty, and develop YOUR personality and complete attractiveness. Every one of our different services must always harmonize with the particular person who is being served.

That has been our ideal for eight years. It has met with constantly growing approval. Old customers have remained with us, new ones have been added regularly. We are grateful for this patronage, and pledge ourselves to continue a high type of service, at a reasonable price. During July we are making some Special Offers. Plan Services For Two Weeks; Baptist Revival Follows

Plans are rapidly being worked into shape for revival services which will begin at the Methodist Church Sunday, July 21. The Rev. J. Fred Sparks, former conference evangelist in the North Alabama Conference, will assist the pastor. Mrs. Barney Roberts, Mrs. Percy Pitts, Mr. Evan Parrish and Mr. Percy Pitts will have charge of the music and singing for this series of services.

Other committees have been selected to round out a complete program of inspiration, entertainment, prayer meetings, publicity and finance.

Two services daily will be held, in the morning and at night. The pastor and committees are urging all people of this vicinity to make their arrangements to attend all these services. The Rev. Sparks will bring messages which should be of great benefit to the people of our town. The music and singing will be delightful.

You and your friends are all invited to attend every service.

GO HOME, CONGRESS!

We have had enough tinkering with the Constitution. It has served well and efficiently in safeguarding the rights of the people and forwarding the interests of the nation more than 150 years.

Those who would now change the fundamentals of this solid bulwark of American liberty and safety may well consider the caution of Daniel Webster in an address delivered on the centennial anniversary of Washinugton's birth. Citing that America could, and undoubtedly would, recoup from the effects of disasterous wars or other misfortunes that might sweep out commerce from the oceans, exhaust the treasury or desolate our fields and industry, this great American warned—

"But who shall reconstruct the fabric of demolished government: who shall rear again the well-proportioned columns of of constitutional liberty; who shall frame together the skillful architecture which unites national sovereignty with state rights, individual security, and public prosperity? No, if these columns fall, they will be raised not again."

The very suggestion to take away from the states the power now vested in them to determine their own affairs and to create an empire without state lines, is abhorent.

Again we say, if Congress wishes to serve the public, the best step it can take is to adjourn, go home, give the people a rest, and business a chance to go forward.—Atlanta Constitution.

Gertrude Stein, the writer, recently commented that the duststorms were "wonderful." Gertrude, we suspect, could find something cute about smallpox.—South Bend, Indiana Tribune.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

Political writers who have been busy guessing what conservative support might be alienated by the New Dealers from the present administration have frequently mentioned those who believe in the doctrine of states' rights. They have generally dismissed the states' rights advocates as a group in the South with considerable weight in public opinion but numerically unimportant. It is barely possible that these forecasters have been underestimating the strength of those who advocate what is popularly known as the doctrine of states' rights. Nor is it entirely sure that all of these advocates reside south of the Mason and Dixon line.

"Is it the sense of the Pennsylvania Bar Association that no amendments to the Constitution should be made which would transfer to the federal government the long established rights of the states in matters affecting the lives and affairs of their citizens."

It is true that a few members of the association, among them Assistant District Attorney John W. Murphy, of Scranton, objected to the resolution, according to news reports, as entirely too wide in scope, and applicable to any amendments which might be offered in the future. The objections were overruled by the association members, however, and the resolution went over with a bang, with only a scattering of audible objections, when a viva voce vote was taken.

Now Pennsylvania is not a Southern state. In the Civil War when, so the historians tell us, a very pressing phase of state rights was up for settlement, Pennsylvania was on the side of the federal government, which maintained that the rights of a state did not include the right of secession. But times have changed. There is no longer any talk of a right of secession. No states are more devoted to the welfare of the nation than those south of the Mason and Dixon line in these modern twentieth century days. Opinion about some of the rights of states has changed. A great many people, North as well as South, who have believed that the Constitution established a well balanced government, with the states and communities retaining the fullest share possible of liberty of action, have now come to the point where they believe that the danger is not from a disruption of the Union, but from the absorbing of the powers of the state by a bureaucratic government at the National Capital.

This, it will be remembered, was the fear of many of those who discussed the Constitution of the country at the time it was formed. But the fear was not to become acute until the country had been tried and firmly welded in the terrible heat of four years of Civil War, and then another seventy years had passed. But now the time has come when a distinguished bar association, in a solid and sane commonwealth like Pennsylvania, in the North and not in the South, passes a resolution directed against further tinkering with the Constitution to interfere with states' rights.

It would seem therefore that the question of states rights is not confined to a comparatively small group in the South. The idea seems to be percolated into Pennsylvania. Perhaps it will be found in New England, in Indiana, in Missouri and elsewhere. There is no telling. Nothing spreads in America like a good fundamental idea when properly presented. Just what the political effect will be nobody can foretell but the states' rights theory certainly is spreading.

THE POOR PAY, TOO

Among the objections to the proposed "soak the rich" or "share the wealth" bill which is now occupying the newspapers as well as the members of Congress are some to the effect that the program will induce government control of large corporations and so bring on state socialism.

Many people say that they are not interested because they do not possess fortunes and are not interested in big corporations. Well, let us think for a moment about that. Every American is interested in eliminatiug the depression. Everyone will agree that what we want to do is to induce business men, especially those who are interested in the so-called heavy industries which are still flat, to invest their money and to branch out in activities which will put more money in circulation and make more jobs.

Now in this modern society which we have, the thing which induces men to risk their capital to venture out into business is the incentive of profit. With no chance to profit there will be continued business stagnation. Therefore, unless we want to go into the business of "manufacture for use and not for profit" which is socialism and spells moral and economic disintegration, then we certainly do not want to put any barriers in the way of legitimate business development. Certainly taxation which eliminates the hope for profit reacts not only on the man or the industry taxed, but on all the people.

The fallacy that the "rich" and the "giant corporations" can be made to bear the tax burden is one of the most dangerous errors of political thought. It makes it easy for demagogues to revel in public extravagance and the expenditure of public money on the theory that they are "helping the poor" and that the "rich will have to pay." No system which will soak the rich and the rich only for the benefit of the poor has ever been devised. The consumer pays and the poor man is a bigger consumer in proportion than the rich man so far as his means are concerned.

This theory is not advanced idly and there is plenty of substantiation in sound works of economics printed in every civilized language. But there is support for the contention even closer home. For example, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States, in an address at Pittsburgh, October 19, 1932, before his election, said on the subject of taxation:

"Quite apart from every man's own tax assessment, that burden is a brake on any return to normal business activity.

"Taxes are paid in the sweat of every man who labors because they are a burden on production and can be paid only by production. If excessive, they are reflected in idle factories, tax-sold farms, and hence, in hordes of the hungry stamping the streets and seeking jobs in vain.

"Our workers may never see a tax bill, but they pay in deductions from wages, in increased cost of what they have to buy, or (as now) in broad cessation of employment."

There can be no question as to the truth of these sentences. Our principal difficulty will be to hew the tax bills of 1935 to this line of the sound logic of 1932.

CANADIAN LARD

With all the talk about increasing our foreign trade to help the farmers, on the one hand, and the decrease in production in America with an increase of the cost of production tending to curtail our farm exports, on the other hand, the most significant fact now is that the AAA program of farm scarcity seems to be working faster than big foreign trade idea. The result of the program of costliness and scarcity has been to take former alien markets for agricuitural produce away from us and to encourage the importation of foreign farm produce to the United States.

Imports of grains, meat products and other farm produce have been jumping by leaps and bounds during the past few months, due to our own shortage and the fact costs are so high here and so low abroad and that the aliens can scale our tariff walls and still come in. The proof of the pudding is the eating thereof. In the first quarter of 1935 the increase of our importation of general farm products over the similar period of 1934 is disconcerting to say the least.

For example, the United States Chamber of Commerce figures show that our importation of farm commodities for the first three months of 1935 amounted to $496,000,000. This was the heaviest in a long time. It certainly is going to be difficult to find foreign markets for our farm goods when the alien producers can pay our tariff and then undersell us in our own markets.

Take the case of lard for instance. According to the Labor Digest, an American labor paper which believes in protecting the job and living standard of the workng man in the United States, packers in Chicago are killing only one fifth as many hogs as a year ago and thousands of workers have been thrown out of jobs.

In addition to this, scarcity and the processing tax have enabled American chain stores and packers to import lard from Canada, paying off the tariff duty of three cents per pound and still saving four cents on the American product on account of the processing tax. Fine work on the part of the AAA. Unfortunately, Mr. Wallace or somebody forgot to levy a processing tax on foreign lard.

Two chain store systems are reported to have imported thirty-one carloads of Canadian lard and one important packer, not in Chicago, is said to have imported thirteen cars. And the fun is only begun.

Of course it is a new collegiate system. American farmers are paid to kill young pigs, and to refrain from raising hogs. The consumer is taxed to pay the farmer. Then the cost of the American products is so high that the big dealers buy Canadian lard and the money goes out of the country. The sum of $496,000,000 which American farmers should have, went out during the first three months of this year.

In the meantime our statesmen are negotiating to bring in cheap products of other nations and sell them our farm produce—at a time when some are already selling us their farm produce. Maybe a little time could be profitably spent making a sensible survey of the situation and looking after our tariff.

BACK TO INFLATION TALK

The President painted an honest picture of what uncontrolled inflation means. He should admit with equal honesty that uncontrolled spending, an unbalanced budget, continued and growing deficits, are responsible for this insistent demand for printing-press inflation. He has condemned an effect, but he has not faced with equal courage and honesty the cause back of the effect. So long as we have extravagant and uncontrolled government spending, just so long will the nation be faced by the menacing threat of uncontrolled inflation.—Mankato, Minn., Free Press.

It is said that when one five pound jelly fish is evaporated it weighs less than 1 100 of an ounce. We know a lot of heavy drinkers that remind us of that.

MAN IN THE MOON

IS THAT SO?

The Montgomery Journal has seen fit to comment very caustically on The Union-Banner's editorial, carried a few days ago, in regard to the absentee ballot law.

The Journal says that it believes that the result would have been the same here in Chilton County in the last election f there had been no absentee ballot. We don't think so. Consider these facts.

The absentee box gave the Democrats over a 300 majority in that box. Is it reasonable to believe that 7 out of 8 people who have left the county are Democrats? You know it isn't!

In addition to this, it is said that ballots were cast in that box for people who have been dead for years. Also, we are told, certan people who were out of the county at the time were sent quantities of absentee ballots. They distributed them among people with whom they came in contact, and they were sent in and COUNTED, although numbers of them had never been in the county and never expected to be—for these VOTERS there was absolutely no record, of course. Yet they were counted.

We are told, also, that some of our people were approached in other towns and cities, and asked to mark a ballot for the Democrats, with an added incintive of a few dollars Chilton County in the last election if there privileges allowed them under the law) but election day came around, they came to Chilton County and asked for these ballots (a "bonus". Some of them did this, then when their request was refused. Those ballots were COUNTED, too. Is that practice honest and ethical? Is it even lawful? We think not, and we believe any honest man or woman, be they Democrat or Republican, will say it is not.

Of course, any person who would go to such low methods to secure votes is absolutely without honor or principle. But the point we wish to make here is that such practices are possible under our present absentee ballot law, and for this reason the law should be abolished.

The Journal says it is constrained to take any Republican utterance with a grain of salt. We can go them one better on that score. Our experience is that to be on the safe side it is best not to believe ANYTHING some Democrats say in regard to politics.

AT IT AGAIN

Gee! Golly! Gosh! They're at it again—Huey Long and President Roosevelt. They're into it with both feet, hot and heavy, too, and there are no bouquets being thrown, either.

It all started when President Roosevelt sent word to Long that there must be no political scheming in the work of doling out federal aid in Louisiana. "The kingfish" took exception to this, the reason, he said, being that the president was "insinuating" that he was a crook. The president laid down a rule that any federal aid would be given out in Louisiana through federal agencies in the Magnolia state, and not through state agencies, as will be the case in other states. We might add, too, that the same applies to Georgia.

"The kingfish" got busy. He called his "Longislature" together at once and passed a handful of bills providing for the appointment of personnel of such distributing agencies by civil service commission, the Louisiana branch of which is controlled, body and soul, by Sen. Long. Accordng to reports, these bills were railroaded through the state legislature at the speed of two per minute. That's making laws in a hurry, if you ask me. The only way that the president can give out any federal aid in Louisiana then, is through Long, and the president has stated that before he will do this he will cancel that state's appropriations entirely.

Not so long ago, just after the president had threatened cutting off the appropriations, Sen. Long sent the president a wire that he could "go slam-bang to hell, by gosh" with his federal aid, if he felt that way about it. And a few nights ago he made a two-hour speech over a state-wide radio hook-up, in which he branded the president a liar and a thief, as well as various and sundry other names. He accused him of trying to steal his "share-the-wealth" thunder, and of lieing about the methods Long had used in dispensing the federal aid in the past. Sen. Long said in this talk: "I'm as big a man as Roosevelt, and far more popular in my own state. If he could manage his job as well as I do mine he could get along easier. Some of these days I'm going to get riled at them goats and go up there to Washington and take their dadgummed hides off. They make me tired, sniveling around like spoiled kids—Roosevelt and his school teachers."

JAPANESE TRADE

The Japanese nation has declared a trade war on the rest of the world, and the success of it, so far, is assured in a big way. Every nation on the fact of the earth is giving out statistics showing more imports from Japan than exports to her.

Let's look into the cause of all this. Economic disorders are rampant in every nation except Japan and Italy, and even Italy is far behind the Japanese in the matter of putting their economic house in order. We must admit that the standard of living and working conditions in Japan are far below that of our own country. This allows a lower wage standard.

Then, the Japanese have no hampering system of codes and trade laws to slow down industry and trade, either within the nation or in their international dealings. There are no paralyzing process taxes, and no limitation laws on production. Hence there are no labor troubles. The people of the country are too busy to take time off to wrangle over wage rates. The only governmental restrictions are against imports. They allow only a limited import of certain commodities, and commodities which are or can be produced in Japan find a trade door slammed in their faces by governmental order. In this manner Japan has managed to become the nearest to a self-supporting nation of all. They have adopted the "trade-at-home" idea on a national scale, and to say that it has been successful is putting it mildly.

As might be expected, this has put everyone to work who wants a job, and this has removed their unemployment problem. We are told that in the land of the rising sun no one is idle who wants to work. This means that nearly all Japs are at work—laziness is one thing that has never been laid at the door of the Japanese. Japan is the yellow jacket of the universe. If you have ever tied into a yellow jacket nest you know that the busy little fellows mean business when they go to work on you. Japan has taken a leading place in the world's affairs, and the nations of the world, even our own, would do well to copy her plans and policies, at least along lines of commerce.

Some reviewer says that Greta Garbo, who is a very popular actress, knows nothing about politics. Of course. Greta is a European and if she were a politician she would be a European politician. Then instead of saying "I want to be alone," she would put it," I want to make a loan."

State police in Kentucky are said to have cautioned people about permitting livestock to get out on the travelled highways. But if we are going to kill 'em and get rid of 'em anyhow, why not let the automobles do some of it?

The fact that a tax plan which amounts to a "redistribution of wealth plan" has been offered to Congress, may indicate that the White House thought that Huey Long was right after all.

There is some indication that a "divide the wealth plan" may be adopted but we won't be satisfied unless they give us Doc Townsend's old age pension plan for a chaser.

Railway labor executives are reported to have come out for a plan for federal railroads. Not being satisfied to have business men run the railways maybe they think politicians could do it better.

Of course the United States might sink its navy as an example to the rest of the world. Then we would have two examples for the rest of the world; the United States and China.

140 YEARS OF LIFE

Now and then we hear people say life is a great disappointment, or rather, a series of them. Yet, for the most part, we find everyone trying to live just as long as possible. Must be that we humans like our disappointments, or we wouldn't want to live so long.

We are promised but 70 years of life. Our Bible leads us to believe that our forefathers are to blame for this, though. We are told that because of the sins of our fathers, the age, and finds that by a procedure of injec- age limit was around a thousand years. Little by little this limit was cut down to our present 70. Too, our statisticans tell us that only a very small percentage of people of the present day and age reach 70. We are taught that man has waxed more and more sinful since the very beginning. Gee, but some of those old boys must have been wheel horses in their day.

Now, however, comes a scientist who says he has hopes of doubling our normal span of life. He hopes to be able to show that man can live to the age of 140. How? He has made experiments with the blood of monkeys and other animals which live to ripe old ages, and finds that by a procedure of injection of this blood into the veins of humans, that the life span is increased.

He has found that human blood is divided into four basic divisions, or classes. He finds, too, that the blood of monkeys and certain other animals whose life span is much longer than that of humans, is likewise divided into four clases, each of which corresponds closely to a class of human blood. It is a simple matter he has found, to inject blood of one of these classes into its corresponding blood class among humans, and he claims that he has observed wonderful results. He admits that his tests are only in a primary stage as yet, but that the results he has noted so far lead him to believe that in the not too distant future, by such injection of monkey blood into humans, the age span of the race may be lengthened—possibly doubled.—Man in the Moon.

RED INK

Uncle Sam has a different "year" than the one on the calendar. His fiscal year closes on June 30th and then there is a balancing of books. Of course there has been no balancing of budgets in this country for some little time.

The new fiscal year began as usual July 1. There was no ringing of bells and no rejoicing, so far as can be learned. It was hot and sultry in Washington, which is not conducive to celebrating. And at any rate it is a little hard to work up any enthusiasm over a deficit of three and one half billion dollars. That is the amount it costs to keep Uncle Sam during the year more than he took in.

According to figures which were made public by the Associated Press, the government collected fifty-two cents for every dollar which it spent. In other words, every time Uncle Sam put out a dollar he lacked 48 cents of taking in that much money. And he put out a lot of money. The fact that his deficit was $3,500,000,000 indicates it. No further evidence is necessary.

According to the preliminary figures given out by the Associated Press, with two days' transactions still to be reported in detail, the expenditures of the national government exceeded the revenues by $3,472,000,000. Of course that lacks $28,000,000 of being three and a half billion dollars, but Uncle Sam has been spending money so rapidly during the past two years that a mere $28,000,000 seems by comparison just like what the boys around the country store used to call "chicken feed."

The only bright spot in the picture, if you can call it really bright, is the fact that our deficit isn't quite so large for 1934 as it was for 1933 when it was $3,881,000,000. Of course when you run three and one half billion dollars behind in one year, it doesn't seem to make much difference about a few extra millions anyhow, but what we are wondering is: how about the size of the deficit when the college boys get to putting out that $4,800,000,000, recently provided by Congress?

Of course when we say "provided by Congress" it must be admitted that Congress didn't really provide it. What the appropriation meant was that Uncle Sam was authorized to borrow and spend something like $5,000,000,000—he is out of cash and heavily in debt already. When the payoff comes and the money really has to be raised the people of the United States will do the providing.

Now, according to the figures, the public debt has been raised to $28,665,000,000. It will go considerably higher. But what's the difference? Once you get above the clouds it doesn't hurt you any more to fall ten miles than it does eight. The effect is all the same.

HORSE AND BUGGY DAYS

"Horse and buggy days" were referred to by the President in a press conference recently.

What's the matter with the "horse and buggy days"? They were pretty good days as we remember them.

In the "horse and buggy days" a boy had a job all staked out for him before he quit school. It was arranged that he go into a bank, or a blacksmith shop, or a print shop, or that he would study law or medicine.

He looked forward to the time when he could "establish himself" in some business. Perhaps he figured on marrying the banker's daughter and moving into the big stone house with the fancy hitching post out in the front.

If he didn't have a horse and buggy he could rent one for an afternoon and evening for about $1.50. The rubber tired rigs and faster horses cost more. Once or twice a month he could show the girl friend a real evening.

Perhaps you stopped for a glass of lemonade, or you took home a pint of ice cream and ate it in the hammock on the front lawn. The parents were always up to see what time you arrived and if you didn't leave by 10:30 some gentle hints were passed.

What was wrong with that, says the Murphysboro Daily Independent, in describing a similar scene. "It was a pleasant, peaceful, prosperous and happy America in the 'horse and buggy' days."—Sparta, Ill., News Plaindealer.

PRUDENT COUNSEL

Mr. Lowden prudently counsels the Republican Party and, through it, the American people, that preservation of the basic principles of the Constitutions is the supreme issue of the hour. "We may have faith that other problems, pressing though they may be, will find a proper solution if we maintain the essentials of our government."

"It is apparent that upon this great issue, the Republican Party must take the lead. "It would be false to its traditions and its history if it faltered now * * *. It must draw to its standards all those, of whatever political faith, who believe in the form of government established by the fathers and sanctioned by the blood of patriots upon a thousand battlefields."

It is truly upon preservation of these Constitutional fundamentals that we must rely for the preservation of "an indissoluble union of indestructible states." This relance completely transcends factional differences, personal rivalries, minor dissimularities of outlook. It furnishes the only base upon which may be taken a clear-cut and effective stand.—Ft. BOOST THE BOYS!

GAMES THIS WEEK END

The schedule called for three games to be played at the Clanton park this week end.

On Wednesday, the Clanton club was scheduled to play the Montgomery Greys, leaders of the Montgomery City League. This team is said to be one of the fastest amateur teams in Alabama.

On Thursday (today) the schedule called for a game between the negro teams of Clanton and Wetumpka. If you have ever attended a negro ball game you will know what to expect—lots of fun. The score may be 40 to 30, but you'll have lots of fun anyway if you attend. White baseball fans are especially invited.

On Saturday Clanton plays the McDade Tinners of Montgomery. This club has beaten the locals in the only game they have played this season, which was the second game of the season for the locals. It is a good club, and a good game should result.

CLANTON 20—RISING STA. 7

Wednesday afternoon Clanton was host to the team from Rising Station, Birmingham, and showered them with 35 hits. The visitors got 11 safeties off Golson in 8 innings, and Armstrong allowed 1 in the 9th. The final score was 20 to 7.

In the sixth, Clanton sent 12 men to bat, getting 8 hits, coupled with 3 errors, good for 8 runs. In all, the visitors kicked in with 3 fielding errors to help along in the merry whirl.

Simpson led for Clanton with a perfect dat at bat, 5 for 5. Simms got 3 for 5, Littleton 3 for 6, and Golson joined in the long range firing with two doubles and a triple out of 4 trips. Five visiting batters got a pair each.

CLANTON 10—ALA. MILLS 7

Clanton defeated the Alabama Mills team Saturday afternoon at the high school park 10 to 7. "Bull" Watkins and "Mickey" McGuire were both hit fairly regularly, giving up a round dozen hits each.

Watkins struck out 6 and McGuire 1. Both teams bobbled three times each. Ashcraft connected for the circuit with Williams aboard in the second inning. Not to be outdone, Littleton rifled a fast one over the right field palings to start off the Clanton half of the 5th.

Long and Ashcraft led for the millers, with 3 each. Hitting honors for Clanton were divided between Simpson, Littleton, Hayes and Simms, all getting a pair each. The Millers' 12 hits were singles, 4 doubles and a home run. Clanton's 12 were 7 singles, 2 doubles, 2 triples and a home run.

LEGION 11—ISABELLA 5

The American Legion team went to Isabella Friday afternoon and engaged that team in a comedy of errors, the Legion team finally winning out by the score of 11 to 5.

The Legion team bested Isabella in all departments of the game, outhitting them 14 to 10, and making 10 errors to Isabella's 7.

Wilson and Adams led the Legion's hitters with 3 safeties each, Johnson, Cleckler and Wilkerson getting a pair each. Williams and C. Jones led Isabella with a brace each.

RAIN THAT ONCE RAN AWAY NOW CREEPS OFF TERRACES

Terracing and contour tillage as recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture has proved its value in the Middle West and Southwest, as rains have come after months—and in some cases, years—of drought. Runoff has been retarded. More moisture has been retained. In general, the soil is in better condition than for years.

Letters from the once dry States tell the story. A farmer in Brown County, Kansas, writes: "You should see those terraces I built last year. Rain that once ran away now creeps off. A lot of it doesn't get away at all but goes right down into the subsoil."

Contour listing on terraced land on the Limestone Creek project of the Soil Conservation Service in Jewell County, Kansas, was damaged little by the heavy rains in May. "Adjoining fields, not so handled, not only lost much soil, but in many cases the corn will have to be replanted," says F. L. Duley, director of the project. "Heavy rains—one of 3 inches in 30 minutes—caused a few breaks in terraces, but these indicated faulty construction which will be remedied in the future."

Moisture conservation measures on the wind erosion project at Dalhart in the Texas Panhandle likewise proved their value in heavy rains. According to a report by H. H. Finnel, director of the project, actual tests show rainfall soaked in twice as fast on contoured land as it did on fields of the same type and topography where no moisture conservaton measures were used.

"Rains in the drought area have provided the first seasonal opportunity in several years for real control of wind erosion," says H. H. Bennett, Chief of the Soil Conservation Service. "Lack of moisture has prevented farmers from establishing a protective cover crop to anchor the soil. Moisture is now available. Farmers can take full advantage of the chance to start a permanent system of soil protection which will make a recurrence of the recent dust storms almost impossible."

LEGAL NOTICE

State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Notice is hereby given that a Bill will be introduced at the 1935 session of the Legislature of Alabama, which Bill is in substance, as follows, to-wit:

A BILL
To Be Entitled
AN ACT

To relieve and release J. T. Rockett, former Tax Collector of Chilton County, Alabama, on account of his failure to collect, while Tax Collector of Chilton County, Alabama, Ad Valorem Taxes assessed against the Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., a corporation, and its property in Chilton County, Alabama, for the tax years of 1929 and 1930, said Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., a corporation, having been entitled during said tax years to an exemption as against tax on said property and the relief and release hereby granted being on an assessment in each of said years of a tax value of $12,000.00, and to grant an exemption from said taxes to said Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., a corporation, for said tax years of 1929 and 1930.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF ALABAMA:

Section 1. That J. T. Rockett, former Tax Collector of Chilton County, Alabama, be, and he is hereby relieved and released from liability for or on account of his failure while Tax Collector of Chilton County, Alabama, to collect the Ad Valorem Taxes due to the State of Alabama and Chilton County, Alabama, by the Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., a corporation, on an assessed tax value of $12,000.00 for the tax years of 1929 and 1930, on the following described real estate, situated in Chilton County, Alabama, to-wit:

A lot of land beginning at a point 928 feet East from the Southwest corner of the North Half of the Southwest Quarter of the Southeast Quarter of Section thirty-five Township twenty-two, range fourteen; and running thence East 105 feet; thence North 527 feet to the South side of the extension of Fifth Avenue; thence West along the South side of the extension of Fifth Avenue 105 feet; thence South 526 feet to the point of beginning, containing one and one-eighth acres. Also a lot of land beginning at a point on the South side of the extension of Fifth Avenue from Tenth Street, said point being 33 feet West from the said Tenth Street, and running thence West along the South side of the extension of Fifth Avenue 198 feet; thence South 268 feet; thence East 200 feet; thence North 268 feet to the point of beginning; containing one and one-eighth acres. ALA. MILLS — MAPLESVILLE TIE

The Alabama Mills team and Maplesville locked up in a slugging bee Sunday afternoon, and after 9 long innings were deadlocked at an even dozen runs each, the Alabama Sunday blue law putting an end to festivities at 6:00 o'clock.

Robinson and Morrison hooked up into a tight pitchers duel for the first few innings. Robinson allowed nothing that smacked of a hit for the first 3 innings, but Maplesville jumped on him for a single, 2 doubles and a triple in the 4th. From that point on through the 8th, he was hit freely.

Each team had one big inning. Maplesville came to bat in the 8th leading 7 to 6, and batted around, getting 5 runs out of 5 hits and an error. The Millers also batted around in their half of the 9th, getting 6 runs out of 5 hits and an error, with Tucker on the mound. M. Hayes hit a homer in the 7th for Maplesville.

GO HOME, CONGRESS!

We have had enough tinkering with the Constitution. It has served well and efficiently in safeguarding the rights of the people and forwarding the interests of the nation more than 150 years.

Those who would now change the fundamentals of this solid bulwark of American liberty and safety may well consider the caution of Daniel Webster in an address delivered on the centennial anniversary of Washinugton's birth. Citing that America could, and undoubtedly would, recoup from the effects of disasterous wars or other misfortunes that might sweep out commerce from the oceans, exhaust the treasury or desolate our fields and industry, this great American warned—

"But who shall reconstruct the fabric of demolished government: who shall rear again the well-proportioned columns of of constitutional liberty; who shall frame together the skillful architecture which unites national sovereignty with state rights, individual security, and public prosperity? No, if these columns fall, they will be raised not again."

The very suggestion to take away from the states the power now vested in them to determine their own affairs and to create an empire without state lines, is abhorent.

Again we say, if Congress wishes to serve the public, the best step it can take is to adjourn, go home, give the people a rest, and business a chance to go forward.—Atlanta Constitution.

Gertrude Stein, the writer, recently commented that the duststorms were "wonderful." Gertrude, we suspect, could find something cute about smallpox.—South Bend, Indiana Tribune.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert)

Political writers who have been busy guessing what conservative support might be alienated by the New Dealers from the present administration have frequently mentioned those who believe in the doctrine of states' rights. They have generally dismissed the states' rights advocates as a group in the South with considerable weight in public opinion but numerically unimportant. It is barely possible that these forecasters have been underestimating the strength of those who advocate what is popularly known as the doctrine of states' rights. Nor is it entirely sure that all of these advocates reside south of the Mason and Dixon line.

"Is it the sense of the Pennsylvania Bar Association that no amendments to the Constitution should be made which would transfer to the federal government the long established rights of the states in matters affecting the lives and affairs of their citizens."

It is true that a few members of the association, among them Assistant District Attorney John W. Murphy, of Scranton, objected to the resolution, according to news reports, as entirely too wide in scope, and applicable to any amendments which might be offered in the future. The objections were overruled by the association members, however, and the resolution went over with a bang, with only a scattering of audible objections, when a viva voce vote was taken.

Now Pennsylvania is not a Southern state. In the Civil War when, so the historians tell us, a very pressing phase of state rights was up for settlement, Pennsylvania was on the side of the federal government, which maintained that the rights of a state did not include the right of secession. But times have changed. There is no longer any talk of a right of secession. No states are more devoted to the welfare of the nation than those south of the Mason and Dixon line in these modern twentieth century days. Opinion about some of the rights of states has changed. A great many people, North as well as South, who have believed that the Constitution established a well balanced government, with the states and communities retaining the fullest share possible of liberty of action, have now come to the point where they believe that the danger is not from a disruption of the Union, but from the absorbing of the powers of the state by a bureaucratic government at the National Capital.

This, it will be remembered, was the fear of many of those who discussed the Constitution of the country at the time it was formed. But the fear was not to become acute until the country had been tried and firmly welded in the terrible heat of four years of Civil War, and then another seventy years had passed. But now the time has come when a distinguished bar association, in a solid and sane commonwealth like Pennsylvania, in the North and not in the South, passes a resolution directed against further tinkering with the Constitution to interfere with states' rights.

It would seem therefore that the question of states rights is not confined to a comparatively small group in the South. The idea seems to be percolated into Pennsylvania. Perhaps it will be found in New England, in Indiana, in Missouri and elsewhere. There is no telling. Nothing spreads in America like a good fundamental idea when properly presented. Just what the political effect will be nobody can foretell but the states' rights theory certainly is spreading.

THE POOR PAY, TOO

Among the objections to the proposed "soak the rich" or "share the wealth" bill which is now occupying the newspapers as well as the members of Congress are some to the effect that the program will induce government control of large corporations and so bring on state socialism.

Many people say that they are not interested because they do not possess fortunes and are not interested in big corporations. Well, let us think for a moment about that. Every American is interested in eliminating the depression. Everyone will agree that what we want to do is to induce business men, especially those who are interested in the so-called heavy industries which are still flat, to invest their money and to branch out in activities which will put more money in circulation and make more jobs.

Now in this modern society which we have, the thing which induces men to risk their capital to venture out into business is the incentive of profit. With no chance to profit there will be continued business stagnation. Therefore, unless we want to go into the business of "manufacture for use and not for profit" which is socialism and spells moral and economic disintegration, then we certainly do not want to put any barriers in the way of legitimate business development. Certainly taxation which eliminates the hope for profit reacts not only on the man or the industry taxed, but on all the people.

The fallacy that the "rich" and the "giant corporations" can be made to bear the tax burden is one of the most dangerous errors of political thought. It makes it easy for demagogues to revel in public extravagance and the expenditure of public money on the theory that they are "helping the poor" and that the "rich will have to pay." No system which will soak the rich and the rich only for the benefit of the poor has ever been devised. The consumer pays and the poor man is a bigger consumer in proportion than the rich man so far as his means are concerned.

This theory is not advanced idly and there is plenty of substantiation in sound works of economics printed in every civilized language. But there is support for the contention even closer home. For example, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States, in an address at Pittsburgh, October 19, 1932, before his election, said on the subject of taxation:

"Quite apart from every man's own tax assessment, that burden is a brake on any return to normal business activity.

"Taxes are paid in the sweat of every man who labors because they are a burden on production and can be paid only by production. If excessive, they are reflected in idle factories, tax-sold farms, and hence, in hordes of the hungry stamping the streets and seeking jobs in vain.

"Our workers may never see a tax bill, but they pay in deductions from wages, in increased cost of what they have to buy, or (as now) in broad cessation of employment."

There can be no question as to the truth of these sentences. Our principal difficulty will be to hew the tax bills of 1935 to this line of the sound logic of 1932.

CANADIAN LARD

With all the talk about increasing our foreign trade to help the farmers, on the one hand, and the decrease in production in America with an increase of the cost of production tending to curtail our farm exports, on the other hand, the most significant fact now is that the AAA program of farm scarcity seems to be working faster than big foreign trade idea. The result of the program of costliness and scarcity has been to take former alien markets for agricultural produce away from us and to encourage the importation of foreign farm produce to the United States.

Imports of grains, meat products and other farm produce have been jumping by leaps and bounds during the past few months, due to our own shortage and the fact costs are so high here and so low abroad and that the aliens can scale our tariff walls and still come in. The proof of the pudding is the eating thereof. In the first quarter of 1935 the increase of our importation of general farm products over the similar period of 1934 is disconcerting to say the least.

For example, the United States Chamber of Commerce figures show that our importation of farm commodities for the first three months of 1935 amounted to $496,000,000. This was the heaviest in a long time. It certainly is going to be difficult to find foreign markets for our farm goods when the alien producers can pay our tariff and then undersell us in our own markets.

Take the case of lard for instance. According to the Labor Digest, an American labor paper which believes in protecting the job and living standard of the workng man in the United States, packers in Chicago are killing only one fifth as many hogs as a year ago and thousands of workers have been thrown out of jobs.

In addition to this, scarcity and the processing tax have enabled American chain stores and packers to import lard from Canada, paying off the tariff duty of three cents per pound and still saving four cents on the American product on account of the processing tax. Fine work on the part of the AAA. Unfortunately, Mr. Wallace or somebody forgot to levy a processing tax on foreign lard.

Two chain store systems are reported to have imported thirty-one carloads of Canadian lard and one important packer, not in Chicago, is said to have imported thirteen cars. And the fun is only begun.

Of course it is a new collegiate system. American farmers are paid to kill young pigs, and to refrain from raising hogs. The consumer is taxed to pay the farmer. Then the cost of the American products is so high that the big dealers buy Canadian lard and the money goes out of the country. The sum of $496,000,000 which American farmers should have, went out during the first three months of this year.

In the meantime our statesmen are negotiating to bring in cheap products of other nations and sell them our farm produce—at a time when some are already selling us their farm produce. Maybe a little time could be profitably spent making a sensible survey of the situation and looking after our tariff.

BACK TO INFLATION TALK

The President painted an honest picture of what uncontrolled inflation means. He should admit with equal honesty that uncontrolled spending, an unbalanced budget, continued and growing deficits, are responsible for this insistent demand for printing-press inflation. He has condemned an effect, but he has not faced with equal courage and honesty the cause back of the effect. So long as we have extravagant and uncontrolled government spending, just so long will the nation be faced by the menacing threat of uncontrolled inflation.—Mankato, Minn., Free Press.

It is said that when one five pound jelly fish is evaporated it weighs less than 1 100 of an ounce. We know a lot of heavy drinkers that remind us of that.

MAN IN THE MOON

IS THAT SO?

The Montgomery Journal has seen fit to comment very caustically on The Union-Banner's editorial, carried a few days ago, in regard to the absentee ballot law.

The Journal says that it believes that the result would have been the same here in Chilton County in the last election f there had been no absentee ballot. We don't think so. Consider these facts.

The absentee box gave the Democrats over a 300 majority in that box. Is it reasonable to believe that 7 out of 8 people who have left the county are Democrats? You know it isn't!

In addition to this, it is said that ballots were cast in that box for people who have been dead for years. Also, we are told, certan people who were out of the county at the time were sent quantities of absentee ballots. They distributed them among people with whom they came in contact, and they were sent in and COUNTED, although numbers of them had never been in the county and never expected to be—for these VOTERS there was absolutely no record, of course. Yet they were counted.

We are told, also, that some of our people were approached in other towns and cities, and asked to mark a ballot for the Democrats, with an added incintive of a few dollars Chilton County in the last election if there privileges allowed them under the law) but election day came around, they came to Chilton County and asked for these ballots (a "bonus". Some of them did this, then when their request was refused, Those ballots were COUNTED, too. Is that practice honest and ethical? Is it even lawful? We think not, and we believe any honest man or woman, be they Democrat or Republican, will say it is not.

Of course, any person who would go to such low methods to secure votes is absolutely without honor or principle. But the point we wish to make here is that such practices are possible under our present absentee ballot law, and for this reason the law should be abolished.

The Journal says it is constrained to take any Republican utterance with a grain of salt. We can go them one better on that score. Our experience is that to be on the safe side it is best not to believe ANYTHING some Democrats say in regard to politics.

AT IT AGAIN

Gee! Golly! Gosh! They're at it again—Huey Long and President Roosevelt. They're into it with both feet, hot and heavy, too, and there are no bouquets being thrown, either.

It all started when President Roosevelt sent word to Long that there must be no political scheming in the work of doling out federal aid in Louisiana. "The kingfish" took exception to this, the reason, he said, being that the president was "insinuating" that he was a crook. The president laid down a rule that any federal aid would be given out in Louisiana through federal agencies in the Magnolia state, and not through state agencies, as will be the case in other states. We might add, too, that the same applies to Georgia.

"The kingfish" got busy. He called his "Longislature" together at once and passed a handful of bills providing for the appointment of personnel of such distributing agencies by civil service commission, the Louisiana branch of which is controlled, body and soul, by Sen. Long. Accordng to reports, these bills were railroaded through the state legislature at the speed of two per minute. That's making laws in a hurry, if you ask me. The only way that the president can give out any federal aid in Louisiana then, is through Long, and the president has stated that before he will do this he will cancel that state's appropriations entirely.

Not so long ago, just after the president had threatened cutting off the appropriations, Sen. Long sent the president a wire that he could "go slam-bang to hell, by gosh"—with his federal aid, if he felt that way about it. And a few nights ago he made a two-hour speech over a state-wide radio hook-up, in which he branded the president a liar and a thief, as well as various and sundry other names. He accused him of trying to steal his "share-the-wealth" thunder, and of lieing about the methods Long had used in dispensing the federal aid in the past. Sen. Long said in this talk: "I'm as big a man as Roosevelt, and far more popular in my own state. If he could manage his job as well as I do mine he could get along easier. Some of these days I'm going to get riled at them goats and go up there to Washington and take their dadgummed hides off. They make me tired, sniveling around like spoiled kids—Roosevelt and his school teachers."

JAPANESE TRADE

The Japanese nation has declared a trade war on the rest of the world, and the success of it, so far, is assured in a big way. Every nation on the fact of the earth is giving out statistics showing more imports from Japan than exports to her.

Let's look into the cause of all this. Economic disorders are rampant in every nation except Japan and Italy, and even Italy is far behind the Japanese in the matter of putting their economic house in order. We must admit that the standard of living and working conditions in Japan are far below that of our own country. This allows a lower wage standard.

Then, the Japanese have no hampering system of codes and trade laws to slow down industry and trade, either within the nation or in their international dealings. There are no paralyzing process taxes, and no limitation laws on production. Hence there are no labor troubles. The people of the country are too busy to take time off to wrangle over wage rates. The only governmental restrictions are against imports. They allow only a limited import of certain commodities, and commodities which are or can be produced in Japan find a trade door slammed in their faces by governmental order. In this manner Japan has managed to become the nearest to a self-supporting nation of all. They have adopted the "trade-at-home" idea on a national scale, and to say that it has been successful is putting it mildly.

As might be expected, this has put everyone to work who wants a job, and this has removed their unemployment problem. We are told that in the land of the rising sun no one is idle who wants to work. This means that nearly all Japs are at work—laziness is one thing that has never been laid at the door of the Japanese. Japan is the yellow jacket of the universe. If you have ever tied into a yellow jacket nest you know that the busy little fellows mean business when they go to work on you. Japan has taken a leading place in the world's affairs, and the nations of the world, even our own, would do well to copy her plans and policies, at least along lines of commerce.

Some reviewer says that Greta Garbo, who is a very popular actress, knows nothing about politics. Of course. Greta is a European, and if she were a politician she would be a European politician. Then instead of saying "I want to be alone," she would put it," I want to make a loan."

And now that it is all over, whatever became of the little pants presser in New Jersey who went to jail for thirty days for violating the NRA code by pressing a pair of pants for a nickel less than Gin'ral Johnson said he could?—Detriot Free Press.

It is rumored that thirty bald eagles were seen in one bunch near a village in Maine. Later reports are that they were not real bald eagles but blue ones who had just got back minus their scalps from a hearing of the Supreme Court at Washington.

If we do get government ownership of railroads—and it seems a new drive for that end is imminent—then maybe we will get back to the good old World War days when there were two car inspectors for every car wheel.

State police in Kentucky are said to have cautioned people about permitting livestock to get out on the travelled highways. But if we are going to kill 'em and get rid of 'em anyhow, why not let the automobles do some of it?

The fact that a tax plan which amounts to a "redistribution of wealth plan" has been offered to Congress, may indicate that the White House thought that Huey Long was right after all.

There is some indication that a "divide the wealth plan" may be adopted but we won't be satisfied unless they give us Doc Townsend's old age pension plan for a chaser.

Railway labor executives are reported to have come out for a plan for federal railroads. Not being satisfied to have business men run the railways maybe they think politicians could do it better.

Of course the United States might sink its navy as an example to the rest of the world. Then we would have two examples for the rest of the world; the United States and China.

New York is taking a portable farm around town so the natives can see what a cow looks like. But Wall Street already knows its bears, bulls, lambs and goats.—Flint, Mich., Journal.

The old fashioned girl who married in haste and repented at leisure now has a grown daughter who marries at the end of a cocktail party and then goes to Reno.

It is a strange fact that most of the fellows that we find who are in favor of a "share the wealth" plan, are only in favor of sharing some other fellow's wealth.

It is said that somebody wrote to Senator Vandenburg, of Michgan, suggesting that the Rocky Mountains be levelled off. Would not this have been an ideal job for the PWA?

140 YEARS OF LIFE

Now and then we hear people say life is a great disappointment, or rather, a series of them. Yet, for the most part, we find everyone trying to live just as long as possible. Must be that we humans like our disappointments, or we wouldn't want to live so long.

We are promised but 70 years of life. Our Bible leads us to believe that our forefathers are to blame for this, though. We are told that because of the sins of our fathers, the age, and finds that by a procedure of injecage limit was around a thousand years. Little by little this limit was cut down to our present 70. Too, our statisticans tell us that only a very small percentage of people of the present day and age reach 70. We are taught that man has waxed more and more sinful since the very beginning. Gee, but some of those old boys must have been wheel horses in their day.

Now, however, comes a scientist who says he has hopes of doubling our normal span of life. He hopes to be able to show that man can live to the age of 140. How? He has made experiments with the blood of monkeys and other animals which live to ripe old ages, and finds that by a procedure of injection of this blood into the veins of humans, that the life span is increased.

He has found that human blood is divided into four basic divisions, or classes. He finds, too, that the blood of monkeys and certain other animals whose life span is much longer than that of humans, is likewise divided into four clases, each of which corresponds closely to a class of human blood. It is a simple matter he has found, to inject blood of one of these classes into its corresponding blood class among humans, and he claims that he has observed wonderful results. He admits that his tests are only in a primary stage as yet, but that the results he has noted so far lead him to believe that in the not too distant future, by such injection of monkey blood into humans, the age span of the race may be lengthened—possibly doubled.—Man in the Moon.

RED INK

Uncle Sam has a different "year" than the one on the calendar. His fiscal year closes on June 30th and then there is a balancing of books. Of course there has been no balancing of budgets in this country for some little time.

The new fiscal year began as usual July 1. There was no ringing of bells and no rejoicing, so far as can be learned. It was hot and sultry in Washington, which is not conducive to celebrating. And at any rate it is a little hard to work up any enthusiasm over a deficit of three and one half billion dollars. That is the amount it costs to keep Uncle Sam during the year more than he took in.

According to figures which were made public by the Associated Press, the government collected fifty-two cents for every dollar which it spent. In other words, every time Uncle Sam put out a dollar he lacked 48 cents of taking in that much money. And he put out a lot of money. The fact that his deficit was $3,500,000,000 indicates it. No further evidence is necessary.

According to the preliminary figures given out by the Associated Press, with two days' transactions still to be reported in detail, the expenditures of the national government exceeded the revenues by $3,472,000,000. Of course that lacks $28,000,000 of being three and a half billion dollars, but Uncle Sam has been spending money so rapidly during the past two years that a mere $28,000,000 seems by comparison just like what the boys around the country store used to call "chicken feed."

The only bright spot in the picture, if you can call it really bright, is the fact that our deficit isn't quite so large for 1934 as it was for 1933 when it was $3,881,000,000. Of course when you run three and one half billion dollars behind in one year, it doesn't seem to make much difference about a few extra millions anyhow, but what we are wondering is: how about the size of the deficit when the college boys get to putting out that $4,800,000,000, recently provided by Congress?

Of course when we say "provided by Congress" it must be admitted that Congress didn't really provide it. What the appropriation meant was that Uncle Sam was authorized to borrow and spend something like $5,000,000,000—he is out of cash and heavily in debt already. When the payoff comes and the money really has to be raised the people of the United States will do the providing.

Now, according to the figures, the public debt has been raised to $28,665,000,000. It will go considerably higher. But what's the difference? Once you get above the clouds it doesn't hurt you any more to fall ten miles than it does eight. The effect is all the same.

HORSE AND BUGGY DAYS

"Horse and buggy days" were referred to by the President in a press conference recently.

What's the matter with the "horse and buggy days"? They were pretty good days as we remember them.

In the "horse and buggy days" a boy had a job all staked out for him before he quit school. It was arranged that he go into a bank, or a blacksmith shop, or a print shop, or that he would study law or medicine.

He looked forward to the time when he could "establish himself" in some business. Perhaps he figured on marrying the banker's daughter and moving into the big stone house with the fancy hitching post out in the front.

If he didn't have a horse and buggy he could rent one for an afternoon and evening for about $1.50. The rubber tired rigs and faster horses cost more. Once or twice a month he could show the girl friend a real evening.

Perhaps you stopped for a glass of lemonade, or you took home a pint of ice cream and ate it in the hammock on the front lawn. The parents were always up to see what time you arrived and if you didn't leave by 10:30 some gentle hints were passed.

What was wrong with that, says the Murphysboro Daily Independent, in describing a similar scene. "It was a pleasant, peaceful, prosperous and happy America in the 'horse and buggy' days."—Sparta, Ill., News Plaindealer.

PRUDENT COUNSEL

Mr. Lowden prudently counsels the Republican Party and, through it, the American people, that preservation of the basic principles of the Constitutions is the supreme issue of the hour. "We may have faith that other problems, pressing though they may be, will find a proper solution if we maintain the essentials of our government."

"It is apparent that upon this great issue, the Republican Party must take the lead. "It would be false to its traditions and its history if it faltered now * * *. It must draw to its standards all those, of whatever political faith, who believe in the form of government established by the fathers and sanctioned by the blood of patriots upon a thousand battlefields."

It is truly upon preservation of these Constitutional fundamentals that we must rely for the preservation of "an indissoluble union of indestructible states." This relance completely transcends factional differences, personal rivalries, minor dissimularities of outlook. It furnishes the only base upon which may be taken a clear-cut and effective stand.—Ft. Wayne News-Sentinel.

BOOST THE BOYS!

GAMES THIS WEEK END

The schedule called for three games to be played at the Clanton park this week end.

On Wednesday, the Clanton club was scheduled to play the Montgomery Greys, leaders of the Montgomery City League. This team is said to be one of the fastest amateur teams in Alabama.

On Thursday (today) the schedule called for a game between the negro teams of Clanton and Wetumpka. If you have ever attended a negro ball game you will know what to expect—lots of fun. The score may be 40 to 30, but you'll have lots of fun anyway if you attend. White baseball fans are especially invited.

On Saturday Clanton plays the McDade Tinners of Montgomery. This club has beaten the locals in the only game they have played this season, which was the second game of the season for the locals. It is a good club, and a good game should result.

CLANTON 20—RISING STA. 7

Wednesday afternoon Clanton was host to the team from Rising Station, Birmingham, and showered them with 25 hits. The visitors got 11 safeties off Golson in 3 innings, and Armstrong allowed 1 in the 9th. The final score was 20 to 7.

In the sixth, Clanton sent 12 men to bat, getting 8 hits, coupled with 3 errors, good for 8 runs. In all, the visitors kicked in with 8 fielding errors to help along in the merry whirl.

Simpson led for Clanton with a perfect dat at bat, 5 for 5. Simms got 3 for 5, Littleton 3 for 6, and Golson joined in the long range firing with two doubles and a triple out of 4 trips. Five visiting batters got a pair each.

CLANTON 10—ALA. MILLS 7

Clanton defeated the Alabama Mills team Saturday afternoon at the high school park 10 to 7. "Bull" Watkins and "Mickey" McGuire were both hit fairly regularly, giving up a round dozen hits each.

Watkins struck out 6 and McGuire 1. Both teams bobbled three times each. Ashcraft connected for the circuit with Williams aboard in the second inning. Not to be outdone, Littleton rifled a fast one over the right field palings to start off the Clanton half of the 5th.

Long and Ashcraft led for the millers, with 3 each. Hitting honors for Clanton were divided between Simpson, Littleton, Hayes and Simms, all getting a pair each. The Millers' 12 hits were singles, 4 doubles and a home run. Clanton's 12 were 7 singles, 2 doubles, 2 triples and a home run.

LEGION 11—ISABELLA 5

The American Legion team went to Isabella Friday afternoon and engaged that team in a comedy of errors, the Legion team finally winning out by the score of 11 to 5.

The Legion team bested Isabella in all departments of the game, outhitting them 14 to 10, and making 10 errors to Isabella's 7.

Wilson and Adams led the Legion's hitters with 3 safeties each, Johnson, Cleckler and Wilkerson getting a pair each. Williams and C. Jones led Isabella with a brace each.

RAIN THAT ONCE RAN AWAY NOW CREEPS OFF TERRACES

Terracing and contour tillage as recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture has proved its value in the Middle West and Southwest, as rains have come after months—and in some cases, years—of drought. Runoff has been retarded. More moisture has been retained. In general, the soil is in better condition than for years.

Letters from the once dry States tell the story. A farmer in Brown County, Kansas, writes: "You should see those terraces I built last year. Rain that once ran away now creeps off. A lot of it doesn't get away at all but goes right down into the subsoil."

Contour listing on terraced land on the Limestone Creek project of the Soil Conservation Service in Jewell County, Kansas, was damaged little by the heavy rains in May. "Adjoining fields, not so handled, not only lost much soil, but in many cases the corn will have to be replanted," says F. L. Duley, director of the project. "Heavy rains—one of 3 inches in 30 minutes—caused a few breaks in terraces, but these indicated faulty construction which will be remedied in the future."

Moisture conservation measures on the wind erosion project at Dalhart in the Texas Panhandle likewise proved their value in heavy rains. According to a report by H. H. Finnel, director of the project, actual tests show rainfall soaked in twice as fast on contoured land as it did on fields of the same type and topography where no moisture conservaton measures were used.

"Rains in the drought area have provided the first seasonal opportunity in several years for real control of wind erosion," says H. H. Bennett, Chief of the Soil Conservation Service. "Lack of moisture has prevented farmers from establishing a protective cover crop to anchor the soil. Moisture is now available. Farmers can take full advantage of the chance to start a permanent system of soil protection which will make a recurrence of the recent dust storms almost impossible."

LEGAL NOTICE

State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Notice is hereby given that a Bill will be introduced at the 1935 session of the Legislature of Alabama, which Bill is in substance, as follows, to-wit:

A BILL
To Be Entitled
AN ACT

To relieve and release J. T. Rockett, former Tax Collector of Chilton County, Alabama, on account of his failure to collect, while Tax Collector of Chilton County, Alabama, Ad Valorem Taxes assessed against the Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., a corporation, and its property in Chilton County, Alabama, for the tax years of 1929 and 1930, said Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., a corporation, having been entitled during said tax years to an exemption as against tax on said property and the relief and release hereby granted being on an assessment in each of said years of a tax value of $12,000.00, and to grant an exemption from said taxes to said Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., a corporation, for said tax years of 1929 and 1930.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF ALABAMA:

Section 1. That J. T. Rockett, former Tax Collector of Chilton County, Alabama, be, and he is hereby relieved and released from liability for or on account of his failure while Tax Collector of Chilton County, Alabama, to collect the Ad Valorem Taxes due to the State of Alabama and Chilton County, Alabama, by the Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., a corporation, on an assessed tax value of $12,000.00 for the tax years of 1929 and 1930, on the following described real estate, situated in Chilton County, Alabama, to-wit:

ALA. MILLS — MAPLESVILLE TIE

The Alabama Mills team and Maplesville locked up in a slugging bee Sunday afternoon, and after 9 long innings were deadlocked at an even dozen runs each, the Alabama Sunday blue law putting an end to festivities at 6:00 o'clock.

Robinson and Morrison hooked up into a tight pitchers duel for the first few innings. Robinson allowed nothing that smacked of a hit for the first 3 innings, but Maplesville jumped on him for a single, 2 doubles and a triple in the 4th. From that point on through the 8th, he was hit freely.

Each team had one big inning. Maplesville came to bat in the 8th leading 7 to 6, and batted around, getting 5 runs out of 5 hits and an error. The Millers also batted around in their half of the 9th, getting 6 runs out of 5 hits and an error, with Tucker on the mound. M. Hayes hit a homer in the 7th for Maplesville.

Mission Institute Was Big Success

The Unity Chilton Institute which was held at Clanton Baptist church was one of the best we have ever had. Te attendance was great. We enrolled 556 and had more than 350 present each day. The cooperation was beautiful to see. Each committee was at work and everything was therefore "well done." The director wishes to thank each member of each commitee. The spirit of the meeting was exceptionally good. The speakers and teachers were as fine as we have ever listened to. It was certainly a great privilege to have them and we are glad that so many availed themselves of that opportunity. Fifty-eight churches were represented and eighteen pastors were in attendance. Dr. Barnes, Baptist State Secretary, said that it was the greatest meeting in the state.

If that is true, it is because of the splendid way in which the women of the W. M. U. of Chilton and Unity have worked to make it great. Mrs. L. D. Hughes, Chilton's president, Mrs. Grady Heflin, Unity's president and the respectve young people's leaders and group leaders, have been tireless. Much of the success of the meeting was due to Mrs. J. E. Gowan, assisted by Mrs. J. P. Hayes and the committees from each circle of the Clanton W. M. S., who served the lunch so well each day and the lunch committees from the various churches who furnished the food.

We are all better, loving the Lord beter, and better servants of His because of the Institute, and we are grateful to all those who made it possible.

Dr. W. H. Carson, returned Missionary from Africa, spoke each day to different classes. On Tuesday and Wednesday he spoke to the entire assembly.

Mrs. Carter Wright, of Roanoke, field representative of W. M. U. taught a class on parables of Jesus.

Dr. F. M. Barnes of Montgomery, State Secretary, spoke on Wednesday and Thursday.

Miss Carrie Littlejohn, from Louisville, prncipal of W. M. U. Training school, taught the young women and gave the address on Wednesday.

Mrs. Ida M. Stallworth, from Montgomery, at head of Alabama W. M. U. spoke every day of her work in the West among the Indians.

Miss Juliet Weeks, from Birmingham, gave chalk talks which were greatly enjoyed.

Others taking part were: Miss Eunice Long, of Haleyville, Rev Oscar Davis, of Holt, Fayette Walker, of Birmingham, the singer, and Maurice Hodgens from Jemison.

STOPS ITCH
Quick!

Folks who have used HYDROSAL for itching, burning outbreaks could hardly believe such quick relief was possible! Doctors have prescribed HYDROSAL for 23 years. Even in stubborn, torturing eczema, Athlete's Foot (or "Itchy Toes"), rashes and pimples, the burning and itching fade away the minute HYDROSAL touches the skin. HYDROSAL penetrates the skin and acts to check growth of the germ causing local disorder. Gives Nature real help to quick healing. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau. Money back if it does not satisfy you. At all druggists in two forms, liquid and ointment—30c and 60c sizes.

WISE BUYER READS LABEL ON ALL CANNED PRODUCTS

Canned chicken is one of the handy peckaged foods selected for summer picnics and meals out-of-doors, as well as for home meals when a minimum of work and cooking is desired. It is an excellent choice from the standpoint of convenience and flavor.

But a wise buyer of home supplies, poits out the Food and Drug Adminihtration of the United States Department of Agriculture, makes a practice of reading labels on all packaged goods to be sure the family food money is well spent. She wants informatio as to the weight and purity of the contents. Canned chicken is no exception In the case of chicken mixtures, she she also wants to know what else she is getting and how much of it. No one wants to pay for chicken and get canned noodles—in a chicken and noodle mixture.

"Boned chicken" or boneless chicken is meat, with or without a small amount of skin, sterilized in cans and jars. It generally is packed with a little salt, chicken fat, and sometimes a small quantity of chick-broth for moisture. This is the chicken for sandwiches and salads or for slicing as jellied chicken. Sometimes the natural jellying power of the broth is increased by addition of agar-agar. These do not injure flavor or food value, but the law requres that their presence be stated on the label.

"Potted" or "deviled" chicken is a sandwich spread that everyone likes. It is made of ground pieces of meat, often spiced. Canned products such as "chicken a la king" and "chicken chop suey" contain in addition to the meat, various quantities of vegetables, condiments, and flavoring materials. The names themselves suggest the nature of the products with which the salad is packed, but they must be truthful.

EROSION CONTROL "MADE TO ORDER"

Terracing and contour cultivation to fit the rate at which a soil absorbs rainfall is the latest idea in soil erosion control. From studies at Clorinda, Iowa, the soil Conservaton Service has found that the difference in rate of water intake of two widely different soil types may be as much as 3 inches in 5 hours. Present methods of runoff control seldom take care of more than two inches of surplus rainfall in this length of time.

Knowing the permeability of a soil, it is possible to predict the amount of surface runoff—if the amount and intensity of the rainfall is known. For example, a rainfall of 4.5 inches in 5.5 hours would be entirely controlled on the permeable Marshall silt loam by a terrace or other device which held 1.5 inches of the total fall. But on the impermeable Shelby loam the same rain—under the same conditions of control—would cause surface runoff of 3 inches.

Thus, with a knowledge of the rate of water intake in any soil, the principal elements in the problem of run-off and erosion control have been brought within the range of orderly plan and design. Control methods now may be developed in the field to protect against rains of any given size and intensity—on soils of any degree of permeability.

MRS. DELCIE A. THOMAS

Mrs. Delcie A. Thomas died July 2, at the age of 56 years. She was the wife of Will Thomas.

Mother is gone but not forgotten. The Lord called her to rest the second, eight children—6 married children. She only suffered seriously for 12 hours. She has been suffering with pelegra for several years.

She left to mourn her loss a husband, eight children, 6 married children, 13 grandchildren and a host of brothers and sisters and relatives. Also an aged mother.

The body was carried to Providence cemetery with Martin in charge of burial. The funeral was conducted by Rev. W. E. Robinson of Friendship.

Mother is gone to that home Jesus prepared for her, where she will suffer no more pains. We expect to meet mother over there on the golden shore. We can see her smiling face once more. With love and rememberance of mother.—The family.

Mrs. Thomas was the daughter of John Moatts, who died in 1909. Her mother, Mrs. Phairriba Jane Moatts, now lives near Providence.

LEGAL NOTICE

State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Notice is hereby given that a Bill will be introduced at the 1935 session of the Legislature of Alabama, which Bill is in substance, as follows, to-wit:

A BILL
To Be Entitled
AN ACT

To relieve or exempt the Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., a corporation, of or from the payment of all Ad Valorem taxes assessed against it or its property in Chilton County, Alabama, for the State of Alabama and for Chilton County for the tax year 1932, and/or which was due on said property at said time, and to annul, set aside and avoid the sale of said property for such taxes, which sale was made by W. G. Culp, as Tax Collector of Chilton County, Alabama, on the 19th day of November, 1934, and sold to the State of Alabama for $288.96, said sale being made under a decree of the Probate Court of Chilton County, Alabama, dated October 15th, 1934, and to declare such property exempt from such taxes, it appearing that the property so sold was exempt from taxation during said tax year, but that such exemption was not claimed or allowed.

BE IT ENACTED BL THE LEGISLATURE OF ALABAMA:

Section 1. That the Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., a corporation, be and it is hereby relieved and exempted of or from the payment of all Ad Valorem taxes assessed against said Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., a corporation, or against any of its property in Chilton County, Alabama, for the tax year of 1932, including all Ad Valorem taxes due either to the State of Alabama or to Chilton County, Alabama, for said year, and/or any tax which was accrued and unpaid against said property at said time.

Section 2. That the sale made by W. G. Culp, as Tax Collector of Chilton County, Alabama, on November 19th, 1934, whereby the following described property assessed to Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., a corporation, viz:

A lot of land beginning at a point 928 feet East from the Southwest corner of the North Half of the Southwest Quarter of the Southeast Quarter of Section thirty-five Township twenty-two, range fourteen; and running thence East 105 feet; thence North 527 feet to the South side of the extension of Fifth Avenue; thence West along the South side of the extension of Fifth Avenue 105 feet; thence South 526 feet to the point of beginning, containing one and one-eighth acres. Also a lot of land beginning at a point on the South side of the extension of Fifth Avenue from Tenth Street, said point being 38 feet West from the said Tenth Street, and running thence West along the South side of the extension of Fifth Avenue 198 feet; thence South 268 feet; thence East 200 feet; thence North 268 feet to the point of beginning; containing one and one-eighth acres. All of said land being situated in the Town of Clanton, Chilton County, and the State of Alabama; was sold for Ad Valorem taxes due on said property to the State of Alabama and to Chilton County, Alabama, for the tax year of 1932 under decree of the Probate Court of Chilton County, Alabama, dated October 15th, 1934, be, and the same hereby is annuled, set aside and avoided and said property hereby declared exempt from such taxes, it appearing that such property was exempt from such Ad Valorem taxes for such year, but that such exemption was not claimed or allowed.

Section 3. That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act be, and the same are hereby, expressly repealed. 6-27-4t-ch.

DAVID

LESSON TEXT—I Samuel 26:5-12; II Samuel 1:23-27.

GOLDEN TEXT—Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others.—Philippians 2:4.

PRIMARY TOPIC—David and the Sleeping King.

JUNIOR TOPIC—David and the Sleeping King.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—David the Great-Hearted.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—A Generous Attitude Toward Others.

David is one of the most prominent of Bible characters. His many-sided life and his close association with Christ give him a place of importance second to none in all the Bible. It is in this light that this great character should be viewed, and not merely as "David (The Great-Hearted)."

I. His Birth and Youth (I Sam. 16; 17:15, 34).

Bethlehem was the place of his birth, as well as that of his greater Son (Matt. 2:46). He was the youngest of Jesse's eight sons. His young manhood was spent as a shepherd. This was the first period of his schooling and preparation for life. From the brief descriptive word we learn that in his personal appearance he had auburn hair, fair eyes and a beautiful countenance (16:12). His life as a shepherd was attended with real hazards (17:34-37).

II. His Anointing (I Sam. 16:6-13).

God had revealed to Samuel that one of Jesse's sons was to be the new king. In determination of the divine choice, Jesse's sons passed before Samuel in order, beginning with Eliab, the oldest. Eliab was rejected in spite of his favorable physical qualifications. His inner condition as seen by God disqualified him. All glorying in the flesh must be set aside in the choice of a man for a place in God's program. David was chosen because of his fidelity as a shepherd boy. When the anointing oil was being applied, the Spirit of the Lord came upon him. David's attractiveness as a young man, and his unusual gifts were all to no avail without the Spirit.

III. David's Life at the Royal Court.

1. As a harpist and armorbearer to Saul (I Sam. 16:19-23). He was brought to play his harp before Saul in order that the evil spirit might be allayed.

2. His triumph over Goliath. For some reason David returned to look after his father's sheep. On being sent on an errand to his brethren in the camp, he saw the Philistine giant, Goliath, defying God and the army of Israel. He volunteered to fight, skillfully slung the stone which felled the giant, and with Goliath's own sword cut off his head.

3. Won the friendship of Jonathan. This friendship has been immortalized in the world's thought. It was unique in that it occurred between two men of rival worldly interest. Jonathan was the crown prince, heir to the throne. David was heir to the throne according to divine purpose. Knowing this, Jonathan waived his rights.

IV. David's Life as an Outlaw (I Sam. 21:10-31:13).

Though God anointed him king, David wandered for years as an outlaw to escape the murderous frenzy of Saul. During this time he did some foolish things, but he also learned many things in this bitter school which better fitted him to be a king, statesman, and poet, leaving to the world a rich heritage.

V. God's Royal Covenant (II Sam 7:8-16).

On the ground of the setting forth of this covenant, he is the legal heir to the kingdom. Jesus Christ shall one day occupy the throne of his father David (Luke 1:31-33).

VI. David's Reign as King.

1. Made king of Judah at Hebron (II Sam. 2:4-5:3). A long war was waged between the house of David and that of Saul.

2. King over all Israel (II Sam. 5:4). The elders of Israel at last invited him to be king over all Israel according to the purpose of God as expressed by Samuel when he anointed him king.

VII. David's Sins and Failures.

1. Refuge among the enemies of Israel (I Sam. 21, 30). This was a disgraceful act. Being the chosen and anointed of God, he should have trusted God to defend him against the fury of Saul.

2. Plurality of wives. He established a harem after the order of the heathen monarchs.

3. Crime as to Bath-sheba and Uriah (II Sam. 11, 12). Ammon's sin, the rebellions of Absalom and Sheba, and Absalom's attempt to seize the throne were the inevitable fruits of his polygamous life.

4. Numbering the people (II Sam. 25).

Religion

Religion, like morals and physics, has first truths which are incapable of being derived from anything more certain than themselves—which the human mind, at a particular point of its development, invariably recognizes, and the intuition of which is a direct result of its highest activities.—James Martineau.

Shining Qualities

Many individuals have, like uncut diamonds, shining qualities beneath a rough exterior.—Juvenal.

Amazed at Low Electric Rates For Home Use

P. H. Searcy of Enterprise, Ala., Tells Why He Purchased Additional Electrical Appliances

Observing that his friends were making more liberal use of electricity in their homes, and wishing to give his family all modern comforts and conveniences, P. H. Searcy, prominent business man of Enterprise, Ala., investigated the cost of electricity under the new low rates, and found that even with additional electric appliances his bill still would be surprisingly low.

"Until just recently there has been in the minds of myself and my family a firm conviction that electricity came too high for more than the barest use, and consequently we economized in this direction all possible. Observing use our friends made of your current led me at last to investigate the actual cost of electricity. I was amazed to find that it cost me less than one-third of a cent to burn a 60 watt bulb for one hour." Mr Searcy says in a letter recently addressed to Alabama Power Company.

"On making inquiries at my local office, I also found that the more current I used, the less it cost. This encouraged me to put in electrical equipment in the form of a range and water heater and to install the proper size bulbs in our sockets. We are now enjoying the many comforts and conveniences that electricity can bring one, in addition to protecting our eyes by using sufficient light, and are glad to report that our electric bills are much less than the amount we had imagined they would be.

"We consider the day we really investigated the price of electric current and found it so reasonable a very lucky day for us."—Adv. Alabama Power Co.

BOB JONES

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

"I spent five thousand dollars to put my two sons through college and they are both atheists." That is what a very substantial man said to the writer a few days ago. Going to college is serious business and yet parents by the thousands in this nation every year send their sons and daughters off to college without ever investigating the spiritual conditons of the institution.

Very few people put first things first. The editor notices this in his convesation with Christian people. "I should like to send my son to your colloge, but I want to know if your credits will be accepted by other institutions?" The most spiritual people ask that question. With our modern education system of standardization it is important that a student get credit on his work provided he wishes to transfer to some other school. We standardize our work in the Bob Jones Colleges so our credits are accepted by other institutions. However, the most important thing about colloges is not credits. "Is the college Christian?" "Will my children learn a Christian philosophy of life?" Will they be taken care of spiritually?" "Will they come out of the institution believeing in God and the Bible?" These are the big questions. These are the things which should be put first. Yet, many ordthodox Christians put college credits above Christian experience when they send their children off to school.

The editor is greatly interested in an organization of orthodox Christian people which has been perfected in Charlotte, N. C. The name of the organization is "The Evangelical Bible League." The purpose of the organization has about seven hundred members, in which are ministers and laymen who believe in the word of God and all of the fundamentals of the Christian faith. It was the writer's privilege to speak recently for two weeks under the auspices of this organization. He wishes to commend the Evanglical Bible League to communities everywhere. I shall be happy to furnish copy of the purposes of the League and also the doctrinal statement. We do not need organic union of the churches. It is important, however, that individual Christians who are members of different denominations unite as individuals to stand for the old faith and at the same time promote evangelism and Bible study. Modernism is against evangelism Evangelism believes in the old tme religion. The anti-dote to modernism is an old time revival. Modernism is opposed to orthodox Bible study. Modernism is endeavoring to capture the church boards and the leadership of all of our church organizations. The orthodox Christians of the country in all of our churches should see to it that the modernistic crowds do not control. There are enough real, honest-to-goodness, true-blue, orthodox Bible Christians in every community in this country to held the forces in line if they would stand together in the battle.

REFUGE NEWS

We wish to call special attention of the public in regard to the revival which will begin at this place next Sunday, July 21.

The pastor having served practically four years at this place has never been more optimistic about the revival. Scores of people as well as varous churches have promised their wholehearted allegiance. Pastors of both Unity and Chilton Association have pledged their cooperation.

Elsewhere in this paper you may see the likeness of the face of the man of God who will bring the messages in this meeting.

Services will begin at 10:00 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Come. Be on time.

BIRTHDAY DINNER OF MRS. J. F. GILLILAND

On last Sunday there was a birthday dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Gilliland, four miles from Clanton on the Lay Dam Road.

A great feast was enjoyed and a nice dinner was set and dedicated to Mrs. J. F. Gilliand. The feast was set out in the yard and the blessing was asked by Rev. Wm. E. Robinson. There were 35 people enjoying this birthday dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Gilland and children, Mr. Sherley Gilliand, wife and children, Mr. Stell Gilliand and wife, Mr. W. T. Gilliand and wife, Mrs. T. J. Thornton and children, Mrs. Tom Hilyer and children, Mr. Dock Hilyer, wife and baby, Mr. Kirst Hilyer, wife and children, Mr. Governor Hilyer and two daughters of Richville, Coosa county, Mr. Brit Nelson, wife and children, Mr. D. L. Gilmore and wife, Mr. John Gilmore and wife.

There were several presents given to Mrs. Gilliland for birthday presents. The day was enjoyed by every one. God bless every one that enjoyed this great feast and when the time comes for us to depart from this life, may we all be ready to meet our Savior in peace, is my prayer.—A Subscriber.

THE WAYS OF BANKS AND THEIR REASONS

Rules and Regulations That Help People Cooperate With One Another

When a person becomes a customer of a bank he really becomes a member of a cooperative business group. That implies certain duties not only to the bank but to his fellow members. Unlike the customers of most other businesses, those of a bank have mutual responsibilities. Each member, the largest and the smallest alike, is dependent for his welfare and protection upon the actions of his fellow members as well as of the bank officers.

Their chief duty to one another is to help maintain confidence in the bank among themselves and in the community. In this respect they also owe a civic duty to their community. No community can keep on running factories, meeting payrolls, and buying and selling goods without banks.

In order to help customers conduct their banking business on lines that will serve the best interests of all concerned, banks have some strict rules and some very particular ways.

It May Seem Queer

These bank ways may sometimes seem queer, because bankers are backward about telling their customers all about the conduct of banking. They appear to be afraid the customers would not understand or would not be interested in what seems just routine to them. As a result, from the remarks that are sometimes heard, it would appear that a bank is considered a very mysterious and complicated affair. Actually this is not so. To understand the working of a bank is as easy as addition and subtraction. Let us commence by examining a bank from the customer's side.

There are in the main two uses that the average person has for a bank. Either he wants to put money into it as a depositor, or he wants to get money from it as a borrower. Depositors and borrowers are, then, the two classes of customers with which a bank deals. The same man may be a depositor at one time and a borrower at another time, or he can be, and often is, in both classes at the same time. Yet, as such, the two classes are distinct and we will take them separately.

In a future article we will see what the depositor does, and what agreements he and the banker make with each other.

BANKING FIGURES SHOW IMPROVEMENT

Increases in Deposits and Invested Funds During 1934 Reach Large Proportions

Statistics recently assembled by the American Bankers Association Committee on State Bank Research from reports furnished by state bank supervisors throughout the country show improvements in banking in almost every respect during 1934.

Although ever since 1921 the number of state banks has been declining, the report says, figures for December 31, 1934 showed that the downward trend last year was the smallest in twelve years.

The decline of deposits in state banks which had been going on since the collapse of the stock market boom in 1929, came to an end last year, the report says. As compared with the fact that total deposits in state banks declined from $20,395,762,000 on December 31, 1931, to $15,424,823,000 on December 31, 1933, the record for 1934 shows a recovery to $17,508,766,000 at the year-end.

The Change Important

This expansion of deposits is important, since it was their decline which made necessary the liquidation of investments, the calling of loans, and all the other phenomena which go under the name of "deflation" and have brought banks so much criticism in recent years, the committee says. It is now plain that these things were due to efforts of the banks to place themselves in the possession of enough liquid assets to meet the growing demands of depositors for the return of their money.

Growth of invested funds of state banks has paralleled that of deposits. Invested funds (loans plus investments) for state banks, dropped from $20,291,320,000, at the end of 1931, to $14,915,773,000 at the end of 1933. By December 31, 1934, however, they had recovered to $15,769,510,000. The increase in investments during 1934 amounted to approximately $1,300,000,000.

"As for loans and discounts, they registered a slight drop again in 1934, but the rate of decline was much smaller than in previous years, which in itself is progress," the report declares. "Whereas the drop in loans and discounts amounted to approximately $3,300,000,000 in 1932, and to approximately $1,300,000,000 in 1933, it was less than $500,000,000 in 1934.

"In another respect the balance sheet figures for December 31, 1934, were especially impressive. Bills payable and rediscounts of the state banks, which at the end of 1932 had reached a depression high of $669,709,000, had dropped by the close of last year to the low figure of $82,101,000. One must search the records as far back as 1917 to find bills payable and rediscounts of state banks at a lower figure. Moreover, it is reasonable to expect a further reduction of such borrowings during the current year."

Mr. Bob Roberts, of Jacksonville, Fla., is visiting her mother, Mrs. M. A. Mullins.

CLANTON GOSPEL TABERNACLE

Announcement is made that revival services at the Gospel Tabernacle will continue through this week, with Rev. L. P. Adams preaching each evening.

Mrs. Tom Swain, an accomplished singer and song leader, of Dixie Tabernacle, Nashville, is in charge of the song services each evening, with Tracy Bowles, blind pianist, as accompanist.

Services begin each evening at 7:30 o'clock.

WHITE BOYS WILL OCCUPY C. C. C. CAMP IN CLANTON

Mayor C. Fenn Jones imparts the information that it is a certainty that the Clanton C. C. C. will be occupied by white boys. About 225 of the boys will be here to take charge of the camp the last of this month.

DO NOT DRIVE COWS ON THE SIDEWALKS

The officials of the Town of Clanton wish to call the attention of people who drive cows to and from their pastures not to use the sidewalks for this purpose. There has been considerable criticism arising from this practice, and the officials state that an ordinance will have to be passed prohibiting it unless the citizens take it upon themselves to stop it.

THREE SENT TO PEN LAST FRIDAY AFERNOON

Two white men and one negro were carried from the county jail to Kilby prison last Friday afternoon. They were: A. J. Parker, colored, charged with driving car while intoxicated, and sentenced to 30 days for fine and 27 days for cost, with 6 months additional punishment. Grady Lucas, white, petit larceny, sentenced to 10 days for fine, 27 days for cost, and 4 months additional punishment. Lucian Bryant, white, driving car while intoxicated, sentenced to 30 days for fine, 27 days for cost, and 4 months additional punishment.

These sentences were imposed by Judge Glover on Monday of last week.

DeMABEL CELEBRATING ANNIVERSARY THIS MONTH

The pioneer beauty shop of Clanton is this month, July, celebrating its eighth birthday anniversary. In connection with this celebration the operators are offering some special prices on the different phases of work they do. Turn to their large adv. elsewhere in this paper, and read all about what they are offering, and help them celebrate.

Regarding their lifetime here they say: "These years of service have taught us that every woman has points of charm which it is wise to develop and emphasize."

FINE LEAVES OF TOBACCO

Some of the finest tobacco that we have ever seen was brought into The Banner Office Wednesday morning by Mr. Walter W. Jones, who lives on the H. M. Burnett place in Clanton. The leaves were 20 inches wide and 34 inches long. Mr. Jones said that it was not any extraordinary variety but just ordinary tobacco, carefully attended to and raised on good land.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Martin are on a vacation trip to points in Florida.

Young Democrats Leaving New Deal

Bolt Administration For The Excessive Spending and Taxes

Topeka, Kan., July 20.—Rebellion in the ranks of young Kansas Democrats, four of whose leaders bolted the party to follow the banner of Alf Landon, the state's Republican governor, today swelled the rumble of protest against national Administration policies in the Middle West.

In repudiating their party the young Democrats criticized Roosevelt spending policies and Administration patronage methods in Kansas.

The bolters were Collins C. Caldwell, former president of the state young Democrats organization; Clarence C. Williford, former vice president and recently elected secretary; J. A. Charvat, publicity director, and Gene Sullivan, president of the state Democratic Washington Day Club in 1932, who in 1936, at 23, was the youngest chairman of a county Democratic central committee in Kansas.

The first three in resigning all Democratic connections said:

"We felt the youth of the Democratic party was not being given the responsibility in Government to which it was entitled.

"There is no place in the party for young people who believe in good government. We cannot go along with an Administration which fails to recognize the responsibility of youth in government, or which needlessly piles up a debt on the citizens of the country.

"Existing circumstances within national and state Democratic parties convince us the only place to turn is the Kansas Republican party, which under Governor Landon, has achieved a unique record in maintaing sound government."

ASK IMPEACHMENT OF THE PRESIDENT

Republican Leader Charges Policies Near Violation of Office Oath

Washington.—President Roosevelt was accused Saturday by House Republican Leader Snell of having come "perilously close to what some people call impeachable grounds."

In a statement palpably projected toward next year's election, Snell lashed the administration's entire legislative program and particularly the president's "latest vagary," the proposed taxes on wealth.

"No administration in the history of this country," he said, "has had such a confusing record and I hazard the guess that none will be so inconsiderate of the statues, the constitution, and generally, what the people really want.

"Every event has been made to circumvent the courts, a clear admission that the administration fears the worst for its legislation.

"In pursuing this headstrong course, Mr. Roosevelt has come perilously close to what some people call impeachable grounds."

Elaborating on the impeachment angle, Snell said the president was on the border line of violating his oath to preserve, protect and defend the constitution, when in a letter to Chairman Samuel B. Hill (D., Wash.) of a ways and means subcommittee he urged approval of the Guffey Snyder coal bill and said:

"I hope your committee will not permit doubt as to the constitutionality, however reasonable, to block the suggested legislation.

Urging the president to review his "failures," the minority leader said Mr. Roosevelt's "house of cards is tumbling" and his "policies have been wrecked."

"Yet to satisfy his own whims," he asserted, "He would proceed still further along the road to ruin."

Snell attacked the executive for "forcing his own legislative vagaries" on a Democratic congress "in the hope of enhancing his personal political fortunes, regardless of the disastrous effect faulty legislation always has."

BIG TAX LIFTED, MILT TOLBERT AGAIN STARTS ON ROAD

Dothan, Ala., July 19.—Troupers are drifting back into Dothan—the Milt Tolbert Show's going on the road again.

It has been five years since H. D. Hale, veteran showman and co-founder of the tented traveling theater salvaged a fleet of trucks and quit in disgust. He brought the trucks home and started a transfer business which he still operates. Hale had to quit. He was driven out of business after three bitter years by an outrageous $300 weekly license tax imposed by the 1927 Legislature which jumped the levy from $25 weekly.

The tax is back to $25 now, thanks to Representative Perry Calhoun, of Houston, and Senator Dave Walden, of Henry, and so Hale is making over the show and expects to send it on the road about mid-August.

The talent is assembling rapidly and Lew Childre, Opp-born, will be the featured name with the Milt Tolbert band.

"OPEN HOUSE MONTH" AT POWER PLANTS

Birmingham, Ala., July 16.—The Alabama Power Company announces that the month of August has been set aside as "Open House Month" for visitors to six of its hydro plants in the vicinity of Clanton, Wetumpka and Tallassee. Customers of the Company and their friends are invited to bring picnic lunches and view the pioneer large power developments in the State. Roads to all of the dams are in good condition. Lay Dam is reached by way of Clanton, Alabama. To reach Mitchell Dam, turn off the Montgomery highway between Cooper and Verbena. Martin, Upper Tallassee and Thurlow Dams are reached by way of Tallassee, and Jordan Dam by way of Wetumpka.

All of the dams are in easy driving distance of practically any point in Alabama.

LEGISLATURE TO ADOPT SALES TAX

Realtor Predicts General Levy When Solons Reconvene In August

A general sales tax will be adopted by the Legislature when it reconvenes in a few weeks, Sidney W. Smyer, Birmingham attorney, predicted in an address before the Birmingham Real Estate Board meeting in Mary Beard's Tearoom Thursday.

Mr. Smyer represented the Alabama Real Estate Association and other real estate interests before the legislative committee that drafted the revenue bill and endeavored to get certain measures advocated by the association written into it.

The association's representatives went to Montgomery to advocate a certain program of real estate taxation, Mr. Smyer said, but soon discovered that instead of working for the passage of legislation favorable to real estate they had to work against the inclusion of sections that would have been more burdensome than the existing laws.

Mr. Smyer said repeal of the state ad valorem tax on real estate, advocated by the Real Estate Association, had no chance but seemed to think it might be favorably considered at the adjourned session especially when and if a sales tax is adopted.

TWO NEGRO CHILDREN DROWNED WHEN CAR PLUNGED INTO RIVER

Two negro girls, about 12 years old, were drowned last Friday afternoon, when the car in which they were riding plunged into the river at McGowan's Ferry several miles above Lay Dam. A young negro man was driving, and went around a curve and into the river before he realized the car was so near the water, reports say.

One of the girls, whose home was at Fayetteville, was wedged in the car when it was pulled out later Friday afternoon. The other girl, a daughter of Mose Browder of near Verbena, was not recovered until Monday morning of this week. Browder's girl was brought hame and buried at a nearby cemetery Monday.

There were two or three other larger girls in the car, but they managed to get out before drowning.

U. S. UPHELD IN POWER RULING

Washington Court Sustains Accounting Control On Mitchell Dam

Washington, July 19.—Another milestone had been passed today when the Alabama Power Co., lost its suit against Federal Power Commission over the Mitchell Dam project.

This was one of the oldest and most important actions brought by a power company against the Government agency. In commenting upon the decision, which was handed down in District of Columbia Supreme Court, the commission said:

"If the company's contention were to prevail, the Federal water power act would be emasculated and the great national resource of water power inherent in the streams of the country would be effectually lost to the American people."

The company had fought the commission's control of the capital structure and accounting of such of its properties as were licensed by the commission.

The commission had determined the cost of the Mitchell Dam project to be $6,173,576, thus slashing $4,472,479 from the company's claim as the legitimate costs. The commissioon disallowed substantial lobbying fees and other items and cut the company's claim of $3,550,000 for the value of lands involved in the project to $76,135.

YOUNG VOTERS AND THE NEW DEAL

[AN EDITORIAL]

The exorbitant borrowing and spending being indulged in by the present Democratic administration, and the inevitable burden of taxation that will follow, is causing the young voters of the country to think a little seriously about who will likely have to pay most of these debts of the government.

The present generation, of course, will have to pay, in fact, we are already paying on it every day. Congress and our legislators are scanning every class of people, every kind of merchandise, and every other medium through which revenue can be raised, but even as yet, the income in the way of tax money is for from sufficient to bear the enormous burden that is upon the shoulders of the treasury department of the nation and of the various states. The taxpayers will be paying and paying for years and years, and the cry and urge for MORE TAXES will become repulsive in the ears of those people who are trying to make an honest living by doing real work, earning a living and paying their honest debts.

The young voters of the country are the ones who will bear the brunt of all this business when the showdown really begins to come upon the country, and these young voters are beginning to realize it. The organization of Young Democrats of the State of Kansas have been bold enough to openly rebel against the New Deal and their needless spending. This organization recently resoluted publicly: "There is no place in the Democratic party for young people who believe in good government. We cannot go along with an administration which fails to recognize the responsibility of youth in government, or which needlessly piles up a debt on the citizens of the country. Existing conditions convince us that the only place for us to turn to is the Republican party which has achieved a unique record in maintaining sound government."

The young voters of America should be first to condemn the debt-making tactics of the present Democratic administration, because they are really more concerned than any other.

THE NEW DEAL AND THE SOLDIERS BONUS

The Alabama convention of the American Legion at Mobile last week declared in favor of immediate payment of the balance of the bonus to the ex-soldiers of the World War, with no interest charges being taken out against what the soldiers have borrowed on these certificates.

The Union-Banner believes that the argument of the Alabama Legion is sound and feasible. There is no better way for two billions of this money to be placed that is being put out by the government than to the soldiers. Of course, if economy were considered, the argument might be different; but inasmuch as the money is going to be spent, why not spend it for something that is righteous in motive and certainly to be broadly beneficial. This is a justified obligation of the government and sound from the standpont of economics. The American people would approve the payment of the bonus.

Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York, has introduced a resolution for the payment of these certificates out of the $4,800,000 public works fund and the billion balance carried over from the the last Congress. It would be welcome news if the administration could see fit to use some of this money to pay the nation's debt to the World War veterans.

STATE MAY VOTE ON DRY LAW AGAIN

Repeal Question May Be Resubmitted To The People of Alabama

The battle of ballots on prohibition, which ended last Febrary with an 8000 vote victory for the drys, will be re-enacted next winter or spring in the opinion of seasoned observers.

Powerful forces are at work to prevail on the Legislature to resubmit the qestion of state repeal and indications are that they will gain their point.

If the question is submitted again it will be accompanied by a definite plan of state liquor control to go into effect if repeal prevails.

Repeal advocates claim this one difference from the referendum last winter will mean the margin of victory.

In February, they point out, they had to meet not only the usual arguments against legalization of intoxicants but had to answer the charge chorused by the drys to the effect that repeal would mean the return of the open saloon.

The drys will be driven from this position, it is asserted, if the referendum includes a rigid system of state control.

SELMA ROAD APPROVED

Among the thirty-three road jobs over the State aready begun construction, or approved, is sixteen miles in Dallas county, which extends to the Chilton county line near Plantersville. The cost of this project is $112,108.

There are twenty-six other roads in different parts of the StatHe to be started soon on the "Three-Way Plan."

CHILTON COUNTY GIRL HONORED

Miss Evelyn Kelley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Kelley, of Jemison, has been placed on the honor roll at Jacksonville State Teachers College. Miss Kelley has made an average of B and above on all subjects during the entire spring term. She is a graduate of Verbena High School, completing there several years ago with a splendid record.

Miss Kelley is a student of splendid character and her friends are made by her acquaintances.

COUNTY PICNIC ON TUESDAY AUG. 6TH

Will Be Held At Sim's Grove, Same Place As Last Year

County Agent, J. W. Fant, announces that the date of the annual county-wide picnic for Chilton County this year has been definitely set for Tuesday, August 6th. The place will be the same as last year, the Ben Sims Grove, on the highway a mile and a half north of Clanton.

Mr. Fant is arranging the details of the program as fast as he can. Already he has secured the consent of Hon. Edward O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, to make the keynote speech of the occasion.

The appearance of Mr. O'Neal on the program is enough in itself to assure everyone that this affair will be one of the best of the kind ever held. This outstanding agricultural leader is an Alabama man, who, by his extraordnary ability as a farmer has risen to the high place of president of the American Farm Bureau Federation. His message will be of intense and vital concern to the farmers of Chilton County.

Other outstanding speakers will be secured for the day's program. Everybody is urged to make arrangements to attend. The purpose of the occasion is to bring all groups of Chilton County people together for a day of recreation, education, and friendly association.

This will be the fourth annual picnic held in Chilton County. The event was inaugurated by Cohen Stapp while he was County Agent, and has been carried on under supervision of Mr. Fant since he came here. It is an occasion that draws upwards of five thousand Chilton County people together each summer.

A FUNNY EGG FROM LAWLEY

Through a representative of Clanton Wholesale Grocery Company, The Union-Banner received Monday of this week a funny little egg, sent in by Mrs. C. L. Hicks of Lawley. It is about two inches in length, and has a handle like a gourd. The egg is exceptionally heavy to its size.

PARTAIN-DEASON

Mrs. Minnie M. Partain announces the engagement of her daughter, Eula Mae, to Isaac M. Deason, of Jemison and Birmingham, Ala., the wedding to be an event of September.

Ballot Box Opened In Contest Hearing

Case Is Continued To Friday, August 2 For Contest Argument

The election contest between Will Culp, Republican, and Tom McKee, Democrat, over the office of Tax Collector of Chilton County, was resumed Monday morning in the Circuit Court.

The entire proceedings Monday and Tuesday were devoted to arguments, testimony and investigations about the absentee ballot box, which has from the time of the election constituted the bone of the contention.

When the question of going into the ballot box was reached the procedure was opposed by counsel for McKee. This opposition apparently sought to delay opening of the box until testimony could be established as to what might have happened to the box since it was sealed up on election day and its results declared.

Finally Tuesday evening the Court permitted the box to be opened and its contents examined. At the adjournment of court Tuesday evening the Court requested counsel for both sides to present arguments Wednesday concerning certain legal points about the condition of the box.

Attorney Oliver D. Street, chief Counsel for Culp, left Clanton Tuesday afternoon before the request of the Court for further argument was announced. Mr. Street was not present on Wednesday morning, and the case was continued by the court to Friday, August 2.

Counsel for McKee opposed the motion to continue the case and insisted that they were ready for trial. Julge Glover, however, affirming his desire to be absolutely fair to all sides, established the order of continuance and set the date of August 2 to resume arguments about the absentee ballot box.

LEGION DEMANDS BONUS PAYMENT

Dr. Marion Inge Is Named As Commander At Alabama Legion Convention

Mobile, Ala., July 17.—Tired but happy, Alabama's legionnaires Wednesday elected Dr. Marion Inge, of Mobile, as state commander, voted to meet next year at Huntsville, and adjourned their three-day envention by again urging immediate cash payment of the bonus with no interest deductions for loans on bonus certificates.

The convention broke up amid shouts of "see you next year at Huntsville," to end reunion of World War buddies who have paraded, danced, fished and been entertained almost continuously since their arrival here Saturday.

Dr. Inge defeated James K. Brawner, of Andalusia, 267 to 133, to succeed Col. W. S. Pritchard, of Birmingham, retiring commander, whose vigorous sponsorship of the Street anti-sedition bill before the Legislature was approved by the legion through adoption of a resolution.

The resolution was adopted near the close of the final business session, and drew only passing attention from weary delegates who awaited the sound of the adjournment gavel before leaving for their homes.

ALABAMA NOTABLES GUESTS AT BARBECUE NEAR CLANTON

Several Birmingham leaders, headed by City Commision President Jimmy Jones, and Secretary of State Howell Turner, were guests at a barbecue at Bob Sumner's lodge near here Wednesday of last week.

Also in the Birmingham group were former Commissioner John Taylor and John Donaldson. L. E. Diefenderfer served in the voluntary capacity of an informal toastmaster. Judge L. H. Reynolds, Mayor Fenn Jones, H. T. Pipes, Marion Gore, W. D. Spigener.

Others in the group were: A. E. Fitezgerald, K. N. Kicker, J. C. Robinson, Morris Kohn, Bill Hawkins, Secretary of State Hamell Turner, A. A. Basse, all from Birmingham; T. J. LittleJohn, M. Lande, J. T. Rockett, M. D. Foshee, J. L. Easterling, Joe Gore, Carlee Cleckler, F. J. Callen, H. G. Heflin, John Still, Al Henderson, Jark Armstrong, and H. E. Gore, all of Clanton.

An elaborate spread of barbecued chicken, barbecued kid, fish, and rolls prepared by M. D. Foshee of Clanton, were included in the menu. Guests were introduced by Mr. Diefenderfer and each spoke briefly—impromptu addresses on the scenery, the menu, or politics. There were also games to while away the time.

CONCERT AT COOPERS

Prof. W. M. Devaughn and his snging school class will give a concert at the school auditorium Saturday night, July 27th, begnning at 8 o'clock. Admission will be 10c and 15c.

The program will consist of duets, solos, quartets, and other features costomarily used on such occasions. Prof. Devaughn and the students extend an invitation to all who like good singing to come.

APPROVAL GIVEN FOR FIVE MILLION

Final Approval Expected On 27 Other Projects Authorized

Thad Holt, works progress administrator for Alabama, Monday received federal confirmation of 145 PWA projects to employ 16,256 men at an "over-all" expenditure of $5,728,418, and announced the works would be started as quickly as local and federal preliminaries are completed on each project.

Holt explained the number of men involved included the 5,000 already at work on PWA projects in the state, and said that 27 projects tentatively approved in Washington had not yet been certified to him. The 145 projects were included in the 172 recently approved by President Roosevelt.

Start Work Daily

The administrator said projects likely would be started daily.

In addition to the $5,728,418 authorization, Holt said that $40,000 had been set aside for administrative expensese.

The projects were certified in two sections, the first including 130 projects at $5,505,025 and the second, 15 projects at $222,793.

"These are strictly WPA projects—a job for people now on relief—and do not include PWA, CCC or any kind of works other than PWA," Holt said.

Workers will be paid only twice a month, but the payrolls will be broken down and payments made every five days beginning with the fifth of each month.

JEMISON GIRL ON RADIO PROGRAM

Will Broadcast In F.F.A. Hour On Saturday, July 27 At 3:45 P.M.

Miss Josephine Adams of Jemison, Ala., will broadcast on an F. F. A. program for Station WSFA, Montgomery on Saturday, July 27, 1935, at 3:45 p.m.

Miss Adams was a student in vocational Home Economics at Jemison High school, where she was graduated with honors. In 1934 she was chosen to represent her school at the Inter-High School Meeting at Alabama College, Montevallo. In the class "B" cooking contest, she won first place. Later she won a trip to Washington, D. C., given by Congressman W. B. Oliver. This prize was awarded to the two girls in his Congressional District making the highest grade in vocational home economics.

At the last meeting of the A. E. A. in Birmingham, Ala., Miss Adams was invited to speak at the annual banquet given for vocational teachers at the Tutwiler Hotel. She selected for her subject, "What Home Economics Has Meant to Me." Many favorable comments were heard from the teachers attending this banquet. She delivered a wonderful speech at the Kiwanis Club banquet given at the Exchange Hotel in Clanton last April. On June 27 she was invited to talk to Miss Ruby Simpson's class in vocational home economics at Alabama College.

Miss Adams has a charming personality and is deeply interested in Vocational education. She believes that every boy and girl should have their training.

Listen in on the F. F. A. Program and let her tell you what vocational home economics has meant to her.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

STATE TEACHEHS' WEEK PROGRAM IS COMPLETE

Auburn, Ala.—The program for Farmers' Week here, July 30-August 2, has been printed and a few copies mailed to each county agricultural agent in the State.

The session will open at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon with an address by Senator John H. Bankhead on the subject, "National Farm Legislation." Senator Hugo Black will speak on the "New Deal," Thursday afternoon, August 1.

Wednesday will be devoted to a joint meeting of farmers and industrial leaders at which time leading agriculturists and industrialists will speak. In the afternoon they will make a tour of the state experiment station to observe the latest agricultural experiments.

Governor Graves will speak to the group Wednesday night when leading men and women of the state will be recognized for their outstanding work in agriculture.

Thursday sessions will open with an address by Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, on "An Agricultural Policy for America." Friday morning, Earl Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural Association, will speak on "A functioning Farm organization."

The women will assemble with the men each morning but in the afternoons of July 31 and August 1 they will hold separate sessions.

Auburn is prepared for one of the most enthusiastic Farmrs' Weews ever held here, reports Dr. L. N. Duncan, president of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute and director of the extention service.

TOURNAMENT PLANS

Plans are being made to arrange a county-wide baseball tournament to be played at the Clanton ball park, beginning Monday August, 19th.

Invitations will be sent to the following teams: 1st bracket—Clanton, Alabama Mills, Jemison, Randolph, Plantersville, Maplesville, and Independence; 2nd bracket—American Legion, Cane Creek, Union Grove, Lay Dam, Verbena, Coopers and Isabella. If there are other teams who wish to participate, managers of such clubs should get in touch with M. W. Marcus, Clanton.

The procedure this year will be along a double elimination plan, playing daily until all teams have lost two games except one in each bracket, which team will be declared the winner in that bracket. A team must lose two games before being put out of the running.

The reason for putting the teams in different brackets is to give every team in the county a chance to win, without having to play games against teams admittedly out of their class. Last year there were several teams in the county who would not enter the tournament because they believed they had no chance at the crown, and this feature has been adopted so that all may have a chance.

Play is expected to draw out over a period of about two weeks, with two games each day—one in each of the brackets. Competent umpires will be secured to work the games. A board of control will be named, too, to iron out all difficulties that may arise. Everything will be done that can be done to have a fair and square tournament. Rules for the management of the tournament will be drawn up, and acknowledged by managers of participating clubs when they enter. These rules will hold good at all times, and umpires and other officials will be in complete charge of games, having the same powers as those exercised in major league competition.

Plans are not complete as yet, but further information will be given in the near future. Look for this.

SUMMER FIRE SEASON THREATENS FORESTS

Montgomery.—That the July showers comprise little assurance that there may not be an acute forest fire season in middle and late summer is the opinion of the Alabama Commission of Forestry. While July is the second wettest month of the year as to the amount of precipitation, the rains usually occur in brief heavy downpours over limited localities, resulting in quick runoff. Intermediate territory may remain bone-dry for weeks. Very often most of the precipitation occurs in the first half of the month with the second half quite dry over almost the entire state.

In Alabama there are apt to be two annual fire seasons, one beginning early in the year and extending into April, and the other beginning about the first of August and running through October into middle November. The latter period does not always present acute danger, but it sometimes is much the worst season of the two. The summer fire season of 1924 and 1931 were fitting examples of the latter kind.

The protection of Alabama woodlands is not a difficult or complicated matter if those responsible for the management of the land apply themselves diligently to the problem during times of high fire hazard. Refraining from the setting of fires and the prompt extinction of those that may start by accident before they have assumed large proportions, are the cardinal principles in this feature of management.

SINGING SCHOOL AT SUNSHINE

Beginning Monday, July 29th, Prof. Marion W. Easterling will teach a singing school at Sunshine church, in Refuge community. The regular tuition prices will prevail.

Prof. Easterling returned only a few days ago from Mississippi, where he taught two schools. Previous to that he had taught a school at Mobile. He is one of the foremost young teachers of this part of the State, and Sunshine community is fortunate in obtaining his services as a teacher.

1,000 FFA BOYS ELECT OFFICERS

Auburn, Ala.—The 1,000 Alabama farm boys who attended the seventh annual meeting of the Alabama Association of Future Farmers of America, here this year elected five outstanding farm boys and two educational leaders to direct the activities of the association during the present year.

A. C. Allen, Jr., Holtville, Elmore county, was elected president; William Crawford, Marion, vice-president; Neil Martin, Wetumpka, secretary, Cecil Cubia, Cedar Bluff, treasurer; and Joe Camp, Atmore, reporter. R. E. Cammack, supervisor of agricultural education in Alabama, and P. C. Brook, assistant supervisor, were advisor for the year.

Speakers at the annual conference who urged the boys to continue their educational efforts include Dr. L. N. Duncan, president of the Alabama Palytechnic Institute and director of the state extension service, Dr. J. A. Keller, state superintendent of education; Dr. J. B. Hobdy, director of vocational education; H. O. Sargent, Washington, national director in vocational education; H. O. Maltby, Washington, regional agent in agricultural education and others.

The boys made a tour of the State experiment station and observed the latest experiments in agriculture. A watermelon cutting, baseball game, and a parade through the streets of Auburn were other features of the program.

UNION GROVE

Health of this place is good and farmers are needing rain for the first time this year.

Most of our Sunday school went to the singing at Mt. Pleasant after Sunday school. Our Sunday school is fine but not what it could be. Our B. Y. P. U. is doing fine. Sunday night, out of 44 members present, 41 answered white of reading their daily Bible. That is fine.

Don't forget that next Sunday our meeting starts at Union Grove, conducted by Bro. Carroll and Bro. Green. Don't forget the time and come and help, August 28th.

ITCH STOPS Like Magic!

Folks who have used HYDROSAL for itching, burning outbreaks could hardly believe such quick relief was possible! Doctors have prescribed HYDROSAL for 23 years. Even in stubborn, torturing eczema, Athlete's Foot (or "Itchy Toes"), rashes and pimples, the burning and itching fade away the minute HYDROSAL touches the skin. HYDROSAL penetrates the skin and acts to check growth of the germ causing local disorder. Gives Nature real help to quick healing. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau. Money back if it does not satisfy you. At all druggists in two forms, liquid and ointment—30c and 60c sizes.

NOTICE OF PARDON

SUMMER SHOPPING SAYS HAVE SPECIAL APPEAL FOR ALL 4-H CLUB GIRLS

Summer shopping days have a special appeal to 4-H club girls enrolled in clothing projects. They have an interest in the new colors and designs in fabrics, hats, shoes, hose and other articles not shared by other shoppers For by wise exercise of taste and thrift in the selection of materials and accessories for their season's outfits the girls may win club honors, besides which there are coveted medals and wonderful trips for count, state and national winners again offered through the National Committee on Boys and Girls Clubs Club Work.

In the six years this contest has been conducted over 200 4-H girls from all over the country have won prize educational trips to the annual Chicago revue and many thousands have won medals and trips to their state and other dress revues.

Girls in this year's contest are required to make one of four classes of dresses—a school wash dress or suit—a wool, silk or rayon dress or suit for school—a "best" dress of any material—and an informal party dress. The girl will be required in local, state and national contests to model the outfit with complete accessories of her own selection and purchase.

The final contest is again to be a stellar feature of the National Club Congress to be held in Chicago early in December in connection with the international Live Stock Expedition, and is sponsored by the Chicago Mail Order Company and conducted in cooperation with state and county club leaders.

HIGHLAND NEWS

Our singing society met last Sunday afternoon with a large crowd. We had several visitors which we were very glad to have. We surely did have a good singing and we invite all visitors to come back and be with us everytime they can.

The opening song was led by the chairman, Mr. Coy Lockhart, after which directors were as follows:

Mr. Coy Lockhart, Gladys Wyatt, Catherine Coe, Ruby Weldon, Margie Crowson, Blanche Jones, Annie Wainwright, Willie Merle Lockhart, L. Z. Dickey, Leonard Weldon, Fonzie Coe, Mr. Emmitt Wilson, Lecie Hamilton, R. J. Forsyth, Soverign Dickey, and Mr. Hiram Littlejohn. Closing prayer was by Mr. M. D. Dickey.

Listen folks! There will be an all day singing at this place the third Sunday in August. We invite all singers and listeners to come and be with us. But listen, we positively do not want any drinking. If you are a singer and wish to come you are more than welcome, or if you are a lover of singing and wish to come and listen we are looking for you. But all who are coming just to drink and have a big time, please stay away.—Sec'ty.

Concord - Billingsley

The third quarterly conference was held at this place last Saaturday. The revival began here also, and everyone has an invitation to attend.

Several from here attended the annual singing at Antioch Sunday and reported a nice time.

Mr. T. J. Deramus returned home Saturday after spending several days in Selma with relatives.

Miss Florence Ledbetter and little sister, Jessie Pearl, spent a few days last week with their aunt, Mrs. J. P. Williams.

Mrs. Agnes McLean is spending this week with Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Williams and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Owens visited Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Dickinson Sunday.

Miss Minnie Herrod of Haynes is visiting relatives here this week.

Miss Eula Belle Williams was the dinner guest of Miss Rowena Surles Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Porter Williams of Jones were visiting relatives here Sunday.

Misses Alta and Julia Sue Dickinson spent Saturday afternoon with Misses Jettie and Bertha Williams.

Rev. J. S. Johnson and Mr. Wesley Williams were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Williams Sunday.

Mr. Will Anderson of Sardis was a visitor here last Saturday.

IN REMEBERANCE OF MRS. M. M. SHAW

On July 17, the death angel came and bore away the soul of grandmother, who, if she had lived until December 8, would have been 90 years of age.

She was the wife of Hugh Shaw, of Rockford, who preceded her to the Great over 16 years.

Grandmother has paid the debt which we all must pay and we know that she was ready to go.

She leaves to mourn her loss, three daughters' Mrs. Telitha Boswell, of Central, Ala.; Mrs. Edna Hatchett, of Rockford; Mrs. Hixie Fullman, of Central, Ala.; and five sons, W. A. Shaw, of Clanton Route 6; D. L. Shaw and J. W. Shaw, both of Rockford, Route 1; H. M. Shaw, of Rilltown, near Notasulga; L. S. Shaw of Wilsonville, and a host of friends and relatives.

Pall-bearers were the grandsons and a nephew of the deceased. She was laid to rest at Pleasant Hill cemetery near Rockford, with Revs. G. B. Golden, G. B. Waits and J. T. Fielding officiating with Alex City Funeral Service in charge.—A Granddaughter, Linnie Pearl Shaw.

Beginning Saturday, first quality double cane bottom chairs at factory prices. Big Four Hardware Co.

BOB JONES

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

Sometime ago a banker said to the writer, "Dr. Jones, why is it so many men criticize evangelists and Christian workers? Why is it they are so often misrepresented and slandered?" That friend asked an important question and I will give you my answer to him. "You have a bank. The devil is not against your bank one way or the other. There is a store up the street and the devil is neither a friend or an enemy of that store. He is not interested. You go get a sign and put out in front of your bank and say 'This bank stands unqualifiedly for the Word of God. It is a Christian institution. It believes the Bible from cover to cover. It believes that God created man in His own image and man fell into sin. It believes that Jesus Christ died on the cross shedding His blood for the redemption of a lost world. This bank stands unqualifiedly for the old time religion and the absolute authority of the Bible!' Put that sign and you will make the devil angry and he will be against your bank.

As soon as Jesus Christ was born the devil tried to kill him. The religionists of His day hounded Him wherever He went. He was lied about. They said He was no friend to Caesar. They spat on Him. They put a crown of thorns on His brow. They nailed Him on the cross. His opposition was nothing but satanic opposition. The devil was against Him. John the Baptist got his head cut off because he told the truth. The apostle Paul was persecuted because many of the Jews of His day wanted the world to believe Jesus Christ was dead. Paul told them that He was not dead, that He had met Him on the Damascus road. The early church was persecuted because Christians wouldn't compromise. Martin Luther John Knox, John Wesley, Dwight L. Moody and every great uncompromising preacher in the world has been lied about and slandered. Beware of the minister about whom you have never heard slander. "Woe be unto you when all men speak well of you." If you live godly you will suffer persecution.

MT. CARMEL LADIES TO SPONSOR CREAM SUPPER

The ladies of Mt. Carmel Baptist church will sponsor an ice cream supper, at the home of Mrs. Tom Sims, on Saturday night, August 3rd. There will also be some exciting contests. Don't miss the fun. Be there! Proceeds will go for benefit of the church.

They were honoring the presence of Mrs. Calloway's son, Ralph, of San Antonio, Texas. Many friends were present also. An enjoyable day was had by all present.

The young wife was in tears when she opened the door for her husband. "Your mother insulted me," she sobbed.

"My mother?" he exclaimed. "But she is a hundred miles away.

"I know it, but a letter came in for you this morning and I opened it."

Ho looked stern. "I see, but where does the insult come in?"

"In the postcript," she answered. "It said: 'Dear Alice, don't forget to give this to George."

CLOSING EXERCISES AT CLARA BELLE SMITH BUSINESS COLLEGE

The closing exercises for the fiscal year of the Clara Belle Smith Business College, Columbus, Ga., were enjoyed by the student body and visitors on July third. A patriotic note was carried out with flags and flowers for decorations. Miss Louise Scott led the class in the pledge of allegiance to the flag. Robert Perkins, Jr., read "The History of the Flag." An inspiring article on "Respect for the Flag" was read by Mrs. Pearl Smith Truman.

A striking feature of the program was the thought expressed by an able statesman over a century ago regarding the structure of our government: "She's not clipperbuilt, our good old Ship of State; but she is constructed on the lines of a raft. An autocracy is a man of war, a formidable thing, capable of terrible execution, which if she strikes a mine or reef, is liable to go suddenly to the bottom. A raft on the other hand, is 'the devil and all to steer' and she keeps your feet wet most of the time, but you can't sink her. Can anyone question the raft-like tendencies of our blessed republic?"

Interesting papers on the ethics of life were read by the following students: Miss Esther Lee Dennis of Clanton., Miss Frances Edwards, of Phoenix City, Ala., Miss Barbara Capps, of Opelika, Ala., Miss Martha Culpepper, of Cuseta, Ga., Misses Betty Thweatt, Frances Bruce, Lonetta Flippen, Louise Scott and Ida Lee Baxter, all of Columbus, Ga.

These young ladies wore pastel shades with corsages to match, making a picture we shall never forget.

Miss Esther Lee Dennis, of Clanton, Ala., received grade A on her certificate from the Commercial Stenographic and Typewriting Department.

For the fiscal year diplomas were awarded to the following graduates:

Certificates were awarded the following named graduates:

Nancy Butts and Christine Harris, Hamilton, Georgia; Ramona Spivey, Alexander Cit, Alabama; Virginia Smith, Atlanta, Georgia; Allen Carpenter, Phoenix City, Alabama; Myra Guin Hough, Birmingham, Alabama; Esther Lee Dennis, Clanton, Alabama; Louise Norman, Ross Durden, Opal Eddings, Eleanor Conyers, Betty Brown, Julia G. Allen, Mary Cotton Walton, Hazel Ellis, Carolyn Little, Emma Kate Williams, Frances Bruce, Betty Thweatt, all of Columbus, Ga.

At the close of the exercises refreshments were served in the parlors of the college. The following list of guests enjoyed this hospitality:

Julia Helen Alexander, Ida Lee Baxter, Richard Maurice Bentley, Hilda Boland, Carl Brown, Frances Brice, Barbara Capps, Sanford Carter, Harvey Cartledge, Olan Clark, Frances Conyers, Martha Culpepper, Gladys Cusic, Wilson Culpepper, Lynn Dalton, Mary Elizabeth Daniel, Mary Frances Daniell, Esther Lee Dennis, Frances Edwards, Eva Greer, Joe Roger Hair, Jr., Leila Belle Sharp, Mrs. Frank Honick, Roy Jackson, Alice Johnson, Monteen Laye, Charles Maathews, John Murphy, Evelyn Trost, Lola McBride, Mary Newton, Mrs. Anne Nolan, Ruth Parker, Robert Perkins, Jr., Dotis Ratliff, Levada Riley, Margaret Ritch, Louise Scott.

Marcela de la Serna, Myra Small, Betty Thweatt, Paula Terrell, Roscoe Williams, Mrs. Maud Blankenship, Hamilton, Ga., Mrs. Arthur Varnes, Jacksonville, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. James Baxter, Mr. Douglas Fortner, Mrs. Henry Talbutt, Mrs. Jack Hagood, Mrs. Robert Thweatt, Miss Martha Huggins, Birmingham, Ala., Mrs. Alton Scott, Mary Jane Scott, Nellie Jane Trotter, Alice Bussey, Mrs. Lillian Chancellor, and Miss Bertha Dennis, of Clanton, Ala.; Bob Thweatt Walter Bugg, Mrs. Richard Bruce and Richard, Jr., Mrs. Vera Howard, Mrs. M. A. Capps, Miss Lyda Whatley and Miss Calara Whaatley, Mrs. A. H. Langford, Mrs. J. M. Culpepper, Mrs. Charles Doughtie, Mrs. U. H. Smith, Mr. H E Smith and Mrs J. H. Bennett, Fort Benning.

Miss Evelyn Truman, accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Daniel, rendered patriotic music. Mrs. Pearl Truman, assisted by Evelyn Trost and Paula Terrell received the guests.

WALNUT CREEK

The revival meeting will begin here the second Sunday in August and run the following week. Everyone has a cordial invitation to attend and worship with us. Rev. T. C. Cassady of Montgomery will do the preaching.

There will be a working at the church on Thursday, August 8th, for the purpose of beautifying the church and yard, and to get ready for the revival. Bring tools to work with.

Our pastor will return from Macon County Friday afternoon, after spending two weeks in a revival meeting with Rev. P. A. Lynch.

We are going to give our pastor a pounding Friday night, July 26. We especially invite all members to come.

TO CONDUCT REVIVAL AT TEMPLE CHURCH

The summer revival at Temple church, three miles southeast of Clanton, will begin on Sunday, July 28th, and continue for probably a couple of weeks. The preaching will be done by Rev. O. M. Montgomery, of Wynn, Ark. The preacher's wife, Mrs. Opal Montgomery, will assist with the music. The public is invited to attend these services.

CITIZENS CONSIDER PAVING STREETS

Kiwanis Club Committee Has Approved Plan Submitted By Mayor Jones

Since the subject was brought to the attention of the public by Mayor C. Fenn Jones last week, there has arisen a great interest among the citizens of Clanton concerning the possibility of paving a number of the streets in the residence sections of the city.

Mayor Jones issued his statement about the matter to the newspapers last week and appeared before the Kiwanis Club Thursday night for a further discussions of the proposed plans.

Acting upon the appeal made by Mayor Jones, Dr. V. J. Gragg, chairman of the Public Affairs Committee of the Kiwanis Club, immideately called his committee together to consider the question. It was thought good and the committee at once made plans to bring it to the attention of the citizens concerned. A consultation was held by the committee with Mayor Jones, who gave his assent to the plans outlined.

Mayor Jones invited a group of interested citizens living on the different streets to meet at his office on Wednesday night for a full consideration of the proposal. Out of this group a committee will be named to contact every property owner who may be affected by the paving, if it is done, in order to determine what the general sentiment about the matter is.

Merely as a basis of beginning, the streets which will be called upon to consider paving are as follows:

Tenth Street, Ninth Street, Second Avenue North, First Avenue, Second Avenue South, Sixth Street, Eighth Street, Fifth Avenue North, and Fifth Street.

Generay speaking there has been a most favorable reaction to the question since it has been put before the citizens by Mayor Jones. Almost everyone seems agreed that the proper thing to do is to have the paving done now while a portion of the cost may be obtained as a grant from the government.

Mrs. Warrene Farrior, who has been attending summer school at Montevallo college in Montevallo, returned to her home Saturday and has resumed her work as visitor in the Chilton County Relief Office.

Tires Withstand Accidents That Demolish Cars

What happens when racing motor cars traveling 100 miles an hour get out of control is shown by the accompanying pictures taken at the Indianapolis Speedway. They also demonstrate how helpless even the most expert drivers are under such conditions, particularly the illustration at the right, which shows Al Gordon, one of the world's best racing pilots, climbing over a concrete retaining wall.

These racing cars weigh approximately 2,000 pounds. When they hit a solid wall, two and one half feet high, at a speed of almost two miles a minute the impact is terrific.

Inspection of these accidents brought out one fact of particular interest to the average motorist — that was the performance of the tires. Though the chassis were wrecked, the tires were found fully inflated and undamaged.

Racing officials and drivers at Indianapolis cited this particular tire performance as a "concrete" demonstration of the value of speed contests in developing better automotive equipment for general use. For many years, Firestone engineers have been designing and building tires that would withstand ever increasing speeds and punishment. That race drivers, who choose their tires with unusual care and buy them outright, appreciate these efforts is shown by the fact that practically all entrants in the Indianapolis and other important speed events for more than a decade have used Firestones exclusively.

Al Gordon smashes headon into concrete wall at 100 miles an hour. The tires showed no evidence of damage.

This car hit the speedway retaining wall at terrific speed, and bounced many yards off the track. The chassis was completely wrecked, yet the tires suffered no injury.

POOR OR

Do you tire easily?

Sluggish, overworked blood makes you feel weak—mentally dull.

S.S.S. Tonic brings new vitality and tone to the whole body.

BODILY WEAKNESS is only one of the many symptoms of a low red-blood-cell count. Loss of appetite, underweight, nervousness and like common ills are often due to this same underlying cause.

The red-blood-cells must be up to normal and vigorous to keep the tissues pure and to help supply the body with fresh oxygen-energy in its circuit thru the entire body of over 200 times daily.

S.S.S. Tonic, in the absence of any organic disease, should help you get those vital red-blood-cells back up to normal. It will make you enjoy your food and help your digestion, too. It is a scientific medicine. 108 years of success. Just try it and you, too, may soon "feel like yourself again." Insist on S.S.S. Tonic in the blood red cellophane wrapped package. The larger size is sufficient for two weeks' treatment—and is more economical, too. At all Drug Stores. © S.S.S. Co.

INJUNCTION HALTS PROCESSING TAX

Six Alabama firms attacking the Government's processing taxes on cotton and pork won the first round of their battle in U. S. District Court in Birmingham Friday when Judge Charles B. Kennamer granted them a temporary injunction enjoining collection of the levies.

The firms were required to post with the court clerk bonds or cash security in the amount of the processing taxes as they come due each month until the issue is finally determined.

Judge Kennamer, who presided over court in the absence of Judge William I. Grubb, gave Government counsel 20 days in which to answer before getting the case for final hearing.

Doubts Constitutionality

That he would rule in favor of the plaintiffs had been inferred from the jurist's remark from the bench that in his opinion the Agricultural Adjustment Administration act, under which the taxes are levied to pay farm benefits for crop control, is "clearly unconstitutional."

The jurist, commenting as the hearing on the suit recessed late Friday, based his informal opinion on the ground that the act "is not a revenue-producing measure but is for the control of crop production.

He announced at conclusion of the hearing, however, that his order in the case—then in preparation—would make no reference to the act's constitutional status.

The issue will probably reach the U. S. Supreme Court on appeal from a decision handed down this week by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Boston, holding the processing taxes unconstitutional.

Chief issue at the hearing here yesterday was the question of whether the Alabama firms are entitled to consideration in equity in their attempt to halt collection of the levies.

Dispute Tax Issue

District-Attorney Smith argued that proper recourse would be through civil action brought against the collector of internal revenue by the plaintiffs after they had paid the tax. Ben Leader, of counsel for the plaintiffs, disputing this, insisted that the issue was not solely a tax question, in the legal sense.

Plaintiffs in the suit are the Alabama Packing Co., Alabama Mills, Inc., Profile Cotton Mills, Cherry Cotton Mills, Anniston Manufacturing Co., and the Adelaide Cotton Mills.

HOME COMING AT CANE CREEK

On the second Sunday in August we are going to have a home-coming at Cane Creek, (Aug. 11). We want all our older members who have moved away to come back home and all enjoy being together once more, as we once have been. If you have joined some other church we want you to come. The program will be announced later.

Watch Your Perspective

"Distortion is possible if you want it (left) or it can easily be avoided"

WHAT would your girl friend or wife say if you made your appearance with her picture after the Sunday outing, showing her with enormous feet such as those in the picture to the left?

War would probably be declared when you made the familiar statement, "Well, dear, the camera never lies." But the truth is that the camera didn't lie for it caught just what the lens saw.

Evidently the amateur who took this picture held the camera quite low, and probably less than three feet from the two feet of the attractive young lady. Her head and shoulders were at the right distance from the camera to give good perspective but her feet were perhaps thirty-six inches nearer the lens.

Perspective in a picture is determined by the point of view from which the lens makes the picture, so after all the camera did not tell a little white lie, but portrayed exactly what it saw and just about what the eye would see if one looked at the subject from the same point of view.

True, this is a much exaggerated example of bad perspective, but in making portraits, or indeed, "close-ups" of any object, we should be careful to see that no part of the subject is very much nearer the camera than the rest.

In making portraits we are sometimes likely to permit our subject to place a hand well forward on the arm of the chair. If working within three or four feet from your subject the hand will appear abnormally large. Better have the hands in the lap in a natural position and close to the body, with most of the fingers folded under.

Now you should know how and how not to get distortion in your portraits so let your conscience be your guide.

JOHN VAN GUILDER.

Lesson for July 28

AMOS

LESSON TEXT—Amos 7:7-17.

GOLDEN TEXT—But let judgment run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream.—Amos 5:24.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Hero Preacher.

JUNIOR TOPIC—When God Needed a Hero.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Standing for the Right.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—God's Plumb Line and Our Social Order.

Amos was a herdsman called of God to be a prophet. A prophet is one who speaks forth the message of God. He convicts the people of their sins, pleads for them to get right with God. The only effective way to correct wrong social usage is to bring the people into right relationship with God.

I. The Call of Amos (1.1).

He was a herdsman and gatherer of sycamore fruit (7:14). He was not a prophet by succession, neither was he trained in the prophetic schools.

II. To Whom Amos Was Sent (1:1)

Though he was from Judah, his ministry was to be primarily to Israel.

III. Amos' Message.

1. Sins denounced (2:6-8; 6:1-6).

a. Avaricious greed (2:6-8).

(1) Sold the righteous for silver (v 6). The judge, for a bribe of silver declared the innocent to be guilty.

(2) Sold the poor for a pair of shoes (v. 6). It doubtless referred to the practice of selling into slavery the debtor who could not pay for a pair of shoes which he had been sold on credit.

(3) Pants after the dust of the earth (v. 7). So avaricious had these men become that they even grasped after the earth which the downtrodden poor cast upon their head in their mourning because of their misery.

(4) Turned aside the way of the meek (v. 7). These grasping rich men turned aside the meek, that is, those who did not stand up for their rights.

(5) Licentiousness (v. 7). So notorious were the immoralities practiced that they were even guilty of incestuous prostitution. How adequately this pictures the licentiousness of our present age.

b. Reckless security (6:1-3). They closed their eyes to the approaching judgment predicted by the prophet.

c. Luxury (6:4-6). Their luxury expressed itself in:

(1) Extravagant furniture. They had beds of ivory, which means, doubtless, wood inlaid with ivory.

(2) Laziness (v. 4). Many stretched themselves on their couches, thus living lives of indolence.

(3) Feasted on delicacies (v. 4). They bought what they desired, regardless of its cost.

(4) Adorned their feasts with music (v. 5). They sang idle songs, even inventing musical instruments for this purpose.

(5) They drank wine (v. 6) They drank from bowls, indicating excessive drinking.

d. They failed to grieve for Joseph. Many are today indulging in luxury, entirely indifferent to the crying needs of others.

2. The remedy proposed (5:4-9). The prophet called upon them to return to God. The time to repent is while divine judgment is stayed. In their turning to God they were to renounce:

a. Idolatry (vv. 5, 6). They were to turn away from the places of idolatry—Bethel, Gilgal, and Beer-sheba.

b. Seeking to pervert judgment (v. 7). Turning judgment to wormwood implies the bitterness of the perversion of judgment to the injured.

c. Seeking to dethrone righteousness (v. 7). "Leaving off righteousness" is thought to mean that unrighteousness was allowed to take its place.

IV. Intercedes for the People (7:1-9)

The prophet stands here not merely as the proclaimer of judgment, but as the intercessor for the people.

V. Opposed by Amaziah the Priest (7:10-17).

1. Message sent to Jeroboam (vv. 10, 11). The priest sought to hinder the prophet by informing the king of the judgment which Amos proclaimed.

2. He attempted to silence the prophet (vv. 12, 13).

3. The prophet's bold reply (vv. 14-17).

a. He declared that he had received his commission from God directly (vv. 14, 15). The one who has heard the call of God must be faithful in the declaration of his message even though opposed by ecclesiastical and political leaders.

b. Doom pronounced (vv. 16, 17). He set forth the shame and distress of the Babylonian captivity, which came upon them because of their unfaithfulness to God.

An Overwhelming Thought

How could we bear that overwhelming thought "Thou knowest"—the thought that there is certainly somewhere, unless also we had the conviction warm at our hearts, "Thou lovest"—the certainty that the deepest certainty of all is the love of him who orders all.—W. Charles.

THE MEAT SHORTAGE

There is no longer any doubt about a meat shortage. The U. S. Department of Agriculture itself says that federally inspected slaughter houses produced 27 per cent less meat during the first four months of 1936 than during the same period in 1934. The average man who buys occasionally from the butcher does not have to be told about the shortage. The Bureau of Agriculture Economics says in part:

"The bureau's index of retail meat prices in New York City, based on prices for good grade meats, with 1924 to 1928 as 100, shows that beef prices rose from 66.9 in December last year to 98.8 on May 15. Pork prices advanced from 69.1 to 86.9 and lamb prices rose from 53 to 60.2. Ordinarily lamb prices advance relatively more during this period.

"Meat supplies thus far this year have been much smaller than average. Total production of meats from federally-inspected slaughter houses during the first four months was only about 73 per cent as large as in the same period last year and as in the five-year average of 1930 to 1934.

"The decrease in meat supplies has been most pronounced in pork, although the reduction in beef also has been relatively large. The shortage in both is due in large part to the great reduction in feed supplies caused by the drought"

Of course the Bureau neglected to mention the planned destruction of pigs in the summer of 1933 That may have something to do with the shortage but the consumer is supposed to forget it

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

Things seem to be shaping up for a real war between Italy and Ethiopia. Great Britain hopes to be able to prevent the conflict because she fears it may have unfortunate effects on the people of some of her own colonies. Great Britain is the most resourceful and the most skilful country in the world diplomatically, but up to this time she has been unable to do much because France has sided with Italy and the United States has properly refused to concern itself with the trouble.

The most important thing to Americans is that our State Department has very wisely announced that it will keep hands off the difficulty. It is said that some European diplomats are disappointed, and this no doubt includes the British, who want some support to help stop Mussolini. Perhaps this present need accounts for some of the recent declarations, by British statesmen, to the effect that it is necessary "for the peace of the world" that British and Americans see "eye to eye" in world politics. Perhaps they thought they would be needing us about this time.

When the King of Ethiopia appealed to the United States, the State Department answered him that our government is "gratified that the League of Nations, with a view to a peaceful settlement, has given its attention to the controversy which has unhappily arisen." Again the note states, "Furthermore, and of great importance, in view of the Pact of Paris, to which both Italy and Abyssinia are parties, in common with sixty-one other countries, my government would be loath to believe that either of them would resort to other than pacific means as a method of dealing with this controversy."

Of course the League of Nations is "busy" on the matter, and of course both quarreling nation are signatories of the Paris pact. And the world, including Uncle Sam, knows just how much this is worth in the mess of Old World politics. So Uncle Sam is warning his citizens out of Abyssinia. Indeed if it were not known that Secreary of State Hull was such a serious-minded gentleman, one might well suspect him of subtle irony in that reference to the League of Nations, and the one about the signatories of the Pact of Paris.

The League of Nations can do nothing to stop the trouble because France, which with its allies is the most potent influence in the League, has gone into a deal with Italy, which gives the latter the right to swallow up poor Ethiopia as a reward for supporting French policies in Europe. It is an instance where France is dealing with Italy and letting somebody else pay. Too bad she can't pay us what she owes us the same way. Then we might have some chance of getting our money. Great Britain, the other powerful member of the League, wants the League to stop Italy but can't do it without French support. Then, if the League did try to start something Italy would withdraw and the League would probably collapse.

So there is the trouble. The League is powerless because it is not a real league, and nobody else seems able to do anything about it. How thankful we ought to be that Uncle Sam is not at Geneva. Can you imagine the terrific barrage of propaganda we might be undergoing to go to the defense of British interests in Africa by mixing in this mess as a "high duty of humanity"? But since we are out of the League we are out of the trouble and we ought to keep out of trouble. We do not want to pull anybody's chestnuts out of the fire. What we want to do is to remain at home and try to restore our own normalcy.

FIGURES IN COTTON

There is much to be learned of economics from an examination of the cotton figures of world production and consumption. According to the National Industrial Conference Board, 17.4 per cent less American cotton was consumed last year than before. Of this slump 27.3 per cent was in foreign countries and only 5.7 per cent in the United States.

Now just compare these figures with those of production. We formerly raised sixty per cent of the cotton used in the world and now our share of the total has dropped to only 43 per cent. And exports are shrinking all the time. India, China, Russia, Egypt, Brazil and other countries are increasing their production. In short, we are selling less of our cotton to the world and we are raising less of the total amount consumed.

Now there must be a reason for this. And it isn't hard to find. The cotton program of the United States with its lessened production and its artifically stimulated higher prices, is encouraging production abroad. It makes no difference where the world price is fixed. Cotton is always cheaper abroad than in the United States. Therefore the more cheap cotton other nations can buy the more they will buy. And our program of planned scarcity is furnishing the stimulus for increased cheap foreign production.

For example, Max Winkler, president of the American Council of Foreign Bondholders, Inc., who has made an exhaustive study of conditions abroad, seems to believe that things are looking up for Brazil because of the increase there in cotton production. He says in a letter reproduced in the Congressional Record:

"Brazil, which has heretofore been a one product country, is gradually becoming one of the leading cotton-growing countries While United States planters are being rewarded handsomely for not growing cotton, Brazil is doing all she can to increase the output of what promises to play an increasingly important role in the country's economy."

There can be little doubt that Brazil got her inspiration to plant more cotton in part at least from the news of curtailment in the United States.

In the meantime, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Washington, Uncle Sam has already loaned at 10 and 12 cents a pound more than $315,000,000, and if things do not work out like the experts hoped, the United States will hold the bag to the extent of about one-half of the world's cotton supply. It was estimated if, because of an increased supply, the government is forced to sell cotton for less than twelve cents a pound, the loss on the bales already pledged would amount to $30,000,000 for each cent that the selling price dropped under twelve cents.

Talk about sharing the wealth! It is barely possible that our cotton wealth will be shared with the foreign producers.

THE BAR ASSOCIATION

One of the encouraging signs of the summer season is the tendency of our state bar associations, whenever they assemble, to take action in favor of the maintenance of the American constitutional government.

The resolution of the Pennsylvania Bar Association with a reaffirmation of the right of state government was a very healthful sign. No less stimulating to real Americans was the address made recently by Albert Ritchie, former governor of Maryland, serving as toastmaster at the annual banquet of the bar association of the old Free State.

Governor Ritchie is quoted as stating, by way of introducing the subject:

"The experimental period is about over now. We are face to face with the fact that in all likelihood there will be an ultimate breakdown in our form of government unless from now on we meet our national problems within, and not without, those American principles and institutions prescribed by the Constitution.

"Forces are now developing in this country which profess to think that the American system is not worth saving; that it has outlived its usefulness; that it cannot meet the new problems of the new day and so it should be scrapped. I am not one of these. I believe that such a system of government is worth saving, and that it has within itself that which can meet the problems of this or any other day."

The governor very wisely pointed out that our national success has been due to the free and individualistic spirit of our people and he continued that in order to prevent plundering of public resources and private citizens it is not necessary to destroy the good in corporate life as well as the bad.

"If we surrender the old to the new spirit," he concluded, "then this will mean the defeat of the American theory of democracy; it will mean that the American government will be autocratic instead of free."

As a general rule American lawyers have been educated in an atmosphere of upholding American constitutional government. They can well lead the way in calling for the preservation of the constitutional principles of our government, and it is to be hoped that more wise counsel will flow from the state bar association as they came int session.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL LAWS — 59

The United States News, delving into statistics, comes up with this count:

Public acts by Congress since 1789—24,016.

Acts or parts of acts declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court in that period —59.

These facts put a crimp in the argument that the Supreme Court is a menace, and that its powers ought to be curbed.

Congress, of course, has always been well supplied with constitutional lawyers who have frequently prevented the enactment of laws in a form known in advance to be contrary to the Constitution. But there has also been a large amount of experimental legislation on which there was a division of opinion in Congress as to whether it was unconstitutional. The National Industrial Recovery Act was one of those experiments, and was frankly declared so to be. It was adopted in a hurry because quick action was demanded. Good constitutional lawyers said at the time that if the Supreme Court upheld it, it would have to stretch the Constitution as it never had been stretched before.

The respect in which the Supreme Court is held is witnessed by the fact that the suggestion that its powers be curtailed, brought forth the NRA decision, received the most frosty response. A court that has upheld Congress in all but one-quarter of one per cent of its acts is scarcely a menace to the legislative branch.—Bangor Commercial.

MAN IN THE MOON

BLOOD ON THE MOON

If you happened to look out at the moon on Monday night and saw something strange about it which enthralled you and drew your interest, maybe causing you to feel a little foolish and silly for staying up so late to look, and maybe little tinglings up and down your spine, you must remember that you were not the only one who was doing this. Millions and millions of people were doing the very same thing and getting a great kick out of it. There was "blood on the moon", the thrill that comes once in a lifetime.

The spectacle was a total eclipse of the moon. Just in case you have not read all about it before, I will explain, just as it was explained by a nationally known scientist and astronomer.

At this time the sun was on the exact reverse side of the earth from the moon, thus casting a shadow of the earth through which the moon passed. This shadow was in the shape of a cone, or triangle, the base of which was the diameter of the earth, approximately 8,000 miles in length, and the "point" of the cone some 865,840 miles from the center of the earth. At this time the sun was some 94,419,000 miles from the earth, and the moon only 226,740 miles from the earth. By this it may be seen why the moon stayed in the shadow so long. At this time, too, astronomers say that the two heavenly bodies were as close to the earth as they ever come, causing the shadow to be the widest at the point of the moon's passage and causing the total eclipse. The distance across the shadow at this point of the moon's passage was 5,850 miles.

The moon first entered what is called the penumbra, a twilight shadow the limits of which were parallel lines from the sun through the extremities of the earth and on out into space. Later, the moon entered the umbra, a dark shadow, described above as cone-shaped, the extremities of which were lines drawn from the extremities of the sun through the extremities of the earth, and coming to a point 865,840 miles from the earth.

The reason for the "blood on the moon" feature is quite interesting, too. The fact that the moon looked red showed that there were no clouds at the earth's extremities. The atmosphere was clear, and by a curious quirk of nature the rays of the sun were bent in enough degree to shed a flicker of light on the moon all through its period of eclipse. This necessarily was in a manner of speaking reflected light, not clear and piercing, but more of a glow. Thus the red sheen.

If there had been clouds at the earth's extremities at this time, these light rays would not have been bent. In fact, they would have been so near stopped, altogether, that their glow would have fallen far short of reaching the moon. In this case, there would have been no "blood on the moon" feature, but the moon would have been blotted out as completely as if it were not in the sky.

As you very probably know, the moon has no light qualities of its own, but its glow is the reflected light of the sun. So, had the shadows been present to cut off all rays of the sun, there would have been nothing to reflect at this time, and so, no moon.

The scene was interesting, as you know, if you saw it. And if you did see it, feel proud, for it is a spectacle that comes but once in a lifetime. There are plenty of total moon eclipses. Each year the sun and the moon reach their closest point to the earth. But it may be hundreds of years before they will both reach their closest point to mother earth at the same time again, and at that time be exactly on the reverse sides of the earth from each other for an eclipse. And even when this happens again, it might not be visible here. So, you're lucky if you saw Monday night's grand sky show.

POLITICS AND FRIENDS

Dame Rumor has it that a certain fine gentleman will be a candidate for office next year on the Democratic ticket. This information was given me by a very close friend of both of us.

Now, in my opinion, this probable candidate is one of the finest men Chilton County can boast of. In fact, I really believe he would make a good official, and, in the light of recent political developments in the county, I believe he has an excellent chance of being nominated and elected. My informant came to me like this: "I don't think you should try to be so hard against Democrats. There is a certain fine man who will be in the race next year. He is one of your best friends. He might become offended. Of course I am a Democrat, and you are a Republican, but that is not the reason I am telling you this. I know you two are great friends, and I want you to remain so."

I knew who he was talking about, and the next time I saw the coming condidate, I had a talk with him. I assured him that my personal good wishes would be with him, as my confidence in his ability and honesty is the highest possible, but that, as a Republican, I must do all that I can for my party and its candidates.

His thanks were offered for the expression of confidence and good wishes, and stated that it was his wish to win on his own attributes. That man is a good man, and an honest and able one. But he does not expect his friends who are among his politica' opponets to quit the fight just because of friendship. He is a square shooter—he gives no quarter and expects none. He is worthy of the office he will seek.

Politics and friendship do not mix. History tells us that Thomas Jeferson and Alexander Hamilton, founders of the present Democratic and Republican parties, were bosom friends. There have been numerous instances where close friends have been bitter political enemies. Personal enmity very often plays an important part in politics, but it should not be. The party policies should be the rules by which a voter makes his decisions, not his personal likes and dislikes. And the man who is big enough for office knows this, and will not lose friends because of politics.

AUTOCRATS

The most dangerous side of President Roosevelt has just come into the light. Anyone might excuse mistaken policies which failed to work, even though they were experiments. We might even excuse his brain trust, even though we feel it has done no good and is not American in any sense.

But of late a more sinister aspect has been revealed. When the president lost the NRA case, he set about to get around the Supreme Court in some way. The last batch of bills contained several which in the opinion of the U. S. Attorney General were unconstitutional. But that has made no difference. The president has gone right ahead and asked that they be made into law, even tacking the "must" clause on some of them, although he was warned they were unconstitutional.

Such action is un-American. The Constitution, a proved governmental guide-post, Mr. Roosevelt would set aside. For his actions along this line even high ranking Democrats have branded him an autocrat, inasmuch as he would set aside America's basic law to suit his whim and fancy.

He has been charged with trying to prejudice the voters of the country against the Supreme Court by sending impossible questions before it for consideration. These questions are sure for repudiation by the Court and Mr. Roosevelt hopes to lessen the respct of voters for it, so that the way will be easier for an Court's powers. Would a patriot use such amendment which will take away part of the methods?

An autocrat has no respect for his country's laws. He wishes to make himself the supreme law. A good example of this is Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany, or Mussolini of Italy, or Hitler of Germany. Each of these men made their own will the law of the land.

A patriot believes in his country and its laws. He makes it a point to keep those laws inviolate. American history is replete with men of this type. Do Americans want to let Mr. Roosevelt make of himself a Hitler or a Mussolini—an autocrat? Or will they return to a man who believes in American laws and institutions? We believe the latter is the case. One big Democrat told the president that he was not a Democrat nor a true American patriot, but a Rooseveltian autocrat. How's that?

WHAT GIRLS ARE MADE OF

Here's a good one. The ladies are sweet things, as everyone knows, but an analysis has been made to find out if they are all sugar, or just partly so. Here's what was found went to make up one girl:

Chlorine enough to sanitize five swimming pools—that's why they look so clean, I suppose.

Oxygen enough to fill 1,400 cubic feet—that's why they can talk so long without coming up for air.

There are 30 teaspoons of salt, enough to season 25 chickens—I never would have believed it.

There are 10 gallons of water—I can't believe that, even now.

There are 5 pounds of lime, enough to whitewash a chicken coop—maybe that's the reason they can whitewash things over so easily and get away with it.

There are 31 pounds of carbon—must have been a "colored sister".

Glycerine enough for bursting the charge of a heavy Navy shell—I can believe that, after listening to one of the "dear ones" blow up about something when she gets mad.

Enough glutin to make 5 pounds of glue—they ought to stick better than some of them do, with all that glue in them.

Magnesium enough for 10 flashlight photos—maybe that's the reason a guy says "you're the light of my life".

Fat enough for 10 bars of soap—none of them will admit carrying that much fat.

Enough iron to make a 6-penny nail—some of them are pretty hard, all right; so maybe they do have that much iron.

Sulphur enough to rid a dog of fleas—that's fine; I don't like fleas any way.

And now, believe it or not, a girl carries only one-quarter of a pound of sugar. Now, "who would have thunk it". I don't believe yet that all of them are the same. Maybe some of the girls got the sugar allotment that belonged to other girls. Some are sweeter than others, you know.—Man in the Moon.

WEALTH SHARING AND TAXES

Of late we have heard less and less about any proposed "share the wealth" plan and are informed that the measure which is to be pushed through Congress, if it can be done this session, will be a tax bill pure and simple. Those sponsoring the new legislation do not seem to like the term "share the wealth." Perhaps the idea has not met with so favorable a public reception as some may have anticipated. Too many people profess to see something little short of "piratical" about a plan to force people, who have earned wealth by their ability and industry, to share with those who have little ability and less inclination work and save money.

The words of the fiery ex-Senator Jim Reed of Missouri furnish an eloquent case in point. In a copyrighted statement to the Associated Press recently, Senator Reed likened the share the wealth plan to the processes which have been engaged in by the Communists in Russia, declaring that they are open to the criticism which has been directed against those who have been engaged in less legal and ethical plans of sharing other people's property. The economic effects of such a policy, he predicted, would be disastrous.

Nobody will question the reasoning ability of the former Senator from Missouri. To him a straight line is the shortest distance between two points and he generally uses no roundabout phraseology in arriving at a conclusion.

Of course, everyone wants the budget balanced. The trouble is, however, that too many of our statesmen seem to have forgotten that a penny saved counts as much toward budget balancing as a penny raised by taxation. One might expect college professors to know little about practical finance but what shall we say about the politicians who have been up against the world from the word "go"? Can't they realize that if we spend less money we will have to raise less by taxation?

"Can you tell me the difference between Woodrow Wilson and Franklin D. Roosevelt?" asked a blond stenographer. "I could," said I, "but I see a conundrum coming; so, by way of expediting matters, I am letting you supply the right answer.

"Well, Woodrow Wilson," said the B. S., "Was a professor surrounded by politicians. Franklin D. Roosevelt is a politician surrounded by professors."—Philadelphia Sunday Dispatch.

The law of supply and demand is no more susceptible of being man-controlled beyond a certain point than is the law of gravity. Each is natural, not devised. Each exacts a penalty of some sort when it is overlooked or flouted. Hundreds of thousands of families this summer will go on a limited meat diet because wanton destruction of food animals added to the shortage made by the drought.—Newark News.

Late news: Mussolini rebuffs the League of Nations. Dear, dear, dear! The capacity of the League for rebuffment is infinite. The epitaph of the League should be rewritten out of celebrated words. "Half a League, half a League, half a League backwards."—London Express.

The Beloit Call reports a man, aggrevated by an item in the paper, who went to a lawyer to see what could be done about it. The lawyer was a good and honest lawyer. He told the man the way to get even was to buy the paper and run it six months.—E. E. Kelley in Topeka Capital.

IN THE GOOD OLD TIMES

In this distribution of our national wealth it might be well to stop for a moment and try to determine who gets it in the first place anyhow. Just what is the proportion between working capital and wages anyhow?

According to James L. Donnelly, executive vice president of the Illinois Manufacturers Association, as reported by the Manufacturers News, in the year 1933, which certainly was near the bottom of the depression, the workers' portion of the national income was 63 per cent. At the same time, it is to be remembered, the profits of corporations had practically disappeared. In summarizing Mr. Donnelly's statement the News continues:

"Real wages of all workers (wage related to the cost of living) rose 16 per cent in the seven years from 1922 to 1929, and average purchasing power rose 44 per cent. Back in the good old days of 1850, the workers' share of the national income was only 36 per cent. In the fourteen years from 1918 to 1932, the average business return per dollar of service or sales was less than 2½ cents; only about four cents if we eliminate the worse years, 1921, 1931 and 1932. Eighty per cent of the manufacturers in Illinois, and porbably in the whole country, employ fewer than 100 workers each, and few have cash working capital greater than ten per cent of their annual payrolls."

So there must have been something to the prosperity in these good old days of 1922 to 1929 which have now been catalogued as in the "horse and buggy era." Real wages certainly rose in that Old Deal period in comparison with the cost of living. Let it be repeated. Real wages rose 16½ per cent and purchasing power 44 per cent. Evidently it wasn't such a tough time for the wage earner, even if it was in the jungle days before Prof. Tugwell started cutting the grass. No wonder some of the college professors have been shooting at the good old Coolidge year of 1926 as something worth hitting.

It is said the government wants to give the farmer the buying power he had in the pre-war period, from 1909 to 1914. But that won't be near enough. In those days he didn't have to buy automobiles or gasoline, and radios were not even dreamed of.

The sooner we all learn that manna comes from heaven alone, and that man since Adam must live from the sweat of his brow, the quicker we shall all settle back into our proper sphere, and get along about our own business.—The Better Way.

Some listeners complained that they could not hear Gen. Hugh Johnson's radio speech the other night because of static. A few months ago you couldn't hear the static for the general.—El Dorado, Kansas, Times.

A man in Scotland has been convicted 368 times of violating the law, and the last time he got thirty days for heaving a rock through a window. Some of these days he will get to be an habitual criminal, if he isn't careful.

A Senate committee has rejected a move to have Huey Long ejected from that august and honored body. We suspect that since the administration has adopted a "share-the-wealth" plan, Huey is "sitting pretty."

The Shedd Aquarium at Chicago has received an interesting supply from Hawaii of what are termed "peppy" fish. Most fish we know are peppy, especially when they start out in the evening to make a night of it.

It is said that more than 4,700 miles of thread can be spun from a single pound of cotton. But we know some stump speakers who can spin more than 4,700 miles of baloney out of one pound of logic.

News from Hollywood is that gentlemen no longer prefer blondes, but have switched to redheads. But it's practically as easy for a girl to be a readhead as a blonde.—Alburquerque, N. M., Journal.

General Hugh Johnson, who went to New York to take charge of city relief, has been initiated into the "Circus Saints and Sinners." We presume he will take the station of the Man on the Flying Trapeze.

Our office boy says that he told his best girl she ought to be in pictures but what he really ment was in the pictures in the old plush-covered family album.

Well, the high tariff on imported liquor accomplished one thing. It has certainly built up the London Dry Gin industry in the United States.

Well, Louis licked Carnera, which is not a very good omen for Mussolini if he wants to take on the King of Ethiopia this fall.

Einstein says that nothing is unlimited. Maybe he is the professor who is working out our national relief expenditures.

It is said that the Federal Relief work will give 500,000 women in the program the status of men. They have it now—all except chewing tobacco.

Somehow or other a Vice President always reminds us of a fellow taking the trip in a rumble seat alone.

Hawaii s now anxious to get into the Union as a state. Maybe she thinks that the relief is better on the inside.

Bath tubs have been found in the dwelling houses of the Tigris Valley which were 4,500 years old. Wonder if there were rings in 'em?

MILLS-KENDRICK WEDDING TO BE SUNDAY, AUGUST 4th

Members of the Senior Class of Chilton County High School and many other friends in Clanton have received the following invitation:

"Dr. and Mrs. Bishop Marvin Kendrick invite you to be present at the marriage of their daughter, Margaret, to Mr. William Benjamin Mills, on Sunday afternoon, August 4th, 1935, at five o'clock, Methodist Episcopal Church, Luverne, Ala."

This invitation and announcement is of extraordinary interest to the people of Clanton, owing to the fact that Miss Kendrick has been a most popular teacher in the Chilton County Hgh School for the past few years.

400 Demonstration Club Women Attend Rally In Clanton Tuesday

About four hundred representative women of Chilton County, members and active workers in fourteen Home Demonstration Clubs, attended the annual rally held at the High School Building in Clanton Tuesday.

The meeting was called to order at ten o'clock by the County Council, Chairman, Miss Lena Downs, followed by a group song.

The address of welcome was extended by Mayor C. Fenn Jones, to which Miss Lena Downs made a most impressive response on behalf of the visitors.

In the dress review, prizes were awarded to the following: Miss Bernice Jones, Mt. Pleasant; Mrs. Jim Roper, Baker; Miss Everee Smith, Mt. Pleasant; Mrs. Horace Popwell, Baker; Mrs. E. D. Hand, Poplar Springs; Mrs. M. Manning, Thorsby; Mrs. Jadie Sammons, Mineral Springs; Mrs. D. W. Ward, Baker.

The report of county club work was made by Miss Ruth Pardue, County Home Demonstraton Agent, after which award was made to the Poplar Springs Club for having the best attendance and the best club report. The prize was a steam pressure canner.

A health talk by Dr. C. O. Lawrence was a discussion of the subjects of sanitation and hygiene.

After lunch the Poplar Springs Club presented a play entitled "The Son's Wife."

The followng officers of the County Council of Club Women for the next year were elected: Mrs. Anna L. Phalin, Thorsby, president; Mrs. Tom Littlejohn, Baker, first vice president; Mrs. Earle Thomas, Isabella, second vice president; Miss Lillian Busby, Minooka, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Mattie L. Crew, Poplar Springs, recording secretary; Mrs. W. A. Adams, Midway, treasurer.

The following is a list of the clubs of the county, all of which were represented: Verbena, Sardis, Isabella, Midway-Mt. Creek, Enterprise, Thorsby, Pletcher, Shoults, Mineral Springs, Poplar Springs, Minooka, Mt. Pleasant, Baker, Fairview.

GOVERNMENT FARM LOAN SERVICES ARE BROADENED

The Farm Credit Act of 1935, signed by the President on June 3, reduces the interest rate on federal land bank loans, enables the Land Bank Commissioner to make loans to finance the purchase of farms, and broadens the services offered by the banks for cooperatives in several important respects, acording to the Farm Credit Administration.

Efective for one year beginning on July 1, 1935, interest payable on all Federal and bank loans made through national farm loan associations will be charged at the reduced rate of three and one-half per cent. Interest payable in the two years beginning July 1, 1936, will be reduced to 4 per cent. Thereafter the rate will be that stipulated in the original loan contracts. Farmers having loans made directly by the farm land banks pay interest rates one-half of one percent higher than rates charged farmers borrowing through national farm loan associations. The interest rate on Land Bank Commissioner's loan will remain at 5 percent a year.

Another provision of the Farm Credit Act of 1935 enables the Land bank Commissioner to make first and second mortgage loans to farmers to finance the puschase of farms. Previously such loans were made only to refinance farm debts, provide working capital, and repurchase farms lost which the Commissioner can make loans to farmers has been extended to 1940.

Under the new Act the interest rate charged by the banks for cooperatives on loans secured by commodities is reduced. Formerly, many cooperatives that were financed in part by such banks, obtained commodity loans from the Federal intermediate credit banks or other institutions, which gave the cooperatives more favorable interest rates than the banks for cooperatives could offer. The amendments to the old laws also provide that the banks for cooperatives may rediscount such loans with the Federal intermediate credit banks.

The Act also allows the banks to make loans on security of physical facilities to farmers' cooperative associations engaged in purchasing farm supplies. Physical facility loans can now be made in amounts not to exceed 60 percent of the facilities financed by the loan as provided in the former act. Cooperatives supplying farmers with various business services are now eligible to borrow from the banks as well as those engaged in marketing farm commodities or purchasing farm supplies.

CABINET BARS NEW DEAL FOR BRITIAN

Lloyd Georeg's Plan Based on Hope, Officials Hold

London,—July 22.—Declaring that Britain "must beware of any action which might retard national progress by discouraging individual or local effort," the cabinet today pointed to "failure of many experiments initiated by foreign governments" as its reason for rejecting David Lloyd George's New Deal program for Britain.

The war-time Premier's scheme for great public works, directed economy, nationalized finance and re-employment is based on "hopeful prophecies," a long cabinet statement said, stressing again and again that "no great country can claim to have advanced as far as our own upon the path toward renewed prospreity."

Lloyd George plans to wage a campaign luring the next parliamentary elections to win popular support for his program.

More Heard About Saturday Parking

Mayor C. Fenn Jones requests that attention be called again to the regulations about Saturday parking on Main Street in Clanton, which the city officials ask that the public observe.

"Several motorists seem to have forgotten our parking regulations," said the Mayor, "and we wish they would refresh their recollection a little bit on this subject. We do not want to have to place a fine on anybody for such violations. But we believe the observance of proper regulations of traffic are necessary for the safety and convenience of everybody, especially on Saturdays."

Police Chief John Browder adds his amen to the reminder of Mayor Jones. Mr. Browder does his very best to get everybody to observe the rules in a kindly spirit and good humor. If he gets after you, don't get huffy. It is your duty to abide by the rules because it makes our streets safer for yourself and everybody else.

KIWANIS MEETS EARLY ON THURSDAY NIGHT THIS WEEK

The regular meeting of Clanton Kiwanis Club will be held at 6:45 Thursday evening at the Exchange Hotel. The hour of meeting has been moved up in order that the program may be concluded in time for the membrs to attend revival services in progress at Clanton Methodist church.

The program will be in charge of Acton Middlebrooks. The guest speaker will be Rev. J. Fred Sparks, who is conducting the revival at the Methodist church.

Dr. J. M. Kimmey, health officer of Chilton County, will be officially received into active membership of the club.

MT. PLEASANT

MT. PLEASANT—BEAT 12

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you give me space in your paper to give a report of the singing which was held at this place on last Sunday?

The house was called to order by Mr. W. J. Northcutt, who acted as chairman during the day. Mr. Ammie Boswell sang the opening song and Mr. R. A. Barnett led the audience in prayer. The following directors were called in the morning:

Mr. Boswell, Marvin Campbell, Miss Willie Mae Scott, Mr. Smith, Walter Hooks, Prof. Ralph Grant, Mr. Ira Grant and Sam Collins.

At noon there was a bountiful dinner spread in the grove which was enjoyed very much. And not only did we enjoy the dinner, but we enjoyed an hour shaking hands with old friends and meeting new ones. In the afternoon the following directors sang two songs each:

Mr. Bennett, Mr. Godford, Miss Willie Mae Scott, Mr. E. L. Glasscock, Mr. Ira Grant, Mr. Ralph Grant, Mr. Andrew Blow, Mr. P. M. Cleckler, Mr. S. J. Twilley. The Oak Grove quartet sang several numbers during the day. Mr. Collins and Miss Northcutt sang a duet. We also had one by Miss Loy Glass and Miss Willie Northcutt; a solo by Prof. Grant and a double quartet which was enjoyed by all present. Pianists for the day were Mr. Ralph Grant, Mrs. Roper, Mrs. Shaw, Mrs. Murray and Mrs. Robinson.

We were glad to have all the visitors and singers from other communities. You are always welcome and we especially invite you to come back the third Sunday in July, 1936, as this Sunday in each year is set apart for an annual singing at this place. We look forward from one year to the next, with the hope that God will bless us with the privilege of meeting together again to worship and praise Him in another song service.—Reporter.

POWELL REUNION

On last Sunday a number of people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Powell, and had a reunion for Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Powell of Pensacola, Florida. All of the children were present except two sons, Mr. Albert Powell of Pensacola, and John L. Powell of South America.

The people gathered at the home about nine o'clock, and enjoyed the morning talking and laughing very much, as there were some who had not been together for a number of years.

At noon a most tempting lunch was spread, picnic style, in the shade under the grove in front of the house.

Those enjoying this great event were: Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Powell, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Retherford and daughter, of Pensacola, Fla., Mrs. A. G. Jordon, Jr. and children of Capitola, Fla., Messrs. William and Charles Deason of Boulder Colo., Mr. and Mrs. Fate Powell and children of Mt. Creek, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ray and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Mullins and family, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Owens and family, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Deavers, Mr. and Mrs. Greeley Powell and son, Mr. and Mrs. Hughey Carroll, Mrs. J. B. Mullins and Rev. Harvey Culp. all of Clanton, Mr. Bill Strock of Verbena, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Culp and son, and Mrs Alice Weldon of Maplesville, Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Ray and family and Mr. Earnest Star of Auburn.

The day was greatly enjoyed by everyone present. The host of people began to leave for their homes late in the afternoon. They all wished for Mr. and Mrs. Powell many more happy reunions.

Everyday Cooking Miracles

BY FRANCES WEEDMAN
Director Hotpoint Electric Cookery Institute

Cream puffs—bugaboos they have been to some of us who have tried to make them and to bake them successfully in the past.

However, a miraculous new and a positively sure way of baking them successfully has now been worked out. You will almost become Alice in Wonderland as you read this story. But, a happy and a content Alice in Wonderland you will be, if you are fortunate enough to possess one of the modern electric ranges of the day—the only type of range which makes possible this bit of baking magic—this new baking miracle.

Miracle Cookery makes it possible to put cream puffs in the cold oven of the electric range.

First of all let me give you the recipe for making and for baking the cream puffs, and then I'll tell you the "why" of their fairy baking magic.

The Recipe

1 cup water 1 cup bread flour
½ cup butter 4 eggs

Combine the water and butter in a saucepan. Bring to the boiling point on the surface unit of an electric range with switch turned to high heat. Add flour, all at once. Cook, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens and forms a ball. Remove from the unit and cool slightly. Add the eggs, one at a time, beating the mixture thoroughly between the addition of each egg.

Now drop the mixture by spoonfuls on a greased baking sheet. Then place the cream puffs in a cold electric oven. Set temperature control of the electric oven to 400 degrees, turn the switch to bake and bake the cream puffs until done—approximately forty-five minutes

A Baking Miracle

Did you read that recipe carefully? Did you see that we put the cream puffs in a cold oven, and that then—and not until then—did we switch on the heat. Isn't that one-step baking at its best—isn't it time-saving baking at its best?

The controlled moisture and even heat of the electric oven makes possible this revolutionized way of baking cream puffs. The result? Well, the cream puffs puff. They puff until they are feathery light, and they bake until they are golden brown. Fill them, when cold, with whipped cream flavored with fresh, crushed strawberries, and, when served, they will disappear like black magic, we venture to predict.

Today's Miracle Recipe

Here is a recipe for making and baking delicious tea cakes the "miracle way."

⅓ cup butter Dash salt
¾ cup granulated sugar ½ cup milk
1⅓ cups cake flour 2 egg whites
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon vanilla extract

Cream the butter, add the sugar and mix well. Mix and sift the flour, baking powder and salt and add alternately with the milk and vanilla extract. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into cake mixture. Fill well-greased muffin tins two-thirds full. Place tins in cold electric oven and set temperature control to 350 degrees. Turn the switch to bake and bake 30-40 minutes, depending on size of tea cakes.

The American Legion team will play Maplesville here Friday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock. On Tuesday afternoon, July 30th, the same local team will play Union Grove here at 3:15.

The fans are urged to be on hand, as both these games promise to be thrillers.

CLANTON NEGROES WIN

Playing before one of the season's biggest crowds last Thursday afternoon at the Clanton park, Clanton's Negro team defeated the Wetumpka Negro team 7 to 6.

Woodson, Clanton pitcher, throttled the Wetumpka club with three bingles, while Clanton was getting to Shepard and Marbra for 13. Besides the 3-hit pitching, Woodson struck out 19 Wetumpka batters.

Marbra was the sensation for Wetumpka, behind the bat. He exhibited the best peg to second that has ever been seen in the Clanton park. Taking up the pitching duties in the 5th, he allowed only three hits the rest of the way, and struck out 8. It is expected that the Clanton club will have him with them next Thursday when they tackle the Calera team. Marbra is a show all by himself, and, white or black, is one of the best defensive baseball players who ever dug his cleats into the sod of Clanton park. If you want to see a man who would surely go to the majors but for his color, see Marbra here next Thursday, as efforts are being made to get him for that game.

ANOTHER NEGRO GAME

Local fans enjoyed the negro game last Thursday afternoon. They went to the game prepared to laugh. The laughs were there alright—plenty of them, but the crowd saw some good baseball, too. They saw an air-tight pitching performance, a 3-hit game by Woodson, Clanton portsider; they saw Cogen, giant outfielder, enjoy a perfect day at bat with 4 out of 4, a single, a double and two triples. On top of all this they saw Marbra, the Wetumpka sensation.

Marbra was a team within himself, and was well worth the admission price to see him work. Starting behind the plate, he showed the best throwing arm ever seen at this park. His peg to second was like a shot, and true as a die. Would-be pilferers had no chance to steal, one after another going dead with yards to spare. After taking up the pitching duties, he put the old smoke ball into action again, and 3 singles were all that Clanton could get by him for 5 innings. That fast one of Marbra's fairly smoked, looking like a gray streak.

On thursday (today) the Clanton negro club plays the Calera negro team and it is expected that the Clanton manager will borrow Marbra for that game. If you saw Marbra last Thursday, you will be sure to see him again. If you didn't see him, come today prepared to look over one of the best baseball players you ever rubbed an eye over. The game should be a thriller.

When behind the bat, if a man is on base, Marbra sheds his cap so that the mask will slip easily, and shakes it from his head as he throws, there is a streak toward second, and another base runner is out, for his throw is perfect every time. Marbra alone will be worth your 15 cents. The game will begin at 3:15.

CLANTON 5—GREYS 2

Clanton defeated the Montgomery Greys, the National Guard Unit team from Montgomery, last Wednesday afternoon 5 to 2. Golson got away to a shaky start, allowing 2 singles and singles and a double in the first frame, which brought in one run. After this, however, he settled down and allowed only 4 other hits, in the 2nd, two in the 3rd, and one in the 8th. The visitors scored with a base on balls, an error, and a sacrifice fly in the sixth.

Clanton scored first in the 3rd when Simpson walked and Baker and Simms singled. Four more were added in the 5th on three bases on balls, two errors and three hits.

Baker and Simms led the hitting for Clanton with two for four, and Grant led for the visitors with three out of four.

McDADE 8—CLANTON 7

Clanton lost to McDade's Tinners, of Montgomery, Saturday afternoon, 8 to 7, in one of the raggedest games they have played this season. The locals kicked numbers of chances to ice the game away through poor base running.

Simms and Wilson led for Clanton with a pair of blows each, and Bailey, McDade pitcher, led his club with three, two of them circuit clouts over the right field wall. The fielding gem of the afternoon was in the 8th inning, when Taylor hit a screaming liner to left field; Golson took it over his shoulder on the dead run with a brilliant stab.

AMERICAN LEGION 3—Maplesville 6

The American Legion Juniors lost a thriller to Maplesville on Sunday afternoon, 6 to 3. The Juniors were leading 1 to 0 until the 8th, and Golson was getting a pitching masterpiece out of his system, with the Legion giving him air-tight support. But in the fatal 8th, Golson weakened, gave up four hits, and the Legion infield blew up like a powder barrel, making four errors, and Maplesville counted six runs. Armstrong finished the inning. In the 9th the Legion made a bid to tie the score, opening with three straight singles. But a second base force-out and two flies stopped the rally.

R. McAfee led Maplesville with three out of four, and George Wilson duplicated for the Legion. The Juniors made 5 errors and Maplesville 3.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to acknowledge our most sincere thanks and appreciation to friends in Clanton for their many expressions of sympathy in the sadness visited upon us by the death of our father.—William and Charles Deason.

Mr. John Fox from Michigan is in Clanton visiting relatives and friends. Mr. Fox has been in the automobile state for the past twelve years.

HOME COMING AT CANE CREEK

On the second Sunday in August we are going to have a home-coming at Cane Creek, (Aug. 11). We want all our older members who have moved away to come back home and all enjoy being together once more, as we once have been. If you have joined some other church we want you to come. The program will be announced later.

Who Would Pay This $2,000,000 Loss In Alabama Tax Revenues?

COULD Alabama, its counties and municipalities and institutions afford to lose the sorely needed sum of $2,000,000 annually in tax revenue?

What new taxes would be levied to make up this huge deficit?

These are not mere idle questions. They are vital questions, which may soon call for answers from the taxpayers and citizens of this State.

If the Tennessee Valley Authority should extend its operations throughout Alabama and pay taxes only on the basis agreed upon, Alabama, its counties and cities, would lose tax revenues amounting yearly to approximately TWO MILLIONS.

This grim prospect, whose grave significance is as yet only faintly realized, is this:

The Tennessee Valley Authority has agreed to pay as its total taxes in the State of Alabama, only 5 per cent upon its proceeds from the sale of power at wholesale rates.

On this same basis, private power companies in Alabama would have paid in taxes in this State during 1934, less than $400,000 instead of approximately $2,400,000 which they actually did pay.

In brief, the State, its institutions, its counties and municipalities would lose the difference in $2,400,000 and $400,000 which is $2,000,000.

What State funds, what State institutions, what Counties would lose this $2,000,000?
